SOUR, ACID STOMACHS, GASES OR INDIGESTION

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time it! In five minutes all stomach distress will go. No indigestion, heartburn, sourness or belching of gas, acid, or eructations of undigested food, no dizziness, bloating, foul breath or headache.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in regulating upset stomachs. It is the surest, quickest stomach remedy in the whole world and besides it is harmless. Put an end to stomach trouble forever by getting a large fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from any drug store. You realize in five minutes how needless it is to suffer from indigestion, dyspepsia or any stomach disorder. It's the quickest, surest and most harmless stomach doctor in the world.

REVIVAL AT RIENZI, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: I just want to tell all the readers of the Advocate of the great meeting we have had in our town through the instrumentality of Brother J. H. Bell, our Conference evangelist. Sinners were happily converted and dormant church members restored to the love and work of the Church. It had been years since we had had such an outpouring of the Holy Spirit. It reached all denominations. A young men's prayer meeting has been organized with eighteen members, all of whom have promised to lead in the services and to pray in public when called upon. The Sunday school has been built up and the work of the church as a whole strengthened. Brother Bell presents the gospel and works in a quiet way, and with the power that comes alone as a result of the indwelling of the Holy Spirit in one's heart. He turns the search-light upon sin so plainly that sinners will come to the feet of Jesus to be saved. His preaching has been a great blessing to our town, and if any brother desires to have his church and town greatly revived he should secure the services of Brother Bell, who is truly a man of God with "a message" for all.

Old Folks Saved From Suffering

Mrs. Mary A. Dean, Taunton, Mass., in her 87th year, says: "I thought I was beyond the reach of medicine, but Foley Kidney Pills have proven most beneficial in my case."

Mr. Sam A. Hoover, High Point, N. C., writes: "My kidney trouble was worse at night and I had to get up from five to seven times. Now I do not have to get up at night, and consider myself in a truly normal condition, which I attribute to Foley Kidney Pills, as I have taken nothing else."

Mrs. M. A. Bridges, Robinson, Mass., says: "I suffered from kidney ailments for two years. I commenced taking Foley Kidney Pills ten months ago, and though I am 61 years of age, I feel like a 16-year-old girl."

Foley Kidney Pills are tonic, strengthening and up-building, and restore normal action to the kidneys and to a disordered and painful bladder. They act quickly and contain no dangerous or harmful drugs.

Quickest, Surest Cough Remedy is Home-Made

Easily Prepared in a Few Minutes. Cheap but Unequaled

Some people are constantly annoyed from one year's end to the other with a persistent bronchial cough, which is wholly unnecessary. Here is a home-made remedy that gets right at the cause and will make you wonder what became of it.

Get 2½ ounces Pinex (50 cents worth) from any druggist, pour into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Start taking it at once. Gradually but surely you will notice the phlegm thin out and then disappear altogether, thus ending a cough that you never thought would end. It also loosens the dry, hoarse or tight cough and heals the inflammation in a painful cough with remarkable rapidity. Ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Nothing better for bronchitis, winter coughs and bronchial asthma.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup mixture makes a full pint—enough to last a family a long time—at a cost of only 54 cents. Keeps perfectly and tastes pleasant. Easily prepared. Full directions with Pinex.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in guaiacol, and is famous the world over for its ease, certainty and promptness in overcoming bad coughs, chest and throat colds.

Get the genuine. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces Pinex," and do not accept anything else. A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. The Pinex Co., 235 Main St., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

We eat too much meat which clogs Kidneys, then the Back hurts.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids so they no longer irritate, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complication.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

HAVE GOOD HEALTH

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Old Reliable Spring Tonic.

Don't let the idea that you may feel better in a day or two prevent you from getting a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla today from any drug store and starting at once on the road to health and strength.

When your blood is impure and impoverished it lacks vitality, your digestion is imperfect, your appetite is poor, and all the functions of your body are impaired.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful blood tonic. It will build you up quicker than any other medicine. It gives strength to do and power to endure. It is the old standard tried and true all-the-year-round blood purifier and enricher, tonic and appetizer. Nothing else acts like it, for nothing else has the same formula or ingredients. Be sure to ask for Hood's; Insist on having it.

Calomel To-day, Sick To-morrow

contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and neusea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

THE TROUBLE IS NOT INSIDE.

The myriads of parasitic germs which cause Tetter, Eczema, Ringworm, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc., cannot be killed internally. They live and feed on the surface and must there be treated. Tetterine is the common sense treatment that has scientific principles to back it up. E. A. Kennedy, druggist of Brooklyn, Fla., says: "Tetterine has cured quickly and permanently several stubborn cases of tetter that came under my personal knowledge. One of 15 years standing." 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Atlanta, Ga

MINISTER TELLS HOW HE WAS RESTORED TO HEALTH.

The splendid restorative powers of Dr. Miles' Nervine were never better demonstrated than by the experience of the Rev. W. J. Houck, of Greencastle, Pa. We will quote from a statement that he made recently:

"Several years ago I experienced some severe nervous shocks, which came at a time when my nervous strength and vitality had been greatly taxed by a severe season of work. My health was affected and I was seriously threatened with nervous prostration. I could not sleep at night and was so nervous that I would start at every little noise. My appetite was poor and it seemed almost impossible for me to gain strength. Through the advice of a friend I began taking Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills. I soon saw that my health was improving. Instead of that tired and wornout feeling which had so oppressed me, I felt strong and cheerful. I could sleep soundly all night and would awake in the morning feeling rested and refreshed. Since that time, whenever I am overworked or feel "rundown" I find a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine is a wonderful help in bracing me up and in giving me renewed strength and health."

Dr. Miles' Nervine will prove equally beneficial to others who are nervous and run-down from overwork or from any other reason, and if it fails to benefit you your money will be cheerfully refunded. It can be purchased at any drug store.

Lime Medication In Tuberculosis

In the New York Medical Record of December 5, 1914, Dr. John North, of Toledo, says: "I have come to the conclusion that one of the most prominent causes (of tuberculosis) is 'lime starvation.' • In all cases of incipient tuberculosis there is a deficiency of calcium. Many do not eat food containing enough lime. • In such cases we must resort to lime medication."

Eckman's Alterative should be given a fair trial in such cases, because one of its chief ingredients is calcium (lime), in such combination with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Where its use is combined with proper diet, fresh air and hygienic living conditions, we believe it will prove beneficial in any case of tuberculosis.

It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, so is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

TO THE YOUNG PEOPLE OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Young People's Missionary Societies: I want to tell over seven hundred "Young People" that our Conference voted that we might sometimes have a column of their Woman's Page. Since we share this page with other Conferences, we can not often have it, but we appreciate this opportunity very much. Now, if your parents do not subscribe for the Advocate, our great Church paper, you get right out and assist your pastor in getting subscriptions, for you will not want to miss a single issue. If you will send me items of special interest that will be a help or inspiration to others, they will appear from time to time.

As soon as our Conference Annual comes to your adults I want you to be sure to get a copy for your own and read it every word, for you will find a secret. It is such a good secret and it is about you "Y. P."

We are all going to work together to make this a great year's work in our Master's kingdom. Why did we succeed last year? We had a great Leader, and we realized his presence as surely as did the Israelites of old, for he is the same yesterday, to-day, and forever."

Wonder who can send me the very best meaning of the letters, "Y. P. M. S.," aside from their real meaning (Young People's Missionary Society)?

I have a letter from Miss Hallie Buie, our own friend, who is now a missionary in Korea. It is far too long for our column, besides it will lose in interest when you fail to see how long it is. I will send it direct to the auxiliary that would like to read it. Miss Buie asks that the "Young People" send her some American songs, marches, male quartettes or choruses for her young people; also some simple games for her children and for the poor mothers who come to visit the school. These mothers have never had any childhood, poor things!

You may send to me the songs, marches, etc., also games, and I will send them direct to Miss Buie for you.

If this column is granted us we would be glad to hear from the Y. P. of the other Conferences.

Mrs. H. O. MIDDLETON.

Young People, you have read Mrs. Middleton's plea for the music and games; do not let it be in vain. Miss Buie is over in Korea waiting to see if our young people are going to respond. May she not have to wait until her heart is sick with longing. Stop right now, and look over your possessions, and then give a "shower" to Mrs. Middleton that will both surprise and delight her. Send some music or game which you really prize and you will realize something of the joy and blessedness of giving. Our young people are so generous and lovable that we know they are going to respond promptly to this appeal. Some time soon we are going to have Mrs. Middleton tell us about their gifts.

DON'T FORGET THE "YOUNG CHRISTIAN WORKER."

At our recent annual meeting in Vicksburg, when Miss Estelle Haskin spoke in behalf of the Young Christian Worker our women responded enthusiastically to her appeal for a doubling of the subscription list in this, as well as other Conferences. In fact, Mississippi more than doubled the number of her subscribers; or, to be exact, 535 new subscriptions were promised Miss Haskin. How many of the women have already presented this matter to their auxiliaries and secured the number pledged from that particular place? If you have neglected this privilege, do get busy now before you have lost the joy and inspiration of the meeting. Let us see how many of these 535 can be reported at the end of our first quarter. Whatever we are going to do should be done ere the quarter passes away, for it is so important to get a right start in the beginning of the year. The plans and pledges for the year are made at these annual meetings and we should lose no time in carrying out the same. If you do it now it gives you more time throughout the year for other plans which may come to you, and no right-thinking Christian woman wants to turn down any appeal made to her auxiliary for the advancement of the Master's work.

WESLEY HOUSE PLEDGES AGAIN.

Just a few words to remind you that the first quarter is fast drawing to a close and whatever you are going to do for our Wesley Houses must be done quickly. You surely do not want the work in either place to suffer and you know it will, for you heard of the urgent needs in both homes. It is our privilege to supply the funds to meet these crying necessities, so let us not be slow in forwarding the same.

Giving to the Lord is a part of the service which we should delight to render unto him, and the motive back of it all should be sacrifice and love for Christ. Remember for our sakes he became poor that we through his poverty might become rich. With our hearts full of love, giviug will be a matter of gladness and delight and there will always be some way opened to give to every need. If we sow sparingly we shall reap sparingly, and if we sow bountifully we shall reap bountifully.

THE COUNCIL DAILY.

No member of the Missionary Society can afford to be without the Council Daily this year. You need it and it needs you, so send your subscription NOW to Mr. John Hancock, care Foote & Davies, Atlanta, Ga. The price is twenty-five cents.

THE QUARTERLY EXECUTIVE MEETING.

Do not fail to hold the auxiliary executive meeting. We wish we could indelibly impress these words upon the heart of every auxiliary president.

With the March meeting the quarter closes. Let every auxiliary president hold an executive session at the close of this meeting and have reports made before leaving the place of meeting. The blanks for these reports will come from the different Conference officers to all auxiliary officers except the Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer, each of whom will obtain these from the Record and Report Books. This meeting will save each officer much trouble in obtaining data for her report and will insure completeness and uniformity in the reports. They will be ready on time, too.

TO THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETIES.

Dear Sisters: There is no greater missionary work than that of feeding, clothing, educating and training orphan children for God and his kingdom. In the definition of pure religion given in James 1:27, "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world," the word "visit" means to comfort, sustain and to help. This is certainly missionary work.

We have in the Methodist Orphanage, Jackson, Miss., 224 parentless children who are depending upon us to give them food, shelter, education and Christian training. It takes, on an average, about $10 each per month to care for them. Will not your Society make a monthly pledge of some amount to help us meet this great responsibility? In addition to the money, which we need most of all, we need clothing for children of all sizes and ages. Some of the societies are supporting one and some two orphans in the Home at the present time. We need others to join in this good work. We shall be glad to furnish the name and measurements of any child selected by your society. May we count on you?

For further information, address

J. B. RANDOLPH,
Supt. Miss. Orphans' Home,
Jackson, Miss.

We take pleasure in publishing the above letter in our department, but regret that we have not space to comment at length upon it. We recently visited our Orphanage and had the needs so deeply impressed upon our heart, not from anything Brother Randolph said. That was not necessary. We have a pair of good eyes and we used them, too. Would that every Methodist woman in our Conference could visit this institution! The purse-strings would surely be loosened and our silver would flow into its treasury, and joy would be ours that we had some part in feeding his lambs. There is no reason for any woman to say she doesn't know just how to help, for those little children have the same needs, desires and longings that our own have. Brother Randolph is doing a splendid work, but he simply cannot do it without our co-operation.

The Church has placed this responsibility upon us—are we going to shirk it? How can you face your Master at the judgment bar if you have neglected one of these little ones, so precious in his sight?

Women Once Invalids

Now in Good Health Through Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Say it is Household Necessity. Doctor Called it a Miracle.

All women ought to know the wonderful effects of taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound even on those who seem hopelessly ill. Here are three actual cases:

Harrisburg, Penn.—"When I was single I suffered a great deal from female weakness because my work compelled me to stand all day. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for that and was made stronger by its use. After I was married I took the Compound again for a female trouble and after three months I passed what the doctor called a growth. He said it was a miracle that it came away as one generally goes under the knife to have them removed. I never want to be without your Compound in the house."—Mrs. Frank Knobl, 1642 Fulton St., Harrisburg, Penn.

Hardly Able to Move.

Albert Lea, Minn.—"For about a year I had sharp pains across my back and hips and was hardly able to move around the house. My head would ache and I was dizzy and had no appetite. After taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills, I am feeling stronger than for years. I have a little boy eight months old and am doing my work all alone. I would not be without your remedies in the house as there are none like them."—Mrs. F. E. Yost, 611 Water St., Albert Lea, Minn.

Three Doctors Gave Her Up.

Pittsburg, Penn.—"Your medicine has helped me wonderfully. When I was a girl 18 years old I was always sickly and delicate and suffered from irregularities. Three doctors gave me up and said I would go into consumption. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and with the third bottle began to feel better. I soon became regular and I got strong and shortly after I was married. Now I have two nice stout healthy children and am able to work hard every day."—Mrs. Clementina Duerring, 34 Gardner St., Troy Hill, Pittsburg, Penn.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

From the Field

Sardis Ct., N. Miss. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: Mr. Narcissus L. Dorr, who was one of our oldest and best members at Davis Chapel, died on March 4, 1916, and was interred in the Davis Chapel Cemetery on March 5, 1916. The funeral service was conducted by his pastor, Rev. W. D. Bennett. He had lived in this neighborhood for a half century, and was an official member of the Methodist Church for more than thirty years. He leaves a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn their loss.

The work is moving along fairly well on the Sardis Circuit. This is a choice people among whom we dwell and with whom we work. There are no better neighbors anywhere than there are in this community. They are certainly kind to the preacher and his wife. There are three very live Sunday schools on the work. The one here at Davis Chapel is progressing splendidly under the leadership of our superintendent, Mrs. Marie D. Hay, who is an untiring worker.—(Mrs.) W. D. Bennett.

Minden, La.

Dear Mr. Editor: Since the installation of Rev. W. Winans Drake as pastor of the First Church here, I have suppressed certain impulses which have taken hold of me from time to time, until I could get all my bearings, or certain representations and beliefs which I have taken the liberty to force upon the good Methodist people of Louisiana, through your very valuable medium.

In the first place, I want to say that lawfully I am an Episcopalian, but that socially, I am a Methodist, so to speak. This confession should enable me to give an opinion free from bias or prejudice.

I rarely ever miss a sermon of Mr. Drake's, and I want to go on record in pronouncing him the most capable, attractive, and resourceful minister who has filled any pulpit in Minden for thirty years, and I have heard them all—I make it my business to do so. His head, heart, and brain is an irresistible trinity that makes his accomplishments a shining certainty.

I trust that some educational institution, having the authority to do so, will find him out and create him a D. D., and that "the survival of the fittest" will end in his conservation to the bishopric. Let the State push the good work along.—J. J. Holmes.

Wheeler Circuit (North Miss. Conf.)

Our first quarterly conference, which met at Lebanon, Miss., on March 3, was a good one, notwithstanding the inclement weather and muddy roads. Our new presiding elder, Rev. T. H. Dorsey, rode horseback fifteen miles over muddy roads to reach it, and he won the hearts of the people and delighted us all with the magnificent sermon he delivered, and the able manner in which he handled the business of the conference. Brother Boggs, a former pastor of Wheeler Circuit who is now on Booneville Circuit, was a welcome visitor. Our second quarterly conference will be held at Mt. Zion. We are tearing down our church in Wheeler, in order to build a better one. We hope to get it built and painted in time for our revival meeting, which will be held here, either in August or in September. We have had much sickness in our home this winter. Two of the children had pneumonia and all the rest had la grippe. Consequently, I have not been able to look after all the interests of the church yet, as a pastor should; but I am thankful to say good health prevails once more at the parsonage, and I hope to be more active in the work. We have a good, loyal people here, and are praying and working for a great year in the Master's name.—W. T. Bazzel, P. C.

IN MEMORIAM.

One by one the members of the Militant Church are translated to the Church Triumphant. "One star differeth from another star in glory," and the passing of MARY ELIZA MEEK adds another star of the first magnitude to that galaxy of stars in the heavenly firmament. She was the daughter of Humphrey and Rebecca Williamson, and was born on July 8, 1827, at Montgomery, Ala. Among the many citizens given by Alabama to Mississippi none were truer to home, country, or Church than this gracious lady. She was a splendid type of the converts that the old-time camp-meetings gave the Church, for, converted at the early age of eleven while attending a camp-meeting, she remained true to her Lord unto the end. During my happy quadrennium at Bay St. Louis from 1892 to 1896, her home was a haven of rest to this pastor. There, in consultation with her, many church problems were solved.

She was one of a quartette of workers, the giving of whose names will recall faces and characters whose godly influence abide in the hearts of the people of that beautiful little city by the sea—Turner, Joyner, Sadler, Meek. In the light or in the shadow, these four never wavered. My ascended friend was a veritable pillar of the Church. Always constant at the church services and alive to its every interest, she was ever a help and inspiration to her pastor. She was twice married: to William H. Fatheree on Jan. 12, 1851, and after his tragic death in the battle of Vicksburg, May 20, 1863, she was again married to Dr. W. H. Meek on Aug. 31, 1870. She was a resident of Bay St. Louis from 1884 to 1904, when she went to spend the evening of her life with her daughter, Mrs. L. D. Lindau of New Orleans. Here she united with the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, more familiarly known as the old Carondelet Street Methodist Church. Her last pastor was Dr. S. H. Werlein, whose family has been connected with that city for upward of three generations. The surviving children of her first marriage are M. Fatheree, Greenwood, Miss.; Mrs. W. E. Courts, Cary, Miss.; Mrs. M. E. Joyce, Jackson, Miss.; Mrs. E. W. McAtee, Bolatusha, Miss., and of her second marriage—Mrs. John Osoinachof, Bay St. Louis, Miss., and Mrs. H. E. Bates, Mrs. L. D. Lindau, and Mrs. L. Stringfield, all of New Orleans. Sister Meek passed to her eternal reward on Dec. 3, 1915, and was laid to rest at Bay St. Louis on Dec. 6.

"Now the laborer's task is o'er,
Now the battle day is past;
Now upon the farther shore
Lands the voyager at last.
Father, in thy gracious keeping
Leave we now thy servant sleeping."

THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Girls! Try It! Hair gets soft, fluffy and beautiful—Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine.

If you care for heavy hair that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff. You can not have nice heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp; the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast. Surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store and just try it.

PONTOTOC, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Ladies' Aid Society of the Pontotoc Church, which paid $2600 on the new Methodist Church here, has inaugurated a campaign to build a much needed parsonage and its members have taken the initiative in raising the money for it. Last Sunday the President of the Society announced that a meeting which would be a praise and thanksgiving service would be held in the ladies' parlor and that a thank offering from the ladies would be taken to fill out the first $100 for the new parsonage. The offering in cash, together with subscriptions received, amounted to $45, and this, added to what they already had in hand, amounted to $110. This greatly encouraged the ladies and they appointed a committee of three, namely, Mrs. J. W. Bell, Mrs. Stella Hermon, and Miss Ellen Carr, to work in harmony with the official board in soliciting funds for the enterprise. Now, if the men are as much interested in the work as these women are, there will be a nice, new parsonage standing beside the beautiful, new church by the last of this year. To say that the parsonage is needed in Pontotoc would be a superfluous statement. But this congregation has done well, for with scarcely 200 members they have built and paid for a splendid modern church in the past few years. As the pastor, I heartily commend the spirit, zeal, and courage of the Ladies' Aid Society and bespeak for them the hearty support and co-operation of the congregation. I accepted a pressing invitation to be present at the meeting, which was full of interest from start to finish. The optimistic spirit of the President, Mrs. W. L. Wilson, was catching and the enthusiasm grew to a climax in the appointment of the committee to solicit funds. This first special meeting in the interest of a new parsonage is a prophecy full of encouragement for the work of the year.

WHY SUFFER?

Rheumatism is very annoying and at times very painful, and yet a great many who are suffering from it in one form or another are neglecting its treatment. Rheumatism, if allowed to go on unchecked, becomes a very serious disease, and in many cases results fatally. Put an end to your suffering at once by taking "RENWAR." Write to the Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn., for proof that "RENWAR" is the one remedy that will positively give relief from Rheumatism. It is sold on a money-back guarantee of satisfactory results. Sold by drug stores at fifty cents per bottle or direct, postpaid, upon receipt of price.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference will convene at Summit on the afternoon of April 18, at 2:30 o'clock. It is expected that all the pastors, local preachers, charge leaders, and delegates will be present for the opening session. It is very important that the pastors send me the names of delegates as soon as possible so that I may have the roll of members complete before the conference opens. These brethren will do me a great favor by attending to this matter at once. You will also please to send names of delegates and others to Brother Thomas so that he will know just how to arrange for our entertainment. Summit will do the right thing if you will do your part in helping Brother Thomas in knowing just who will be present.

It is my earnest desire to have a full attendance, and the very best conference of the four during the time of my incumbency on the district. The committees will be announced later. We will have reports as to results of the educational campaign. Let all the brethren be prepared to give an intelligent statement of the situation in their charges.

Let us labor and pray to have a successful and spiritual conference.

WHAT GRANDMOTHER USED.

Ninety-four years' use will certainly prove whether or not a remedy is what it is claimed to be. That is the test that Gray's Ointment has stood—successfully. The old folks all found it the most effective cure for sores, cuts, wounds, burns, boils, carbuncles and all eruptions and abrasions of the skin. "Please send me by return mail one box of the old Gray's Ointment," writes N. B. Hoofman, Stewart, Miss. A SPLENDID BENEFACTION.

A few days ago Mrs. John Dibert, of New Orleans, communicated to the Hon. Harold W. Newman, Commisloner of Public Safety, her purpose to contribute $200,000 for the establishment of a tuberculosis hospital in this city, to be named for her husband, the late Captain John Dibert. Of this donation, $50,000 is to be used for the construction of such buildings as may be necessary to start the work of the institution, and the other $150,000 is for endowment. The only conditions imposed are that the city of New Orleans shall provide a site for the hospital and contribute $10,000 annually toward its maintenance, which terms, it is stated, will be readily accepted.

Captain Dibert, for whom this projected tuberculosis hospital is to be named, was for many years a prominent New Orleans business man. He was born in Ohio in 1844 and came to the Crescent City in 1870, where he remained until his decease. He was largely engaged in the lumber industry, and is said to have contributed substantially to the development of the State of Louisiana. He was a capable financier and acquired large wealth.

Since her husband's death two year's ago, Mrs. Dibert has been a generous giver to various benevolent enterprises, having probably donated, in an unobtrusive manner, before her latest gift something like $200,000. This last noble benefaction is a fitting crown to her worthy contributions to philanthropic causes, and it scarcely needs to be said that it will be a great blessing to suffering humanity, perhaps for all time to come.

It is stated that the site that the city will donate for this new institution is at the juncture of Tulane and Carrollon Avenues. When the work on the buildings will start is not yet known. Mr. Newman is quoted as having said that before their construction is begun, modern tuberculosis hospitals in various parts of the country will be visited, in order that they may be made up-to-date in every particular.

A MEANINGFUL MESSAGE.

The article which we are carrying this week from the accomplished pen of Rev. J. C. Park is well worth reading and meditating upon. It is quite true that it takes a large task to arouse and enthuse a people. Let us cease to apologize for the small, meager things that our congregations are doing and lift higher the standard to be attained. We have in the course of our ministry known very few persons who we thought were giving or working to the point of real sacrifice.

We heartily endorse all that Brother Park has said concerning both Grenada College and Emory University. Neither of these institutions can well afford to wait for assistance under the existing conditions; nor is there any need that either of them should do so. There is no conflict between their interests. Bishop Candler, Emory's distinguished Chancellor, emphatically asserted while recently at Jackson that our new University has no purpose to compete in any way with any of our colleges—on the contrary, one of its chief alms is to strengthen and help them. Emory wants no students in Mississippi to take their college course outside of that State. It is only when they need the services of a university that she would have them enter her classic halls. There should be no clashing between the campaign in her behalf and that in the interest of Grenada College. Both should be on the hearts of all our pastors and Methodist laity in North Mississippi. That those directing these movements will understaud one another and that any possible friction will be carefully avoided, we do not at all doubt. We are deeply interested in both undertakings, and are ready to do all in our power to promote the success of each.

Let our preachers open the way for Brothers Jaco and Selby to enter their charges and lay the causes which they represent upon the hearts of the churches that they serve. Do not be afraid to do this, brethren. No other interests in Southern Methodism are more important than these. We were surprised when recently in Jackson to learn that Brother Jaco was not finding an open door everywhere, as ought to be the case. The work that he has in hand is our work, and he is entitled to the hearty co-operation of each and all. And the same is true as to Brother Selby.

Let our presiding elders and pastors, without exception, rise to the height of the great responsibilities and opportunities that are now upon us in connection with these two institutions, and lead the way in arousing the membership of our churches to do something creditable toward placing them upon a safe and efficient basis. And, as Brother Park has suggested, this effort will not only be a blessing to our schools, but also to every congregation that exerts itself in their behalf.

OTHER THINGS THAN MONEY TO BE CONSIDERED.

The Baptist Record (Jackson, Miss.) of March 23 says:

"The editor of the Watchman Examiner, who was present at the Panama Conference, writes thus of the efforts there to unite the denominations. The stock argument is: 'We have gotten together in business; why cannot we get together as churches?' The argument utterly disregards principles and makes a god of economy. 'Repudiate principles if necessary, but save dollars in administration,' seems to be the slogan. No sensible man believes in waste, but hot indignation possesses our soul when men call the doctrinal questions that separate great denominations 'mere whims.'"

We most heartily concur in the view set forth in this utterance. To us few things are more strange than some of the claims that we now and then see made in behalf of Church union. We have sometimes noted the statement that there should be only one Christian Church in any of the great countries where foreign missionary work is being done, and the assertion is not infrequently made that Church unity would solve most of the perplexing problems of this turbulent age. For instance, it is suggested in the address issued by the recent (officially unauthorized) Conference on the Union of American Methodism, held at Evanston, Illinois, that many of the deplorable ills of the times, including perhaps even the great war in Europe, are due to a lack of oneness among the various religious denominations, and that we are "doubly called to consider the question of Christian unity in the interest of international peace."

Does the logic of Church history support this view? We do not think so. The Church was one in the beginning, and yet when it came in contact with the paganism of the Roman Empire it soon became corrupted. It was a State Church which had been well-nigh universally prevalent in the British Isles that had lost its vital power and was letting things go to wreck and ruin when John Wesley appeared on the scene. The Lutheran Church has been largely dominant in Germany, and yet the religion of that country became too attenuated and weak to keep it from plunging more than half of the world into the most colossal war of all the ages. It was a single Church that permitted the true religion to wane and largely perish in France, thus paving the way for the Reign of Terror, which was preceded by a reign of infidelity. One Church has been dominant in Spain, Portugal, and Central and South America, and behold the deplorable results!

We believe in sane and helpful co-operation, within reasonable limits, among the orthodox, evangelical Protestant Churches; but that Christianity would be advantaged by having them all, or a majority of them, blended into one in China, or Mexico, or Brazil, or in the United States, or anywhere else, we are by no means convinced. If they could be thus united, we are not sure but that it would be but to march around in the same circle of failure that other ecclesiasticisms have trodden in the past, thus making history repeat itself.

For our part, we believe in the preservation of Methodism in our own and in all other lands. We are not yet ready to admit that denominationalism is more of an evil than it is a blessing. We are inclined to believe that it came in the providence of God, and that it is being used by Christ for the upbuilding of his kingdom. Certainly within recent centuries Christianity has won its noblest triumphs where it has had sway. We are becoming more and more convinced that the type of Christianity that we set up is a thing of greater importance than the extent to which the missionary operations of the so-called Christian nations are carried. A superficial teaching of the Gospel of Christ will fail everywhere in the future, as it has done in the past, and as it is doing now

"To soothe the pains of the prostrate is better than to share the splendor of the mighty."

THE PULPIT.

"The pulpit, therefore (and I name it filled
With solemn awe, that bids me well beware
With what intent I touch that holy thing)—
Must stand acknowledged, while the world shall stand,
The most important and effectual guard,
Support, and ornament of virtue's cause.
There stands the messenger of truth. There stands
The legate of the skies; his theme divine,
His office sacred, his credentials clear.
By him, the violated law speaks out
Its thunders, and by him, in strains as sweet
As angels use, the Gospel whispers peace.
He 'stablishes the strong, restores the weak,
Reclaims the wanderer, binds the broken heart,
And, armed himself in panoply complete
Of heavenly temper, furnishes with arms
Bright as his own, and trains by every rule
Of holy discipline, to glorious war,
The sacramental host of God's elect."

THE FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER.

The religion of Jesus Christ is the only religion that makes it possible for obscure folk to be in the mighty fellowship of the great. This truth is emphasized by Dr. J. H. Jowett in the following striking way: "By prayer I can have a share in the work of the preacher, and help to wing his words with the mysterious power of the Holy Ghost. By prayer I can visit the lonely missionary, and even though I remain at home I too can be a worker on the foreign field. By prayer I can visit thrones, I can sit in cabinets with statesmen, I can go into the editorial office and influence articles in the daily press. What a privilege, then, is mine, and also what a solemn duty!"—Methodist Recorder.

THE SPIRIT OF THE METHODIST PIONEERS.

The following, from the pen of Dr. William H. Milburn, describes the spirit in which the pioneers received their appointments:

"The last scene of the Conference is one peculiarly touching and solemn. A hundred men, many of them married, have surrendered their right of choice, and placed their lives and fortunes, under God, at the disposal of a single man—the Bishop. He, with the wisdom of an overseer, with the simplicity and sincerity that spring from the abiding consciousness that his motives and decisions are ever in the great Taskmaster's eye, and with all a father's tenderness for the preachers and the people entrusted to him—he has cousidered the claims of the men and of the work, and is now to read the weighty decision. At his word they are to go forth to their fields of duty and of danger, accepting his arbitrament as the interpretation of Providence. Whither they are to go they know not, nor what shall betide them; only of this are they persuaded—that a life of voluntary poverty and harship awaits them, and probably a home in some pestilential river bottom, or in a region where fever stalks as a strong man armed. Nevertheless, the love of Christ coustraineth them, and they 'count not their lives dear unto themselves so that they may finish their course with joy, and the ministry which they have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God.'"

"How do you like your appointment?" inquired a brother of one of the pioneers when the appointments were read out. "Very well," he replied; "yet I cannot help thinking that the cold mountainous region, its proximity to the lake, the extensiveness of the charge, and the weight of its responsibilities, will have a very bad effect on my already wretched health. Indeed, sir, I expect to lay my bones upon old Ticonderoga Circuit before the end of the year."

His fears were not groundless, for that proved to be his last appointment. Hundreds of preachers went to their difficult fields of labor in the same spirit, as the following will show:

"After a stirring sermon at an Annual Conference by Rev. H. B. Bascom on Missions, the presiding Bishop asked for volunteers for the then distant wilds of Missouri and Texas. At first there was no response; but at length there arose from near the altar an aged man. He tottered up the steps and presented himself to the Bishop, saying: 'I will go.' He had passed his three score years and ten, and had been a pioneer preacher in the wilderness of Kentucky and had opened the first academy of learning in the great valley. It was the venerable Finley. A number of the young preachers then offered themselves, and the bones of some of those young men lie bleaching on the plains of Texas and Missouri, but their ranks have been filled and the Gospel is now proclaimed all over the West and South."

The pioneer preachers were noted for their punctuality in filling their appointments. An old preacher gave Dr. Milburn this advice when he was beginning his career as a preacher: "Billy, my son, never miss an appointment. Ride all day in any storm, or all night, if necessary; ford creeks, swim rivers; run the risk of breaking your neck, or getting drowned, but never miss an appointment, and never be behind the time."

It was during recent years, I believe, that a request came to the Bishop at an Annual Conference: "Send us a man who can swim." "What do you mean?" inquired the Bishop. "Why, the last man we had, in order to keep an appointment, had to cross a fierce, rushing stream, and he was drowned. Send us a man who can swim."

Rev. Richmond Nolley was found frozen to death on his route to fill an appointment. He died on his knees.

It was Bishop Janes, I believe, who stated that during a period of thirty years he had appointed ten thousand preachers to their work, and out of all that number only one man refused to go.

A friend, observing the feeble condition of Whitefield, said: "Sir, you are more fit to go to bed than to preach." To which Whitefield answered, "True, sir," but, turning aside, he clasped his hands together, and looking up said: "Lord Jesus, I am weary in Thy work, but not of Thy work. If I have not yet finished my course, let me go and speak for Thee once more in the fields, seal Thy truth, and come home and die."

He went and preached for two hours, which was his last sermon.

We honor the memory of these self-sacrificing men of God, and let us pause and ask: Why all these records of voluntary harships and sufferings?

Why did these men gladly deny themselves all the comforts of a home, and spend their lives traveling through forests, mountains and wilderness, and suffer such privations and hardships? Was it for fame or wealth? We know it was for neither. They could truthfully sing:

"No foot of land do I possess,
No cottage in the wilderness—
A poor, wayfaring man,
I lodge awhile in tents below,
Or gladly wander to and fro,
Till I my Canaan gain."

This is the true explanation of such lives. Nineteen hundred years ago there trod this earth One who lived altogether for others, who "had not where to lay His head," and gladly suffered persecution and death, that others might have eternal life.

The pioneer circuit-riders caught the spirit of their Master, and "counted not their lives dear unto themselves, so that they might finish their course with joy, and the ministry which they had received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the Gospel of the grace of God."

Life is a calendar. Every date has its duty—every day is a dare to life-genius and life-energy. But, there are red-figure dates in the calendar of life, which mark high days of opportunity and obligation—not hol-i-days for recreation and rest, but HOL-Y-DAYS for special sacrifice and service.

Such a day has dawned for Methodism in North Mississippi. Its Board of Education anuounced its breaking in its last annual report, saying: "We believe that the hour has struck when we should do large things for the education and Christian culture of our young women. * * * We therefore recommend that we undertake to raise, at the earliest possible moment, $50,000 for GRENADA COLLEGE." The Conference unanimously accepted the recommendation and accentuated its earnestness by subscribing nearly $20,000 on the spot.

The Board further recommended the launching of a campaign for the New Law School at Emory University, situated in Atlanta.

The Board said: "Inasmuch as it is proposed to name the law school of Emory University THE LAMAR SCHOOL OF LAW after Mississippi's great lawyer and statesman, we recommend that, jointly with the Mississippi Conference, a campaign be launched to ereet a building for this department bearing this name." A plan was suggested for the joint service of the two Conferences, and both Conferences stand committed to the enterprise.

This writer was glad, hilariously glad! It was the call of our people to a larger vision and to an undertaking which would seem worth while. A conviction has been growing stronger with me that the North Mississippi Conference is dying for the lack of an undertaking big with importance. We have been doing small things in a small way until our people have begun to feel secure in soul against any movement which would require large sacrifice or wearing service.

In many quarters, pastors have resisted the increase of financial responsibility until laymen think it one of the functions of the ministry to protect their purses. Under this regime our CONNECTIONALISM will suffer, if not die. Congregations will grow more selfish. Pagan individualism will triumph over our Christian collectivism.

We need the inspiration caused by a big issue, the awakening effected by a big idea, a clarion call to some great purpose which will wake dull men, make lazy men unhappy, and stingy men miserable.

The best and biggest thing that a Mississippi Methodist preacher can do is to open wide the channels of opportunity to the representatives of these enterprises and throw themselves into the current to rescue a drifting Church.

Co-operate with Brothers Jaco and Countiss! Let's put Grenada College on the hearts of our people and give them a full opportunity to shoulder this burden, that they may discover themselves in this high service.

Enter vigorously into the campaign for Emory University! It will be a small thing, if we only raise the money to erect a building. We are in the first chapter of a new volume in Methodist Educational Achievement. The character of the volumes following will be determined by the record we make now. The educational structure of Methodism is threatened. The success of our University enterprises will determine our educational destiny. We need the force of a great educational campaign, in order that in this period of the development of a new educational policy we may make ourselves and the future secure.

AN OPPORTUNITY FOR LOUISIANA.

Dear Dr. Meek: This paragraph in a recent issue of the Advocate attracted my attention: "Polygamy is practiced in the Philippine Islands." Why not add, "as well as in the United States?" Statistics taken from The Cosmopolitan tell us that eighty years ago the proportion that Mormons bore to this country's population was about one in 1,125,000; at present it stands about one in 125. A pretty fair increase!

Samuel Fallows, in his book, "The Mormon Menace," says: "Mormons themselves, through their official organ, claim from 1100 to 1500 converts each year from the Southern States alone. This is one of our national problems." Congress may propose amendments, or may call conventions to propose amendments, if the Legislatures of two-thirds of the several States ask for it; and amendments made by Congress or by such conventions are valid as parts of the Constitution when they are ratified by the Legislatures of three-fourths of the States, or by conventions in three-fourths thereof, as either method may be proposed by Congress.

A resolution for such an amendment has been passed by the Legislatures of 35 States, namely, New York, West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Maine, Iowa, North Dakota, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Minnesota, California, Washington, Arkansas, Georgia, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Montana, Texas, Vermont, Colorado, Kansas, Tennessee, Wisconsin, Indiana, South Carolina, Connecticut, Michigan, Maryland, Oregon, Illinois, and Massachusetts. Louisiana is the only State whose Legislature meets during the remaining part of this year, and it would seem to be our opportunity to do our part toward the solution of this problem Two years ago I wrote letters to eight different members of our Legislature, sending each a copy of the resolution passed by the other States, asking them to take steps in the matter, and was not even shown the courtesy of a reply. This might have been otherwise, if I had been a prospective VOTER, and my object in writing this article is to place the responsibility where it belongs. Will the MEN of this State let this opportunity of making Louisiana the thirty-sixth State necessary to secure this amendment pass by unimproved? Women citizens may ask, and ask only, to be ignored or denied; but when men ask they generally receive attention, or know the reason why.

Forms of resolutions and literature giving information will be furnished to any who may be interested upon application to me.

Ruston, La. Mrs. A. C. McKINNEY.

WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?

Dear Dr. Meek: Here is something which I think is pertinent at this present time. I give a part of the report of the Committee on Evangelism, at the last General Conference:

"As a distinguished speaker has said on the floor of this Conference, 'We go forward by turning backward.' In one of our Conferences great revivals have followed the general circulation among the preachers of Wesley's Journal. Your Committee comes with no new thing, but a plea for a return to the old paths or the adaptation of the ancient things to the new times. The faith, the consecration, the holy living of John Wesley will produce the same fruits in the twentieth century that they did in the eighteenth."

This needs little comment. The preachers know what the ancient things and the old paths were. I doubt, however, if many Methodists know. A census was taken not long since in a congregation of Methodists, numbering between seventy-five and one hundred, as to how many had read a History of Methodism, and three answered in the affirmative, one of those being the preacher.

Such is the result of forgetting the "ancient things" and departing from "the old paths." Hear this same Evangelistic Committee again:

"We live in an age of luxury, and it is to be feared that 'softness and needless self-indulgence' is eating at the core of our life. Worldliness has poured in upon us, and we can scarcely doubt that we have members in our churches who know not their right hand from their left spiritually."

What an indictment, coming from the highest body of the Church! Instead of loosening the cords and letting down the bars, better catalogue the special sins that have brought this calamity upon the Church, and get back in the 'old paths' and call the Church back to holy living.

This same Committee says: "Mr. Wesley said that we were 'raised up' to preach a conscious salvation, and 'to spread scriptural holiness over these lands.' Again they say: "This is an age of doctrinal looseness and careless thinking. In the midst of theories and social uplift there is danger of forgetting the solemn words, 'Ye must be born again.'"

"Doctrinal looseness and careless thinking!" It looks like it. May something soon be done to stop this drift of the Church!

Meridian, Miss. D. S. HARMON.

AS TO LEAVING THE METHODIST MINISTRY.

From the Courier-Journal of March 9, we reproduce the following article:

As you have given some space recently to the news that one or two ministers had severed their connection with the Methodist Church to go elsewhere, may I ask brief space for a few items touching this Church which may be of interest to your readers? The passing of a few men from Methodism into other communions is no new thing. It has occurred time and again since God raised up John Wesley to preach "free salvation" in a parish as wide as the world. When these men have become honestly dissatisfied with our itinerant system and bring to a close the year's work to which they have pledged themselves, we wish them God-speed in their work. Methodism stands upon the position that every communion where the sacraments are duly administered and the pure Word of God is preached is a true Church of Christ. Mr. Wesley said, "I desire an alliance, offensive and defensive, with every true soldier of Jesus Christ."

But lest there be an impression abroad that many men are dissatisfied with our system we point to the fact that the accession of ministers from other communions is always larger than those who go from us. Almost one-half of the Protestant ministers in the United States are in the Methodist Church. The number of communicants in the Methodist Church in North America now number over eight millions. And this does not include baptized children. When it is remembered that at the close of the American Revolution Methodism was the weakest Church on the continent and that it now leads the next largest denomination by more than a million, and that its net gain last year was close to a quarter of a million souls, it can be readily seen that the drift of our ministry to other churches is inappreciable. It is true that the itinerant system bears heavily upon a minister and his family, but every man is supposed to understand its militant character when he enters upon it. And there can be no question but that the marvelous growth of Methodism has been largely due to this system, which enables the Church to maintain a high level of efficiency and spiritual life throughout its entire organization. Presiding Elder Louisville District, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE.

Mrs. Eddy, in Science and Health, speaks of the Apostles as "Jesus' Students." On pages 45 and 46 she says "Jesus' students did not perform many wonderful works until they saw Jesus after His crucifixion and learned He had not died."

"By understanding more of the Divine principle of the deathless Christ we are enabled to heal the sick and to triumph over sin." (Page 28, Science and Health.)

The Bible says, "Christ both died and rose" (Rom. 14:9. "Christ died for our Sins." "He died for all." (2 Cor. 5:15.)

On page 25 (Science and Health) Mrs. Eddy writes: "The material blood of Jesus was no more efficacious to clear us from sin when it was shed upon the accursed tree than when it was flowing in His veins as He went about His Father's business."

"We have redemption through His blood." (Eph 1:7.) "Whom God hath set forth to be a propitiation through faith in His blood." (Rom 3:25.) "The Church of God which He purchased with His own blood. (Acts 20:28.) "Unto him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood" (Rev. 1:5.)

On page 34 (Science and Health) Mrs. Eddy speaks of the communion as a "Dead Rite." Jesus said, "This do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me; for as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do show the Lord's death till He come."

Mrs. Eddy says (Page 25, Science and Health): "Our bread which cometh down from heaven is Truth. Our wine the Inspiration of Love."

Jesus said, "Take, eat, this bread is my body which was broken for you. Then he took the cup, gave thanks and gave it to them saying, Drink ye all of it, for this is my blood of the new testament that was shed for many for the remission of sins."

Mrs. Eddy, in speaking of the Holy Spirit, says: "In the words of St. John, 'He shall give you another comforter that He may abide with you forever. This comforter I understand to be Divine Science." (Page 55, Science and Health.)

"Whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come." (Matt. 12:23.)

"Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish aught from it." (Deut, 4:2.)

"Add thou not unto His word." (Prov. 30:6.)

"If any man shall add unto these things, God shall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book. If any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part out of the Book of Life, and out of the Holy City." (Rev. 22:18-19.)

This message is sent forth in kindness, in love, and in the fear of God.

A SPLENDID VOLUME.

Says Dr. R. A. Meek, editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, of the new volume, "God's Estimate of Man, and Other Sermons," by the late Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference: "We do not hesitate to say that these discourses are of a very superior order. They are packed full of suggestive truths, which are expressed in simple but choice language. One cannot read them without being both pleased and profited. Few volumes of sermons that have been issued by our Publishing House will compare with this one."

The volume, which is a 12mo. of 204 pages, contains nine of the distinguished author's best sermons and addresses, together with an interesting Autobiographical Sketch. Price, postpaid, 75 cents. Send your order to Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss.

IS IT A CASE OF SELF-DEFENSE?

By the Editor.

The Rev. H. M. Blair, Editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate, "rises" in the last issue of his paper to admonish the editors of Southern Methodism to let "Vanderbilt (University) and Vanderbilt sympathizers" alone and address themselves to the task of building up our two new Universities at Atlanta and Dallas.

As to the first part of his exhortation, it must be admitted that Brother Blair is quite consistent. He certainly has not pestered the Vanderbilt authorities and their sympathizers very mueh. In the course of the long-drawn-out controversy eoneerning the ownership and control of that institution about all that he did was to burst a small cap oecasionally, and if our memory serves us eorreetly, it has been some time slnee he did even that much.

Last summer, when the Vanderbilt managers were conduеting a vigorous eanvass to secure the patronage of the Southern Methodist Church and were making misleading and seductive representations to our young preachers and people, according to our recollection, not one word of remonstrance was heard from the Editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate. On the contrary, at that time he was carrying a conspicuous advertisement for Vanderbilt University. We will not run the risk of ruffling the feelings of our brother by telling him what a distinguished citizen of his own State said about our Church papers advertising the institution on the Cumberland under the circumstances then existing. It is enough for the present for us to note the course that was then pursued by our eontemporary.

A few weeks ago The Vanderbilt Quarterly saw fit to refer to the work of our Educational Commission, reproduеing a long and misleading report that Dr. W. F. Tillett had made to the Vanderbilt Board of Trust whieh tended to place the Commission, and particularly its distinguished Chairman, in an unenviable light before the public, and several of our leading editors felt impelled by a stern sense of duty to diseuss the matter and point out the incorrectness and injustice of the venerable Dean's utteranee. Was Brother Blair among that number? If so, we overlooked what he had to say on the subjeet. Apparently it is not when the Vanderbilters speak, misrepresenting the facts and seeking to discredit the trusted leaders of our Chureh, that our brother "rises" to register a protest, but it is when some of the editors of Southern Methodism venture to take eognizanee of what the pro-Vanderbilters are saying and doing to the detriment of the Church that he manages to find his voiee and make objection.

Are we surprised at this remonstrance of Brother Blair? Nay, not so. We have heard it intimated for some time that he was somewhat soft-sided toward the Vanderbilt spoliators. We heard a gentleman who knows pretty well the status and trend of things throughout Southern Methodism say not long since that it was very generally thought that our brother is considerably under the influence of a certain person of Vanderbilt—trustee and "W. L. Watkinson" fame, who resides in the same town with him. It is often the case that mueh more is known about men than they are aware of.

Brother Blair's exhortation to the editors of Southern Mcthodism to get busy in behalf of our two new Universities is, we think, wise and timely. But we would respectfully suggest that his preachment in this respect would be likely to earry more weight with it if it were reenforced by a little praetice upon his part. As a matter of fact, we know of no other editor in Southern Methodism who has had less to say in the interest of these two institutions than our complaining brother in the Old North State. If he wants the rest of us to render a larger service in this direction, let him set us a shining example.

The Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advoeate has lately written two or three artieles pertaining to Vanderbilt University and the Church—not to "nag" anybody, but because he felt that the interests of the Church demanded that he should speak out. He believes that he has in hand the faets to sustain every statement that he has made, and he is not afraid to undertake to defend his positions in any proper forum. If Brother Blair had referenee to us in his remarks, we would respectfully request him to go further and point out specifically wherein what we have said was erroneous or hurtful to the Church.

It is easy enough for men to affirm that the Vanderbilt question has been finally disposed of; but, as a matter of fact, such deelarations are largely assumptions. Though not formally required to do so in the action taken at Oklahoma City, the Educational Commission will, from the very nature of the ease, have to submit a report to the next General Conference, and since that body will be untrammeled in its power by anything that has been previously done, the whole question, in this formative period of our new educational policy, will in reality be before it; so, not until it has acted, can it be aeeurately said that this vexatious question, in its various ramifications, has been definitely and conclusively settled. If the will of the Church at large is permitted to govern in the matter, we have no doubt that the Educational Commission will be overwhelmingly sustained in what it has done. But if the loyal element in Southern Methodism eeases to be watchful, while a "gumshoe" eampaign is carried on throughout the connection by the pro-Vanderbilt men, they may come much nearer manipulating our next general assembly than many imagine they can do. And so far as we are concerned, so long as we have reason to believe that such machinations are in progress, we expect to sound out such notes of warning to Southern Methodists as in our judgment we may deem advisable, and it will take a great deal more than the strictures of Brother Blair to constrain us to silenee—especially so, since it is our profound conviction that any sort of nominal relation with Vanderbilt University would exert a wellnigh ruinous influence upon the Church which we ardently love, and to which we have given our life. And we scareely think that Dr. Bradfield, Dr. Ivey, Dr. Lovett, Bishop Hoss, Colonel Reeves, or any of the other brethren who have lately felt moved to touch upon Vanderbilt matters in the public prints will be "shooed" into a state of complaeent quietude, if they should adjudge it needful to say something again, by this blast from the rusty bugle of our pacifist confrere.

One thing more we wish to say: We are not responsible for the question now at issue between us and the Editor of the North Carolina Christian Advocate. So long as he went his own way, we let him severely alone, notwithstanding his Vanderbilt advertisement, etc. But it was a little too much for us to submit to his emergence from mollycoddledom with a lecture on his lips to the other editors of Southern Methodism for not having been as colorless as he has in their editorial policies coneerning the Vanderbilt menace. Therefore, we have spoken.

OUR CHURCH AT AMORY PROSPERING.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our work at Amory and Nettleton is prospering. I held a meeting in Nettleton in January and eight joined our Church on profession of faith and eight went to the Presbyterian Church. On March 5 we began a meeting in Amory, assisted by Rev. G. A. Klein of Nashville, who did the preaching and conducted the meeting. He is an earnest, faithful preacher and has the happy faculty of putting the Church to work. The singing was led by Mr. P. M. Boyd, a soloist and a great choir leader. Mrs. Boyd is an accomplished pianist. They were assisted by the Wisdom sisters of Missouri. We had a truly great revival. The Church was wonderfully quickened spiritually. Seventy-two joined our Chureh on profession of faith and eighteen gave their names for membership in other Churches. Seven joined by letter. We have had 80 additions on profession of faith and 18 by letter since Conference. I have colleeted $308.50 on my Conference collections and have $175 in gilt-edge subscriptions. We have raised and expended on the parsonage $350. We had 343 at Sunday school in Amory last Sunday and 102 at prayer meeting Wednesday night. Everything is moving on nicely, and, "the best of all, God is with us." J. E. THOMAS.

Amory, Miss.

JACKSON DISTRICT NOTES.

The pastors of our district are doing faithful work. No revivals have yet been held, but during the first quarter 191 accessions were reported.

Rev. W. H. Lewis and his congregation, Capitol Street, are engaged in a personal workers' campaign, to be followed by a revival season, beginning March 29.

The assessments for the pastors at Yazoo City and Satartia have each been inereased $100 over last year.

Two Leagues, a Senior and a Junior, have been organized at Canton, and a Senior League has been organized at Camden.

The Canton Methodists, under the leadership of Rev. M. M. Black, have a movement on foot to enlarge their chureh to aeeommodate their thriving Sunday school; while the Methodists of Camden, where Rev. T. A. Ferguson is holding the fort, are enterprising a new house of worship.

Our church at Mendenhall wears a new eoat of paint, put on sinee Conferenee; and the pastor of that charge, Rev. W. B. Waldrop, has great opportunities opening up before him in looking after the interest of our church in the rapidly growing town of D'Lo, where one of the largest saw mills in the State is being built.

At the second quarterly conference of the Brandon and Pelahatchie charge, Rev. R. P. Fikes reported half of all Conference assessments not only subscribed, but collected and in the hands of the Conference treasurers, thus being the first to redeem a resolution passed at the District Stewards' meeting.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr., is showing wonderful aetivities for a man of 80. On Sunday, March 19, he preached at Cayuga, which is eight miles from Utica, at 11 a.m., and again that evening at 7:30 at Utica.

Mrs. Sam Ewing, District Secretary of the W. M. S., has completed a tour covering 10 days, visiting Canton, Camden, Sharon, Vaughn, Thornton Chapel, and Madison, stirring up the pure minds of the women to greater zeal, and organizing some new societies.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., and wife celebrated the 15th anniversary of their wedding, March 21, by a trip to Utica, to the home of Rev. B. W. Lewis, whose home they visited on the day of their wedding.

The pastors of the district are taking hold of the Advocate Campaign with a will, and we do not expect to let up until we have all and more than the number of new subscribers allotted to us to bring up the circulation of the Advocate to 10,000.

ISOM, District Reporter.

HATTIESBURG DISTRICT NOTES.

Brother Terry and his people at Petal worshiped in their new church last Sunday. Though not completed, it is capable of use.

The handsome pipe organ at Main Street Chureh is drawing the crowds.

Rev. J. E. J. Ferguson is in his second year at Ellisville, and every interest of the Chureh is advancing under his earnest and skillful leadership —"Jim" makes things move wherever he goes. He is a specialist on several lines. The Sunday school is advancing by leaps and bounds. He is an expert church builder, farmer, hog-raiser, and is a good preacher. He is not quite as quiet as the fabled Sphinx.

The itinerant population of the Hattiesburg District has considerably increased since last Conference. Congratulations are due the parsonage families at Eucutta, Oloh, and Blodget. May God bless the babies! It is to be hoped that the salaries of these charges will be increased.

The Court Street meeting will begin next Sunday, March 26. Rev. W. B. Hogg will do the preaching, and Rev. J. S. Duke will lead the music. The pastor is confidently expecting a great season of blessing for the church.

The Hattiesburg District Conferenee will be held at Prentiss, beginning on April 5. Brother J. M. Lewis and his people are making big preparations for the occasion, and are expecting a great time.

In addition to his strenuous district work, our presiding elder has taken on potato raising as a side line. He has planted twenty-five bushels of seed potatoes. He is providing for the possible wants of his preachers. Kind of him indeed!

The good effects of their late meeting remain with the pastor and members of the Sumrall charge. The work prospers.

Mareh 25. T. W. A.

LAID TO REST.

Dear Dr. Meek: The funeral of Rev. H. R. Singleton, pastor of the Scruggs Memorial Church of St. Louis, was held from the home of Major D. M. Atkins at Arcadia, La., on Friday, March 24, at 3 p. m., the services at the house being conducted by Brothers Wynn, Means, Carter, and Foster, and at the grave, by Brothers Wynn, Ledbetter, Lutz, Snelling, and Vaughan. The interment was made in the family lot of Mrs. Singleton. Brother Singleton passed away in a sanitarium in St. Louis after an illness of two weeks. The services in St. Louis were more memorial than otherwise and were in charge of Dr. J. W. Lee, being participated in by several other ministers. Brother Singleton evidently did not expect to rally from the operation, for he wrote out full and explicit instructions with regard to the services both in St. Louis and at Arcadia, requesting that Dr. Lee and Dr. Wynn be in charge at each place, respectively. He was fully resigned and faced the future without a fear. A good man has left us.

Shreveport, La. JNO. F. FOSTER.

GEORGE W. ROGERS.

George Washington Rogers departed this life on February 6, 1916, in the home of his youngest son, J. J. Rogers, of Red Bay, Ala., at the ripe old age of 82 years, 9 months, and 13 days, having been born in the State of Tennessee on April 23, 1833. He was one of the pioneer citizens of what is now Prentiss County, Miss. He was the son of Zimrie Rogers, who moved from Tennesse to Mississippi in the year 1835 and settled in what is known as the Blythe's Chapel neighborhood. He grew to manhood in Prentiss County and in the year 1854 was happily married to Martha E. Bowlen of Marietta, Miss. Of this union were born nine children, five boys and four girls, three of whom preceded the father and mother to the eternal home above. The children who still survive are: Rev. J. H. Rogers, of Chelsea, Okla.; Rev. W. F. Rogers, of Sallis, Miss.; J. M. Rogers, of Booneville, Miss.; J. J. Rogers, of Red Bay, Ala.; Mrs. Anna Cunningham, of Booneville, Miss., and Mrs. Bettie Chase, of Booneville, Miss.

The subject of this sketch was first of all a man. He was content to live a plain, simple, unostentatious life, though for years during the active period of his long life he was recognized as one of the leading men of his community and county and served as postmaster and justice of the peace for a considerable period of time. He always took an active interest in the work of the Church, being at various times Sunday school superintendent, class leader and steward at old Blythe's Chapel Church. He was a stanch Methodist, being firmly grounded in all the cardinal doctrines of the Church. His father was a member of the Methodist Church and all of the children now living are faithful, loyal members of the same Church.

The writer of this sketch is one of a number of grandchildren who mourn the loss of their grandfather. Well do I remember my visits to his home during my early boyhood days. He was always kind and considerate, cordial and hospitable. The doors of his home were always wide open to any one in distress. His religion was a part of his daily life and he carried it into his business affairs. He was scrupulously honest and upright and at all times obeyed the Scriptural injunction and shunned the very appearance of evil. He sought not honor or fame, but lived a life of such usefulness to all with whom he came in contact that he was admired and respected by all who knew him. His earthly frame has returned to mother dust, his spirit has winged its flight back to the Creator who gave it life, and his work here on earth is done; but the influence of his godly, noble and upright life will continue to exert a force for good which can not be accurately estimated until the end of time when all shall be called to account for the deeds done in the body.

His mortal remains were laid to rest in the cemetery of old Blythe's Chapel Church by the side of the grave of his faithful companion, who was taken from him about two years ago.

He was faithful to God to the end and in his last hours gave evidence of the fact that he did not fear the journey through the valley of the shadow of death. Happy are they who die in the Lord!

His children and grandchildren, together with a host of friends, sincerely mourn his demise; but may we bow in humble submission to the great loving Father, who knoweth and doeth all things well! His grandson,

Madill, Okla. BEN F. ROGERS.

CADDO PARISH REMAINS DRY.

In the local option election held in Caddo Parish on March 21, the prohibitionists won by a majority of nearly 400. This means that, after having tested it, the splendid citizenship of that parish believe in outlawing the saloon. Methodists especially will rejoice in this outcome, since Centenary College is situated in Shreveport, Caddo's county-seat. We predict that if any people in Louisiana have since the last Democratic primary been led to believe that prohibition is a dead issue in this commonwealth they are destined to have soon a rude awakening. As some one has well said, "No issue is ever settled until it is settled right."

THE STYLES AT WASHINGTON.

Daisy Fitzhugh Ayres, the Washington correspondent of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, thus comments on the dress styles to be seen in fashionable circles at the National Capital:

"'Ladies are all wearin' knee dresses, ain't they, Mamma?' said a little Washington boy the other day, who had just been ushered into the dignity himself, of 'knee pants.'

"There's many a fatted calf now obvious, outside of the story of the Prodigal Son. At many of the best balls, with your gaze lowered, a feminine guest, from the absence of draperies upon her nether extremities, appears to be a child. You lift your eyes to the face above and find it belongs to the child's grandmother. Yes, dear Geraldine, even the most venerable goes naked and unashamed these days.

"There may be an occasional long tail hanging down in a sudden streak in the back, but without exception every ball gown is high to the danger point in front, jumping up suddenly over the instep in many cases."

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

President R. E. Bobbitt writes that Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Baton Rouge, La., will preach the Commencement sermon of Mansfield Female College on Sunday, May 28.

Rev. R. P. Neblett, of Ripley, Miss., gave us on March 22 an additional club of 13 subscriptions (2 new and 11 renewals). Evidently Brother Neblett has lost none of his skill as a worker. He and Sister Neblett make a great team.

Rev. W. W. Drake, of Minden, La.; Rev. Robert Selby, of Brookhaven, Miss.; Rev. J. R. Countiss, of Grenada, Miss., and Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., are expected to attend the Educational Conference to be held at Birmingham, April 1-6. All of these brethren have places on the announced program.

Mrs. C. E. Wright, a leading member of our Church at Greenwood, Miss., writing under date of March 21, reported that her father, Dr. J. W. Price, was much improved physically and that he expected to take up his work at Lambert, Miss., again in a week or two. She, furthermore, stated that the Greenwood Church is delighted with its new pastor, Rev. J. A. Hall.

Dr. I. L. Peebles, of Wesson, Miss., brought us under renewed obligations last week for 2 new and 2 renewal subscriptions. This brings his total for the year up to 20—12 new and 8 renewals. Another good worker in the Advocate campaign is Rev. D. R. McDougal, of Kossuth, Miss., from whom we are still hearing. Brother McDougal's complete list for the year numbers 21.

Brother J. P. Rembert, of Longview, Texas, renews his subscription to the Advocate, commends our paper, and adds the following words: "My pastor and presiding elder over here say that it is time I was getting to be a Texan and ceasing to be a Mississippian." It is difficult to make a son of the Magnolia State forget her past glories, which not even the Empire Commonwealth of the Union can surpass.

A letter from Sister S. M. Thames, of Jackson, Miss., written on March 15, contained the following statement: "Mr. Thames had a severe attack of la grippe after his return from Conference, which has kept him very feeble, but he is now improving and gaining strength every day. He walks to church and back home without much fatigue." We trust that this noble veteran, than whom there is none more worthy, will soon be quite himself again.

Rev. R. E. Rutledge, of Vaughan, Miss., has brought us under obligation to him for a club of 9 subscriptions from his pleasant charge. He says: "Our most excellent presiding elder, Rev. Paul D. Hardin, recently came to our first quarterly conference, bringing sound counsel and some helpful preaching. The stewards manifested a liberal spirit. We are expecting a successful year, and already we are having accessions to the Church at the regular services."

Dr. E. B. Partin, of Chunky, Miss., writes: "We had Rev. Rolfe Hunt, of Hickory, Miss., with us on the third Sunday in February, and he gave us an excellent sermon. Dr. Hunt is principal of the Hickory High School, and one of our most effective local preachers. Brother Walters, the pastor of this charge, is endeavoring to make this a prosperous year in the Master's work. He has secured Rev. H. B. Watkins, of Meridian, to assist him in our protracted meeting in July."

After an illness lasting only a few days, Mrs. Martha Cleveland, a daughter of the late Dr. C. G. Andrews, of the Mississippi Conference, died at the home of her mother in Memphis, Tenn., on March 21, at 40 years of age. The body was carried to Flora, Miss., for interment. Mrs. Cleveland left a mother, two sisters, Misses Mary and Lucy Andrews, and two brothers, Dr. J. L. and Dr. C. G. Andrews, to mourn her departure. Dr. J. L. Andrews is Superintendent of the Health Department of the city of Memphis.

"HERNANDO DE SOTO,"

Judge Walter Malone's Great Epic Poem, Commended.

COL. M. W. CONNOLLY
Editor The News-Scimitar

"Malone's epic is unique in many ways. Written by a Southern man, native and to the manner born, it has compelled recognition. It is of epic stature and it deals not with the supernatural, but with historical subjects that are well authenticated. It is the first and only epic poem ever written in any language on the American continent. It is one of the only two epic poems ever written in the English language. It is the first epic poem written in nearly two and a half centuries, when Milton gave to the world his 'Paradise Lost.' It compares favorably with the world's great master efforts along the same lines, and it places the new world in the class exclusively hitherto filled by writers of the old.

This volume may be had of E. H. Clark & Bro., or A. R. Taylor & Co., both South Main Street, Memphis, Tenn. The price is $3, net.

EMORY UNIVERSITY NOTES.

Atlanta Completes Her Campaign.

When Atlanta was selected as the site of Emory University, that city pledged itself to raise $500,000 for the institution. A note received from Bishop Candler states the whole of this amount is now practically in hand. Great is Atlanta! AND GREAT SOON WILL BE EMORY UNIVERSITY!

The L. Q. C. Lamar Law School.

We are glad to see such widespread interest in the matter. We believe it would be very easy to raise the sum of $50,000 for this purpose.

Let the Methodist lawyers of the Church, especially those of Georgia and Mississippi, take the lead in the matter of making contributions for the erection of a suitable building. If they will lead in the campaign, we feel sure thousands will join them in prompt and generous gifts.

Atlanta has pledged to raise $500,000 for the University and we hope the Atlanta lawyers will direct their gifts to the erection of the noble building which is proposed for "The L. Q. C. Lamar School of Law."—From the Wesleyan Christian Advocate, of June 4, 1915.

Atlanta lawyers have already given $25,000 to the Lamar Law School, one lawyer having given $20,000 to go to the endowment fund of this school. What will the lawyers of Mississippi do? Mississippi has been asked to raise $50,000 for the building which is to be the home of this department of the University. Any one wishing to contribute to this cause may communicate with Bishop W. A. Candler, Atlanta, Ga.; with Rev. Robert Selby, Brookhaven, Miss., or with the Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. NOW IS THE TIME TO HELP IN THIS IMPORTANT UNDERTAKING.

A Valuable Gift.

Hon. Luther Roberts, a member of the General Assembly of Georgia, and a citizen of Gainesville, Ga., has sent to Emory University a fine collection of minerals. Among the specimens sent are garnet, corundrum with margarite mantle, asbestos, manganese, amethysts, and lead ore with silver. The mineralogical collection of Emory University is already quite large, and this valuable contribution adds much to it.

THE TRUTH ABOUT BOOZE.

A New Orleans physician sends us a clipping from the "Situations Wanted" column of The States, a newspaper published in his town:

"Sober, reliable and honest bartender needs work badly; can open oysters, make sandwiches, etc.; clean worker; don't drink; good references; small saloon preferred. K832, States."

"By a married man, 32 years of age, as bartender; can run oyster counter, or work in any part of saloon; employed at present, but wants to change to a place where honesty and good work will be recognized; strictly sober; good references. K 831, States."

This is what we call a poor card for the booze business. Also it reminds the New Orleans doctor of that joke about the two darkies. One sat down at a restaurant table and, looking up, recognized the waiter as an old friend. "Hugh!" he said, "I sees you is wuking here." "Yes," said the waiter, noting the sarcasm, "I'se wuking here, but, thank de Lawd, I ain't eatn' here!"—Colliers.

A WORD OF COMMENDATION.

Dear Brother Meek: We are enjoying the reading of the Advocate very much, and we are often made to praise God for the inflexible manner in which it assumes the sound position on what some would call mooted questions; for there is a real need, just at this time especially, of decisiveness on the part of our leaders. The rank and file of our Church are looking to their leaders, who are in a position to know what is best, for their guidance. May the Advocate continue to come out boldly for the right, unswerved by either friends or foes! One can afford to stand alone with the right, for God is always on that side, and one, with God, is a majority. W. H. EMERSON.

WHEN EDWARD SOLD WATER LILIES.

When the child's father died there was not much for them. Their mother said it would be all that she could do to get along until the children were old enough to help. Edward used to think about it a good deal.

"I wish I could help now," he said to Mark Lane who lived just down the road. Mark was a big boy, but a great friend of Edward's. His father was a florist, and Mark helped him about the greenhouses.

"Well, perhaps you can," returned Mark.

"Oh, how?" asked Edward eagerly.

"Well," said Mark, slowly, "I'll have to think about it."

A few afternoons later Edward ran down to the greenhouse where Mark was potting plants. "Well, kiddie, I was just thinking of you."

"Oh, Mark, have you thought of something?"

"Say, how would you like to sell water lilies in the village? There are lots of them on Duck Pond, and I guess, likely, all those summer boarders in the village would buy them."

"But how would I get them? Mother won't let me go to the pond, you know."

"I'll manage to get them for you. I have to be down that way every day anyhow."

Edward jumped up and down in delight. "Oh, Mark, you're just splendid."

Mark laughed. "I don't believe I am, but I am glad you think so, kiddie."

"When can I begin?"

"To-morrow, if you like. You come down here right after breakfast, and I'll have some for you. I sold them myself one summer when I was a kid, and I made a right smart. You can, too."

"But if you get them, Mark, you ought to have some of the money," said Edward, earnestly.

"Oh, no kiddie. All I want is to see you sell them."

The next morning bright and early after breakfast Edward ran down to Mark's. His mother at first was unwilling for him to do it. At last she said that he might try.

Mark had a basket of lilies ready for him. They were beautiful, large ones.

"Just hold two in one hand and keep the others covered. Ask people politely if they would like some lilies. Give three for ten cents. Good luck to you kiddie."

Edward started on his walk to the village in high glee. When he reached it he met two young ladies out for a promenade, who each bought three lilies. Then a man coming along in a buggy stopped when he saw the lilies in the little boy's hand. "Water lilies? My wife wants some. Here, how many have you?"

Edward handed him the basket. The man counted the flowers and said:

"Thirty-six, and they are extra fine. How do you sell them?"

"Three for ten cents," answered Edward.

"Very well. Just take them to the big white house next to the church at the end of this street. Say I sent you and they will pay you for them. Will you be sure to do it?"

"Oh, yes, sir," said Edward, earnestly. The gentleman drove on.

Edward was only a short distance down the street when he met a lady who exclaimed, "Water lilies! Oh, I must have them."

Edward told her they were sold. She offered him nearly twice as much as he was going to receive for them. But, of course, he couldn't let her have them for he had promised the gentleman that he would be sure to take them to his wife. The lady insisted, but he still refused, and walked on down the street to the big white house. The lady there was delighted with the flowers. She paid him the dollar and twenty cents.

"And I would like you to bring me some three times a week if you can. My daughter is sick and is very fond of water lilies. Be sure to bring them." And Edward promised.

Of course his mother was much pleased with his success. So was Mark.

When Edward told him about the lady that wanted to pay him twice the price if he would let her have the lilies, he said, "That was good business, kiddie; you must always keep your word with people. Now you see you have a sure sale three times a week as long as lilies last."

Edward was so glad that he could help his mother before he was a big boy.—Presbyterian Banner.

GOING TO JESUS.

One evening, after a child's service, a teacher was talking to a young girl who was weeping for her sins, but could not feel that she was pardoned.

"Suppose," said he, "that Jesus was in this room, what would you do?"

"I would go to him at once?" she replied.

"And what would you tell him?"

"That I am a lost sinner."

"And what would you ask him?"

"Oh, I would ask him if he would forgive me."

"And what would Jesus answer?"

She hestitated for a moment, and then looked up, smiling through her tears, for at once she saw it all. "Why," she said, "he would answer, 'Yes.'"

And, simply trusting in the Savior's words, she went to him there and then, and Jesus said "Yes."—Baptist Commonwealth.

ASBURY'S LOVE FOR CHILDREN.

Ordinarily company bored him, but no man could have been more approachable to children. How children loved him! "Mother," breathlessly shouted a little boy as he ran into the house, "I want my face washed and a clean apron on, for Bishop Asbury is coming and I am sure he will hug me up!" On his first visit to the home of Henry Willis a few weeks after that good man's death, he "kissed and encircled in his arms the six orphaned children of his departed friend and blessed them in the name of the Lord." When he is ill children read to him the "Life of John Bruen" or Doddridge's "Sermons to Young People," and he, in turn, teaches them and others "a little grammar." On one occasion, not being able because of illness to do anything with his books, and in order not to be wholly idle, he "wound cotton broaches among the children." * * * Parents, dying, left their children to his care. Mothers desired their sons to be like him.—Ezra Squier Tipple, in "Francis Asbury, the Prophet of the Long Road."

HONESTY.

Be entirely honest in trivial matters. One who borrows a cent should be as careful to return it as if he had borrowed a dollar. If grocers and market men were asked to tell their experience, they would sometimes relate stories of small thefts made by customers who picked up an apple, a bit of candy or sugar, and had not the least idea that in doing this without payment they were violating the rule of strict honesty. A girl at school was warned against another because the latter, though very sweet in manner and amiable in conduct, borrowed ribbons, hair-pins, postage stamps, note paper and loose change and seldom took the trouble to return the loans. Be honest, not for the reason that this is the best policy, but for the higher reason that it is right. The Comrade.

Editorial

SOUTHERN METHODISTS LEAD IN AN IMPORTANT FORWARD MOVEMENT IN CHINA.

We take the following from The Outlook (New York) of March 15, which doubtless will prove interesting to not a few of our readers:

"In the fall of 1915 there occurred an event of great potential significance to China. This was the opening on September 4 of 'The Comparative Law School of Soochow University' at Shanghai, China. The story of its origin is interesting.

"Professor Charles W. Rankin, who had the chair of Political Science at Soochow University, an institution under the control of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Southern Methodist Church, was, upon his own request, assigned to the charge of the boys' preparatory school for that University and the University of Shanghai. Realizing the need of China for men trained in the principles of foreign law, especially at a time when the establishment of a judicial system along foreign lines was under consideration, he presented the matter to the home board and asked for permission to open a law school. The proposition was at first refused, presumably for financial reasons. The local authorities of the Southern Methodist Mission at Shanghai, however, with perhaps greater faith than the home board and a keener realization of its importance and opportunities, assured him of their moral support. And accordingly, without any endowment or promise of financial assistance from any source, without the assurance even of a single student, the announcement of the opening of the school the succeeding fall was issued in the summer of 1915.

"Before a monthly meeting of the American Bar Association in China, Mr. Rankin outlined his plan for the opening of the new Law School. The President of the Association, the Hon. Charles S. Solenigier, Judge of the United States Court for China, then called a meeting of members of this Association who had agreed to give their services as lecturers gratis the first year, to consider the curriculum. A three years' course was decided upon, the course to include a study of Roman law as well as of the English common law. Constant comparison will be made with the principles and practice of Chinese law. The Faculty is composed of both Americans and Chinese. Among the former it includes, besides Judge Solenigier, Mr. Jernigan, the Dean of the American Bar of Shanghai.

"This law school for Chinese is unique in many ways. It is the first and only professional school of law in China. It is the only instance, too, of legal instruction being given under the auspices of a Christian mission.

"In no country and in no age has there been so much corruption in connection with the courts as in China. This has been so deeply rooted in the past history of the country that the people have continued to this day to regard every one connected with the courts as dishonest and corrupt. The modern so-called Chinese 'lawyers' who suddenly appeared after the revolution were no improvement in this respect. Many of them are practicing in the Chinese courts of the foreign settlements and native city of Shanghai to-day.

"With the opening of this Law School, it is hoped, a new order of things has been inaugurated. In no other way could China's desire to do away with extra-territoriality ever be realized. The limited number of Chinese who could afford to go abroad to study law would never suffice to supply the need of educated and trustworthy judges and attorneys that China will require to make effective many reforms in her judicial system."

This statement from an outside source furnishes an impressive illustration of how profoundly our mission work in China is influencing that great country, the population of which is nearly one-third of the human race. It also shows what an open door to large usefulness the right kind of professional education may sometimes be to a Christian Church. Nor are the opportunities for service through this channel by any means restricted to heathen lands. Christian professional men, with high character and ideals, could scarcely fail to be a blessing anywhere or to any people.

Prof. Charles W. Rankin, who has been the leader in this important forward movement in China, was formerly a prominent lawyer in Chattanooga, Tenn., and was for several years a member of our Centenary Church in that city. He is a nephew of the late Dr. J. D. Barbee, who was so widely known in Southern Methodism.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON DEAD.

The Methodists of New Orleans were greatly shocked on Wednesday of last week, when a dispatch from St. Louis brought the sad and unexpected news that Rev. H. R. Singleton had died in the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium in that city, in which he had previously undergone a serious operation. We infer from the message that was sent out that Brother Singleton realized the critical nature of his illness, as it was stated he had requested that his funeral should take place in his church, the Scruggs Memorial, either on Sunday or at night, that the working people of his congregation might be able to attend. His wishes in this respect were carried out on Wednesday night, March 22, when a large gathering assembled to pay respect to the memory of this gifted and beloved pastor. The body of the deceased was brought to Arcadia, La., the former home of Mrs. Singleton, where it was laid to rest with impressive ceremonies, the following ministers being in attendance: Dr. R. H. Wynn, Rev. J. F. Foster, Rev. Briscoe Carter, Rev. A. S. Lutz, Rev. J. G. Snelling, Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, and Rev. E. K. Means. Besides these fellow-itinerants, many sorrowing friends assembled to witness the final obsequies.

Brother Singleton was a son of the late Dr. Hampton R. Singleton, who was also widely known as a Methodist minister. A considerable portion of his ministry was spent in the Louisiana Conference, Ruston, Alexandria, and Parker Memorial Church, New Orleans, being among the charges that he served. He was also at one time presiding elder of the Shreveport District. Some three years ago he was transferred to St. Louis and made pastor of the Scruggs Memorial Church, one of the leading congregations of that city. His pastorate there was largely fruitful, and he was held in high esteem by all who knew him. He was 43 years of age.

Both as a man and as a preacher, Brother Singleton, enjoyed a large degree of popularity. He was fluent and entertaining in the pulpit and was in demand on the lecture platform. He was tactful and energetic as a pastor, and built up and strengthened every church that was placed in his care. In his decease, Southern Methodism has sustained no small loss. Such ministers as he was are by no means plentiful. Clean, high-minded, capable, and faithful, he wrought nobly, and has left behind a record that is highly creditable. And that a bright reward awaited him above, we do not doubt.

Brother Singleton was married a number of years ago to Miss Hattie Theus, of Arcadia, La., who, with the two sons born of that union, survives him. It is stated that his family will return to Arcadia to reside. To them and all the other grief-stricken relatives, we extend our deepest sympathy, and we pray that the tender and compassionate Christ may have them in his gracious keeping in this trying hour.

THE EMORY COMMISSIONER FOR MISSISSIPPI.

Though no official announcement from Bishop Atkins to that effect has reached us, we have heard from several reliable sources that Rev. Robert Selby, of Brookhaven, Miss., has been elected by our General Educational Commission to represent the interests of Emory University in the State of Mississippi and that Bishop Atkins has consented for him to take up this most important work. As our readers know, a campaign is being launched in Mississippi to raise $50,000 for the L. Q. C. Lamar Law School building, now in process of erection on the Emory Campus, and Brother Selby will be the active leader in this worthy undertaking. This position of honor and responsibility has come to him wholly unsought, and he should have the earnest sympathy and hearty co-operation of all our preachers and people in the Magnolia State in seeking to accomplish the urgently needed service to which he has been called.

Brother Selby has for a number of years been one of the best known ministers in the Mississippi Conference. He is Chancellor of the Seashore Divinity School, and had entered upon his fourth year as presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, where he had made an excellent record. He is a hard worker, a good organizer, and has the reputation of being a forceful and impressive speaker. Let the brethren write him and assure him of their interest and support in his new work. His present address is Brookhaven, Miss.

Brother Selby will probably have something to say through the Advocate next week.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

This roll is to be made of the charges in which all of the stewards are subscribers to the Advocate. At present it stands as follows:

1. Ripley and Blue Mountain, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neblett, pastor.

2. Court Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor.

3. Kossuth Circuit, North Miss., Rev. D. R. McDougal, pastor.

4. Oak Grove Circuit, Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor.

5. Shuqualak Circuit, North Miss. Conf., Rev. A. S. Raper, pastor.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss., visited West Point and Columbus last week.

Major R. W. Millsaps, Mississippi's foremost Methodist layman, was a recent visitor to Greenville, Miss.

A phone message from Rev. Robert Selby states that Bishop Atkins has appointed Dr. I. W. Cooper his successor as presiding elder of the Brookhaven District.

Rev. R. M. Evans, of Calhoun City, Miss., gave us two additional new subscriptions last week, and added "more to follow." He also said: "I am busy, hopeful, and happy, and the outlook is full of sunshine."

The Commencement address of the Presbyterian College at Clarksville, Tenn., will this year be delivered by Hon. G. T. Fitzhugh, of Memphis, who is one of the most brilliant speakers in the Volunteer State.

Among those who have lately given us clubs of subscribers is Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Winona, Miss. Brother Duncan has made a fine impression at Winona both as a worker and as a preacher. He possesses pulpit gifts of a high order.

Brother F. A. Howell, of Durant, Miss., one of the Advocate's faithful friends, gave us last week an additional club of 9 subscriptions from his community. We highly appreciate this good work upon the part of this veteran Methodist layman.

So many things have crowded upon us for attention editorially this week that we have again deferred our concluding remarks on the Amusement question. What we have in mind is to discuss the objections commonly put forward to cataloguing practices that are admitted to be evil.

We make grateful acknowledgment to Rev. B. F. Bullard, of Duck Hill, Miss., for a club of 10 subscriptions, forwarded on March 22. Brother Bullard reports his work as progressing encouragingly. The services at Duck Hill on Sunday, March 19, were most gratifying in every respect.

Rev. O. W. Bradley, of Tupelo, Miss., sends us the following note: "Born on March 26, 1916, Mary Frances Bradley. Mother and child both doing well." We extend congratulations to Brother and Sister Bradley, and pray that the Heavenly Father may have the little one in his tender keeping.

We acknowledge the reception of an invitation to the 25th anniversary of the marriage of Rev. and Mrs. R. H. B. Gladney, of the North Mississippi Conference, which will be celebrated at their home in Sardis, Miss., on Saturday, April 8. We extend in advance our hearty congratulations and best wishes.

Rev. W. W. Hopper, of Mayersville, Miss., reported some days ago that the high water from the Mississippi River was receding in that section of the Delta and that the outlook for the work of the Church was brightening. We thank Brother Hopper for lending the Advocate a helping hand among his people.

Rev. D. H. Crowson sounds an optimistic note from Paris, Miss. He says: "Everything looks hopeful in this field. The Lord is working powerfully in our midst, and we are expecting a fruitful year." Enclosed in Brother Crowson's letter, were 7 names for our mailing files, and a money order to correspond.

Bishop W. B. Murrah, of Memphis, Tenn., states that his recent trip to Cuba was one of the most delightful events of his life and that he found the work of our Church there in an excellent condition. We dare say that the Cuban brethren were equally delighted with the pulpit ministrations and presidency of Bishop Murrah.

Rev. L. P. Wasson, our brilliant young pastor at West Point, Miss., continues to do some good work in behalf of the Conference organ. He expects to have Bishop W. B. Murrah with him on April 2 in the interest of the campaign for Grenada College. A rich treat is in store for the citizens of the Queen City of the Prairies.

Rev. H. T. Young, of Amite City, La., has wiped out the debt on our church at that place, and the work there, under his capable direction, has taken on a forward stride. He is one of the truly effective pastors of the Louisiana Conference. He is now issuing a neat weekly Bulletin containing the order of his services, the announcements, etc.

Our hat is off to that hustling young itinerant, Rev. Standifer Raper, of Shuqualak, Miss., who gave us on the 23d inst 16 subscribers—14 of them being new ones. This places the names of all his officials on our mailing files and his developing charge on the "Honor Roll." We highly appreciate this splendid service in behalf of the Conference organ.

Rev. E. D. Simpson, of High Point, Miss., says: "I have had a good deal of sickness in my family since Conference. We have an additional member in our household, Garland Brook, who arrived on Feb. 1." We regret to know that Brother Simpson has had illness in his home, and we trust that all his loved ones will soon be in the enjoyment of health.

Rev. J. C. McElroy, of Sturgis, Miss., says: "We are well pleased with our new work. The people have given us a hearty welcome, and we are expecting a good year. We are planning to have Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss., to conduct a meeting for us at this place." Brother McElroy's letter brought us two subscriptions, for which he has our thanks.

Rev. J. H. Holder, the leader of our forces in the Sardis (Miss.) District, says: "Things are moving on well in this territory. I find that district work is no easy job." Our friend is right: a presiding elder who does his full duty is pretty certain to eat no idle bread. There is scarcely a more important office in our economy than that of presiding elder.

Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Utica, Miss., says: "I had my father, Rev. H. P. Lewis, with me Sunday, March 19. He preached for me at Cayuga in the morning and here at Utica at night. Pretty good for a man of eighty, lacking only 13 days! Our work is still moving along nicely." Brother Lewis' letter brought us 7 names for our subscription files, with a check to correspond.

Rev. P. F. Luter, of Acona, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 11 subscriptions, mailed on March 20—3 of them new. Many of the names on this list are quite familiar to the Editor and have stirred up memories of his boyhood days. We have learned from several sources that Brother Luter is giving a good account of himself in this young station. Blessings on this faithful pastor and his worthy flock!

From Fayette, Miss., Rev. J. O. Ware writes: "Our second son, Marvin Austin, arrived in our home to-day. He is a ten-pounder and a true rival of his older brother, James Orion, Jr., who won the gold medal at the Mississippi State Fair last year." We congratulate our Fayette pastor and his worthy helpmeet, and pray God's blessings on the fine young Methodist who has lately come into their home.

Dr. T. B. Holloman, of Vicksburg, Miss., writes as follows: "Mrs. Anna DeMoss, a daughter of the late Dr. C. K. Marshall, died at her home in Vicksburg on March 20. She was 76 years old. She followed in the footsteps of her illustrious father and was a fine character. As a pastor, I do not reeall so great a loss." We regret to be apprised of the death of this choice Christian woman, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

From Colfax, La., Rev. H. B. Perritt sends us 3 new subscriptions and the following note pertaining to the work in his field: "At the last Annual Conference, I was assigned to Colfax and Montgomery, which is put down in the Minutes as the Colfax charge. At a meeting of the Colfax stewards, held on March 12, they unanimously voted in favor of making Colfax a station, and, with the consent of the presiding elder, this was done. Things are progressing nicely with us, and I am expecting the best year of my ministry."

Rev. R. I. Collins, our pastor on the Courtland (Miss.) Circuit, sends us several additional subscribers and reports as follows concerning his work: "Things are progressing favorably in this field. We will worship in our new church at Pope on next Sunday, March 26. It is a little gem. Since our house of worship was destroyed there last June we have been having our preaching services in the Baptist Church and holding our Sunday school exercises in the public school building. We have two prayer meetings a week at Pope, which are conducted by laymen."

Dr. Frazer Hood, Professor of English in the Tennessee Normal College, near Memphis, was a warm personal friend of the late Judge Walter Malone, and has a capital lecture on his great masterpiece, "Hernando De Soto." Schools and towns in North Mississippi would do well to have Dr. Hood, who is an accomplished scholar, to deliver this lecture. Write him for terms, addressing him at Normal, Tenn. Every Mississippian ought to desire to be informed concerning the poetical works of Walter Malone, the most gifted literary man that his State has ever produced.

Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Hazlehurst, Miss., writes: "Since the Annual Conference the attendance upon our Sunday school has increased 200 per cent. We have entirely outgrown the auditorium of the church, and have raised $1000 to provide additional rooms for the work. Our congregations at the preaching services have also perceptibly increased, but not in proportion to the growth of the Sunday school. Many things are being planned which we expect to result in great good. We had 8 additions to the Church on Sunday, March 29, and one on the preceding Sabbath."

Rev. W. L. Duren, the popular pastor of our First Church at Columbus, one of the leading congregations of Mississippi Methodism, among his many arduous duties, is not unmindful of the interests of the Conference organ. He gave us last week a club of 14 subscriptions, for which we thank him. He reports that his work is progressing fairly well, though not as he would like to have it do. It would be a strange kind of a pastor who had attained fully to his ideal either for himself or his congregation. All reports are to the effect that Brother Duren is doing an excellent work in his historic charge.

Georgia has two Commissioners in the field for Emory University—one for each of her two Conferences. Now that Atlanta has redeemed her pledge to give the University $500,000, the Methodists of that great commonwealth have adopted as their goal a round million dollars outside of their Capital City, and we dare say that they will reach it. Let the other States east of the Mississippi River follow Georgia's shining example and swing into line to do something creditable for our great connectional school. The South needs one first-class university, and we should build it. No other denomination this side of Mason and Dixon's line is so well able to do so.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. R. W. Evans, Gunnison, Miss., 5; Rev. M. L. Ward, Ripley Circuit (North Miss.), 8; Rev. R. H. Barr, Auburn, Miss., 2; Rev. S. A. Brown, Kosciusko, Miss., 4; Rev. J. A. Wells, Oak Ridge, Miss., 2; Rev. J. E. Cunningham, Corinth, Miss., 6; Rev. L. E. Alford, Lake, Miss., 7; Rev. A. W. Langley, Houlka, Miss., 4; Rev. A. S. Byrd, Sharon, Miss., 6; Rev. J. D. Harper, Opelousas, La., 8; Rev. J. G. Galloway, Philadelphia, Miss., 8; Rev. J. M. Lewis, Prentiss, Miss., 3; Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Vancleave, Miss., 9.

Dr. Chas. F. Evans, of Lexington, Ky., has been visiting his son, Rev. W. T. Evans, of this city, for the past two weeks. He occupied the pulpit of the Rayne Memorial Church last Sunday at 11 o'clock a. m., preaching with great acceptability, and on the preceding Sabbath he preached a helpful sermon to our Felicity Street congregation. Dr. Evans is looking remarkably well and seems to be in fine spirits. He is well known to the Methodists of Louisiana and Mississippi, having served leading churches in both States in the years agone. He was also at one time pastor of our old Central Church in Memphis, out of which our present St. John's Church in that city emerged.

We erred last week in naming Rev. W. E. Thomas as a member of the old Vanderbilt Quartet, now known as the "Florence Conwell Quartet," inadvertently, in a hurried reading of a letter, substituting his name for that of Rev. J. L. Luton, of Winchester, Tenn. Brother Thomas is a stirring preacher, but not a pretentious singer. It is now stated for some reason (unknown to us) that the engagement of this Quartet with the Sociological Congress has been canceled, and that its members will not visit New Orleans. Rev. J. M. Culbreth, Assistant Secretary of the Epworth League, expects, however, to be present at the rally of the young Methodists of the city on April 11, and will deliver an address.

Mrs. H. L. McCleskey, of Hazlehurst, Miss., Secretary of the Seashore Assembly of Christian Workers, writes as follows: "The management of the Seashore Assembly, after due deliberation in an executive meeting, have decided not to have a 1916 session of the Assembly. A large part of the forces which for a number of years have made this organization a power for good will necessarily be concentrated at other places, and in view of this fact, together with other unforeseen circumstances, it has been deemed best to adopt this course and make announcement of it for the benefit of those who have been in the habit of availing themselves of the opportunities furnished annually by the Assembly, and who may have contemplated doing so this summer."

We scarcely have words to express our appreciation of the fine service which our worthy friend, Rev. W. W. Perry, of Boyce, La., is rendering the Conference organ in his field. A letter forwarded on March 18 brought us 38 subscriptions. Brother Perry has perhaps within recent years been more successful in circulating the Advocate than any other pastor in our patronizing territory, and he stated to the Publisher at Conference that it was his purpose to try to secure a hundred subscribers within the bounds of his charge this year. We hope that Brother Perry will at some time in the near future give us an article on "How to Circulate the Church Paper." It is with much regret that we learn that Brother Perry's health has not been good since the last session of the Louisiana Conference.

SOME LOUISIANA NOTES.

Rev. G. A. Morgan, pastor of the Jonesboro and Dodson charge, is a well equipped young minister, and is doing well in his present field. His cultured wife goes with him on his rounds and helps him in his work for the Church. Jonesboro and Dodson are both prosperous towns with fine schools.

Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., is the popular pastor at Dubach. He is a choice young preacher, with a lovely home, an intelligent and consecrated wife, and a bright little son. Dubach has a beautiful brick church and a large public school. Prof. W. P. Martin and J. D. Bartlow are in charge. The town is a moral one and excels as a business point.

Rev. S. D. Roberts has made a fine start at Bernice, and is planning for a successful year. He has strong support in Brother G. W. Jones and his entire official board. His good wife looks well to her side of the work. Prof. D. W. Caldwell is one of the efficient teachers in the fine public school. Every prospect pleases.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, of Homer, has one of the most desirable charges in the Conference. He is quite intelligent and fully consecrated, and is blessed with a cultured wife and three fine sons, one of whom has expressed a desire to be a medical missionary. A special meeting looking to the salvation of souls is being planned.

Rev. A. S. J. Neill, pastor at Haynesville, has an important charge. He is a good preacher and is devoting himself to his work. His good wife has been at Lake Charles for some time, but will soon join him in his faithful efforts for the Master. Haynesville has an exceptionally fine school, with Prof. C. B. Griffis as principal, and Profs. S. A. Towne, T. W. Shields, J. S. Patton, and five choice young ladies as assistants. J. D. WEEMS.

From the Field

Batesville, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: There is a live spiritual interest among our members. Our pastor, Brother E. G. Mohler, who is always on the alert, is using every effort to build up firmly each institution of the Church and to draw every individual nearer to Christ. Enthusiasm rings clearly and harmoniously in our growing Sunday school and the teachers and school are deriving much profit from the Teachers' Training Class. We have had our first quarterly conference and deem ourselves blessed to have such an inspiring presiding elder as Brother Holder to help and encourage us in the work. The financial report was excellent for the quarter and all seems favorable for much to be accomplished this year. Our meeting will begin the first Sunday in April and we pray that our hearts may be prepared for it—for deeper love, better spiritual work, and thoroughly consecrated lives.—Miss Nyna Pollard.

Magee, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed one of the greatest revivals ever held in Magee. We began on Sunday, February 20, with the help of the other pastors of the town (Baptist and Presbyterian). We held on until Friday, February 25, when Brother Kelly came, and it goes without saying that he preached with power throughout the meeting, which closed on March 8. The Church was greatly revived, sinners were converted, backsliders were reclaimed, and many family altars were erected. The town was stirred as never before. There was an increase in all the Sunday schools last Sunday. We had 11 accessions to our Church, and one joined the Baptist Church. Nearly everybody in the town now belongs to some Church. We believe that much good yet will come as a result of the meeting, and that we are going to have a great year here at Magee. Brother Kelly is now known as the "Billy Sunday" of Mississippi. I must say, let him be "Billy" or "Dan," that he is a consecrated man, and the right man in the right place. I did not get to hear all his sermons while here, as I was called away on account of the death of my stepfather, W. J. Scott, of Fernwood, Miss. But I knew that "Dan" would go right on and that all would be well.

I am going to work for the Advocate right away. I hope to send in some new subscriptions and renewals. God bless you!—H. E. Carter, P. C.

REV. O. J. CHANDLER COMMENDED.

At a meeting of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church of Alexandria, La., which convened on March 3, a committee composed of H. H. White, C. W. Ward, W. D. Haas, T. W. Holloman, J. H. Petrie, and J. M. Peel, was appointed to draft suitable expressions of our sincere regret at the loss of our highly appreciated pastor, Dr. O. J. Chandler, who, on account of his failing health, is compelled to abandon active work as a minister of the Gospel of our Lord, Jesus Christ, and retire for a while to recuperate and regain his health.

Dr. Chandler came to us the latter part of the last Conference year, and has only served our Church a few months, but in the short time he has been among us he has, by his ministry and his godly walk, strengthened our faith and warmed the spiritual life of our Church.

Dr. and Mrs. Chandler, through their pure Christian character and untiring energy in the interest of our Church and the advancement of the Kingdom of our Lord, have not only elevated themselves to the pinnacle of high Christian character, but have drawn the members of our Church to them with such cords of tender love that our separation at this time can only be borne because it cannot be helped.

Dr. Chandler is a minister of the highest type, never going into the pulpit except to convince his congregation of the divinity of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, and the blessedness of a life spent in close touch with the Master. No person can sit and listen to his preaching without being convinced of the presence of the Holy Spirit; the world has been made better by his life, and we have been edified by his presence in our midst.

To you and your good wife and sweet daughter, we say good-bye. We hope you will come back soon. With you go our prayers that you may ever keep the fire burning on the altar of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, and be able to hold aloft the light of the Holy Spirit that sinners may see the way to life everlasting, and that God will spare your life for many years and enable you to carry on the good work you have begun. Wherever God in his wisdom may call you, our prayers will follow you, and you will always retain a dear and tender spot in the hearts of the members of the First Methodist Church of Alexandria, La.

Signed: C. W. Ward, W. D. Haas, J. H. Petrie, J. M. Peel, H. H. White, T. W. Holloman.

HOW MRS. BEAN MET THE CRISIS

Carried Safely Through Change of Life by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Nashville, Tenn.—"When I was going through the Change of Life I had a tumor as large as a child's head. The doctor said it was three years coming and gave me medicine for it until I was called away from the city for some time. Of course I could not go to him then, so my sister-in-law told me that she thought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would cure it. It helped both the Change of Life and the tumor and when I got home I did not need the doctor. I took the Pinkham remedies until the tumor was gone, the doctor said, and I have not felt it since. I tell every one how I was cured. If this letter will help others you are welcome to use it." —Mrs. E. H. BEAN, 525 Joseph Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a pure remedy containing the extractive properties of good old fashioned roots and herbs, meets the needs of woman's system at this critical period of her life. Try it.

If there is any symptom in your case which puzzles you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary, Sardis, Miss.

Brother Pastor, be on the lookout for a letter, with a card enclosed, to be used in ordering Children's Day programs. Please mail the card back to me as soon as possible.

Children's Day means more to the Church to-day than it ever did. Its influence for good is far reaching. The neglect of its observance will possibly do more harm than ever. Like every good thing it calls for some one to pray, to labor, to suffer. But think of the reward!

Two important things must be done this year. The first is to organize the districts in harmony with the plan of the General Board. The plan is as follows:

An Executive Committee, with the presiding elder chairman ex-officio; a district secretary; department superintendents: Elementary, Home Department, Teacher-training, and Wesley Bible Classes. It will take time to work this plan, but it will work when we work it.

The next thing we must do is to register all our Wesley Bible classes, so that we can get ready for the federation of these classes. Dr. Bulla's books show that we have 117; our Conference minutes show that we have 257. Within the next month, let Dr. Bulla's books show that we have 300 registered classes; then we can begin to get ready for our Conference federation. Let every presiding elder, every pastor, every superintendent, every teacher, every registered class get behind this proposition at once and see that the North Mississippi Conference falls into line with the moving hosts of Methodism. Men, let us do this thing now!

Some of the reasons why intermediate, senior, and adult classes should be organized: Organization provides a plan for building up the class; for training in personal evangelism; for making leaders; for church loyalty.

The Wesley Bible Class at work, under God, will transform the activities of any local church. Three hundred or more classes federated will revolutionize the religious, social, and civic life of the State. This is not a theory, but a fact. Let us demonstrate it this year.

TEACHER-TRAINING.

It is very gratifying to note the progress that is being made in the organizing of teacher-training classes all over the Church, for one of the sorest needs of the Church to-day is qualified teachers in her Sunday schools. The text book, "The Pupil, The Teacher, and The School," by Barclay, in use by our teacher-training department, is second to none in its intended field of usefulness, and a pastor who organizes a class in his church can rest assued he is doing both the right and the best thing for the future good of the Church.

Rev. John W. Shackford, Superintendent of Teacher-Training in our Church, reports the following classes enrolled from the Conferences of the Gulf Division during January and February: Alabama Conference, five classes, at Asbury and Echo (Ozark), York, Skipperville, and Sweetwater, with a total of 35 students. North Alabama Conference, sixteen classes, at Vinemont, Samantha, Berry, Harmony (Camp Hill), Oak Bowery (Opelika), Marvin Chapel (Chandler Springs), two at Goodwater, Pine Grove (Hollins), Bankston, Altoona, White Plains (Choccolocco), Jacksonville, two at Mulga, and Acipico, with a total of 313 students. Mississippi Conference, five classes, at Hattiesburg, Central (Meridian), Meridian College, Union, and Asylum Heights, with a total of 78 students. North Mississippi Conference, four classes, at Houston, Sardis, West Point and Shuqualak, with a total of 57 students. Louisiana, one class, at Stonewall, with 15 students. Little Rock Conference, one class, at Oaklawn (Hot Springs), with 19 students. North Arkansas Conference, two classes, at Helena and Clarksville, with 31 students. The total enrollment for the seven Conferences of the Division is 34 classes, 519 students. In addition, six students from the Division were enrolled as "individual students."

During these two months the enrollment from the whole Church was 131 classes and 1832 students, 38 of the latter being "individual students."

SOME WORDS OF APPRECIATION.

Dear Mr. Editor: I wish to say to you that we have one of the strongest preachers in the North Mississippi Conference in the person of Rev. J. T. McCafferty, and that there is no pastor more loved by his people than he is by the people of Maben. He has served here faithfully for three years and is now serving his fourth year. I can say that there is not a person here that does not dearly love him and many feel sad when they think of his having to leave after this year. On the third Sunday in February he came to us filled with the power of God and preached a sermon to the children, reading for his first lesson Genesis 12:1-5 and for his second lesson Acts 16:25-38. He took as his text, "And they said, Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved and thy house." (Acts 16:31.) To say that he did well is putting it lightly; for he preached a most powerful sermon to the upbuilding and edifying of all that were present (and he always has a large audience to hear him). On the first Sunday in March Brother McCafferty came to us again filled with the power of the Holy Ghost. At 11 a. m., he read a part of the 20th chapter of Jeremiah and from Acts 9:1-6. His text was, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" (a part of the sixth verse of the ninth chapter of Acts.) He handled this theme with power. At night he came with renewed power and read a lesson from the eleventh chapter of Hebrews. His text was found in Hebrews 12:1. He preached very impressively to a well filled house and all were greatly pleased with the discourse. Brother McCafferty is not large in stature, but he is wonderfully large when it comes to preaching the Word of God in a way to effect the conversion of souls. This little man is a power for God and for the upbuilding of the kingdom of God here on earth.

Soothes the fretting baby and thereby gives relief to the tired mother.

A Foe to Tuberculosis

The Journal of the American Medical Association (August 9, 1913), reviewing an article on "The Influence of Calcium Salts on Constitution and Health," said: "They (the authors) report numbers of concrete instances in which patients gained in vitality and energy after taking calcium."

Doctors agree that in tuberculosis lowered vitality and lost energy must be overcome.

One of the constituents of Eckman's Alterative is calcium (lime), in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. To this, in part, is due its success in the treatment of tuberculosis—a service which even some ethical practitioners have acknowledged to their patients. We make no wholesale claims for it but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, a trial is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

UNION EPWORTH LEAGUE OF NEW ORLEANS PLAN BIG YOUNG PEOPLE'S RALLY.

The Union Epworth League held its regular monthly session at the Mary Werlein Mission Tuesday, March 14, with an attendance of about 55. Mrs. O'Burn, of St. Mark's Hall, gave a very interesting talk, the keynote of which was the joy of service, concluding the devotional services of the evening.

The business meeting was a signal one in that arrangements for the Young People's rally discussed at our last meeting were practically completed. President Thomas appointed a committee on arrangements, the date of rally having previously been set as April 11th, the place of meeting to be at the First Methodist Church.

The committee previously referred to of which Mr. Renshaw of Epworth Church is chairman, is a large one, as it is representative of New Orleans Methodism, each church, whether having a League or not having a representative on this Committee. The object of the rally is to get the young people all out to this gathering. A most enjoyable and uplifting evening is expected.

The reports from various Leagues showed considerable activity in the first and second departments, and the third department of the Union is planning some outings and entertainments for the coming summer. The fourth departments of some of the Leagues are alive, as is evidenced by reports of moneys forwarded on special pledge. L. R. BOCK.

EUREKA CIRCUIT (NORTH MISS. CONF.)

Dear Dr. Meek: Just a brief statement concerning our work. We are moving forward on this charge. Congregations are increasing at each service, and our Sunday schools are taking on new life. Our presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, spent four days on the charge last week, making a general survey of the field and getting acquainted with the people. He visited four churches and held two or three services a day, looking after the general interest of the Church and putting special emphasis on the Sunday school work. Doctor, you should have been here. We had dinner on the ground three days in succession.

Brother Holder held our quarterly conference on Saturday afternoon. It was an interesting occasion. Every one was in fine spirits, the collections were good, and the pastor's salary was raised over that of last year. Our people have already fallen in love with Brother Holder and were delighted with every service. He is a strong gospel preacher, a consecrated man, and a hustling presiding elder. Brother Gladney joined us on Saturday and visited three of my churches. He gave us some fine information and helpful suggestions on Sunday school work. He is the man for the place. The Lord is doing a great work through these two men. I believe this tour will be the beginning of greater things for this charge. I have the greatest opportunity of my life. Brethren, pray that the Lord may use me. GEO. A. BAKER, P. C.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Summit, Miss., April 18.

The Rev. H. L. Norton will preach the opening sermon in the afternoon of the first day. At the conclusion of the sermon the Sacrament will be administered.

The following committees are announced: License to Preach—B. F. Lewis, J. H. Grice, F. B. Ormond; Orders—J. M. Morse, J. V. Bennett, G. H. Galloway; Local Preachers—N. B. Harmon, H. L. Norton, W. W. Moore; Quarterly Conference Records—J. L. Smith, H. K. McKee, V. D. Youngblood; Emory University and Ministerial Education—I. W. Cooper, P. H. Enochs, J. B. Alford, W. N. Thomas, J. S. Sexton.

These committees will please acquaint themselves with the Disciplinary directions regarding the matters in question.

The committee to inquire into the matter of Emory University and Ministerial Education will please prepare to present to the conference such items as these vital interests of our Church deserve.

The committee on Local Preachers will know by reference to the Discipline what is expected to be done regarding its work.

Let us do our work intelligently and helpfully. ROBT. SELBY, P. E.

GREAT MEETING AT RIENZI, MISS.

We recently closed at Rienzi the greatest meeting that that community had had in a number of years, if not the greatest in its history. There have been meetings held there in which more people joined the Church, but none in which a deeper work of grace was wrought in the hearts of the people. Eternity alone can reveal the good that was accomplished in these services. Brother J. H. Bell, who was with us, is certainly "the right man in the right place" as one of our Conference evangelists. A Church that he cannot awaken spiritually is so dead that no one else need try to revive it. He uses no claptrap methods, and tries to get up no sensation of any kind, but preaches searchingly the unadulterated gospel. There were several conversions and reclamations as a result of his stirring messages, a young men's prayer meeting was organized, and a number are praying in public who had never done so before. Our regular prayer meeting, our Sunday school, and all our church services are much better attended since our revival. No preacher who engages Brother Bell will make a mistake. He preaches as well as any evangelist I have ever heard (and I have heard a good many). Our people showed their appreciation of Brother Bell by giving a liberal offering in money, and besides a collection amounting to $100 was taken on a debt that had been hanging over the parsonage ever since it was built. To God be all the glory. Praise his name forever!

B. P. FULLILOVE, Pastor.

Our failure in faith and courage is because we put our circumstances between us and the Lord, instead of keeping the Lord between us and our circumstances.—D. W. Whittle.

Calomel Seldom Sold Here Now
Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.
Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.
"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it falls to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.
Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

BOILS AND PIMPLES DANGEROUS
Modern science has proven that boils and carbuncles, pimples and unsightly skin blotches are danger signals of diseased blood. It's the infected blood that's dangerous. Don't wait for the boils. If you have pimples and blotches, take instant action. Pimples tell you that your blood contains impurities. You must wash out your blood, and stimulate it to healthy action with Nature's own blood tonic, S. S. S. It is purely vegetable. You can get it at any druggist's. If yours is a long standing case, write for free expert advice to Swift Specific Co., Dept. Z., Atlanta, Ga.

CHURCH FIRES DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

A man who has made an inspection of a number of churches for the National Mutual Church Insurance Co., which operates under the direction of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, reports that the majority of church fires are due to the carelessness of the janitors. He found the floors of furnace rooms littered with trash and shavings; stoves setting on carpets or bare floors with no protection under them, stove pipe joints almost disconnected. This company, which insures only Methodist Churches and homes of Methodist ministers and sustaining members, has issued a bulletin on fire prevention which should be read by every member of the Methodist Church. Copies will be sent free upon application to Henry P. Magill, Secretary-Manager, The National Mutual Church Insurance Co., 1509 Insurance Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

Abundant Health is assured when there is good blood in the veins. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine to make good blood. Begin taking it now. It is just what the system needs at this time and will do you great good. Sharpens the appetite, steadies the nerves.

LOSS OF APPETITE

Most Successfully Treated by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Loss of appetite is accompanied by loss of vitality, which is serious.

It is common in the spring because at this time the blood is impure and impoverished and fails to give the digestive organs what is absolutely necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old reliable all-the-year-round medicine, is especially useful in the spring. Get it from your druggist today. By purifying and enriching the blood and giving vitality, vigor and tone, it is wonderfully successful in the treatment of loss of appetite and the other ailments prevalent at this time. It is not simply a spring medicine—it is much more than that—but it is the best spring medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the rich red blood the digestive organs need.

A Great National Public Utility

That concerns all merchants and all people

THE original Cash Register rang a bell, indicated and recorded the amount of the purchase. It benefited the merchant only.

In a third of a century this old model has developed into a Cash Register that directly benefits every man, woman and child who spends money in a store.

This new Cash Register equally concerns every merchant and clerk, every banker and wholesaler in this land.

It furnishes every customer with a receipt or sales slip.

It prints on this the amount paid or charged.

On this is also printed the date of the sale and who made it.

It forces a duplicate, printed record for the merchant.

It prevents disputes over charges and bills paid.

It saves shopper's time.

It gives the merchant all his profits. It gives him more money for his family.

It promotes more and quicker sales.

It protects each clerk against making errors and against the mistakes of others.

It rewards the diligent clerk by telling his employer which one makes the largest number of sales and which one gets the greatest amount of business.

It assures the banker additional security for the money he loans the merchant.

It furnishes the banker and the wholesaler mechanical evidence that the merchant's statement of his business is correct.

It is a business necessity.

MERCHANTS!! We have new 1916 models that give this perfect service. Write us today or see our agent in your city and learn how you can secure one of these public service machines.

Liberal allowances are made for Old National Cash Registers that were good in their day, but do not so completely protect you or give the valuable service our 1916 Models do. Address Dept. X.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

"Ruston!" shouted the porter of the V. S. & P. on the afternoon of Feb. 10, 1916, and in a short time we were at the station where we found a company of gallant Boy Scouts and a committee of ladies to meet us. They gave us a hearty greetiug, and nothing was left undone which could in any way add to the comfort and convenienee of the delegation or to the success of the meeting.

All things worked together to make the sixth annual session of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference the greatest in its history. There were about 95 representatives from the adult, Young People's and Junior societies.

The opening session of the Conference was on Friday afternoon, Feb. 11, 1916. A commuuion service was conducted by Dr. J. M. Henry, assisted by Revs. C. D. Atkinson, A. S. Lutz, and C. B. Carter.

After the roll-call of officers, our President, Mrs. Abel Bliss, gave her message in her usual quiet, forceful manner. It was an earnest appeal for forward work and thankfulness for things past.

The report of Mrs. A. P. Holt, corresponding secretary, showed the successes and failures of every department of our work. There are 93 adult auxiliaries with 2226 members; 19 young people's auxiliaries, with 396 members; 50 junior divisions, with 1298 members, and 21 baby divisions, with 164 members. "Truly the growth in this Conferenee is slow.", We trust that this slowness makes us all the more sure of every step gained.

The special campaign for organization and membership has not been thoroughly understood in all parts of the Conference, else we believe we would have closed the year with larger results. Too long we have been letting the Conferenee offieers and district secretaries do both the planning and the work. They are willing to do their part, and more; but the task of world evangelization is a "one-to-win-one" eampaign. "If we would move the world a little nearer God, we must all lift together. Let us catch the spirit of this movement and strive to get every woman into line. With only a few exceptions, the pastors or some representative of the Woman's Missionary Soeiety presented the work on one Sunday in August. In some instances this presentation has been followed up as it should have been; in others, we seem to have expected the women to live for months on one tabloid of prepared missionary food. Some of us have been trying for years to assimilate all these tremendous facts. Let us not think that the uninterested will be able to cultivate the love for missions on that one taste of food. Shall we not make our goal this year to win the fifty-three unorganized charges?

Two splendid young women are making fine records at Scarritt—Miss Clara Chalmers, of New Orleans, and Miss Ella Beu, of Baton Rouge. Other volunteers have submitted applications to the committee on candidates. May we meet often in the place of prayer to pray for those who will one day represent us on the firing line! May we have a link in every district this year!

Our faithful treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes reported as follows:

Amount pledged by Conference, $4125; amount paid by Conference, $3674.80; deficit, $450.20; increase over 1914. $191.16; total cash receipts, $10,264; total local work reported, $10,260.

Each day at the noon hour, Mrs. G. S. Sexton, of Shreveport, led us nearer to our Master and made us feel that the only life worth living was the one given entirely to his seryice. Mrs. Sexton has a wonderful personality and her words were treasured by every representative of the Conference. She told us not to belittle our talent, but to use it for God. There is something each one of us can do. We are responsible for our sisters in accordance with the talents God has given us.

Rev. N. E. Joyner delivered a powerful sermon Sunday morning. He emphasized the fact that we as Christians should be missionaries. To strengthen the work in the far-off fields, we must strengthen each individual in our local church.

Our Couucil guests were Miss Estelle Haskin, editor of the "Young Christian Worker," and Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, Home Base Secretary.

Mrs. Lipscomb said that we are workers together for God. We are helping God to touch the ends of the earth, when we go and give to our missionary society. Every auxiliary, however small, is the root of all our missionary work, and isn't it just "up to us" to organize wherever possible? Our missionary spirit is the size of our Christian life. You may doubt it, but it is the test. Christ's commission is our great permission.

We are heirs of all the ages—if we are not faithful, Christ's message to the world cannot be transmitted. We stand to day in a most wonderful age. This is the modern missionary period. The gospel of Jesus Christ has right of way throughout the world. We can call Christians from every nation, in every tongue. Religion and politics are mixing. Men are realizing more than ever that they can't live alone. We have an opportunity in this generation that we have never had before. God seems to have thrown us a challenge: "I have waited through the ages—do this thing for me!" Surely we will not fail him.

There are three ways of doing this missionary work:

First—Put self into it. There is a great call for life giving.

Second—Give your money. A dollar can have beautiful golden wings if used for the advancement of his kingdom.

"I gave my daughter Olive to Chiua, and a dear friend gave of her riches to pay Olive's salary." Mrs. Lipscomb's face was radiant and beautiful as she talked about the sweet young life she so gladly consecrated to his service.

Third—Prayer. The greatest thing any-one can do for God and for others is to pray. Let us pray earnestly as the Spirit of God inspires and guides.

Miss Haskin made a plea for the "Young Christian Worker" and several hundred subscriptions were pledged. Miss Haskin also presented the Negro work. She said not to "whoop and hurrah" so much about the going into the heart of Africa, but help the Negroes around us.

"You train yourself to be an expert in teaching backward children; let us train ourselves to teach a backward race."

It was an inspiration to hear the reports of our deaconesses—Miss Eliza Iles, of St. Mark's Hall, New Orleans; Miss Katie Walker, of the Houma Mission, and Miss Grace Gatewood, of First Church, Shrveport. These young women are splendid Christian characters and are very happy and faithful in their work. Their sweet faces and the earnest message they gave us of their work in Louisiana moved upon the hearts of the vast audience as perhaps no other speakers had done.

Saturday afternoon was given to the young people's and Junior work. There were about fifty representatives from the two departments, besides the large attendance of boys and girls from Ruston.

Crowley was selected as the place for the next annual meeting.

The following officers and district secretaries were elected for 1916:

President, Mrs. Abel Bliss, 902 Robinson Place, Shreveport, La.; 1st Vice President, Mrs. W. T. Cunningham, Natchitoches, La.; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. R. H. Harper, 734 Nashville Avenue, New Orleans; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. A. P. Holt, Crowley, La.; Recording Secretary; Mrs. R. E. Bobbitt, Mansfield, La.; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Holmes, Minden, La.; Superintendent of Study and Publicity, Mrs. Wiltz Ledbetter, 1134 Dalzell Street, Shreveport; Superintendent Social Service, Mrs. E. R. Kennedy, Lafayette, La.; Superintendent of Supplies, Mrs. A. F. Godat, 2123 Cambronne Street, New Orleans.

District Secretaries.

Alexandria District, Mrs. R. W. Winstead, Natchitoches, La.; Baton Rouge District, Mrs. J. E. Walter, Wilson, La.; Lafayette District, Mrs. W. M. Buchanan, Lake Arthur, La.; Monroe District, Mrs. J. C. Calhoun, Rayville, La.; New Orleans District, Mrs. C. F. Niebergall, 1135 Henry Clay Avenue, New Orleans; Ruston District, Mrs. Joe Miller, Minden, La.; Shreveport District, Mrs. Ben Johnson, Mansfield, La.

Mrs. W. T. CUNNINGHAM.

WHEE DRUGS FAIL.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer from chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter.

Shivar Springs,
Box 17-F, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

STOPS TOBACCO HABIT.

Elder's Sanitarium, located at 513 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be stopped in three to five days. As they are distributing this book free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.

WOMEN SUFFERERS NEED SWAMP-ROOT.

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer a great deal with pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, and may be despondent and irritable.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, restores health to the kidneys and is just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a fifty-cent or one dollar bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing, be sure and mention the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THE REAL DEFINITION OF LIFE IS NERVE-FORCE

People often wonder what the difference really is between the living and dead body. Apparently nothing has been taken away, but still the complicated machinery of the body has stopped and cannot be started again. What is missing is "life" and the modern definition of life is "nerve-force."

This nerve-force must be distributed regularly all over the body. Directly it does not run smoothly ill-health will follow.

Dr. Miles' Nervine benefits the health by evening up the distribution of this vital force of life, and by taking all the "jars and jolts" out of the system.

In this conjunction the Rev. C. H. Cox, of Mason City, W. Va., has stated:

"I have found Dr. Miles' Nervine to be unexcelled in all nervous disorders and I have always recommended it to anyone whom I hear is suffering in this way. We also always keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills on hand as we feel they are invaluable. No words can truly express the real merit of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Nervine can be used with advantage in all ailments which have a nervous origin or which have affected the nervous system. It is particularly beneficial in case of sleeplessness, nervousness, epilepsy, hysteria, chronic headache and neuralgia.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is on sale at all drug stores and is strictly guaranteed to benefit you or your money will be refunded by the druggist.

On June 5, 1915, the sweet spirit of little TOMMIE TOWNSEND, son of Willie and Nettie Townsend, of Oaknolia, La., was taken from its house of clay and transplanted in the Paradise of God, "where the flowers bloom forever, and the sun is always bright." Having come into this world on Dec. 30, 1909, a bright smiling babe, Tommie was allowed to brighten his Christian home for only 5 years, 5 months, and 6 days. While the little house of clay was laid to rest in the quiet cemetery at Blaistown, La., little Tommie himself returned to God, the Author and Giver of life.

H. G. ROBERTS.

RODOLPH EDWIN DODD was born on May 10, 1892, and died on Feb. 9, 1916, at the home of his sister, Mrs. C. W. Smith, Jr., at Suqualena, near Meridian, Miss., where he was born. He joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of fifteen. When he went to Starkville to become a student at the A. and M. College, he moved his letter with him. He was a sufferer for 18 months, but was so ambitious he would forget self. He was a young man of strong character and strong determination to succeed. He made a friend of almost every one he met. He was loved by many who will miss his smiling face. He was sympathetic and always thoughtful of others. His last days were a benediction to all who knew him. Surely a rich reward was awaiting him during all these months of suffering. Even when in great pain he greeted every one with a smile. Indeed he never murmured at any time. Before his health failed, his greatest pleasure was to help in Sunday school work, especially in the song services. He had a sweet voice and loved to used it in revivals or anywhere that good could be done.

I extend sympathy to the bereaved ones and ask God's blessings upon them.

A FRIEND.

On the afternoon of Feb. 15, 1916, the spirit of our mother, Mrs. A. M. LONGMIRE, took its flight from earth to heaven. Her going away was not unexpected as her health had been failing for some time. However, the fatal illness was of short duration. She was born near the present site of Gloster, Miss., on June 22, 1836. In this same community she spent her entire life of nearly eighty years. She was married twice. Her first husband lost his life in the war between the States. Soon after the close of the war she was married to Mr. William Longmire, with whom she lived till some twenty years ago, when God took him, again leaving her to meet the responsibilities of life alone. In her experience as a wife and mother she performed the arduous task of raising three families of children, fourteen in number. To each of these she was a mother indeed. In early life she became a Christian and joined the Methodist Church. Her life henceforth, while not demonstrative, was always consistent. She loved the Church and its services and was always glad to do whatever she could to advance its interests. During the last few years of her life she was a constant sufferer; but she bore her affliction with Christian fortitude, never being heard to murmur. We feel our loss greatly. We know that she will be missed in the Church and community, but we bow in submission to the will of our Heavenly Father. We are encouraged by her beautiful Christian life to strive to so live that our going may be like hers, one of peace. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth! Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

E. J. COKER.

On Monday, Feb. 28, at a. m., from the home of her son, Brother C. M. Bevill, in Winnfield, La., there passed triumphantly from earth to heaven the pure and saintly soul of Mrs. MARTHA E. BEVILL, at the ripe age of just three score years and ten—she reached her seventieth anniversary on last Christmas day. Sister Bevill was converted when very young and lived a beautiful, consecrated Christian life up to the morning of her summons home. She was faithful in all her Christian duties and was zealous for the Lord's house, never missing a preaching service or prayer meeting, if it was possible for her to be there, and her presence was an inspiration to the preacher, for her kind old face seemed to shine with the light of heaven, as she feasted upon the words of life or prayed God's blessings upon the minister and the service. This pastor will miss her greatly, for he knew and appreciated her worth and was cognizant of the power of her life in the community, having been her pastor for a brief season eighteen years ago, when her home was the first to welcome and shelter him when he came a weary circuit rider to fill a monthly appointment here. And when he arrived here with his family on the evening of the 31st day of last November, she was here at the parsonage in company with several others to welcome us. She enjoyed the love and confidence of the whole town, and the entire community is bereaved in her going away. She leaves three sons and twelve grandchildren and a host of friends to mourn her death, her companion having preceded her many years ago to the heavenly city.

J. W. LEE.

The subject of this sketch, Mrs. MARTHA IRENE KEY, was a native of Jefferson County, Miss., and was about seventy years of age at the time of her death, which took place on Nov. 26, 1915. Sister Key was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at twelve years of age. She was married to Brother Henry Key in 1865, who passed to his heavenly reward in 1895.

Of the number of children born of this union, four survive: Mrs. J. W. Weilenman, Mrs. W. J. Huber, and F. H. and E. H. Key. Sister Key is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. O. H. McGinty and Mrs. Ollie Smith; four brothers, Hon. T. B., and Messrs. Everette, William, and Thad. Hammett. Sister Key's home for a number of years was situated next door to the church and was always open to the pastor, and she was almost always present at all church services.

It was the pleasure and honor of the writer to be her pastor for four years, and he always found real help in spiritual things in her association. Surely a saint has been called home, and by her Christian womanhood no doubt she has helped many a soul toward the endless life. She was always active in church work and was among the most zealous members in her church.

The whole community feel the serious loss sustained by her departure. The writer, who had been her pastor for a longer time than anyone, for more than twenty years, was called from the late session of the Mississippi Conference to officiate at the funeral at her home church in Fayette, Miss., which was the most largely attended of any funeral I ever witnessed in Fayette, attesting the very high regard in which she was held by those who knew her best.

We tenderly laid her body beside that of her husband in the cemetery at Fayette, whence God will call it on the resurrection morning. Peace to her ashes! And may the grace of her Lord heal the broken hearts of her loved ones! Her former pastor,

J. EARLY GRAY.

A BRIEF TRIBUTE.

Mr. R. M. Morgan was born in Guilford County, North Carolina, on Nov. 18, 1835; and died at his home in Carroll County, Miss., on Feb. 8, 1916. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Stone, of Rockingham County, North Carolina, on May 28, 1857. Of this happy union nine children were born, seven of whom are living. Brother Morgan came to Mississippi in October, 1858, and settled on a place some miles west of Vaiden. The county then was largely a wild forest. The home he made was one of love for his family and a delight to all his friends. Many a weary footman who passed that way found a place of rest, comfort, and cheer. It was a home where song, laughter, and sympathy pervaded all its sacred halls. It was a home where wife and children felt the warm, sympathizing love of a husband and a father. He gave four years of his strongest manhood to the "Lost Cause," and when the battles were over, he returned to his Carroll County home to help make his State the best possible. No one can tell how largely he contributed to this, but we know that he was a man of high ideals: He may not have reached, in this life, the lofty heights of his ideal, but he was known as a man who strove to attain unto it. He not only planned well in the building of his home, but wisely for the future welfare and happiness of his children. He gave to them far more than an average share of equipment for life. His heart was strikingly open and happy. No man or child ever came near the threshold of his life, but to receive kindly of the sunshine of his great soul. "The Lord preserved his going out and his coming in; for no child of nature ever struck a note of song or praise, but to receive a quick, happy response from his, which was ever sensitive to the slightest touch. The charity of his soul knew no bounds. His highest pleasure was in seeing his friends happy. He loved the Church—its ministers, and its members. His last days were spent for the Church and its Christ, setting of the sanctuary in order and visiting the sick. The Church at old Midway will miss him. He will be missed in the home and in the community. May the Lord's promise, "I will not leave you comfortless," sustain the aged wife and the sons and daughters. We can say to the bereaved ones, you know where to find him. His friend and ex-pastor,

W. L. STORMENT.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Adopted by the Methodist Sunday school of Fernwood, Miss.

Whereas, it has pleased our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom to take unto himself one of our most efficient and faithful workers in the person of our beloved assistant superintendent and teacher, Brother JAMES STEVEN SCUTT, who after a serious illness passed away at his home here on Sunday, January 9, 1916, having long and fathfully served the Master and hy his daily life inspired us to lead lives dedicated to the love and service of God; and

Whereas, the entire community of Fernwood and many friends throughout the country will mourn the death of Brother Scutt, whose upright character and splendid example of a quiet and earnest Christian exerted a powerful influence in the community in which he lived and worked and among the friends and associates of his daily life—he was strong, charitable and kind, profoundly religious without ostentation, and in his home life was a true and loving husband and a kind and indulgent father; and

Whereas, we feel assured that his decease has removed him from this world of strife to the eternal happiness of meeting face to face the beloved Master whom he so faithfully served; yet we fully realize that the removal of his influence, his presence, his kind words, and sustaining hand, will leave us with a deep sense of loss; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the officers and members of the Fernwood Sunday School of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

1. That we make this expression of our love and respect of a friend whose voice is stilled, of a brother whom we will strive to meet before the throne of God, and of our appreciation of a life so loyal and so consecrated and so useful to the Sunday school, the Church, and above all to the divine Master.

2. That by this dispensation of Providence our Sunday school has lost a faithful teacher.

3. That we, the members of the Sunday school, extend to the members of his bereaved family our sincere and heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow.

4. That a page of our minutes be dedicated to the memory of this departed brother and that these resolutions be inscribed upon that page.

5. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our deceased brother and a copy sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and to the local papers for publication.

Signed: Mrs. E. C. Edmiston, Justina Enochs, W. E. Kellner, Committee.

Fernwood, Miss.

APPRECIATORY RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, on March 5, 1916, God in his wisdom saw fit to take unto himself one of our most faithful Church and Sunday school members, Mrs. Silas Lambeth; and whereas, although the summons came unexpectedly, we know that he was ready and willing to answer the great roll-call, as he was ever faithful here—even in his extreme old age of 80 years; therefore, be it

Resolved, 1. That we the officers and teachers of Paine's Memorial Sunday School of the M. E. Church, South, near old Athens, make this expression of our high appreciation of his faithful work with and among us here.

Resolved, 2. That we commend him as a living example to our entire church and Sunday school, that they may follow in his footsteps and do likewise.

Resolved, 3. That we also extend our heartfelt sympathy to the grief-stricken wife and son.

Resolved, 4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed: Mrs. T. Dilworth, Mrs. A. Owen, Mrs. L. Owen, Clevie Hollingsworth.

Aberdeen, Miss.

WHY "RENWAR" RELIEVES.

A great many people who are suffering from Rheumatism have tried many remedies but without gaining relief. The reason is that these remedies have not reached the seat of the trouble. The reason for the remarkable work of "RENWAR" is the fact that it DOES reach the seat of the trouble, purifies the blood and drives out all the impurities. No matter how many remedies you have tried, if you are suffering from Rheumatism, we guarantee to refund your money if "RENWAR" fails to give satisfactory results. Get a fifty-cent bottle from your druggist to-day. If he does not have it, we will send a bottle post-paid upon receipt of price. Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn.

MEXICAN MISSIONARIES PROTEST.

Some of our readers will perhaps remember the discussion concerning the contemplated readjustment of our work in Mexico which took place in the Advocate more than a year, and which was participated in by Bishop E. E. Hoss, Dr. W. W. Pinson, and the Editor of the Advocate. At the meeting of the Board of Missions in the spring of 1915 the matter was again taken up and discussed, the final outcome being that a resolution was adopted leaving the question of rearranging the territory of our missions already established to the next General Conference, which body alone has authority to change Conference boundaries. But it is our understanding that the majority of the Board of Missions, though opposed by most of our Bishops, are proceeding to administer, so far as they can, in harmony with the Cincinnati plan of readjustment. Within the past few days there has come to our desk a very interesting pamphlet prepared by a number of our mission workers in Mexico, which is a courteous but very strong protest to our General Board of Missions, soon to meet in Nashville, against uprooting the Southern Methodist Church in sections where it has been planted in that country and forcing our members in Mexico to remain out of any Church or to enter other communions, whether they wish to do so or not. We regard this as an issue of such great importance that we surrender a large portion of our editorial space (the only space now at our disposal) for a reproduction of extracts from this vigorous and illuminating statement:

"Dear Fathers and Brethren:

"We, the undersigned missionaries to Mexico, many of whom have spent long years in the field, being perfectly familiar with all phases of the Mexican mission work, and believing that the proposed plan of territorial readjustment and co-operation approved by the Cincinnati conference of secretaries and missionaries, would be an unreasonable sacrifice upon the part of our Church, unjust and unfair to our workers, hurtful to our members and injurious to the cause of Christ, take this method of presenting our respectful and most earnest protest to this Board.

"We desire to set forth fully our reasons for opposing this plan of readjustment. We are of the opinion that if the Mexican mission had been adequately represented at Cincinnati many of the recommendations as to territorial readjustment would not have been adopted without strenuous protest. We remind you that there were only two of our male missionaries at that conference, and that one of them had been practically out of the field for eleven years, and that the other, who was a member of the territorial occupation committee, had never visited the entire field. THERE WAS NO ONE IN THAT CONFERENCE WHO HAD BEEN OVER OUR ENTIRE WORK, OR WHO HAD PERFECT KNOWLEDGE OF THE FIELD. We insist that a scheme so far-reaching and so drastic demanded an exhaustive study and ought to have been considered by the whole Mexican mission force.

"In regard to that meeting of the missionaries at Laredo, Texas, in February, 1914, we desire to say that those of us who were there and who took part in the proceedings had no intention whatever of endorsing anything like this far-reaching revolutionary scheme. We thought the matter was covered and settled when the Board of Missions at its regular session at Nashville, in 1911, adopted the following report of the committee on foreign department:

"'1. We have had under consideration the recommendations of the conference of board secretaries on co-operation and unity in Mexico, which were approved by our missionaries in Mexico, assembled at Laredo, Texas, February 10 and 11, and we recommend that the Board of Missions approve the principle of co-operation, leaving it to the missionaries on the field to work out the details.' (See Report, page 213.) The Bishop then in charge is of our opinion, that the matter was left 'to the missionaries on the field.'

"In view of our deep and abiding interest in Mexico, we feel constrained to point out to this Board some difficulties and defects of this scheme:

"1. It is unreasonable to think of building, equipping, and operating a great college with the pittances given by the boards now at work in Mexico. If, as some assert, our people will not give liberally to direct mission work in Mexico, it cannot be expected that they will give more liberally to a secular or interdenominational college. We insist that when the Church at large learns, as it must, that such institutions as Palmore College and Laurens Institute, the one founded by the late Dr. W. B. Palmore, and the other by the Rosebuds of Virginia, are turned over to the Baptists and Congregationalists, the confidence of the people will be shaken as to the sanity of the missionaries and the wisdom of the secretaries. Therefore we should hesitate long before taking such a step.

"2. As to one paper for all the denominations working in Mexico, we are sure it is useless to undertake such an enterprise, for it would be a waste of men, money, and time.

The Partition of Territory.

"We invite your very serious attention to the following reasons why we oppose the plan recommended for the partition of territory:

"1. It would require us to abandon all our work in the States of Nuevo Leon, Coahuila (except Saltillo), Tamaulipas, Durango, Chihuahua, Sonora, Morelos, Michoacan, and more than half of Sinaloa. It is very important that the boards know exactly what we have in these States, and we give you the following facts taken from the Minutes of the three Conferences of 1911, the last published. These do not represent the present conditions as to membership and local preachers, but they do indicate the work in its normal condition." (Here follows a statistical exhibit of our Mexican missions covering three pages of the pamphlet, giving the number of our local preachers and church members and indicating where we have churches, parsonages, schools, and the value of them. We wish that all our readers could see these tables.—Ed. Advocate.)

"We desire to emphasize the following facts and ask that every member of the Board of Missions make a special note of them: We relinquish to the Baptists territory in which we have 10 congregations, 3 local preachers, 870 members, 6 churches, 2 parsonages, 1 hospital, and $259,750 worth of property. What do they relinquish to us? ABSOLUTELY NOTHING. The Southern Baptists did not go into the Cincinnati conference, but that conference, unsolicited, gave the State of Durango to them. Dr. Brewer, of the Northern Baptist Church went into the meeting and agreed to the plan, but his action was not approved by the officers of his board. So we get nothing.

"We relinquish to the Disciples (Campbellites) territory in which we have 7 churches, 3 parsonages, 2 schools, and $119,700 worth of property. What do they give us? Nothing.

"We relinquish to the Congregationalists territory in which we have 9 congregations, 13 local preachers, 514 members, 6 churches, 4 parsonages, 1 school, and $148,846 worth of property. What do they give us? Note the answer: Almost nothing. We give them a self-supporting congregation that has received nothing from the Board since 1899, and our largest school, Palmore College, which has had as many as 751 pupils enrolled in a single year. Its ex-students are in every great enterprise of the State of Chihuahua. More than 40 Christian homes have been formed by its students. More than 20 of its students have given acceptable service as teachers in Mexico. Several thousands of young people have received instruction within its walls. The best citizens of every political creed have placed their children under its tuition and it numbers its friends by the thousands. It has touched every circle of society in the city and its influence is felt throughout the State. For all this they relinquish to us a small work in Jalisco, a very small boys' school, and a little charity school in Guadalajara that has had few pupils and no reputation. It is ridiculous to compare these two schools in any sense with our Palmore College. This small territory contains 3 congregations, 2 churches, —— members, 2 schools, with 185 pupils, and $—— worth of property. This is that "great" work of which you may have heard.

"Now if the Baptists and Disciples (Campbellites) give us absolutely nothing for all these strategetic centers in the North, where we have such excellent plants doing efficient work for the redemption of Mexico, what DO we get? They tell us that we get a building and a few members from the Presbyterians at San Luis Potosi. We have occupied that city for about 30 years and have there one good church building, two schools and a parsonage. What do we want with another church only two blocks distant from ours, which adequately supplies all present need.

"But they tell us that we are to get that great work of the Northern Methodists in Guanajuato, or the State of Michoacan. There are several things to consider in connection with that proposition:

"1. The city of Guanajuato is the only really important work they have in that State.

"2. We already have the State of Michoacan.

"3. We cannot induce the members of the Northern Methodist Church to join ours, for they are satisfied in their own Church and oppose this arrangement. Rev. R. C. Elliott writes: 'As soon as the results of the Cincinnati conference were published and sent down here, I spoke to the brethren of the changes contemplated. So far as I know, not one of any church down here (natives) favors it. They say they have been entirely ignored and will not go to any other Church.'

"In 1912 we exchanged with the Northern Methodists and gave them 5 of our churches, 600 of our members, and $3000 for their mining town, El Oro, and were badly beaten in the exchange. Rev. A. Marston, our first preacher at that place, writes as follows: 'The members at El Oro are not willing to belong to our Church and will not take our literature.' He remained but one year, and Rev. Joseph Thacker, our second preacher there, corroborates the above. It is useless to think of transferring Northern Methodists to our Church.

"We have talked with many, and have had letters from some of the most influential Mexican preachers, and they say that they have been ignored and badly treated. Those who favor this move say, 'Of course, the Mexicans are to be consulted.' But when are they to be consulted? After the changes are ordered? What good will it do then?

"We insist: 1st. That it is not fair to enter into a plan so far-reaching and important without taking the Mexican preachers and congregations into our confidence. To ignore them in a matter so vital is to show a lack of appreciation and sympathy which they justly resent. 2d. That it is absolutely unjust to place 6 local preachers and

TO A FRIEND.

Tormented sorely by the chastening rod,
I muttered to myself: "There is no God!"
But faithful friend, I found your soul so true,
That God revealed Himself in giving you.
—Walter Malone.

PRAYER FOR OTHERS.

Moses was a master in intercessory prayer; he knew how to plead for the people of God, and he delighted in doing this. His was a wonderful privilege. But was his privilege any greater than our own? What hinders us from being for the people to Godward, and bringing their causes unto God? The privilege is not ours—do you say? What of Christ's promises to those who pray? Is the opportunity lacking? Do our loved ones and our friends have everything that God can give them? Or is it our will to accept God's invitation and to take advantage of opportunities presented that is lacking?—Christian Intelligencer.

LIFE THROUGH FAITH.

Faith bears fruit. It can not help it, because it links the soul with Christ, so that the energy of his life pours into it through the artery of faith, and, as it comes in, so it must make a way for itself out. Fruit is, so to speak, forced from the believing soul.

"Why does the lark sing? It can not help it, because the spirit of the spring has been poured into its heart. Why does the branch bear fruit? It can not help it, because the life forces are ever pouring from its root. Why does a child run to meet its mother? It can not help it, because its heart has imbibed her nature. So the believer united to Christ receives grace from his heart and from the abundance of his indwelling life speaks."
—Secret of Guidance.

OPPORTUNITY.

There are opportunities everywhere for doing good. One with a true spirit will see them anywhere. A kind word is not without good results. A boy had just been expelled from school, writes Dr. Cowan, and smarting with disgrace, he moved away from the jeers and stares of his playmates. No one believed in him, it was a crucial moment. He would continue his downward plunge until he reached the bottom. But a girl on the outskirts of the throng—just a school-girl, not his sweetheart or best friend—said to him: "Jim, don't be discouraged. One misstep needn't ruin you: you can mend it. There's a man in you that the world needs and God has use for. Don't disappoint God." The boy's countenance brightened, and he said not a word; but [illegible] that boy is a leading minister.—Presbyterian of the South.

"A FAILURE, A FAILURE!—LOST, LOST!"

A man of thirty-five was on his deathbed. Over him hovered day and night the care of a loving Christian mother. He thought no one was in the room, and he began to talk aloud to himself. And these were the words which he uttered: "A failure, a failure! lost, lost!" In alarm his mother started to his bedside and said tenderly: "My son, you have been a Christian for a long time! Surely your faith does not desert you in your dying days?" His reply was: "No, mother, my faith does not fail me; I am saved, but my life, my life, that is lost! Think of it, I have been a Christian for fifteen years and I have never brought one soul to him who saved me. My life is a failure! I am saved, but my life is lost!" Christian people, do you wish to bid farewell to earth and go to God in that shape? God forbid it!—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

FRANCIS ASBURY.

By Rev. S. J. Davies.

On the 31st day of March, 1916, one hundred years had passed since Asbury died. For those who are interested, yet disinclined or too busy to read an extended biography of this first Methodist Bishop, in America, I write this sketch of his life.

He was born at Handsworth in Staffordshire, England, on August 20, 1745. His parents were Methodists of sincere piety, and no doubt their devotion to this faith exercised a wholesome, formative influence on his young life. For, at sixteen years of age, he became a local preacher, and at twenty-two, an itinerant.

After three years' service in England, he was appointed missionary to the American Colonies and landed in Philadelphia on October 27, 1771. The next year Mr. Wesley commissioned him as his general assistant in America. Wisdom was justified in this choice. By his indomitable energy, holy zeal, and with a devotion to his Lord that scorned every hardship, his example and genius for directing the then small number of traveling preachers laid the foundation on broad lines for future Methodism on this continent. His missionaries traversed colonial America, including Canada, and organized Societies throughout this territory.

The political agitation of the times, culminating in the Revluotionary War, greatly impeded his work, and finally practically suspended it. In 1777, after a conference held in Maryland, all the other native-born English ministers returned to the homeland, but Asbury remained to minister, as best he might, to the struggling colonists. Like many of his day, he was a non-juror. The peculiarities of this intensively conservative element of the Protestant Episcopal Church frequently caused Asbury's conduct to be misunderstood and doubtless his actions impugned. When men are fighting for liberty, they have but little time for nice ecclesiastical distinctions. In 1778 he retired to the home of a friend in Delaware, where he remained in comparative seclusion for two years, secure from the persecution of magistrates and others, who misunderstood his conscientious scruples.

At the conclusion of peace, it was deemed best to establish an independent Methodist Episcopal Church in America. The wisdom of Mr. Wesley and his coadjutors was never more signally shown than in this decision. For this purpose Thomas Coke was ordained by Wesley as superintendent of the Methodist Societies in America, with instructions to ordain Asbury as joint superintendent. The hazy mist which seems to some, as a veritable aureole of glory, which enshrouds the fantastic form of apostolic and episcopate succession, is here dissipated by the rays of faith and common sense. The only Bishops Methodism can have are of presbyterial ordination. Tactual succession is mere pretentiousness. Asbury, however, was so imbued with the spirit of the new democracy as to refuse ordination except it be decreed by the suffrages of his brethren of like order with himself. Whereupon he was unanimously elected a Bishop, and was consecrated by Coke to this office on December 2d, 1784. From his Journal we may now trace the rise and development of the Church in the United States, for his life and labors are inseparably joined therewith. Apostolic zeal and fidelity characterized his movements throughout his vast diocese. Receiving a salary of only $64 a year, he traveled from Mississippi to Canada, averaging 6000 miles annually, through trackless forests and pathless prairies. What was received above his stated salary, he gave to his needy colaborers in the ministry. He distributed Bibles and tracts before societies were formed for this purpose.

He was regarded with sincere affection and reverence by all to whom he ministered. Hundreds of children were named for him, and at his death he directed that each of these namesakes be given a Bible. This plan, so far as was possible, was carried out by his executors.

He never married. His heart's love, devotion, and service were given to the Church. Under his wise superintendency, Mr. Coke, having practically withdrawn from the American field, the Methodist Church grew from a feeble band of four preachers to nearly 750 itinerants, 2000 local preachers, and 214,000 members.

Despite the disadvantage of a meager youthful training in education, he attained a fair knowledge of Greek and Hebrew, and as early as 1785 laid the foundation of a Methodist college.

His indomitable spirit bore him upward to the last, for it is recorded that he continued to preach even when he had to be carried into the pulpit. He entered into the heritage of the saints and the assembly of the first born in Spottsylvania, Va., on March 31, 1816. Like the patriarch of an elder day, he was blessed in blessing others.

A PRETTY KETTLE OF FISH.

By Bishop E. E. Hoss.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which met in Minneapolis in 1912, instructed the Board of Bishops to appoint a Commission of seven members, three of whom must be from New York, three from Baltimore, and one from an outside conference, "to make careful inquiry and, if possible, determine" the question as to whether American Methodism really began in New York under Philip Embury, or in Maryland under Robert Strawbridge. It was also set out in the action of the General Conference that this Commission, when appointed, should co-operate with similar commissions to be appointed by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Protestant Church.

The invitation thus given us to participate in the settlement of this purely historical question was communicated to our College of Bishops, which accepted it in perfectly good faith, and named seven reputable Commissioners. The authorities of the Methodist Protestant Church, on a similar invitation, took identical measures. Now comes the strange part of the proceedings. Our Commissioners, those of the Methodist Protestant Church, and a majority of those from the "Methodist Episcopal Church, convened in the city of Baltimore on January 26, 1916, to proceed with their task. But they were met with a paper from the minority of the Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church to the effect that they must decline to take any part in the proceedings, in view of the following notice which they had received from their Board of Bishops:

"Inasmuch as serious objection has been made to the work of the Commission appointed to consider the place of the origin of American Methodism, as well as to the composition of the Commission, we recommend that the said Commission defer further action in the matter committed to them until the approaching General Conference can clear up the legal and practical questions involved."

In the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Bishops have a qualified veto in regard to matters affecting the constitution, but it has never been heard of that they would have the courage to arrest a merely legislative action of the General Conference. If they were to try a performance of that sort, it is likely that they would hear something drop! That, however, is not the thing with which I am concerned. It is none of my business whether they transgress the limits and functions of their office, and I shall not be rude enough to even discuss it. But there is a thing in this connection to be duly weighed and considered. The joint Commission, as finally constituted, was a Commission of three Churches, and not of one, and any attempt to interfere with its action by one of these Churches, without fully consulting the other two, was not civil nor courteous. We of the South went into the matter, not of our own motion, but on the formal request of our Northern brethren. Being in, however, we were entitled to be treated with due consideration.

It appears that the belated protest of the Northern Bishops was based on "objections made"—in the Church presumably: First, to the work of the Commission, and, secondly, "to the composition of the Commission." These are very radical objections. They go to the bottom of the whole business, and cancel all reasons for the existence of the Commission. Indeed, the Bishops evidently meant that, if they could have their way, the Commission should be entirely abolished, and all disputed questions be settled by their "approaching General Conference." If that single General Conference can clear up "all the legal and practical questions involved," what is the use of asking the assistance of anybody else in the premises?

I can easily understand how the minority commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church could feel that their competency as commissioners had already been 'discredited" by the protest of their Bishops, and can see how they might, therefore, feel it incumbent upon them, for the purpose of protecting their self-respect, to resign their office before even entering upon the merits of the issues involved. That again is not my affair, and I have no wish to make it my affair. But if the Bishops, in speaking of "the composition of the Commission" had any reference—even the slightest—to our commissioners, that is my affair. We chose our commissioners to suit ourselves, knowing them to be worthy men, fit to sit with their brethren of other Methodisms in reaching fair and honorable conclusions. The intimation that they were lacking in character or incompetency deserves to be resented, and I do resent it very deeply. As far, moreover, as I am personally concerned, I shall decline to consider any future invitations from our Northern brethren, however fair-seeming they may be, until I have the definite assurance that they are not to be withdrawn or modified at the mere will of the senders. When an agreement has been made between two or more parties, that agreement cannot be altered except by the consent of all the parties concerned. The party that initiated the agreement is specially bound not to change it, nor to seek to change it, in any respect, without previously consulting the rest.

Whether Methodism began in New York or in Baltimore is an interesting historical question, but is not one that is vital to the success and growth of the Church. Any honest man, with all the available data put before him, ought to be able to reach a fair conclusion without passion or prejudice. In my judgment, the commissioners that met in Baltimore were honest men and did reach a correct and fair conclusion. If anybody had material facts in his possession that look in an opposite direction, he ought to have presented these facts. If such facts should be later discovered, I am quite ready to recognize their force. Nothing in affairs of this sort are as compulsory as facts.—Texas Christian Advocate.

THE LOSS OF SCARRITT'S ENDOWMENT.

Miss M. L. Gibson, Principal.

The misfortune that has befallen the Scarritt Bible and Training School in the loss of the greater part of its endowment has already been made known to the Church through the secular and religious press; but until now, for lack of sufficient knowledge, it has not been practicable to make any definite statement, although the Board of Managers has realized that members of the Woman's Missionary Societies who have raised the endowment are entitled to a full statement of facts.

Since the first of January the county grand jury has spent weeks in the investigation of realty frauds and has examined many witnesses concerning transactions with various real estate firms. The J. S. Chick Investment Company has been investigated; and on January 29 the grand jury voted to indict the head of the firm, J. S. Chick, and his loan agent, F. E. Colvin. Embezzlement of $133,000 of the endowment funds of Scarritt Bible and Training School is charged against Mr. Chick, who was treasurer of the institution from December, 1908, to November, 1915, succeeding to this position at the death of his honored father, who had been the treasurer from 1890 until his death, in 1908. He is also charged with the embezzlement of other smaller sums which had been donated to the school from other sources. The remainder of the indictments charge the firm with obtaining money under false pretenses and have reference to transactions not connected with the school. Thirteen thousand dollars of the endowment is still considered safe.

This disaster, coming to the school so unexpectedly, is a calamity which has not only involved and crippled the school and its scholarships, but has also brought anguish and loss to some of its oldest and best friends and humiliation and distress to a trusted official and his family.

The future of the school will claim the attention of the Woman's Missionary Council at its next session, in Atlanta, Ga., April 12-20. Meanwhile the work of the classroom progresses without interruption. The faculty, sustained by the power of God, work with unceasing diligence, and the students are gaining lessons of endurance and patience under trial that will yield results in years to come.

Let the prayers of the Church ascend to God for the school and its interests and for him who has involved himself in misfortune far greater than financial losses.—The Voice.

MY YEAR OF JUBILEE.

J. W. Beeson, A.M., LL.D.

This is my fiftieth anniversary. A half century of busy, eventful life is behind me. Thirty years as college president gives one an experience crowded with responsibilities, cares, and varied duties.

Reared on a farm immediately after the war, amidst devastation and waste and poverty, I was taught many lessons of industry, economy and thrift that served me well in later years of responsibility.

My father was always a good provider and my mother, of German descent, knew how to prepare a good meal. The home was always open to travelers, and the preacher and presiding elder generally made it their stopping place. We looked forward to the coming of the preacher with great joy. He always brought a blessing. Sometimes he brought good books to sell. My father appreciated these and always added some to the supply of well read books on hand. We children were allowed to sit up and hear the preacher talk till bed time, which was a great privilege to us. We always had family prayers at our home. No matter how tired and sleepy we were, we were never allowed to retire till after family worship. This made its impression on our tender hearts, although at times we thought it a hardship.

Among the pastors we had, were Dr. McCoy, the father of Bishop McCoy, and Rev. I. Q. Melton, father of Dr. W. F. Melton, Professor of English at Emory University. The first sermon that ever impressed me that I can remember was one by Dr. McCoy on the Prodigal Son. He was quite eloquent and with tears streaming down his face he pictured the prodigal boy returning home, bare-footed, with bleeding feet, till I could almost see him coming. In a revival meeting in the country church, at the age of twelve, I gave my heart to God. I never got as far out into sin as many did. At fifteen, I was sent to the State University to be educated. It was a wicked place. I was shocked at the things I heard and saw. Because I would not enter into the wickedness and protested against it, I was nicknamed "preacher." I was ridiculed and persecuted, but my Christian home influence and early Christian training were a safeguard to me in these sinful surroundings.

One Sunday a few of us undertook to organize the first Y. M. C. A. in the University. The crowd heard about it and met with us, called on some infidels for a speech and that filled the meeting. (Afterwards one of the infidels became a minister.) Amidst this uproar, two devout young men, James and Samuel N. Lapsley of Anniston, Ala., with tears in their eyes, pleaded in vain that the blasphemers desist. This meeting being broken up did not deter us from starting the Y. M. C. A. Next Sunday about a dozen of us who were loyal enough to persist, met privately in a room and organized the first Y. M. C. A. in the University of Alabama. For a long time our meetings were held privately, only the sympathizers being notified of the meeting place. At the age of twenty I graduated at the University and was recommended by the President to take charge of a newly chartered college at Arcadia, La.

Years after this I was in a revival at Demopolis, Ala., where I was in charge of a school for girls. Brother L. P. Brown was a guest in my home during the revival and I saw he had a deeper religious experience than I had. I enquired of him about it and he "taught me the way more perfectly," and I entered into the experience of perfect love, as it is termed by John Wesley. I know I had been an active Christian up to that time, the pastor's right-hand steward, a Sunday school superintendent, president of the Y. M. C. A., and in the forefront of everything religious. God was using me to reach souls. Yet from that day, religion meant more to me than ever before. The Holy Spirit came into my life in a new way and God used me in a much larger way. One week of this life was worth a year of the former Christian life. Since then God has permitted me to be a help to thousands of young people in training them for His service in all walks of life. Seventeen of our young people have gone to work for Jesus in foreign fields. More than a hundred have gone into the ministry. Two of my boys are members of Congress. Many are members of Legislatures and State Senates. Many are lawyers, physicians, bankers, merchants, farmers, teachers, homemakers, etc. Since that day about ninety per cent of our boarding students have gone out from us as Christians. The Holy Spirit has been our guide, our helper, our friend. "He is a Friend that sticketh closer than a brother." When all others have failed us, He has been near. When enemies fight, a cold dead formalism opposes, and friends misunderstand and criticize, He understands and helps. We could not live without Him. To Him be all the glory. We are sorry we have not done more for Him. But He understands. Even friends misunderstand, but He always understands. If we had fifty more years to live, we should want to spend them for Him. In thirty years as college president we have lived more than most people live in seventy-five. It has been thirty years of strenuous life, full of cares and responsibilities; yet it has been for His sake, and we trust to the advancement of the Kingdom of Christ. We often get tired and sometimes discouraged, yet when we look at the host of young people who are now out in the world, whose lives the Master-Teacher has permitted us to have a part in helping to train to lives of usefulness for Him, we take new courage and toil on. We can hardly go into a State in the Union, or get on a railroad train, or go anywhere without meeting up with a former student or patron, and it delights us to find them usually true to God and in some line of service for Him. To God be all the praise!

MEXICAN MISSIONARIES PROTEST.

1600 members in a position where they will have to repudiate their baptism and former teaching, or be denied Church membership. They have been received and trained according to the Methodist doctrine and discipline and many of them will resent this unjust effort to force them into other Churches, especially into the Baptist and Disciples Churches. If this change is carried out, they will form little groups here and there, and for a while keep up their services, and for lack of proper leadership many will become indifferent, fall into sin, and be lost. * * * *

"We insist that after the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has entered a field by its regularly constituted authorities, raised up congregations, organized churches, and these churches have been legally and constitutionally organized into an Annual Conference, neither the secretaries, the Bishop in charge, nor the Board of Missions have a right to enter into any arrangement with other Churches whereby the said Annual Conference will be destroyed. The power given to the Board of Missions in connection with the work of an Annual Conference is constructive, and not destructive; while it can help build up, it has no right deliberately to tear down.

"This plan proposes to destroy the Mexican Border Annual Conference, leaving nothing of it except the Mexican work in and around El Paso, Texas, and at Saltillo, Mexico. It destroys the Pacific Mexican Mission, leaving nothing of it in the North, except the Mexican work in and around Phoenix, Arizona. We ask you to consider the following facts in regard to this point:

"1. Northern Mexico is our very best field and contains our best schools, best congregations, best buildings, a splendid hospital, and has yielded the most satisfactory results. Our best workers were raised up in this field, and, as a matter of fact, the presiding elders now on the Mexico and Guadalajara Districts, and the pastors in Mexico City, Guadalajara, San Luis Potosi, Tepic, and El Oro, began their mission work in the northern territory. Notwithstanding the fact that the training school has always been located in the South, the North has been depleted by being drawn upon to supply that field. If the North be abandoned, where will the South obtain its ministerial supply?

"2 Our Church is by far the strongest Protestant denomination in Northern Mexico. Since we cannot transfer our influence and prestige there, our withdrawal would be a positive loss to the cause of Christ.

"3. The territory which we are asked to abandon lies contiguous to our American and Mexican work in the United States and largely supplies the Mexican immigration to the United States. Many of these people who are converted in our camp meetings and revivals, on returning to Mexico, would find no church of their own. Hence, to continue in the enjoyment of Church fellowship they would be forced to renounce Methodist teaching and be immersed.

"This proposed readjustment separates our work in Mexico by hundreds of miles from both the American and Mexican work in the United States. Laredo with Holding Institute and El Paso with Lydia Patterson Institute and the Effie Edington Day School, would be greatly hindered and their work largely lost to the Church of Christ.

"It has been said that our work in Mexico has been a comparative failure. To answer this statement, we present the following statistics. (We cannot give the full table, but from it we compile the figures shown below: China Mission, established in 1848, members in 1911, 2593; Japan, established 1886, members 1911, 2035; Korea, 1895, members, 6035; Brazil, 1874, members, 6208; Mexico, 1873, members, 7264; Cuba, 1896, members, 3242. The total net increase in these missions from 1908 to 1911—four years—was as follows: China, 716; Japan, 464; Brazil, 1145; Mexico, 1206; Cuba, 877.—Ed. Advocate.)

"'There are 15 States untouched by any form of mission work, and we go into this arrangement that all may be occupied.'

To our personal knowledge, this statement is wide of the facts, and in addition we give the testimony of the following competent witnesses: The International Sunday School Secretary of Mexico, who has visited every part of the country, assures us that there are missions in every State and Territory, except Lower California. The Director of Colporters of the American Bible Society in Mexico writes that there is not one of the 30 States and Territories that has not some form of mission work, except Lower California, and there the Southern Methodists had a mission for years, but abandoned it.

"It is not the plan of the Cincinnati Conference to assign our Church to any of the supposed to be unoccupied States, but to reduce our work to a few States where we have had organized mission work for the last 35 years. Let the defenders of this plan explain how it will secure the occupation of the whole field for us to withdraw from eight States and restrict ourselves to States already occupied by us and others.

"4. It is objected: 'We should not undertake to cover the entire Republic.' Such a thing has never been contemplated. We are undertaking to work in only 13 States, one Territory, and the Federal District, less than half of the Federal divisions of the Republic. In this connection, we desire to say that our Church has assumed the responsibility for the evangelization of 5,000,000 in Mexico, and that it is impossible to find that number in a small territory.

"5. 'It costs so much to hold Conferences and move about in Mexico.' To avoid long moves and save money, the Pacific and Texas Missions were formed. * * * * * Of course, it takes money to move men to and from the field and about in the field. But Mexico will not suffer in comparison with other missions. * * * There have been appropriated for travel and moving during the last 5 years for the various fields the following amounts: China, $24,941; Japan, $25,840; Korea, $23,362; Brazil, $25,481; Mexico, $15,216; Cuba, $9385. Less has been spent in Mexico for this purpose than on any field except Cuba, which is smaller than the single State of Chihuahua. * * *

"It is claimed: 'This arrangement will give us a compacted Conference and we can hold preachers' and teachers' institutes.' See the Map of Mexico—look at the country. There would be a little group at El Paso, Texas; 438 miles away, at Phoenix, Arizona, would be another little group; over 8000 miles down the Pacific Coast, at Culiacan, would be another little group; Mazatalan, Guadalajara, Mexico City, and Saltillo, in each of which are groups, are separated by hundreds of miles. How could any field be more completely cut to pieces?

7. The advocates of this scheme say: 'The two Methodist Churches were placed in contiguous territory so that at an early day they might become one, regardless of the success or failure of the movement at home.' That is to say, the M. E. Church, South, is expected to sacrifice its greatest schools, its splendid hospital, fine congregations, 2000 members, excellent buildings, great opportunity, commanding position, and the most promising field in Mexico, and take a position in the most difficult and unsatisfactory territory in the Republic just to be close to the M. E. Church, with the hope that the two may 'become one.' This vague hope does not justify this great sacrifice.

"If we are taken out of the strong stratgetic centers in the North, where we have well equipped plants doing successful work for the salvation of Mexico, and are located in that hard, fanatical, and unsatisfactory field by the side of the Methodist Episcopal Church that retains all of its great centers, its superior equipment, and contented workers, we will lose our commanding position in the field and in time our identity.

* * * * * * * * * * * *

"It is claimed: 'It is all for the glory of God and the good of the Mexican people.' We believe that we have presented facts and arguments sufficient to convince you that it is not for the good of the people and would be a positive hindrance to the cause in Mexico. If it is not for the good of the people and is hurtful to the cause, it can not be for the glory of God. The glory of God would not be promoted by wrecking the work of forty years. The glory of God is never promoted by weakening the forces in the field and awakening a spirit of discontent and suspicion among the Mexicans, from which it would take years to recover. So we close, as we began, by repeating that we believe the plan is:

"1. An unreasonable sacrifice.
"2. Unjust to our Church.
"3. Unfair to our workers.
"4. Hurtful to our members.
"5. Injurious to the Cause of Christ.

"Therefore, we most earnestly protest against its adoption."

A WORD FROM BROTHER SELBY.

To the Pastors and Members of the Brookhaven District, Mississippi Conference.

My Dear Brethren: At the call of the Church as represented by the Educational Commission, acting for the General Conference, and the Executive Committees of the Boards of Education of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Bishop James Atkins, D. D., has appointed me Commissioner of Emory University for the State of Mississippi.

My work is to be done in behalf of the building for the housing of the Lamar School of Law, and I am encouraged with the prospect of our Church members in Mississippi becoming participants in the founding of this great University of Methodsm.

I enter upon this new work with the assurance of your prayers and sympathy. You have been true to me during the past three years, and I crave your co-operation in accomplishing the end I have before me. In fact, I want every one of you to have a practical interest in this great achievement for our Church.

Under the leadership of Bishop Candler, whose enthusiasm has the element of conquest, I shall expect nothing but success. His wisdom is directing this capaign with a master hand, which magnifies his leadership as the Chancellor of a great University.

With an open door to me throughout the State, I hope to impress upon Mississippi Methodism that this is the time of our opportunity for magnifying the true spirit of our connectionalism.

May I not reasonably urge that you help to found this University, by which means you will be able to transform your money into Christian manhood? If you would really live in the hearts of your countrymen, invest a part of what you have for the training of the young men of the present and future in a University of the Church which will always stand for Christian Education.

In this instance the Church does own a university, and we propose to prove that the Church can direct it without compromising herself in sustaining university demands and ideals.

I ask for my good friend, Dr. I. W. Cooper, my successor as presiding elder, the same kindly treatment and consideration that you have always given me. Do not let go your interest in the work of the Church. Give yourselves more diligently than ever to making this the best year in the history of the Brookhaven District.

God bless you always, and in all ways.

With Christian love, Yours sincerely,

ROBT. SELBY.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT NOTES.

A revival was begun at Lauderdale on the first Sunday in April. Rev. J. H. Moore, the pastor, is being assisted by Rev. H. A. Gatlin.

Rev. H. S. Westbrook is being assisted in a meeting at Seventh Avenue, Meridian, by Rev. J. Loyd Decell, of Waynesboro.

An interesting meeting closed last week at the Southside Church, of Meridian. The pastor, Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, did the preaching.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Neill began a tour of this district last Sunday. They will conduct three Institutes: one at DeKalb, one at Meridian, and the other at Shubuta.

The daily press has reported that Meridian will be invaded by Rev. Wiley J. Ferguson, of Mount Olive, who will begin a campaign against sin at Fifth Street on the fourth Sunday in April. The meeting is expected to continue three weeks.

The Sunday school of Central Church, Meridian, has pledged $200 for missions and has already paid $125 of this amount. Rev H. B. Watkins, the capable pastor, is succeeding in his work. With a membership of more than a thousand he has already visited all but 47 homes. NUNTIUS.

Our Advocate Campaign

The exhibit below shows the status of our Advocate campaign to secure 3500 new subscribers, as it stood at the close of March 31. This exhibit extends back to the time of the Annual Conferences, thus showing all that has been done. No renewals are given. It is difficult to avoid all errors in such a campaign, and possibly there may be a few mistakes in these figures, but they may accepted as substantially correct. We aro deeply grateful to all who have aided us in this effort to increase the circulation of the Conference organ. The next exhibit will be made in our first issue in May.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

The K[illegible] revival campaign is now in progress at Baton Rouge, La.

The April number of the Methodist Review Quarterly is on our table. This is the Asbury Centenary issue, and it contains an unusually large amount of valuable matter. Whether you take it regularly or not, send 50 cents to Smith & Lamar, Nashville, for this number. We hope to have more to [illegible] of this issue of this valuable publication next week.

In forwarding his second round of appointments, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Durant District, adds the following note concerning the work in his "diocese:" "While I have no means of comparing the present situation with conditions as they existed at this season in former years, I have every reason to believe that we are quite up to the usual standard, with flattering prospects ahead. All the preachers and many of the people are hard at work and a spirit of hopefulness is manifest in almost every charge. Several revivals have been held with good results; some old church and parsonage debts have been paid, and some new enterprises have been launched." Not a few echoes concerning Brother Mitchell's good work as a district superintendent have reached the Advocate office.

Under date of March 21, Rev. L. A. McKeown, of Byhalia, Miss., one of our highly esteemed friends, who has been severely ill, sends us the following cheering message: "I am up and able to get out a little. I am now improving every day and am hopeful of being able to take up my work again by the first Sunday in April." We are grateful to Brother McKeown for a cordial invitation to attend the Holly Springs District Conference, which will convene in Byhalia, April 27-30. It would be well worth the long trip from New Orleans to meet the brethren in that part of the field and have a brief season of fellowship with Brother McKeown and Brother R. M. Davis; but alas! the Editor has many calls upon him and cannot by any means always do what he would like to. If he could, he would be certain to be on hand.

WANTED. By competent graduate, a position as instructor of music in high school or college. Address Miss Lucile Bass, Midnight, Miss.

WANTED. By college student (young lady), position as companion or governess. Can furnish references. Address Miss Susie Wood, care I. I. and C., Columbus, Miss.

In Nebraska there are 387,522 school children and 12,335 school teachers.

Bald-headed men are not accepted for military service in the United States Army.

A German scientist has made an interesting study of the serious effects which the noise of conflict has upon animals.

A two-cent stamped envelope of new design which is said to be stronger and nicer looking than the one now in use has been issued by the United States Post-Office Department.

American newspaper correspondents in Mexico can wire to the papers that they report for only 250 or 300 words daily. A private individual is allowed to send only about 25 words a day.

In Germany it has been learned by investigation that the seeds of obnoxious weeds and insects that destroy plant life are consumed by the partridge as food, and that therefore this bird deserves Governmental protection.

A half-million birds, representing as many as 1500 different species, of which the chief are canaries, parrots, and game birds, are imported to the United States every year, and in a single day as many as 17,000 have been known to adopt America as their home.

It has been announced that by the payment of an amount thought to be less than $25,000 on the part of the defendant, Mr. T. K. Webster, Sr., a retired manufacturer of Evanston, Ill., has effected a compromise in the suit for $50,000 which has been pending in the courts since last summer between Newell Dwight Hillis, the noted Brooklyn pastor, and his nephew, Percy D. Hillis, of Victoria, British Columbia, in which the latter charged the former with slander, in that he had stated in a newspaper article that he had paid Percy Hillis' debts.

Manufactures in the United States have doubled in value since 1900. The total output for 1914 amounted to $24,000,000,000, while that for 1900 was only $12,000,000,000. American manufactures are double those of any other country. Before the beginning of the present war Germany's output was less than $12,000,000,000 and in 1907 (the latest statistics obtainable) that of Great Britain amounted to about $8,000,000,000. In the exportation of manufactured goods the United States leads all other countries, the total for 1915 being $1,784,000,000, as against Great Britain's $1,500,000,000.

The first effect of the European war upon newspapers was to reduce the number of their subscribers. They have partially gotten over this. The second effect of the war has been a rise in the price of paper and ink. The warring countries are estimated to have supplied 60 per cent or more of the pulp used in making paper; and now the exportation of both paper and pulp from the nations at war has been prohibted and they allow only enough paper to be made for home use. The reason for this is that pulp is used in the manufacture of explosives. The rise in the price of ink, which is now at least double what it formerly was, is due to the fact that many colors can not be obtained.

Songs such as "Tipperary," which really have very little meaning, are ceasing to be popular with the British soldiers and their place is being taken by such songs as: "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Abide with Me," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," and "Lead, Kindly Light." In a time when men have to face death on every hand light and trivial things soon lose their hold on them. What Webster says of affected eloquence and the studied contrivances of speech when great issues are at stake is also true of songs that make no deep and abiding impression upon one's heart. Such songs "shock and disgust men, when their own lives, and the fate of their wives, their children, and their country hang on the decision of the hour."

We note that Charlie Chaplin, the well known photoplay comedian, has signed a contract by which his services are secured for one year at a half million dollars. It seems strange that men whose services are of so little moral or intellectual value to mankind should receive such high pay, while those who are the servants of men and who have their best interests at heart receive so little. We believe that one of the greatest evils of the present time is the fact that the great men who are really doing the work of the world receive so little recognition.

A law not allowing any person to graduate from the law department of the University of Pennsylvania who does not add to his legal acquirements a good moral character has been passed by the authorities of that institution and will go into effect this year. This is said to be the first time that such a requirement has been made in the professional department of a great university. We commend this measure, as we are firmly convinced that character is essential to a truly successful practice of any profession. Success in such lines of work means more than the mere acquisition of money: it means also the serving of humanity in a conscientious manner, and intellect alone will not insure this.

That we have passed the $30,000 mark will be welcome news to all our people in the North Mississippi Conference. It will not surprise any but the low pressure and doubting ones, who are in a hopeless minority, if they exist at all. The fact that we have passed this mark is reassuring not only in that we have over half the amount pledged, but because we have passed through the critical period of the formation of plans and getting adjusted and at the same time have kept the pledges coming in. With local church matters arranged and our plans adjusted, this cause should now move forward more rapidly. We may well expect to cover the $40,000 during the month of April. The commissioner, in addition to a careful study of books and literature on Christian education and the conditions and work of the college, has sent out hundreds of letters and numbers of packages of literature pertaining to the campaign. Visits have been made to Hernado, Love's, Senatobia, Como, Courtland, Pope's, Coffeeville, Pickens, Goodman, West, Vaiden, Strayhorn, Wesley's Chapel, Truslow's Chapel, Crenshaw, Pleasant Grove, Tunica, Lula, Booneville, Kosciusko, Ripley, Blue Mountain, Shelby, Durant, and some other places on the occasion of the meeting of the district stewards.

The contact with our people in this campaign has brought to us many very encouraging things. Some who did not believe that the Church should conduct colleges have changed their minds and made liberal donations. Some who were indifferent have been stirred and now declare that they will not send their daughters to any but church or religious schools. But one of the most gratifying experiences which we have, and they come often, is that when our people learn all about Grenada College they express their appreciation and declare their loyalty. They rejoice that we have such a high-grade school and willingly pledge their help to enlarge it. A man who is a hard working man and not a member of the Church pledged $100 and paid one-fourth of it in cash. A working woman on small wages pledged $50. Another good young woman who works for five cents an hour gave $5. Think of that! One hundred hours' work to help her Church build up a school for girls! There are one hundred men in this Conference who, if they would do this well, could supply the money to complete our work. Two schoolboys pledged each $5. When the hearts of the poor and the rich are thus touched by and respond to this great cause we shall soon see a new and glorious day for Grenada College.

We are also stirred to our work by the conditions in the college. The teachers and pupils have a spirit of optimism and are ready to work for the school. It is easy to seek to raise money for, and bring girls to a school where such good influences exist and where such good results are obtained. Out of twenty-nine literary graduates all save one will lead a religious service. During the last few days all the girls who were not professed Christians have become such, and now every girl in the boarding department is a member of the Church. We have a religious family throughout. Let us all work for the $40,000 mark in April.

BEN P. JACO,
Grenada, Miss. Commissioner.

WINONA DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Doctor Meek: Since the Winona District Conference has been changed from Moorhead to Itta Bena, I would appreciate it if all those who expect to attend would send me their names at their earliest convenience. We hope to have a full attendance of the members of the District Conference, and many visitors, and trust that you, Doctor, can be one of them.

W. S. SHIPMAN, Pastor.

A SPLENDID VOLUME.

Says Dr. R. A. Meek, editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, of the new volume, "God's Estimate of Man, and Other Sermons," by the late Rev. W. C. Black, D. D., of the Mississippi Conference: "We do not hesitate to say that these discourses are of a very superior order. They are packed full of suggestive truths, which are expressed in simple but choice language. One cannot read them without being both pleased and profited. Few volumes of sermons that have been issued by our Publishing House will compare with this one."

The volume, which is a 12mo of 204 pages, contains nine of the distinguished author's best sermons and addresses, together with an interesting Autobiographical Sketch. Price, postpaid, 75 cents. Send your order to Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss.

OPEN THE DOOR.

Open the door of your heart, my lad,
To the angel of love and truth,
When the world is full of unnumbered joys
In the beautiful dawn of youth,
Casting aside all things that mar,
Say to wrong, "Depart!"
To the voices of hope that are calling you
Open the door of your heart.

Open the door of your heart, my lass,
To the things that shall abide,
To the holy thoughts that lift your soul
Like stars at the eventide.
All the fadeless flowers that bloom
In the realms of song and art
Are yours, if you'll only give them room.
Open the door of your heart.

KITUK'S PROMISE.

You may have heard of Kituk before. If you have, you know he is a little Eskimo boy who lives at Cape Prince of Wales, on Behring Straits, in Alaska.

One autumn day Kituk's father said to him: "Kituk, you have been a good boy. I am going to give you three 'camoogans' and a sled for you to hitch them to." You can all guess what camoogans were—dogs, of course.

Kituk was very proud of his three little brown camoogans. His father had made harnesses for them out of short-haired sealskin. Hitched to the little sled, made of tough willow wood bound together with rawhide strings, they could go swiftly over the ice and snow.

One winter's day, when Kituk had become quite expert in driving, he said to his father:

"I want to take my sled and go to see Cousin Ok-ba-ok." Now Ok-ba-ok lived up at Si-ne Zok, fifteen miles away. Kituk's father shook his head.

"Ah-ne-ca! I don't know," he said. "Pretty far for a small boy to go."

"But, father, I drive well now," Kituk answered.

"May storm," his father hesitated.

"Who fears a storm?" Kituk asked stoutly, drawing his deerskin hood over his ears.

"Well, then, go," said his father, "and when you return bring some walrus meat from your uncle's cache. But before you go promise me this, that if you get into a storm you will not try to guide your dogs."

Kituk promised, because he trusted his father. But he wondered much why his father should ask for such a strange promise. Did not his dogs know "gee," "haw," "whoa" and "mush"? And could he not see where he should go? But Kituk was to see what his father meant.

The trip to Sit-ne Zok was a pleasant one. All the way the sun shone. All the way the icy trail was like glass. All the way Kituk rode on his sled and shouted to his little team: "Go on, Tdarituk! Go on, Sutmuk! Kullemuck (hurry up), Copseta!" These were the names of his dogs.

His cousin Ok-ba-ok was very much surprised to see him. He thought that was a fine little dog team. And many a jolly time the two boys had racing over the ice after the swift little dogs, hauling in fish caught through the ice by the women and going up the beach after driftwood for the fire.

When the time came for Kituk to return home his uncle loaded his sled with good, rich walrus meat. His aunt gave him a little leather "pook" sack filled with the heart of a polar bear preserved in seal oil. With all these good things on his sled and with the good-will of his friends, Kituk started happily on his homeward journey.

But before he had gone far the wind began to rise. It grew colder. Kituk drew his hood tightly over his ears. Little sharp points of snow were driven against his face. He tried to hurry his dogs on, but, loaded as their sled was, they were not able to trot along very fast.

Kituk had traveled so for seven miles, when he came to a place where the trail left the beach and crossed a narrow point of the sea. This was the entrance to Lopp Lagoon. Kituk had not noticed this when he came up. The trail had been well beaten and smooth then. Now the storm, having increased, had blown away all marks of the trail and sifted it over with fine snow. The little dogs were running along, noses close to the ice. When they came to this place they struck boldly out on to the ice-bound ocean. Seeing that they were about to leave the beach Kituk stopped them and, dragging them toward the beach, compelled them to go that way.

There was a blizzard blowing now. Kituk had every now and then to rub his face to keep it from freezing. The little dogs seemed sulky and almost refused to travel. Kituk pelted them with chunks of snow. But soon Kituk found himself wallowing in deep, crusty snow. And in a moment the little dogs stopped. They refused to go farther. Looking ahead of them the boy saw an overflow, a place where a warm fresh-water spring had broken through and overflowed the ice. Had he walked into that he must surely have frozen to death. What should he do? He was freezing. The way was blocked before him. Suddenly with shame he remembered his promise to his father. "Promise not to try to guide your dogs in a storm," his father had said.

Quickly turning his dogs about he started them on the backward trail. They went quite willingly now. When they came to the place where they had before wanted to strike out over the sea they trotted boldly forth and Kituk followed. I hardly need to tell you that these wise little animals could follow a trail by scent where any human being would be lost.

Almost before he realized it Kituk was behind the protecting shelter of Cape Prince of Wales mountain, and was soon warming by his own fire.

That night, as he told his father about his experience, his father, smiling, said:

"Surely sometimes small dogs know more than small boys. This will be a lesson to you never to forget a promise." And it was.—The Congregationalist.

SET THE CLOCK RIGHT.

A story is told of a colored man who came to a watchmaker and gave him two hands of a clock, saying:

"I want yer to fix up dese han's. Dey jess doan keep no mo' kerec' time for mo' den six munfs."

"Where is the clock?" asked the watchmaker.

"Out at de house on Injun Creek."

"But I must have the clock."

"Didn't I tell yer dar's nuffin de matter wid de clock 'ceptin' de han's? An' I done brought 'em to you. You jess want de clock so you can tinker wid an' charge me a big price. Gimme back dem han's."

And so saying, he went off to find some reasonable watchmaker.

Foolish as he was, his action was much like that of those who try to regulate their conduct without being made right on the inside. They go wrong, but refuse to believe that the trouble is with their hearts.—The Lookout.

WHAT JESUS WANTS FROM CHILDREN.

Children, learn what Jesus wants from you. He wants your childhood. He wants your faith and your love. He wants you to pattern your childhood after his. He wants you to obey your parents as he obeyed his. He wants you to ask questions and to learn. He wants you to make a public confession of his name, as he publicly confessed his Father's name. He wants you to join in his worship and praise.—David Gregg.

AN INTERESTING LTTTER.

Dear Mr. Editor: I received a letter from a member of the Class of the Second Year, a few weeks since, of such real interest that I venture offering same to you for publication:

"Got moved to W ——— December 20, and enrolled with the Correspondence School for the second year early in January. Have sent in my final examination on four of the books (Wesley, Atkins, Lawrance, and the third one). Am ready for Sheldon as soon as I get the questions. Have sent in three lessons [illegible] of 'The Twelve.' So you see, I had only [illegible] on 'Bruce' of having the course [illegible]. How is that for just one month's work?

"Now, brother, after I have sent in my final examination papers, will I be permitted to proceed in taking up the next year's course in the Correspondence School, and receive credit [illegible] as a third year man? Of course I understand the Second Year Committee don't [illegible] I am really in the third year, but I am trying to complete both this year if possible.

"I have enjoyed the work very much. My folks have been sick, some of them [illegible], so I have been right at home [illegible] day and night, just going out to meet my appointments on Sunday," etc.

Now, brethren of the Second Year, this is the most stimulating letter I have received in many days. Surely this man has adopted the only plan worth while—doing the work at that period of the year when he can do best "I see open," getting it "behind him," then putting himself into the work of his charge without recreation. Of course that man will succeed. Of course he enjoyed the work. Every normal man, under normal conditions, can pass every year. One of the chief difficulties may be stated in one word, "procrastination." Having a whole year to do a thing makes us careless. This is true of our financial methods. The man who "hurries" is of course busy and keeps at it SUCCEEDS."

The man who wrote the letter is not in my district. He may be one of those days if his presiding elder don't look sharp. Ahem! Let every man of the Second Year get busy if he is not already busy. The Committee wants to pass them all. Not a man on it but stands ready to help in every possible way. The St. John of the Conference, J. C. Park, is the Chairman, and the other members are ready to follow his lead. Yes, EVERY MAN OF THE SECOND YEAR IS TO PASS THIS YEAR. Note it. JAMES H. FELTS.

Editorial

LET US NOT OVERLOOK THE MOST ESSENTIAL THING.

In addressing the class admitted into full connection at the late session of the Virginia Conference, Bishop Candler is quoted as having said: "It is all right to read good books, but I fear that we are getting things out of proportion. We need also to magnify our own spiritual life."

Such an atterance by our great Georgia Chief Pastor, who is one of the foremost students and thinkers in world-wide Methodism, should command attention. Education is important, but a college degree is by no means the most essential part of a preacher's equipment. Wesley had the stamp of Oxford upon him during all those first years of his ministry that were such a lamentable failure. If the numbers of persons led to Christ and brought into the Church during the year 1915 by men who have never been graduated from a college or university were stricken from our statistical tables, we rather fancy that we would not be very proud of what would be left.

Let us educate all of our preachers that we possibly can and endeavor to induce them to read and to form studious habits, but let us not make the stupendous mistake of leading them to believe that in intellectual acquirements alone they will find, either in whole or in chief part, the secret of true ministerial success. Harm always results from an effort to put secondary things first. A conscious knowledge of Christ as one's personal Savior, and hence a realization of his power likewise to save others, is the element that is most indispensable to effective Christian work either upon the part of a preacher or layman; and, though there are many other things that may help to enlarge one's usefulness and to which one should give painstaking attention, the retention and increase of that knowledge never ceases to top all else in importance. And it will be a sad day for Methodism if she should ever cease to recognize and act in harmony with this fundamental and unchangeable truth.

BISHOP HOSS'S STATEMENT.

The statement from the pen of Bishop E. E. Hoss relative to the Commission that recently passed upon the Strawbridge and Embury question, which we are carrying this week, is, we think, needed and timely. The course of the Northern Methodist Bishops concerning this matter was, to express it mildly, highly discourteous. We read pretty generally the Northern Methodist press, and, though Bishop Hoss's utterance first appeared some weeks ago, we have not seen anywhere any attempt to combat it, nor any effort to explain the lack of consideration for the other Churches that had, by invitation, become parties to the historical investigation that was made in Baltimore.

We dislike to think that high officials of any denomination could be guilty of such action as that which is set down to the discredit of the chief pastors of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and we confess we did not think that those gentlemen, acting as a body, were capable of pursuing such a course. We emphasize the expression "acting as a body," because we have heard within recent years of some individual Northern Methodist Bishops bearing themselves quite discourteously toward our Bishops and the Southern Methodist Church while visiting in the South. We have been told that at least two of them, flattered by the attentions shown them at Vanderbilt University, took occasion to make public utterances that were understood to be criticisms of our Bishops' for their course in the controversy with the trustees of that institution for its ownership and control; and we have been informed that one of them who was invited to lecture at the Seashore Divinity School at Biloxi, Miss., a couple of years ago was quite a free talker in the same strain in his private conversations with the preachers in attendance. We had hoped that the lack of good manners thus exhibited was exceptional among the Northern Bishops; but this latest occurrence has led us to fear that it may be more generally characteristic than we had thought to be possible.

We wish that we could believe that all our leaders and preachers would take the same high ground concerning this occurrence as Bishop Hoss has done; but alas! we dare not indulge any such expectation. We know full well that the offer of a free trip to some Northern city, with a few banquets attached, will in all likelihood carry a light-hearted company of Southern Methodist ministers across the border and set them to talking in high-sounding language about the glories of union and how our people are passionately longing for it, though the great body of our Church members have never expressed in any way any such desire. A few boards and commissions (nor even the General Conference itself, composed of some 250 or 300 persons, into which the issue was brought without having been previously placed before the Church at large) are not by any means the whole or principal part of the 2,000,000 Methodists of the South.

As a side-light on the question of union with the Methodist Episcopal Church, this Baltimore development is quite illuminating. It would, in our opinion, be a sad day for Southern Methodism if a few leaders should be permitted to place her head in the lion's mouth. But we do not anticipate any such result, at least not within the years of the present generation. We predict that there will be a wonderful disillusionment in many quarters when the masses of our Methodist people begin to be heard from concerning this proposal to merge their Church with another denomination, which in nearly all the controverted matters that have arisen since 1844 has exhibited an ugly and unfair spirit, and which the late development shows it still possesses, in spite of the passing decades and the extirpating power of Divine grace.

TIMELY UTTERANCES.

More than once we have sought to emphasize the conviction that the thing that Methodism needs most to be busy about is not getting members, but SAVING SOULS. Wonderfully significant is that brief sentence in the Acts of the Apostles: "And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved." (Revised Version.) If we can lead the people into the blessed experience of regeneration, the question of increasing our membership will very largely take care of itself.

We noted in a recent issue of the Texas Christian Advocate two most wholesome utterances bearing on this important matter. One was from Bishop J. S. Key, who in the course of his statement said: "At the General Conference held in New Orleans in 1866, of which I was a member, the old six months' probation in the Church was abolished. I was a member of the Committee on Revisals. To that Committee was referred a memorial requesting the abolition of that rule. The Committee agreed to the proposition and appointed a sub-committee of three to prepare a paragraph to take the place of the one abolished. Dr. McAnally of St. Louis, Dr. Paul Whitehead of Virginia, and myself were the sub-committee. I know the minds of those three men and the purpose they had to provide that only converted people should belong to the Church. The action abolished the time term, but was never intended to abolish the probation. In the plans of the Church the probation still exists. In that probationary class are all the applicants for membership who are unconverted, and the expectation that as fast as they are converted they will be received into the Church. Now, with that view, read the Discipline on the subject:

"'When persons offer themselves for Church membership, let the preacher in charge inquire into their spiritual condition, and receive them into the Church when they have given satisfactory assurances of their desire to flee from the wrath to come, and to be saved from their sins; also, of the genuineness of their faith, and of their willingness to keep the rules of the Church; and only after they have been instructed in the rules of the Church and the baptismal and Church vows, and have agreed to accept and observe them.'

"'When satisfied on these points, let the minister bring the candidates before the congregation whenever practicable, and receive them according to the prescribed form.'

"This is the definite law of the Church."

The other timely utterance referred to was from the pen of Bishop E. D. Mouzon. From it we extract the following:

"And, my brethren, let me put the emphasis here: Address all on the salvation of their souls. Any campaign which only adds Church members to our rolls will prove a curse and not a blessing. Already we have made joining the Church too easy. What costs nothing is worth nothing. We have made Church membership too cheap. The old question which has come down from early times should be required of every man: 'Dost thou renounce the devil and all his works, the vain pomp and glory of this world, so that thou wilt not follow or be led by them?' Already, in many places, we are weak, because men and women of wealth and worldliness have weakened us. That was a marvelous gain which our Southern Methodism had this last year—66,328! I am not unfair; I am not unkind; I am only trying to deal honestly with our people, when I express the fear that some of these sixty-six thousand and more have made us weaker and not stronger. Every genuine revival of religion will do three things: convert sinners, strengthen believers, and reclaim backsliders. I urge that special effort be put forth to convert sinners and reclaim backsliders."

BE CERTAIN TO READ IT.

We hope that every reader of the Advocate will carefully peruse the protest from a large number of our Mexican missionaries which we are publishing in this issue of the Advocate. Our sympathies are with these workers, and we trust that the Board of Missions will hear and heed this earnest message from these faithful men and women in the field.

It is stated that the representatives of our woman's work on the Board of Missions are standing almost solidly for carrying out the Cincinnati program, which seems to be so distressing to these protestants, who have been spending their strength and lives to establish Southern Methodism in the Mexican Republic. If this be true, we do not believe that these sisters are faithfully reflecting the sentiment of the thousands of noble women in the Missionary Auxiliaries scattered throughout the Connection who love their Church and who are thoroughly devoted to it. We fear that in their gentleness and modesty these splendid workers are not as much inclined as they should be to make their influence felt in directing the great missionary activities which they have made possible and which they are in reality maintaining. They are fully capable of doing this and they should not shirk this responsibility.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

This roll is to be made up of charges in which all of the stewards are subscribers to the Advocate. At present it stands as follows:

1. Ripley and Blue Mountain, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neblett, pastor.
2. Court Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor.
3. Kossuth Circuit, North Miss., Rev. D. R. McDougal, pastor.
4. Oak Grove Circuit, Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor.
5. Shuqualak Circuit, North Miss. Conf., Rev. A. S. Raper, pastor.
6. Flora Ct., Mississippi Conference, Rev. M. F. Adams, pastor.
7. Trenton Ct., Mississippi Conf., Rev. T. B. Winstead, pastor.
8. Brooksville Ct., North Miss. Conf., Rev. J. J. Baird, pastor.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. R. W. Browder, one of the best known members of the Louisville Conference, died on March 23.

Sunday, April 30, is the Sabbath designated as Children's Day in our Church. Let every congregation observe it and apply the money as the Discipline directs.

Rev. J. F. Waltman, of Farmerville, La., is looking after the interests of the Advocate in his rounds. It is his habit to look faithfully after all deserving causes in the field in which he labors.

We make grateful acknowledgement to Rev. W. B. Baker, of Sherman, Miss., for a club of 6 subscriptions. We are pleased to know that Brother Baker's work is making good headway.

A revival meeting is in progress at Epworth Church, this city. The popular pastor, Rev. C. M. Morris, is being assisted by Rev. A. I. Townsley, of Crowley. Services are held daily at 3 p. m. and 7 p. m.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Oak Grove, La., added another club of 5 subscriptions to his antecedent good work for the Advocate on March 31, giving a total list of 32. Would that our paper had more such friends!

Rev. W. J. Ferguson, of Mt. Olive, Miss., sends us 4 subscriptions and thus comments upon his work: "Things are moving along smoothly here, and we are expecting great revivals during the coming months."

Dr. A. F. Watkins writes: "Bishop Hoss has consented to preach the Commencement sermon of Millsaps College on June 4. I expect to attend the Educational Conference of our Church to be held in Birmingham, Ala., this week."

Another charge that goes on our "Honor Roll" this week is the Trenton Circuit, of the Corinth (Miss.) District, of which Rev. T. B. Winstead is the faithful pastor. Brother Winstead reports his work as in a healthful and promising condition.

Remember that every congregation in Louisiana is expected to take a collection for our Orphanage at Ruston on Easter Sunday. Let every pastor inform himself anew and be prepared to represent impressively that deserving institution.

Writing from Donaldsonville, La., on March 26, Brother A. L. Dietrich, our Divisional Sunday School Field Secretary, says: "Brother P. O. Lowrey is doing some good work here." This statement will not surprise those who know Brother Lowrey.

Rev. Robert Selby, our Commissioner for Emory University, is already at work. He received last week a gift of $1000 from a generous Mississippi layman, and reports good success at a public meeting at Sumrall, Miss., Sunday night. Let the good work go on!

Rev. W. D. McCullough, of Iuka, Miss., who is one of the strong pulpit men of the North Mississippi Conference, has brought us under obligations to him for 1 renewal and 6 new subscriptions from his delightful charge. His Church work is going forward in a gratifying manner.

Rev. D. R. Wasson, of Jonestown, Miss., one of the scholarly young ministers of the North Mississippi Conference, has been looking after the interests of the Advocate in his charge with a good measure of success. We appreciate this good service in behalf of the Conference organ.

In renewing her subscription to the Advocate, Miss Martha Rye, of Amory, Miss., took time to write some words commendatory of our paper, for which we thank her. Like all other outspoken publications, the Advocate under its present management has both friends and critics not a few.

Dr. S. D. Gordon will speak at the First Presbyterian Church of this city next Sunday at 11 a. m. At 8 p. m. on the same day he will deliver an address at the First Methodist Church, where he will also speak at the same hour on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday nights of next week.

A note from Rev. A. H. Williams, of Strongs, Miss., is in hand, but came too late for publication in this issue of our paper. It will, of course, appear next week. We are pleased to know that Brother Williams has sufficiently recovered from his recent severe illness to be able to write about his work.

Rev. J. L. Neill, Sunday School Field Secretary of the Mississippi Conference, spent the whole month of March in the Seashore District. We have received a copy of his report to the Conference Sunday School Board for that month, some extracts of which we hope to publish in the next issue of the Advocate.

We sympathize with our Missionary women in the loss of the principal part of the endowment of the Scarritt Training School. It would seem that the loss of such a fund indicates a censurable negligence upon the part of the Board of Managers, which, be it said to their credit, was not composed of women.

In forwarding us a club of 5 subscriptions to the Advocate, Rev. W. F. Rogers, of Sallis, Miss., adds the following note: "Our work is doing nicely. Our second quarterly conference was held on March 27. Our presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, was on hand and preached a strong and helpful sermon. All who heard him were delighted."

The Editor desires persons who write him to know that, with his heavy duties and little assistance that he has in his work, he cannot always attend promptly to his large correspondence. It is never his intention to treat any one neglectfully, though it may appear to some that he is indifferent in this respect. He has no stenographer.

Rev. L. H. Floyd, of Smithville, Miss., writes: "We are serving the Tremont charge this year, which has within its bounds some excellent people. The spiritual state of our congregations seems to be improving. We are planning to have a Sunday school rally at Tremont in April for the purpose of trying to increase the interest in that phase of the work."

At an open session of the Baltimore Annual Conference on March 31, when exercises in honor of Francis Asbury were held, the list of speakers included President Woodrow Wilson and Mr. Daniels, Secretary of the Navy. The President is said to have commended heartily the plan of erecting an equestrian statue of Bishop Asbury in Washington City.

Under date of March 28, Rev. A. I. Townsley forwarded us the following note: "Crowley has had a real revival under the leadership of Dr. W. R. Hendrix, pastor of St. Mark's Church of Atlanta, Ga. Every Protestant Church in Crowley cooperated in the services. Brothers Coleman and Dietrich are conducting a Sunday School Institute in Crowley this week."

Sister T. W. Dye orders their Advocate changed from Coldwater to Clarksdale, Miss. From this we infer that Brother and Sister Dye propose to reside, for a while at least, in the Delta again. How we wish that we might tarry for a day beneath the hospitable roof of these esteemed friends, as we were wont to do in the years agone! May God's choicest blessings fall upon their pathway!

Our Felicity Street congregation of this city, which, ever since the storm last September has been worshiping at the Home Institute, Miss Sophie B. Wright's former school building, occupied the basement of their church for the first time last Sunday, having a kind of home-coming day. We congratulate Dr. Felix R. Hill upon being able to hold services again at historic old Felicity.

Rev. A. L. Davenport, pastor of the Corinth (Miss.) Circuit, says: "We are happy in the work and are doing our level best in preaching. We have expended about $100 in repairing one of our churches. We are planning for our revival meetings and are hopeful of a good year generally." Brother Davenport's letter instructed us to continue to send the Advocate to 5 homes in his charge.

A special Board has been organized with a view to financing and strengthening the Mary Werlein Mission of New Orleans. Mr. H. H. Gibbons is the Chairman, Mr. Edward Alvis, Vice-Chairman, and Mr. Paul Renshaw, Secretary. The other members are Mr. F. R. Baer, Mr. E. L. Cornay, Mr. D. B. Carre, Mr. Van Carter, Mr. W. G. Evans, Mr. George Goodall, Mr. I. N. Niebergall, Mr. J. P. Sexton, and Mr. M. Dreux Van Horn.

Bishop W. B. Murrah spent last Friday in New Orleans. He was looking well and was in his usual optimistic frame of mind. He left in the afternoon for Laurel, Miss., from which place he expected to go to Northeast Mississippi, where he is to do some campaigning in the interest of the movement to raise $50,000 for Grenada College. Bishop Murrah will preach the Commencement sermon for Washington and Lee University, at Lexington, Va., on June 11.

Rev. M. F. Adams, of Flora, Miss., gave us an even half dozen new subscriptions on March 28, and adds: "This list places all my stewards on your mailing files and entitles me to a place on the 'Honor Roll.' My father set me the example and I am following his lead." The name of "Adams" has been in the forefront from the foundation of the American Republic up to this good hour. May it ever so remain!

The following friends, whose kindness has not been noticed elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions sent in since the last issue of the Advocate: Rev. W. W. Murray, Pelahatchie, Miss., 5; Rev. J. W. Dorman, First Church, Water Valley, Miss., 12; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison, Miss., 3; Rev. W. L. Doss, Jr., Dubach, La., 6; Rev. J. A. Goad, Myrtle, Miss., 9; Rev. C. T. Floyd, Holcomb, Miss., 6; Rev. W. C. Lester, Arcola, Miss., 4; Rev. G. P. Fikes, Brandon, Miss., 5; Rev. E. S. Lewis, Oxford, Miss., 5; Rev. J. B. Conner, Arkabutla, Miss., 1.

Rev. E. K. Means, of Arcadia, La., writes: "Rev. Frank Singleton, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Mexia, Texas, filled our pulpit here at Arcadia on March 26. Brother Singleton was a sad visitor to Louisiana, having come to be present at the funeral of his brother, Rev. H. R. Singleton. He has unusual oratorical gifts, and his message was peculiarly appropriate in the midst of our general sorrow. A large audience listened with intense interest to his discussion of the text: 'For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.'"

From the Brookhaven (Miss.) Leader of March 9, we take the following: "Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College and general utility man in every good cause known to this vicinity—in our lives and at our funerals—has been appointed presiding elder, vice Rev. Robert Selby, recently made Commissioner for Emory University. The Leader is not informed whether this new office of 'our President' is considered a promotion or not; but we do know that the spirit that pervades the life and work of Dr. Cooper points the way to the highest honor and most distinguished service in the gift of his Church. Meanwhile, the Brookhaven District continues in safe and able hands."

HIS DEATH GREATLY DEPLORED.

The funeral of Rev. H. R. Singleton, pastor of the Scruggs Memorial Methodist Church, St. Louis, Mo., was held in Arcadia, La., on March 24, 1916, at 3, p. m.

The news of Brother Singleton's death caused the deepest sorow in this part of the State, where the largest portion of his ministerial service in Louisiana had been rendered. Methodist laymen were in attendance at the funeral from Shreveport, Ruston, Monroe, Alexandria, Homer, and many other points, and telegrams and floral offerings came from many who were not able to be present.

The funeral was characterized by a spontaneous outpouring of affection and service from sorrowing hearts, a touching and beautiful feature being the music. It was in charge of Mrs. Burnside Capers, a friend of many years, and the songs were sung exclusively by young girls who had known Brother Singleton from infancy.

The services at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. D. M. Atkins, and at the grave, were conducted by Rev. R. H. Wynn, D. D., President of of Centenary College. The writer read the Old Testament lesson, Rev. Briscoe Carter, presiding elder of the Ruston District, read the New Testament lesson, and Rev. John F. Foster of Shreveport, led the prayer. With trembling voice, Dr. Wynn spoke eloquently of the pure youth of his friend, his active, noble self-sacrificing manhood, and his triumphant death.

At the grave, Dr. Wynn was assisted by Rev. A. S. Lutz, presiding elder of the Monroe District, Rev. J. G. Snelling of Homer, and Rev. H. W. Ledbetter of West Monroe. Rev. R. W. Vaughan, superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, pronounced the benediction

After the interment, all the ministers of the Gospel assembled at the grave and sang:

"In the sweet bye and bye,
We shall meet on that beautiful shore."

Thus concluded the touching obsequies of this beloved pastor, whose beautiful soul had passed into the open sky.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. Otherwise the obituaries will be edited down to 200 words.

Z. T. SLATON, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Z. T. Slaton, was born on Oct. 30, 1889, and departed this life on Jan. 4, 1916. He was sick and died at home where loved ones ministered unto him in loving service. After the funeral service, his body was laid to rest in a cedar grove, just beyond the home. About five years ago he joined the Missionary Baptist Church. We trust that he now dwells where tears, pain, sorrow, and death do not exist. He leaves a father and mother, eight brothers, and two sisters in sorrow. May God bless the bereaved ones with his sustaining grace and guide them to their heavenly home!

R. E. RUTLEDGE.

Mrs. J. P. FUSSELL (nee Frances Ellen Bulloch) was born on June 14, 1847, and died on Dec. 10, 1915. She was married to J. P. Fussell on January 24, 1861. For some years she had lived as a widow, her husband having preceded her to the heavenly land several years ago. Sister Fussell was a devout Christian and a faithful member of the Franklinton Methodist Church. Her home was one in which Christ abode. Some time before her death she was quite feeble and was seldom, if ever, able to attend Church. This was a source of deep regret to her, for she loved to attend upon the preaching of the Word. The last time she worshiped with us she was not really able to go to Church and fainted during the service. She was a faithful wife. The heart of her husband safely trusted in her and she did him good and not evil all the days of her life. She was a devoted mother. "She looked well to the ways of her household." "Her children arise up and call her blessed." She was also a good neighbor. She stretched out her hand to help the needy. Truly a good woman has gone from our midst. Let us cherish her memory and emulate her virtues. To the loved ones we extend our deep sympathy.

J. A. McCORMACK.

Franklinton, La.

On Jan. 6, 1916, the death angel came into our home and claimed as his the sweet soul of my companion and the mother of my children, Mrs. JESSIE CLOUD CARLISLE, and carried it to that heavenly home where she will be found close to the gate that is called beautiful, awaiting the homecoming of her loved ones and friends. As a comrade and helpmeet she was kind and true, and she and I lived a life of perfect confidence in each other from the day we took the marriage vows until death parted us. It would be impossible for me to find words to express my appreciation of her. In life she was always concerned about the little children whom she has left in my care and who mourn her loss with me. They were her most precious jewels. She walked in sweet fellowship with Jesus. Her Christian character especially fitted her for being the wife of a minister. She so lived for Jesus that when the time came for her to bid this world and her loved ones good-bye she was reconciled to going, and, with a glad expression of angelic eyes, she looked up to me and said, "I am going home." We can not but be sad, though we know that our loss is her eternal gain. We bow our head to the Giver of life. As was true in the case of Job of old, disasters and sorrows are sent to teach us to be brave and strong. We feel deeply grateful to our many friends who were kind to us in her illness, but I find it impossible to express our appreciation in words. May our Heavenly Father bless and keep all these friends under the shadow of his wing and may the Guarding Angel always be found near them! We ask the readers of the Advocate to remember us at the throne of grace.

Her husband, R. G. A. CARLISLE.

We are again reminded of the fact that "Death is no respecter of persons." On Jan. 8, 1916, near a little town in Arkansas, where they had resided for four years, all was bustle and excitement. The fond husband and devoted wife were making final preparations to visit in another State an anxiously waiting aged mother and affectionate brothers and sisters. But how sad and disappointing Providence seems sometimes! Instead of making a joyous trip to see the loved ones, the wife was taken suddenly ill and in six hours was no more, for her sweet and gentle spirit had gone to live with God. Her remains were brought back to her home at Boyle, Miss., and by loving hands she was laid to rest in the New Salem Cemetery by the side of her father, who went to glory several years ago.

Mrs. NORA (YOUNG) JOHNSON was born in Calhoun County, Miss., 32 years ago. She joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of 12 years. On Nov. 1, 1908, she was married to Mr. Walter Johnson. She leaves two children, both boys—Lamor, aged 5 years, and Francis Young, aged 15 months. As her pastor I knew her as a young lady of superior gifts of grace and usefulness. I also knew her in her married life. Her devotion to her husband and children was marvelous. She was happiest when she was doing something to brighten the life of some one else. She met cheerfully the obligations of life in the name and strength of the Lord. In early life in her father's home she was taught to love and serve God by fond parents. May the Holy Spirit comfort, sustain, and keep the husband, children, mother, brothers, and sisters until they too shall pass "through the gates into the city!"

ELDERLY WOMEN SAFEGUARDED

Tell Others How They Were Carried Safely Through Change of Life.

Durand, Wis.—"I am the mother of fourteen children and I owe my life to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I was 45 and had the Change of Life, a friend recommended it and it gave me such relief from my bad feelings that I took several bottles. I am now well and healthy and recommend your Compound to other ladies."—Mrs. MARY RIDGWAY, Durand, Wis.

A Massachusetts Woman Writes:

Blackstone, Mass.—"My troubles were from my age, and I felt awfully sick for three years. I had hot flashes often and frequently suffered from pains. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now am well."—Mrs. PIERRE COURNOYER, Box 239, Blackstone, Mass.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and dizziness, should be heeded by middle-aged women. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has carried many women safely through this crisis.

"It is blessed to know that death is not a state, but an act; not a condition, but a transition."

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Sec'y, Sardis, Miss.

Wesley Bible classes, intermediate, senior, and adult, must be enrolled with Dr. C. D. Bulla, Nashville, Tenn., before they count for the federation of classes.

This can be attended to in five minutes by the pastor, superintendent, teacher, or some member of the class. North Mississippi Methodists do not intend to be one whit behind other Conferences.

Why not get ready for a preliminary federation of classes by May 30, the time of our big Efficiency Conference which is to be held in Grenada on May 30 to June 2?

Rev. J. H. Holder is working for a district federation. District officers, follow your leader and do this work while others are getting ready. Brother Holder is stressing the Teacher-training, Wesley Bible class organization, and a mission special for China in his district. His work is bringing good results now.

If about one hundred country schools would enter a contest for attendance with one hundred town schools, people would wake up from the Alabama line to the Big River. Hundreds of people do not have any idea of what the Sunday school is doing.

Let us learn one thing: A Sunday school institute is not in the way of a revival meeting, but is a part of the great evangelistic movement that God is sending through the land to awaken the people from their long sleep. The modern Sunday school must be evangelistic or it is not effective. Many appreciate the Sunday school, but not for all that it is worth.

The Sunday school is after training a group of personal workers that will keep Christ before individuals the year round. One reason we study God's Word is to learn how to use it in the winning of souls that they may share the character and joy of Jesus Christ.

The Sunday school is not to overshadow or supplant any other department of church work, but it is to nurture and make effective every activity in the body of Christ. Before there can be a great outflow of activity, there must be a great inflow of God.

The order for Children's Day programs has gone to the Publishing House. These orders will be filled soon. If any preacher or superintendent does not receive a sufficient quantity, write me at once. Every official in the Church is behind Children's Day. Mr. Dietrich says: "The presiding elder sees that the preacher sees that the superintendent sees that the service is to be held in every church." Let all the big men lend a helping hand to these little women that are really doing this work for the Master.

SOMETHING FOR SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS TO READ.

The following paragraphs are extracts from the "minutes" of the Workers' Council meeting of a 100 per cent Southern Methodist Sunday School which the writer knows quite well. There is a good point here for some teachers to think over and talk over with God—note especially the concluding paragraph:

"Suggestions were asked for by the Superintendent whereby the efficiency standard of the school could be raised.

"The first suggestion was that the teachers remain with their classes during the entire session of the school.

"Another was that officers and teachers be present on or before the opening of the session. Discussion of this suggestion brought out the amazing fact that teachers often were responsible for their scholars not attending the sessions of the school. When seen standing on the outside of the church, and asked why they were not in their accustomed places in the auditorium, the scholars have replied, 'We are waiting for our teacher,' or 'We have no teacher.' Teacher, are you guilty of causing one of your scholars to remain on the outside while the Word of God is being taught within?

"Another suggestion was that the leaders of those who stand on the outside might be useful in bringing the others in if they were approached and asked to try to see if they could induce others to follow their example by going in and taking part in the exercises.

"Another suggestion was that teachers and officers be mailed cards each time they are absent, asking them if they can give a good excuse to God for neglecting His work.

"Another (and this by the pastor) was that each teacher and officer of the school make the following pledge: 'I'll never be absent from my place in the Sunday school unless I can give a good and valid excuse to my Lord.'"

TO THE PRESIDING ELDERS OF THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Dear Brethren: As requested by the Conference Board of Church Extension, I have appointed a representative of the Board for each district, which are as follows: Rev. J. T. McCafferty, Durant District; Rev. W. C. Carlisle, Corinth District; Rev. S. B. Myers, Aberdeen District; Rev. W. M. Campbell, Greenville District; Rev. W. M. Young, Columbus District; Rev. R. A. Tucker, Holly Springs District; Rev. H. G. Roberts, Sardis District. I hope that you will give these brethren an opportunity to represent our Church Extension work at an appropriate time. Do not give them a few minutes at the close of the Conference as is sometimes done. These brethren will have a supply of literature on hand for free distribution.

The Annual Conference by request of the Board set apart the second Sunday in May for beginning a campaign in the interest of the Galloway Conference Loan Fund. This fund now amounts to $1916.42, and we are anxious to increase it by the campaign this year to $5000. If only a little effort is made in each district the amount can be easily secured. We hope that the question will be before your district conference and that you will arrange a definite plan for this important work. W. S. LAGRONE.

DANGER FROM LITTLE WOUNDS.

A little cut or wound that looks trivial frequently develops into a serious and possibly fatal case of blood poisoning. Don't take any risk. Apply a little Gray's Ointment—it speedily heals the wound and leaves you safe and sound. Gray's Ointment is the time-tested cure for sores, boils, carbuncles, cuts, bruises, burns, and all skin abrasions and eruptions. It was discovered in 1820—for nearly a century an indispensable household remedy the country over. Keep a box in the house. It heals the little troubles and prevents the big ones. Only 25c a box—at druggists and it will save you many an ache and possibly a life. Get a free sample by writing W. F. Gray & Co., 806 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

NATURE'S BLOOD TREATMENT.
Medicine made from roots, herbs and barks which nature has placed at the disposal of man is better than strong mineral mixtures. Mineral medicines work dangerously on the delicate parts of the system, especially the stomach and bowels.
S. S. S. is guaranteed to be a purely vegetable remedy, possessing properties that build up all parts of the system, in addition to removing impurities and poisons from the blood. It cleanses the system and it's permanent. Get S. S. S. at any drug store. If yours is a peculiar case, write to the Swift Specific Co., Dept. Z., Atlanta, Ga.

A GOOD BEGINNING.

Dear Dr. Meek: On last Sunday, March 26, our popular presiding elder, Rev. Robt. Selby, was with me at the Muddy Springs Church for his last official visit as presiding elder. The original plan of this visit was arranged by the District Educational Campaign Committee, but the truth is his visit was of a three-fold nature: (1) to meet his preaching appointment for the second quarterly conference; (2) to meet the engagement made for him by the District Educational Campaign Committee; (3) to represent Emory University as the Commissioner for Mississippi.

At 11 o'clock Brother Selby delivered the strongest discourse on education it has heen my privilege to hear, and he also made a general statement concerning the new sphere of labor to which he has recently been appointed. This message made a deep impression on the congregation.

After partaking of a bountifully prepared dinner, we gathered in the church again for another service, and Brother Selby presented the cause of Emory University. He gave the people an opportunity to make a contrihution to the institution, and to our very great satisfaction a very liberal response was made. It was liberal in view of the fact that the congregation was small and that it was a rural church. Personally it is very gratifying to me as the pastor to know that Brother Selby hegan his public work as Commissioner for our new university in Atlanta with the Muddy Springs people and that they gave him such a liberal contrihution.

It is with deep regret that we will part with Brother Selby as our presiding elder, but I wish to congratulate hoth Emory University and Brother Selby on the appointment, and I feel sure that he will have the hearty co-operation of the people and that he will make a success of the task of raising $50,000 from the Methodists of Mississippi for the erection of The Lamar Law School building on the campus of Emory University.—F. B. Ormond, Pastor.

MY HIGH COMMISSION.

Dear Doctor: "Do you recall when you used to repeat "Our captain was as hrave a lad as ere Commission bore," and wondered what that big word meant? Well, sir, it has come to me in these latter days with great significance; for has not our "Beloved" hestowed such upon me, and have I not somewhere in the long past promised to "obey them that have the rule over me?" By the way, Doctor, who was it that wrote that Commission verse? I am convinced it wasn't either Hannah More or Mrs. Hemans because it has another which asks, "O, were you ne'er a schoolboy?" After careful search I am convinced that none of those fellows who wrote ahout the "Charge of the Light Brigade" or "War in Heaven" wrote it, but that one Anon or probably Mr. McGuffey was the author; at least, there's where I first got it; yet it is possihle that Mother Goose had some hand in the matter as there is a verse like this, "We charged upon a flock of geese and put them all to flight."

But to my honors—signed, sealed and delivered, it runs thus: "You are herehy commissioned and commanded to report to the Advocate, with such regularity as you may have at your disposal, all that comes under your knowledge concerning persons and things Methodistic in the upper end of the district."

Now what this commission shall mean to the churches, the brethren or the elder remains to be seen, but to the reporter (rather I should have written commissioner) it already brings a tremor, for he who undertakes such a task without a superahundance of adjectives and a skill to rightly apply them is treading on perilous ground; yea, is lining up with those fellows who rush in where angels are afraid to tread. Most assuredly, there are chances for cannons to the left and cannons to the right. But to my "Commission:" living at the hub, my information is gleaned from visitors, largely, so that much of it may be "they say," and perhaps should he taken with some grains of salt. Mine is not so easy a task as that of my quondam elder, for there are but two pastors in Vicksburg and those contiguous touch us at a long distance.

From the overflowed region we have these notes: the tall Sycamore of Anguilla was easily able to keep his head above water, and there has been no let up in his church enterprises. I've always said that all Alford needed was half a chance. Though for a time in the Baptist fold, Chapman must needs get skiff in readiness. He was in the city recently and reported that his garden was producing an ahundance of frogs. Some one told me that Foreman was still in the "fore"-front with his people; that, however, belongs to J. H., whether there be much Silver in or about his city. If memory serves me correctly this is Dr. Hopper's first residence on the hanks of the Father of Waters, hut if those people will only help him in his movements he will demonstrate that he can do some "preaching," as Brother Wiggins of saintly memory used to say; it has already gotten ahroad that he can, and he is herehy warned to be on his metal. His bailiwick extends over a shoestring of forty miles, much of which is like that in the region of Dvinsk. We have heard so much of Wells and Oak Ridge, that we are disposed to usurp authority and say, "Woe unto you when all men speak well of you."

The Bishop of the Port honored us with a visit during the week in the interest of his agency for Port Gibson Female College. It was a delightful evening, as we kept late hours talking of the days when he and I were younger. The Doctor has taken on the ruddy face of his youth, but that doesn't mean that he can't beat the boy of forty years ago in the pulpit; so I'm told on hest authority. It's a pleasure to report Sister Featherstun as greatly improved in health. The "Beloved" and his wife made us a delighted visit lately, and from the way they admired our surroundings I'd be afraid if I didn't know they would't afflict a brother wantonly. As he went to the Far West early in his ministry, I have not known much of him since his return. If Dr. Watkins may be quoted, he "loves to preach," and if our people are to serve as witnesses, he can do it. By the way, Doctor, if he sends in any spring poetry give it a careful censoring before final actlon.

As to Vicksburg, well, I wrote of it so recently that I'll wait for more to turn up. Suffice it to say that Roberts keeps his Ford on the clip—preaching in the waste places, hunting up the scattered flock, and doing the kind thing generally. Crawford Street is still open to the public with invitation to all to come. Last Sunday our congregation went well beyond the 200 mark, with the very noticeable feature that many young people were present.

From Fayette comes the message of a young itinerant in the home of Ware. There's where our scholarly DuBose got his start as a junior preacher. May young Ware duplicate! This last item is out of my territory, hut it was too good to keep; so I poached a little. Our district conference is soon to convene in the 'lower end' at Gloster, and we hope to see the Editor there. Until then au revoir—and be good. Trusting that I am entitled to the paper cap and new tin sword, I am yours,

T. B. HOLLOMAN,
March 29, 1916. Commissioner.

Calomel Makes You Sick, Ugh!
"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not salivate.
Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.
When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.
Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

NOTICE.

To the Delegates to the Newton District Conference.

Dear Brethren: It is our purpose on the occasion of the Newton district conference, which will convene at Rose Hill, Miss., on May 16, to furnish free conveyance from Hickory on the A. & V. Railroad, and from Pachuta on the N. E. Railroad, to every preacher and delegate who may desire it. In the case of delegates who may prefer to come through the country in their own conveyances, we wish to say that their horses will be taken care of without any cost to them. I would appreciate if every pastor in the district would at once ascertain as nearly as he can who are coming from his charge and send me their names. I hope to give later the schedules of the trains at Hickory and Pachuta. We hope to have a large attendance at this conference, and we request all to pray that it may be an occasion of spiritual power and helpfulness. H. R. McKEE.

APPRECIATORY RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, the congregation of Parker Memorial Church has learned with deep pain and sorrow of the death of our friend and former pastor, Rev. Hampton R. Singleton, therefore be it

Resolved, that we hereby express to Mrs Singleton and her children and all other members of his family, our sincerest sympathy, and pray that our God and the Father of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, to whom he so often pointed others in their bereavement and sorrow, may be with them now, and that they may find the full realization of the comforts of the blessed Gospel he so long and so faithfully preached.

Resolved, further, that a copy of this resolution be sent to Mrs. Singleton and a copy to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Lime-Loss in Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (January 17, 1913), was the following: "It has been many times stated that in tuberculosis or in the pretuberculosis stage an increased amount of calcium (lime) is lost both in the urine and feces. In fact, a demineralization has been thought to be a forerunner of the development of tuberculosis."

If tuberculosis is due to lime loss, the success of Eckman's Alterative in its treatment may be due, in part, to its content of a lime salt so combined with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

Always we have urged consumptives to attend strictly to matters of food, but often some effective remedial agent is needed. In many cases of apparent recovery Eckman's Alterative seems to have supplied this need. It contains no opiates, narcotics or habit forming drugs, so is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots

There's no longer the slighest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles as the prescription othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

ECHOES FROM THE CONGRESS ON CHRISTIAN WORK IN LATIN AMERICA.

Dear Sisters: I am just back from the Congress on Christian work in Latin America, held in Panama, and from the Reginal Conference in Havana. Both meetings were wonderful, full of information, and regnant with spiritual power. How I wish I could adequately give you a summary so that I might share with you the blessing that came to me. It was so big, so thrilling, so many facts crowded in upon me that I feel wholly unequal to the task.

Not all the delegates elected at the last Council Meeting were able to go, though I believe each made an earnest effort to do so. When we boarded the ship at New Orleans our party numbered ten. Miss Bennett, who made a very large contribution to the Congress in the report of her Commission on Woman's Work; Mrs. R. W. MacDonell, whose knowledge of the work in Mexico, as well as of the home Church, made her counsel most helpful; Mrs. Nat Rollins, Corresponding Secretary of the Northwest Texas Conference; Mrs. E. B. Chappell, editor of The Voice; Misses Case and Fox from Mexico; Miss Nutt, of New Orleans, formerly of Mexico; two visitors and myself made up the party. Miss Markey of Cuba joined us in Panama. The missionary whom we expected from Brazil was prevented from coming. One hundred and fifty-nine delegates from North America and Britain, and 147 delegates from Latin countries and about 100 visitors met in daily session for ten days.

The Commission reports on the following topics were presented in the day sessions: Survey and Occupation, Message and Method, Literature, Education, Woman's Work, the Church in the Field, Co-operation and Unity, and the Home Base. These Commission reports, together with the discussions upon them, will be printed in three volumes, and will furnish the best information about Latin America that is available. The cost of the three volumes, if ordered before May 1, is $2, carriage extra—after that time the cost will be $2.50, carriage extra. They will not be out of press before May or June. They should be available for Missionary Societies as they will be of constant use in programs.

The most of the Congress was carried on in three different languages, English, Spanish, and Portuguese. The Latin American delegates could nearly all understand or read English, so little had to be translated for them. We poor North Americans, though, were so ignorant of the Latin tongue that all the speeches of natives had to be translated into English for us. Though the company assembled from all parts of North America, the West Indies, South America, and a few representing British and German Societies, with all the varying temperaments which that implies, the spirit of unity and earnest endeavor to understand each the other's viewpoint was wonderful. After the first day, when we listened to the survey of the field and realized that whole countries had as yet only 25 missionaries, and no school, that great areas of the countries were without gospel work, that the Indians were almost wholly neglected, that millions of the 80,000,000 Latin Americans had no open Bible and no real chance to know Jesus Christ as a personal Savior, our hearts and minds were united in an effort to know just what must be done to possess the land for him. All through the Congress our hearts were thrilled by the recital of what has been done by the small force, by the transformation of the lives of thousands.

One special note was sounded often, that is, the need of more work to reach the women who have such a large influence. Perhaps the most eloquent appeals for the women workers were made by natives from Chile, Argentina, Brazil, Cuba, and Peru. All spoke strongly of the vast amount of work that can be done only by women, owing to the customs which largely forbid a minister visiting women. Another imperative need is for gospel literature to offset the great mass of bad literature. I cannot go on to speak of the needs or tell of the incidents of the meetings, but I trust you will read the various articles that will come out soon and will get the reports and use them in your meetings.

May God lead us all to more intelligent, more persistent prayer, and a larger faith! Most sincerely,

MABEL HEAD.

TO THE LOUISIANA FIRST VICE PRESIDENTS.

Natchitoches, La., Mar. 10, 1916.

Dear First Vice President:

Please read this letter at the next meeting of your Adult auxiliary and if you haven't a Y. P. auxiliary won't you organize one or write and tell me why you cannot organize? After reading this letter please have your adult auxiliary spend a few minutes in prayer for our young people and their missionary work.

The Letter.

Dear Young People:

I have just returned from our aunual meeting that was held in Ruston, and we had a most delightful and profitable session. I love every one of my young people and I was so pleased to meet the delegates from several young people's auxiliaries. Please plan right now to send one or more delegates to your district meeting. The representatives from the young people's auxiliaries were very faithful in attendance and eager to learn everything they could about their work.

One whole afternoon was given to the Y. P. and Junior work and you should have seen the bright, happy Y. P. and Juniors who attended this meeting. There were about fifty from Monroe and Minden, besides the large attendance of boys and girls from Ruston.

We had a rally song for the Young People and I wish you could have heard their sweet voices as they sang the three verses and the chorus:

"Hear the rally cry of Jesus,
'Follow me, disciple true,'
Do not fail in love and service,
For the Lord hath need of you."

Won't you keep this verse in your heart and live by it day by day? I would love to tell you more about this meeting, but I cannot pay the printer if I talk too much. We have 93 adult auxiliaries in Louisiana, but only 19 Y. P. M. S. Won't you help me to organize more Y. P. auxiliaries?

The Young People paid $68.75 on pledge in 1915. Will you not increase your pledge this year—and I will be so happy when I make my report next February at our annual meeting in Crowley—"$100 paid on pledge in 1916?"

I am sending you a simplified Standard of Excellence for our Young People's auxiliaries in Louisiana. Keep this before your young people at each meeting and work faithfully to have your auxiliary on the Roll of Honor. Any auxiliary making 50 credits each quarter will report to me and I will send you a ribbon each quarter with "Roll of Honor, 1916," printed on it. If you win three ribbons, your auxiliary will be on the Honor Roll banner displayed at our next meeting in Crowley, February, 1917.

Standard of Excellence.

Each Mission Study Class, 10.

Prompt and accurate quarterly reports, 10.

Week of Prayer observed (usually in Nov.), 10.

One delegate to Annual Conference in 1917, 10.

For an increase in membership, 5.

Dues paid for every member, 20.

Contribution to Council Pledge, 10.

Please make note of next item:

Have a call meeting at the end of each quarter of the adult auxiliary first vice president, the young people's first vice president, the corresponding secretary, and the treasurer, and make out your report and send promptly on the first of April, July, October, and January.

Ask God to bless your work and to help you realize what your faithfulness and loyalty mean to Him.

Sincerely yours,

Mrs. W. T. CUNNINGHAM.

WATCH YOUR HEART IF YOU WISH HEALTH.

Weak hearts are more common than weak stomachs, lungs, eyes, backs, or kidneys. Every time your heart misses a beat your life is being shortened. Heart disease, taken in its early stages, is quite easy to relieve; but every day that treatment is delayed the relief becomes more difficult.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy taken in conjunction with the Nervine, or alone, has proven very efficient in relieving heart disorders.

The Rev. Geo. W. Kiracofe, of Keller, Va., in this connection stated as follows:

"It has been many years since I was cured of heart trouble by Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I am just as sound as a dollar in that organ to-day. Before I took these remedies my breathing had been short and at times difficult; there were sharp pains about my heart, accompanied by fluttering which would make me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or worry would unnerve me. The trouble grew steadily worse. Doctors' prescriptions did me no good. But since using Dr. Miles' Remedies all symptoms were removed and have never returned since."

If you suspect that you have heart trouble avoid all dangerous delays.

It costs you nothing to try these remedies if you are not benefited. All you have to do is to return the empty bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money.

Woman's Crowning Glory

is Beautiful Hair—coveted by all, but possessed by few. If you have allowed your hair to become coarse, stiff, streaked with gray or void of its original lustre, the trouble lies in the absence of the natural hair oil. There can be no life without food, so unless the hair is well fed with proper oil it cannot be expected to retain its lustre and beauty.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer, when applied to the scalp, will restore those ugly, grizzly hairs to their natural color and at the same time leave the hair light and fluffy.

The tremendous success of La Creole Hair Dressing has encouraged a large number of imitations. The merit of this preparation has been proven through fifty years continuous use; and just as counterfeit money never reaches the same high plane of value as the genuine, so none of the imitations of "La Creole" Hair Dressing ever attain the peculiar value of the original. Ask for "La Creole" Hair Dressing and refuse to accept any substitute. For sale by all dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van-Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

You will find, as life goes on, that the amount of time you spend alone with God, and with your own soul, has no little to do with your comfort and your strength and your fruitfulness.—Dr. Alexander Whyte.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE.

You can do it in three weeks and thereby renew your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds your body contains eighty pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days), and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully; then sign and mail it:

Shivar Springs,
Box 17-G, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

Okolona Ct., North Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our first quarterly conference was held on Feb. 26 and our presiding elder, Brother J. W. Bell, was present and gave us two sermons full of thought, and edifying to all present. Our work is on an upward trend along all lines. We reported two Sunday schools at that conference, but since then another has been organized and another will be organized on the first Sunday in April. We have two Ladies' Aid Societies, doing fairly good work. Our parsonage at Okolona was sold, and, after all indebtedness was settled, the committee bought another, cut in a little village called Wren, with no indebtedness, and we have a movement on foot for remodeling it. The prospects for a prosperous year are very bright. The people have been very nice and kind to us, indeed. The pantry is watched, and when lacking any of the necessities, it is replenished by some kind friend. We have a choice people to serve. We are expecting larger and greater things here on Okolona Circuit. Pray for us.—C. R. A. Brantley, P. C.

Sicily Island, La.

Dear Brother Meek: While I can not report the progress equal to that of Brother Means, I have somewhat to say concerning conditions in these parts. Fifty-three hours after placing my horse, cow, pigs, chickens, and household belongings in a car, I reached Sicily Island, the headquarters of my present charge. Along the way there was some bumping and shaking up, but I was kindly received, and, as my wife arrived two days later, we soon had matters adjusted, and I began my circuit of six appointments; but when I had completed my second round, without cabinet agreement, I was made a station preacher. I trust that this new experience has not disqualified me, as the station work was of short duration. I think there is evidence of improved spiritual conditions here and the breezes which have constantly blown since my coming have stimulated our people to activity. On March 21, while about four miles from home arranging for the repairs of the Pine Hill Church, which was built in 1857, while T. H. McClendon and T. J. Upton were in charge, there was evidence of an approaching storm, and before I could reach the parsonage and prepare for it, it came with great force, of more than one hundred power. The wreckage I hope will not hinder the work in hand, as both young and old seemed to enjoy the occasion, which was the fifty-fifth birthday of this scribe, and he was given a nice suit of clothes including underwear and an overcoat. Upon the presentation of the gift, I assured my people, in the language of a former editor of the Advocate, Dr. J. W. Boswell, that I was not a "two-feed man," for if I had a better, I would wear it; and since extra feed had failed to improve appearance, I hoped the new suit would prove successful.

The water has somewhat subsided, the trains are running, and I am again a circuit preacher, and am writing from Vidalia, where I am to preach to-night and to-morrow.—W. J. Porter, P. C.

Grenada, Miss.

At the second quarterly conference, at Grenada, Miss., there were 250 persons present. The stewards reported the presiding elder paid one-half his salary for the year, the pastor paid to date, and all money in the treasury for the next month's salary. The church has raised about $10,000 for Grenada College, more than $2000 of this cash. All of the assessment for Home and Conference Missions paid. The superintendent of the Sunday school reported the best school in the history of the Church, and [illegible] Classes had been [illegible]. The Women's Missionary Society [illegible] interest showing and did the [illegible] duties. The Young Ladies' Society [illegible] the church with [illegible] and silver individual communion [illegible], and [illegible] more than $100 in the treasury toward buying a [illegible] for the church. The [illegible] the personnel [illegible] organized, and the church is in the hands of a [illegible] Dr. [illegible], pastor of Calhoun Memorial church, Jackson. The best and most [illegible] are busy and busy. My, but Grenada sentiment is [illegible].

Grenada College was reported to be flourishing condition by President Counciss. Correspondence [illegible] could not be present, so the report was read by President Counciss. It was a most encouraging report. All the College girls were [illegible] and other religious work. Most interesting and entertaining. The stewardess and other members of the Conference were [illegible]. The two hours conference was closed with a testimonial meeting, and we entered into it [illegible] all present. What a delightful occasion it was! The editor rightly says, Grenada also Corinth and Tupelo have no monopoly on greatness.—H.

Leland, Miss

Dear Dr. Meek: Our revival has been in progress [illegible] since March 19 and will close tomorrow evening, when Brother Klein and his party will go to assist Rev. C. A. Battle, at Baton Rouge, La. Ours has been a great meeting. Great hunger of the Holy Spirit's power and presence, made possible by the faith and earnestness of this congregation coupled with that of Brother Klein and his workers.

Nothing sensational, nothing of the high pressure type was brought into use, but there was a deepening of the spiritual life of the Church and the salvation of the unsaved was seen. The Wisdom sisters sang the Gospel messages with peculiar power and sweetness. Mr. Boyd directed the choir, and Mrs. Boyd played the piano. Brother Klein sang the hearts of the people of Leland in every message that he brought. He is an honest, sincere and powerful [illegible] worker. Mr. Boyd also brought many helpful messages of song.

All the other departments of endeavor were [illegible] to the good results of the meeting. Several have already been received into the Church and others are coming. Such a meeting is helpful. God [illegible] as we will. We consider that we are forming an [illegible] and consecrated, faithful workers in our midst. Great good has been accomplished in Leland by their coming to us, and our prayers will accompany them wherever they may go.

CHURCH AND PARSONAGE BURNED.

Dear Dr. Meek: The church and parsonage at Moorhead were burned last night, March 27, a little after 12 o'clock. We had just closed a great service with a large congregation, and had held a very fine quarterly conference a couple of hours or so before. The fire originated in one of the flues. Brothers Ruff, and T. J. Jones' family, who occupied the house with the pastor, succeeded in saving pretty well all their belongings, with the aid of the heroic efforts of their friends. The elder escaped from the conflagration barefooted, bareheaded and minus collar, tie, umbrella, etc., and the first thing he hit when out in the street was the bottom of a hole of water. As soon as the alarm was given, the alert, nimble-footed pastor beat the elder to the only two pairs of shoes in the room, and by a sad mistake went into the latter's pumps and was out and gone about the fire, and the elder utterly collapsed when he undertook to don the pastor's shoes and found them all too brief; so he fled as best he could.

The church and parsonage were both pretty well covered with insurance. Robert H. Ruff is doing a mighty work there, and it is so unfortunate, as it seems, to have any interruption of such growing and expanding movements as he has on foot. He has just abont doubled his membership this year. The whole community is humming and throbing with new life and power. He is doing what I have longed to see done—and have striven to do myself for years—made the Christian life the rational, normal, attractive, free, radiant life for every man to live—showing it is not a life of asceticism, proscriptions, oppressive and direful conflicts with morbid and petulant awakenings of a timid, fearful and shrinking conscientiousness. The Christian life is the finest rationality—why doubt it? It is the sanest philosophy ever written—why argue it? It is the fulness and harmony of all light, virtue, truth, music, laughter and song. We express tne sincere hope that the good people of that growing little town will rally to the cause of their people and soon rebuild a larger, better and more satisfactory home for their Sunday school and church.

Nothing less than a $12,000 or $15,000 brick structure will answer the needs or be in keeping with the future strides of the town. Brother Ruff is a fine, clean, strong leader and he has some noble, capable, efficient men and women in his church who will stand by him in carrying into effect any big, sensible plans which will meet their needs in providing for the present generation.

Please announce that the Winona District Conference will meet at Itta Bena, April 25-27. This change is made by the unanimous courtesy of the Itta Bena pastor and his good board of stewards.

Editorial

"How many lifted hands still plead
Along life's way;
The old sad, sad story of human need
Reads on for aye."

Nothing is so alluring in its prospects and so disappointing in its results as a life of sin.

Beware of hunting the easy way. The path to all high and noble things is upward and difficult. He who is faithful to his Lord cannot escape fierce conflicts.

Liberalism in theology and worldliness in conduct in most cases march side by side. When a man becomes loose in his faith he usually soon becomes loose in every other respect. There may be some exceptions, but this is the general rule.

Many are hanging laurels of rhetoric upon the brow of Francis Asbury; but a nobler way to honor him would be to reincarnate his apostolic spirit. Never did the world need ministers of his heroic mold more than it does to-day.

George Eliot said: "The darkest night that ever fell upon the earth never put out the stars." Quite true! And no matter how black may be the clouds that gather about the Christian, God's promises still stand, and heaven is ahead.

Flattery skilfully used will ensnare most men. It is one of the favorite reliances of crafty schemers. One essential qualification for leadership is to be able to look past all such artful talk and see a situation and the persons connected with it in their true light.

Choosing the hymns for a preaching service is a matter of much importance. No choir on the planet is competent to select them. They should fit the sermon, and the pastor should pick them out with great care. And they ought to be sung to tunes that the people composing the congregation know or can easily learn.

Faith, prayer and personal work have wrought wonders in the past for the salvation of men and the upbuilding of the Kingdom, and are still capable of doing so. They are the methods that fit everywhere and that never wear out. If your church is not in a healthful spiritual state and is not saving souls, the thing to do is to try these tested methods yet more earnestly.

Some people seem to think that to be invertebrate and mushy is to be pious. Christ, our great exemplar, certainly did not belong to any such class. He went to the cross for his convictions. And the same uncompromising spirit brought St. Paul a martyr's crown. The men who have lifted the world upward toward the light have been men who stood resolutely and fearlessly for what they conceived to be right.

AN UNWISE POLICY.

One of the most foolish endeavors of this time is the effort that is being made to drag the Church into everything. There ought to be a great deal of Christianity outside of the Church. Governments ought to be Christian, but the Church ought not to operate them. Secular newspapers ought to be clean and stand for Christian principles, but this does not mean that the Church should take them over and run them. Society ought to be Christian and its entertainments pure and wholesome, but it should not be inferred from this that every church needs to set up in the amusement business. Politics should be dominated by the ethics of Christ, but the Church ought not to undertake to effect this result by going into politics. When the individuals composing society are made Christians, they will set in motion many moral agencies that can do their work best apart from the Church. To divert the energies of the Church from her one work of ministering spiritually to the souls of men will in the long run weaken Christianity in the Church and in every other activity of human civilization into which it needs to go. To try to make the Church dominate everything is to go back to the position of the Romish hierarchy.

WHAT CHRIST PRAYED FOR.

Protestant scholars and writers have for centuries been stating that in his wonderful prayer, recorded in the seventeenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. John, the "oneness" of his disciples that our Lord prayed for was a spiritual unity of the truly saved, resulting from the indwelling of Christ in their hearts, and not an organic union in one visible Church of all the saved and unsaved that have been gathered together in the various Christian denominations of earth. This latter view is the one that has long been held and advocated by the Roman Catholics, and which Protestant leaders have decried as wholly unwarranted and preposterous. In the light of these facts, is it not rather surprising to see distinguished leaders in Protestant denominations placing substantially the same construction upon this petition in Christ's remarkable supplication that the Romish Church has been doing through the ages, and using it as a plea for movements in the interest of such projects looking to Church union as they may happen to favor? Certainly it would be so, if anything were surprising amid the confusion of these perplexing times.

Does any one think that this is merely an utterance springing from the ultra-conservatism of the Editor of the Advocate? If so, we invite his attention to the following recent statement from the pen of Dr. G. B. Winton, who ought to be pretty good authority with the "liberals" and "progressives:"

"If there were no denominational lines, language and racial diversities would soon produce them. To denounce them as sinful and contrary to our Lord's high-priestly prayer, is to miss the whole point. The unity of believers is one of spirit, not necessarily or primarily of form. An army must be divided into infantry, cavalry, and artillery units, and these subdivided into lessor units still. We need not offend against the spirit of unity because we work in different camps. Denominations should be looked upon as working devices, and shifted, divided, united, exterminated or created as the exigencies of the case demand."

DR. STEEL'S LETTER.

We are publishing this week a characteristically entertaining communication from Dr. S. A. Steel, of Columbia, S. C. As a letter-writer for the public, if Dr. Steel has any peer in Southern Methodism, we do not know who he is.

We have had sciatica, and we can testify that our gifted friend has not overstated the facts concerning it. Indeed, we scarcely think that it is within the range of human possibility to do that.

We are largely in accord with Dr. Steel on the subject of union with the Northern Methodists, and we are inclined to think if it should come to pass in anything like the form of a complete merging we shall be ready to join him in hunting a shelter in some other ecclesiastical fold. Possibly, however, the exodus, in that event, will be large enough to keep a branch of Southern Methodism going.

The Doctor puts his opinion concerning the time limit into the scale against ours. If it were merely a matter of opinion, there is no doubt which way the scales would tip. The prestige of the Church's most brilliant preacher would cause his view to far outweigh any notion of ours. But facts are stubborn things—nobody's opinion can upset them. As we have previously said, we do not believe that it can be successfully denied that with the time limit Southern Methodism has fully held her own in all the leading cities of the South. It must also be admitted that in the North Methodist pastors are given to advertising for exchanges of appointments in a manner that indicates that the spirit of the itinerancy has been largely impaired among them. Think also of what a loss it would have been to Southern Methodism if Dr. Steel's golden eloquence, which has blessed the Church in so many States, had been confined to a single locality! When the Church has an especially good thing in the person of some man of unusual endowments, we do not think it is a bad idea to pass the blessing around.

The historic old Capitol of Mississippi is still to stand, the late Legislature having appropriated $125,000 toward repairing it. Much credit for saving this noted old structure is due to the patriotic women of the Magnolia State. All honor to them for this splendid service!

ADRIFT.

Things seem strange. There is no recognition of forms or features. A large section of our civilization, covering the greater part of Europe and some of Asia and Africa, is in a whirlpool. The momentum is almost beyond measure, and power to control them is none.

Is there some rule to which [illegible] the Prince Minister Master of [illegible] is not willing and able to [illegible] that the Most High God [illegible] and to use reason [illegible] into the world to save and to bless [illegible] lost. God sent his Church forth into the world to call men to this Rule and promise and salvation, and not these men in repentance and for refuge. But the Church has failed hard to the civilization. The great numbers of people great wealth, and great knowledge, have corrupted her, in some places paralyzed her. The one hope is in the awakening and leveling of the Church, that once more she may call to the men and to the civilization, that they turn unto God, and accept him who declared that he came for a time like this. And thus the wreck of civilization and the men in it may yet be saved or if it be too late [illegible] Presbyterian Church, North and South, are as a single organism to make aggressively for territorial Christianity in the West, with greater success than those of any other denomination in the United States. We expect to say that not a few Methodist journals in the country would be glad to see their neutral or contemplative work in this great warfare. Of all the denominational weeklies that come to our table, we are inclined to give the palm of highest excellence to The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia.

nominationalism on the field of missions is bringing to the mind of churchmen an answering awareness of the weakness of denominationalism in the Church at home. One speaker, in discussing the question of Church unity, turned to the chairman, Dr. Speer, reminding him of a statement he had heard him make some two years ago to the effect that by the end of the century there would be no Presbyterian Church at all. He asked the chairman whether he was still of the same mind. "I am," promptly replied Dr. Speer, "except that I would now shorten the time."

"This feeling that our present denominational order of the Church must give place to another order wherein the prayer of Christ for the unity of His followers may be answered, was one of the most pervasive sentiments of the Panama Congress, as it is of any meeting of present-day missionary leaders. For the conviction is steadily deepening that only a united Church can evangelize the world."

PALMETTO LETTER.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D.

No sir, I did not say, "Hip, hip, hurrah!" I said, "Hip, hip, ouch! O-U-C-H!" Sciatica, man, left leg, hip to heel, out of commission, can't even kick, except with one hoof, but that is "steel" shod! I was in bed a month, am now in a rolling chair, have a "valet" to push me around. I have one of the best doctors in a city which prides itself on having the best in every profession. After a brief examination, he said: "Toothache in your leg." "Don't tell him that," said the fireside angel, "he never had toothache, and can't appreciate it." "A knife-blade stuck into your hip joint, and slowly twisted," he said. "Ouch!" I yelled, "get it out quick." "It won't come out quick," he said, "it will be a slow recovery." The rascal is a Job's comforter, tender-hearted as a woman, yet when necessary can cut a leg off without a tremor. Drawing himself up to his full height, he said, "I am the Czar in the sickroom. My orders are to be obeyed." "Talk as big as you please, but get busy," I said. And he did. As soon as I could be put on the rolling chair, he sent me for an X-ray examination. The specialist stretched me on the table, and while I punctuated the perfomance with a liberal lot of "ouches," he shoved his electric camera over me, turned a crank, and the big yellow flame crackled in the globe, and painted my inside on the photographic plate. What do I care if they do look me through and through with their scientific lens. Whatever record leaps to light, my heart shall know no fear. Result, "Absolutely normal in your inside." "Ouch! then for pity sake, get me normal on my outside." May you never have sciatica!

I am rounding out my four years in what has been one of the most delightful pastorates I ever served. I am just where I could do my best work, when I must turn it over to another, perhaps a better worker, but who will have his own ideas, and will hardly push mine. I have the highest respect for the opinions of the astute editor of the Advocate, but I claim the right of an American and a Methodist to differ with him about the pastoral term. I wish we had the unlimited pastorate, where a man who can do things would have a chance. We had Rev. Dr. Tippey, of New York, here at the laymen's convention, and he outlined for us a pastoral program, with much of which I was already familiar. "Now," he said, "that is a seven-year program. You probably will not get results commensurate with these plans until the seventh year; then they will be large and permanent." Some one in the audience asked him how to work such a program in a short pastorate. He shrugged his shoulders, and said, "It can't be done." And it can't. "Start in," he said, "as if you were to stay a hundred years." We have men as able as any in other denominations, but until a Methodist pastor can stay longer than four years in one charge, the man who can stay as long as he makes good will have the advantage. But there is not much likelihood of a change, and there are not many of us who will follow "Dick" into Episcopal pastures on account of it. Our Methodism is made of a tougher fibre. Just forty years ago, when I was a young pastor in Richmond, Va., I was given to understand that if I would consent for Bishop Whittle to lay his hands on my head, I would immediately receive a call to an Episcopal Church, then vacant, with a salary of $5,000 a year, just double what I was getting. "What is the matter with Bishop Dogget's hands?" I asked, "they are good enough for me." They are still, but I did tell Bishop Guerry, Episcopal Bishop of South Carolina, that if Thomas, and Tillett (Tillett-et tu Brute!) and Jim Lee, and Jack Moore, and that set, bring about "organic union" with the Northern Methodist Church, I might need attention. He said I should have it. I am a Southern Methodist - short pastorate and all.

Two new books are on my desk, sent me by their writers. The first is a novel, "The Traitor's Son," by Mrs. Ruth Shartel McVoy, wife of one of our well-known Methodist pastors, now in Huntsville, Ala. It is a beautiful story, well told, pure as a mountain stream, sweet as a rose in June. Brimful of history and engaging romance, it is the very kind of fiction we need to offset the fetid stuff being sent broadcast over the country as "literature." I commend this book. No, it is not McVoy's homilies in his wife's gown and Easter hat. It is a true woman's tale of a noble man and a charming girl, and worthy to be read by all.

The other book is "The Life of David Morton," by Bishop Hoss. Any book by Bishop Hoss would be worthy of attention. In some respects he is our best writer. We may almost say of Hoss what Sidney Smith said of Macauley, "He is a book in breeches." But in writing the life of Dr. Morton, he had a splendid subject, and has given us a biography as instructive as it is entertaining. It will make all our Methodists proud to read the record of this faithful servant of the Church, and stimulate a deeper interest in the work we have to do. I could tell many stories of the Kentucky Secretary. I was his pastor, and knew him well, and loved him greatly.

Ouch!

Columbia, S. C.

BY WAY OF EMPHASIS.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Advocate of March 30 was full of good things. You are certainly giving us a great paper, and it is doing a great work.

I heartily commend everything in that issue, but there are a few things of such importance just now that I feel that I must mention them.

1. I would like to exhort after your comment on "Other Things than Money to be Considered." But you reached the climax, and I would not detract from your wise and timely words on Church union. When I read Dr. W. W. Pinson's communication in the Methodist Review for January on the subject of Church Union, I swelled up with such a spirit of resistance that I did not get back to normal until I read your editorial. For fear Dr. Pinson may not have seen that issue, send him a marked copy for me, and tell him there are millions of devoted Christians who do not agree with him. I fear he is doing harm to the cause of Christ while he is seeking to help it.

2. The article entitled "The Spirit of the Methodist Pioneers" struck me very forcibly. The Lord give us that spirit throughout our borders in the ministry, and we will take the world! The age in which we live is making things so easy for us and we are going at such a gate that we forget the real spirit of our mission and are substituting organization for consecration. The Lord said, "As the Father hath sent me, even so send I you;" and Paul said, "As much as in me is." Are we, with all we have, on the altar?

3. The utterance under the caption "Some Red-Figure Dates," by Rev. J. C. Park, should stir us up to do our best for Grenada College and Emory University, and I believe we will do it. A few more calls like that will wake up the sleeping ones and put us all doing things worth while.

4. As to "Leaving the Methodist Ministry," there is no cause for alarm. Have we not been furnishing preachers for other Churches for years? This is no sign of decay or of dying. There are some who cannot stand the high levels that we maintain. Our wonderful growth gives us an ample supply, and then some to spare.

5. "Christian Science," by Mrs. J. M. Allen, is to the point and a timely statement. All the record of that false cult's teaching is as contradictory of God's blessed Word as this. "Christian Science" is a contradiction of every vital principle and doctrine of Christianity, and we must lift up a warning voice or the blood of souls will be upon us. Give us another article, Sister Allen.

6. And last but not least, "Is it a Case of Self-Defense?" is a needed warning to the Church. We had as well take a firm stand and give trumpet blasts from the housetops in defense of our position on Christian Education, for we have to contend with free-thinkers, higher-critics, and infidel millions, and these will be a menace for years to come.

The position of Southern Methodism and the fight she is making for Christian Education is the turning point in the history of all the Churches. The eyes of the world are upon us and thousands of the truest and best of earth are praying for our success.

Success to you and the Advocate.

Fraternally,

Drew, Miss. W. S. LAGRONE.

MARTHA ANDREWS CLEVELAND.

(In loving memory.)

Away from the city's confusion and crowd
We tenderly carried her garlanded shroud,
And far in the woodlands we mournfully moved
To make her a grave in the country she loved.

And bright was the springtime and blithe were the birds;
Our stricken hearts only, too saddened for words,
Were silently brooding in longing and pain
O'er days that were not, which could ne'er come again!

And through the long, winding, leaf-canopied road,
We slowly went onward, our hearts' precious load
To lay down to rest where in graves old and deep
Her ancestors lie in their peaceful, last sleep.

And so of her life-work, one says it is done?
Ah no, her true labors have only begun!
For now she has entered the heavenly gates,
Her mission eternal dear Martha awaits.

Some service for others, of radiant worth;
It may be—her loved occupation of earth—
Her gifted pen, quickened, one day will indite
A record the angels may ask her to write!

For, Friend of my girlhood, in truth I feel sure
Your days are with Jesus, forever secure;
Your mortal dust only lies under the sod—
You bask in the sunshine, in Country of God!

BISHOP KILGO IS RIGHT.

By the Editor.

The following is from the Arkansas Methodist of March 30:

"We regret that our good Bishop Kilgo wrote an open letter to the Raleigh Christian Advocate belittling and discrediting 'the simultaneous evangelistic campaign.' He says: 'I pray daily for a genuine revival of religion, and labor as I pray, but I would have vastly more hope if I heard the note of deep agony throughout the Church and the renewal of vows to God, than I do when I hear of dates and programs and shares and slogans.' If the good Bishop is so situated that he can know and feel what is taking place in the Church, he will soon realize that there is in connection with this campaign a real agony of soul among our preachers such as has not prevailed for many years. He says: 'One thing is finally settled, and this you may as well adjust yourself to, namely, if we ever save sinners abroad or sinners at home, it will be through penitential prayer, complete consecration, and agonizing labors inspired and governed by the Holy Ghost. He may move you to start a meeting in your church next Wednesday night at prayer meeting, and I advise you to do as he directs regardless of the date of simultaneity.' Surely that is exactly what our preachers will do. By agreeing to work and pray together they are seeking the help and guidance of the Holy Spirit, and it has never been intimated nor suggested that the campaign could or would succeed without divine guidance. It is in effect a tarrying at Jerusalem for an enduement of the Spirit. It is scriptural and rational."

We differ with Dr. Millar concerning Bishop Kilgo's utterance, which we think was wise and timely. It may be that there are times in a single city, within the bounds of which conditions are much the same, when it is advantageous to bring on a simultaneous group of revival meetings; but to undertake by any kind of general pressure to impose such a program at one and the same time upon an entire Annual Conference, embracing hundreds of churches in which the circumstances widely differ, is so obviously impracticable that argument to show the inexpediency of such a scheme is scarcely needed. The opportuneness of the time at which a meeting is held, as everybody knows, has much to do with its success or failure, and since, as a rule, a church undertakes to have but one series of revival services a year, it is a matter of large importance to make this special effort at a season when the local situation is favorable. To dragoon or entice a pastor into attempting such a special work in the face of adverse conditions just to have him in a "simultaneous campaign," when it perhaps means to throw away an opportunity that could be made to count for much later in the year, is an injustice both to him and his church. Something more than Dr. Millar's ipse dixit is needed to show that such an indiscriminate procedure is either "Scriptural or rational."

The occasion when it is best to hold a meeting is a matter that should be left to the pastor and his congregation, seeking, as it is their privilege to do, the leadership of the Holy Spirit in the determination of that question. Our General and Conference Evangelistic Committees should learn to keep within their proper bounds and not undertake to interfere with the prerogatives of the individual pastor and church. Already the rights of the preacher in charge have been encroached upon until he scarcely has any left. Dr. Frank M. Thomas, the brilliant pastor of our Fourth Avenue Church at Louisville, Ky., did not overstate the case concerning the present situation of the pastor when in a recent address he gave vent to the following (slightly varied) parody:

"Boards to the right of him,
Boards to the left of him,
Laymen in front of him,
Superintendents behind him
Volleyed and thundered.
His not to make reply,
His but to work and sigh,
While all the Church wondered."

We do not like to preach a doctrine of insubordination, but if we were a pastor and these outside agencies, no matter what their entitlements, were to come to us, telling us when we must do this or that, we would respectfully say to them: "Gentlemen, I am in charge of this work; under the law laid down in the Discipline, I am responsible to God and the Church for the proper and successful administration of its affairs; and since I must bear this responsibility, I must be free to meet it by the faithful use of my own judgment and other gifts as best I can. If I can not be trusted to take care of the interests of the Church in this field, let the authorities take me away and put some one else here who can." We are, for the most part, against the multiplication of organizations in the Church, but we are rather inclined to think that we would be willing to join a society for the protection of the rights of the pastor in the management of his charge.

Another objection to the "simultaneous evangelistic campaigns" that are being conducted in Southern Methodism is that they have adopted the Lenten Season as the one time of the year when these meetings shall be carried on. That this arrangement will ultimately fasten upon our Church erroneous notions concerning the value of Lent and perhaps line us up with the Roman Catholic and Episcopal Churches in a formal observance of it every year, is a probability that we may well fear. Already the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, with which, we regret to say, our Church is connected, is trying to get all the religious bodies related to it to adopt the observance of "Holy Week," and certain "days" and various kinds of prayers and forms appropriate to them are being paraded in Methodist journals. We have for decades been criticising the liturgic Churches for their much ado about Lent and the ridiculousness of the views which have sprung up among their followers concerning it—are we at last about to come to their position and to celebrate its return annually with special religious ceremonies or services? As we see it, the present trend is undoubtedly strongly in that direction.

There is no man in Southern Methodism who is giving out sounder utterances, or who as a chief pastor is leading more wisely, than Bishop Kilgo. In both his preaching and work of administration he is putting the emphasis on spiritual things, where it needs to be placed. With flaming zeal, he is going through the Church, leading hundreds of souls to Christ and kindling the revival flame on many an altar on which it had died out. He is a Bishop of the Asburyan type, who cares little for the mere trappings of office, and who counts the accompanying power of the Spirit of God in his work as the thing most to be sought and prized. Would that we had more leaders like him! If we did, we would have more hope of seeing speedily dawn a brighter and better day for Southern Methodism, because of an increasing holiness and spiritual power among our people.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

Rev. A. L. Harper, pastor at Sibley, La., has a large work. He is full of energy. He and his stirring wife are on the road to success. Brother Harper recently came to us from the M. E. Church, but it was like coming back home.

Rev. W. J. Newsom, in charge of the Calhoun Circuit, is quite cheerful and is looking forward to a prosperous year. He has made a good beginning. The parsonage has been newly furnished and Sister Newsom knows how to keep it and how to help in the work of the Church. Brother Newsom is a fine man and has an excellent people to serve.

Farmerville and Marion are served by Rev. J. F. Waltman. They are each good business towns on the railroad and have splendid public schools, Prof. Deloney being in charge at Farmerville, and Prof. Terry at Marion. Prof. J. B. Noy is the Parish Superintendent of Education.

Rev. J. G. Sloan is serving Gibsland for the second year. His people speak well of him. There are some excellent families in our church here. Brother Harrison has charge of the interesting Sunday school. Brother C. A. Berry, the depot agent, is an active worker in the church and Sunday school. Prof. E. D. Shaw has charge of the large public school at Gibsland, and is also one of the Sunday schools teachers.

EASTER SUNDAY—MISSIONARY RALLY DAY.

To the Pastors and Laymen of the Mississippi Conference.

Dear Brethren: We desire to call attention to the following paragraph from the report of your Conference Board of Missions, which was adopted at the last session of our Annual Conference, held at Laurel:

"We respectfully recommend the observance of Easter Sunday (April 23) as Missionary Rally Day, at which time it is expected that a missionary offering be taken. We suggest that a missionary sermon be preached the Sunday preceding."

We trust that this resolution will be acted upon in every pastoral charge where practicable. If so desired, the offering may be divided between home and foreign missions. We have in our Conference fifty-five preachers who are serving mission appointments on very meager salaries, and many of these brethren are sorely in need of funds at this time. In what more fitting way could we celebrate the anniversary of our Lord's resurrection than by making a thank offering for the world's evangelization?

Yours in the Master's cause,
W. H. LaPRADE, Chairman,
M. M. BLACK, Secretary.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

Rev. John W. Robertson, of Cochrane, Ala., has our thanks for two subscriptions from his charge. Concerning the situation in his field, he says: "Our work is moving along finely, indeed, in some respects this charge led the Columbus District in the reports for the first quarter. This record was made possible by the hearty co-operation given the pastor. We are expecting a year of progress in all departments."

Rev. T. J. Halfacre, of Artesia, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 8 new and 2 renewal subscriptions. He has completed his quota of the 165 new subscriptions that the Columbus District is expected to raise. Brother Halfacre says: "Everything is progressing favorably in this charge. We are looking forward to a successful year. The people continue to send good things to the parsonage. They seem never to become weary in their good works."

Rev. J. R. Bright, our efficient pastor at Friar's Point, Miss., forwarded us on April 1 a club of 10 subscriptions, 4 of which are new. He states that this good work in behalf of the Advocate was done by Mrs. George S. Robinson, to whom we extend our hearty thanks. The Editor has a tender spot in his heart for this historic old town on the Mississippi, having been the recipient of many kindnesses at the hands of our people there when he was presiding elder of the Greenville District.

A recent issue of The Banner Democrat, of Lake Providence, La., contained an extended account of a program of public exercises rendered by the Young People's Missionary Society at that place. This society was organized by Mrs. C. C. Miller soon after Brother Miller was assigned to that field. It embraces in its membership both young ladies and young men, and is said to be in a most prosperous condition. On the interesting occasion referred to Sister Miller delivered the opening address, which is stated to have been remarkably impressive. She is gifted both as a writer and speaker.

In ordering the Advocate to come to her at Montevallo, Ala., Mrs. Robert S. Woodward says: "Since my girlhood, in 1856, I have read the New Orleans Christian Advocate. In 1861 I married Rev. Robert S. Woodward of the old Alabama Conference and have enjoyed the paper from Mr. Gillespie down to the present incumbent. Our Bishops, and most of the other editors, I knew personally. These courageous knights of the quill waged a strong battle for the right. In 1876 my husband transferred to the Mississippi Conference and the Advocate came to Natchez, Vicksburg, Brookhaven, Yazoo City, and Meridian, from which last place he passed to his reward. He was for 21 years a member of the Alabama Conference and for 21 years a member of the Mississippi Conference." Blessings on this long-time reader of the Advocate! When a mere youth the Editor went to Whitworth College to witness the graduation of a sister, and he distinctly remembers an address which he heard Dr. Woodward deliver on that interesting occasion.

WHAT THE CHURCH BELLS SAY.

John G. Cronbach.

Dong, dong! Dong, ding, dong!
Oh, what do the Church Bells say?
"Yes, tis Sunday, God's own day.
Keep it holy; sing and pray,
And be happy all the day."

Ding, dong, dong, dong, ding!
Chime the bells not far away:
"Sunday school," they all do say;
"Yes, to Church you go to-day,
And at home you must not stay."

Dong, dong! Ding, dong, dong!
Peal the bells, as if at play:
"Scatter sunshine along the way,
Visit those who've gone astray,
Bring some one to Church to-day."

Dong, ding, dong, dong, dong!
Listen! Now what do they say:
"Hasten, yes, do not delay—
Spread the Gospel best you may:
Win some soul for Christ to-day!"

THE MAN ON HORSEBACK.

On March 31, 1816, or just one hundred years ago, there passed from earth to his reward in heaven a noted man who was familiarly called the "Man on Horseback," because during the years of his labor he traveled over 240,000 miles on the backs of faithful horses. Just think, this one man rode up and down through the forests of America until he had traveled a distance equivalent to almost ten times around the earth! His name was Francis Asbury, and the great Methodist Church in all America stands to-day as a memorial of his unceasing labors. It is a curious coincidence that Francis Makemie, founder of Presbyterianism in this country, should also have borne the same first name as the founder of Methodism in America.

Francis Makemie was born in Ireland at a date not known and died in 1708, thirty-seven years before Francis Asbury was born. The latter was born in England in 1715, in a little village near Birmingham. In those early days of his boyhood he doubtless ran and played just like others of his age, but his teacher was very cruel and beat him severely for the slightest offense, or for not knowing a lesson, or sometimes for no reason at all, until finally he could not endure it, and would not go back to school, preferring to learn a trade.

But before he left school, and indeed while he was still quite young, the other boys had nicknamed him "Methodist Parson," because his mother always entertained the traveling Methodist preachers at her home when they came to the village. When Asbury was but eighteen, he himself became one of these traveling preachers, and at the age of twenty-six—in the year 1771—he decided to come to the New World.

You can imagine what the New World was like in those days, and can understand how brave Francis Asbury must have been to take his long rides through the great forests and across the mountains. Naturally he would be endangered by panthers or catamounts, and sometimes by Indians, though these had generally retreated before the advancing white man. But he had trails to make and storms to face and discomforts to meet. There were no railroads until twenty years after his death, and the stage-coaches only went at set hours and followed the few routes of travel, while Francis Asbury sought out the settlers in lonely communities and gathered them together for preaching services, or traveled lonely miles to bury the dead or baptize the babies. Once, in the year 1811, he wanted to cross the St. Lawrence River at a point where it is three miles in width. There was no bridge, no ferry, not even a flatboat. Yet he was not discouraged, and the manner in which he crossed showed the resources and pluck of the man. He had two companions and three horses. He hired three canoes and four Indians to row them. The forefeet of the horses were lashed in one canoe, and their hind feet in another, while the third canoe was lashed between the others. We do not know where the men sat, maybe in it; but at any rate, after toil and trouble, then more toil and trouble, they got across. Then the Bishop, who had agreed to pay the Indians three dollars, gave them four, although he had but little money left.

For forty-five years he rode, up and down, throughout New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, and Tennessee, seeking sinners and gathering them into little Methodist churches which he would visit and revisit. He was made a Bishop, for while Methodists and Presbyterians have the foundations of Christian belief in common, they have different ways of governing their churches. The Methodists appoint Bishops to have the oversight of churches, while Presbyterians look to Presbyteries for this duty. So Francis Asbury was made a Bishop, and he was the first American Bishop that the Methodist Church had.

Bishop Asbury was very fond of his horses, and in the journal which he always kept he writes of "Jane," or "Fox," or "Spark." When he was too feeble longer to ride, he sold Spark, who, he tells us "whickered after us," and the sound he says, "went to my heart."

The proposal has been made to Methodists to contribute funds towards a statue of Bishop Asbury to stand in Washington, D. C., just as Presbyterians have erected a statue over the grave of Francis Makemie. The proposed statue is to show a man on horseback. There are many statues in Washington of men on horseback, all soldiers in the uniform of their country. This one will show a soldier of the Cross, mounted on his faithful steed, across whose back will lie the "saddle-bags" in one of which Bishop Asbury carried his little stock of needful clothes, or food to eat by the way, and in the other, Bibles and good reading for the settlers in lonely log-huts beyond the mountains and by the rushing waters.—The Presbyterian (Philadelphia).

HER TALISMAN.

Red-haired Midget was solemnly plodding her way to school when two rosy children sprang out at her from behind a hedge.

"We've got the loveliest secret," they chanted, and you couldn't guess it if you guessed a thousand years.

Midget surveyed them with an engaging smile and they relented.

"Will you promise never to tell any one, live or die, black or blue?" demanded the older child.

Midget looked at her with tranquil blue eyes.

"I'll just tell my mother," she said.

"No! No!" shouted the other two, with scorn. "You can't tell anybody."

Midget stiffened her small back and gave her red curls a proud toss.

"I don't have secrets from my mother," she said firmly, and marched on ahead with an air of funny dignity.

The girls whispered together for a minute, and then rushed after her, and it was plain from Midget's radiant face that her mother was to share "the loveliest secret."

Superstitions people sometimes carry a talisman, or charm, which they believe keeps away harm. Midget is carrying through school the best talisman against evil—"telling mother."—Zion's Herald.

LINES TO AN OLD FRIEND.

(These lines, which form a touching tribute to our old church in Algiers which is about to be abandoned for a new one, are from the pen of Mrs. Robert M. Brown, the accomplished wife of the pastor. They were recently read at a public church gathering in Algiers. Editor of the Advocate.)

Dear little church on the corner
Of Delaronde Street and Lavergne!
You have won a sure place in our mem'ry,
And to you will our thoughts oft return.

Dear Methodist Church by the river!
How old you have grown and how gray;
Your threshold is smooth and is hollowed
By the footsteps long passing this way.

No stranger would think you a chapel,
No architect copy your style.
In fact, my old friend, you look funny,
I've seen passing folk stop and smile

At your lengthy, flat roof and your "hen loft,"
At your bald-faced appearance in front,
And say, "Were those carpenters crazy?
Or were they just trying a stunt?"

Never mind! We who know your life-story
Have only a fond smile and love,
For we know you have wrought for God's glory
And have pointed to mansions above.

And so, little house, when we leave you
For a larger and handsomer one,
Don't think we are hard and ungrateful
For all of the good you have done.

As a family growing in numbers
Must leave the old home for the new,
And, departing, will often turn backward
For a lingering and sorrowful view,

So we, too, will leave you with sadness,
Not forgetting the altar of old,
Where sinners oft knelt for repentance
And the story of God's love was told—

The altar where last rite was spoken
O'er the form sleeping, dreamless and still—
The altar where sweet babe was christened,
Where the bride whispered shyly, "I will."

Hats off to our dear old church mother!
A toast and three cheers! Then a prayer
That your influence pass down the ages
'Till your children are safe "over there."

A SPLENDID GIFT TO EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Under date of April 5, Bishop Candler writes as follows: "Mr. J. J. Gray, of Rockdale, Tenn., has written me a letter in which he says, 'I will contribute $25,000 toward Emory University—$12,500 payable on May 1, and the balance of $12,500 on the 25th of September.' This is a most encouraging gift."

Think of this from Tennessee! A large majority of the Methodists of the Old Volunteer State are standing loyally by the Church in her determination to own and control her institutions of learning. The Memphis Conference subscribed $6000 to Emory University at its session last fall.

WHAT DOES THE CHURCH SAY?

We are carrying on another page, under the caption, "Some of Its Outstanding Features," some extracts from an article which recently appeared in the New York Independent concerning the Panama Congress. These quotations show that Southern Methodists need to be careful as to the extent to which they shall permit themselves to be aligned with the movements that may spring out of this gathering. One question that they should consider is that of how far they are willing to co-operate with those teaching higher criticism and the so-called modern theology in mission work. Such schools as the University of Chicago and Union Theological Seminary—institutions that are veritable hotbeds of heresy—were strongly represented at the Panama meeting. Are we willing to unite with them in maintaining papers and theological schools in Central and South America? Are we ready to turn over to their representatives vast areas of territory in which they may teach their views concerning the inspiration of the Bible, and proclaim that Jesus was not virgin-born and that perhaps he did not rise from the dead, etc.?

The Church, in our opinion, needs also to be watchful concerning the matter of union and co-operation, upon which so much stress is being laid? Does she want her work in Brazil handled in a manner similar to that which has been brought into requisition in the case of our Mexican work? If not, it behooves her to be ready to stop any such movement that may start in its earliest incipiency.

The truth is, as we see it, we are squarely face to face with the proposition, whether as a Church we are going to do Methodist, or interdenominational missionary work? Our Board of Missions and Missionary Secretaries should deal perfectly openly with the two million Methodists of the South concerning this matter. If we are to have, so far as they can commit us to it, only interdenominational missionary work, let them say so. Or if we are to have two kinds of missionary work—Methodist and interdenominational—ought we not to have an assessment for each, that our people may know to what they are paying their money? We think that justice and fairness demand at least this much.

FROM LABOR TO REWARD.

It is with much regret that we publish the notice of the death of Rev. P. A. Swann, which appears on another page. Writing of him, his presiding elder, Rev. H. W. May, says: "He was a local elder and a good and faithful pastor."

A dispatch to the Times-Picayune from Forest Hill, La., on April 5, reads as follows: "The body of Rev. P. A. Swann was shipped to this place from Longville Thursday on the 2:30 p. m. train and was taken by a hearse to Elmer, La., for interment. The funeral took place yesterday in the family cemetery at that place. Mr. Swann filled several prominent positions in his life-time, having been a parish surveyor, a notary public, a school teacher, a ward school director, and a Christian minister for nearly thirty years. He leaves, besides his wife and four children, two brothers and one sister."

We extend sympathy to these bereaved loved ones, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

AS DR. MANN SEES IT.

In a recent issue of The Central Methodist (Lexington, Ky.), Dr. E. G. B. Mann, its able Editor-in-Chief, than whom there is no sounder, truer leader in Southern Methodism, expressed himself as follows:

"Our friend, Dr. Meek, editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, who is always on the watch tower, and who generally knows whereof he speaks, says that some men are seeking still to stir up trouble over the way the Educational Commission settled the Vanderbilt University matter.

"We do not doubt that Dr. Meek is correct in the statement, nor do we doubt for a moment that the sober good sense of the Church will repudiate such an effort. The question of the relation of Vanderbilt University to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is as firmly and unalterably settled as African slavery, or the theory that the earth is round.

"No man, or set of men, can interest the great body of our people or a General Conference again in that question. The men who are responsible for taking that institution away from our Church may be dissatisfied to rest under the censure and odium that has been justly put upon them, but it is too late now to undo their acts. They had as well "try to unscramble scrambled eggs," as to undo now what they have done."

We sincerely hope that Dr. Mann is correct in his estimate of the strength of the pro-Vanderbilt element in our Connection, and we fully concur in the view that if the Church as a whole is watchful and prepares for any attempt that may be made to reopen this issue, it will be successfully defeated. But it will not do for our loyal leaders and people to be negligent and let matters drift along, assuming that they will take the right course. We should learn a valuable lesson from what happened two and a half years ago. By a practically unanimous vote the action of the College of Bishops in vetoing the Carnegie gift of a million dollars, which they affirmed to be dishonoring to our Church, along with their general course in the contest, was endorsed by the Annual Conferences of Southern Methodism; yet, because the issue was somewhat altered when the General Conference met, we witnessed the amazing spectacle of nearly half the delegates voting to hold on to Vanderbilt University and enter into educational work with the agnostic iron-monger. And not even Dr. Mann's eloquent voice, as he reminded them of this remarkable referendum and their obligations to the constituencies at home, could swing the recalcitrants back into line. It is one thing to carry an issue when it is before the whole Church and quite another thing to manipulate a General Conference of three hundred men, many of whom have been elected without knowing for what they stand. This is a time when the two million Methodists of the South need to be alert and to invest with power and responsibility only men who they know can be trusted. IT WILL NOT DO TO TAKE ANYTHING FOR GRANTED.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

This roll is to be made up of charges in which all of the stewards are subscribers to the Advocate. At present it stands as follows:

1. Ripley and Blue Mountain, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neelen, pastor.
2. Court Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor.
3. Hosanna Circuit, North Miss., Rev. D. R. McDougal, pastor.
4. Oak Grove Circuit, Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor.
5. Shongalak Circuit, North Miss. Conf., Rev. A. S. Reger, pastor.
6. Flora Ct., Mississippi Conference, Rev. M. F. Adams, pastor.
7. Trenton Ct., Mississippi Conf., Rev. T. B. Winstead, pastor.
8. Brookhaven Ct., North Miss. Conf., Rev. J. J. Baird, pastor.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Mississippi Legislature has adjourned.

The Candler School of Theology was lately favored by a visit from Bishop Mouzon. He gave the theologues there some stimulating messages.

The Baltimore Southern Methodist speaks enthusiastically of Bishop Mouzon's work in the chair and in the pulpit at the recent session of the Baltimore Conference.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Courtland, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 5 subscriptions. He speaks in terms of high appreciation of the work of his presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College, is booked to spend Easter Sunday in New Orleans, where, by special invitation, he will fill prominent pulpits both in the morning and evening.

Rev. J. M. Carpenter, pastor of Central Church, Columbus, Miss., sends us a club of six subscriptions. Speaking of his work, this choice young minister says: "All things are going on smoothly in my charge."

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb reports that Bishop W. B. Murrah and Rev. J. R. Countiss spoke to his congregation at Starkville, Miss., on Sunday, April 2, and took up a collection amounting to $550 for Grenada College.

The National Missionary Congress, under the direction of the Layman's Missionary Movement, will convene in Washington City on April 26. President Woodrow Wilson is expected to be present at the opening session.

Rev. J. S. Rutledge, of Bush, La., reports that his work is making encouraging progress. He appreciates the importance of placing the Advocate in the homes of his people, and is endeavoring to do this in his pastoral rounds.

The North Mississippi Epworth League Conference will be held at Water Valley, Miss., June 5-8. We trust that this meeting will be largely attended by our young people and that the occasion will be a profitable one in every respect.

Mr. B. T. Tatum, chairman of the Board of Stewards of our Church at Rayville, La., is, we regret to state, seriously ill at the Touro Infirmary in this city. Let the brethren remember him and his anxious family at the throne of grace.

Rev. W. M. Sullivan, our capable pastor at Yazoo City, Miss., gives us a club of 6 subscriptions to the Advocate, for which we extend him our thanks. He is serving with a notable degree of success one of the choicest charges in the Mississippi Conference.

The Rayne Memorial Church, which is being overhauled and refurnished, has presented the excellent pews which formerly served its congregation to Epworth Church of this city. This was a generous and much appreciated gift upon the part of Dr. Felix R. Hill, Jr., and his flock.

We make grateful acknowledgement to Dr. J. M. Brown, of Haughton, La., for a fine club of 3 new subscriptions and 9 renewals. Dr. Brown is one of the strong men of the Louisiana Conference, and no interest of the Church suffers in his hands. He is serving a good people.

In some respects the present gubernatorial campaign in Louisiana has degenerated to a plane quite as low as any that we have ever observed.

This is much to be deplored. We are sometimes disposed to think that about the last thing on earth to be made decent will be politics.

Dr. T. C. Wier, of Starkville, Miss., sends the Conference organ a club of 12 renewal subscriptions, accompanied hy a check to correspond and an expression of bis good wishes. There is no choicer spirit in Southern Methodism than this noble veteran of the North Mississippi Conferenee.

Rev. W. M. Langley, of Pickens, Miss., brought us under obligations to him last week for a club of 2 new and 4 renewal subscriptions to the Advocate. It goes without saying that Brother Langley's work is moving on well. We know of no worker anywhere who is truer or more faithful than is he.

Mr. "Cot" George, the second son of the late United States Senator J. Z. George, of Mississippi, died on Runnymede plantation, near Greenwood, Miss., on April 7. Mr. George was a gentleman of many commendable tralts, and we greatly regret to learn of his decease. We extend sympathy to the hereaved.

In a business letter to our office, Rev. J. F. McClellan, of De Kalh, Miss., says: We had a great meeting here in January under the leadership of Brother Dan Kelly. A very interesting and helpful Sunday School Institute closed here last Monday night, under the leadership of Rev. J. L. Neill and his wife."

As is stated elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, of Houma, La., has been appointed to succeed Rev. W. H. Coleman as Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference. This is an admirahle choice. The vacancy thus left in our French Mission work at Houma has not yet been filled.

Rev. J. M. Bradley, of Aberdeen, Miss., writes us that provision has been made to wipe out the $16,000 debt on our handsome new church at that place. Of the funds raised for that purpose, $9700 is in good interest-bearing notes, and the remainder was in cash. This is a notahle achievement, upon which Brother Bradley is to be heartily congratulated.

Mr. J. D. Barhee, of Greenville, Miss., who visited Clarksdale last week on business, writes that Rev. R. O. Brown, our pastor there, is much appreciated by his people, and that he has the movement for a new church in that progressive Delta city well under way. According to Brother Barbee, the plans for the new structure are "beautiful and commodious."

The following friends, whose kindness has not been mentioned elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions, sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. T. Lewis, Greenville, Miss., 8; Rev. L. L. Roberts, Vicksburg, Miss., 8; Rev. John C. Chambers, Sumrall, Miss., 3; Rev. M. W. Porter, Harrisville, Miss., 2; Rev. W. S. Selman, Mt. Pleasant, Miss., 3; Rev. M. M. Black, Canton, Miss., 5.

Rev. W. L. Blackwell, of Vancleave, Miss., writes as follows: "We are getting along very well in this charge. Our congregations are good and seem to he attentive. Our Sunday schools are making good headway. We feel greatly encouraged over tho outlook." Brother Blackwell is looking after the interests of the Advocate in his field, and bis communication brought us 3 subscriptions.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College, at Shreveport, La., writes: "Rev. W. J. Young, D.D., of Emory University, will preach our Commencement sermon and deliver the address before the College Y. M. C. A. on Sunday, June 4. The Alumni Address will be delivered by Mr. Robert O. Randle, of Monroe, and the Annual Baccalaureate Address will be given hy Hon. H. H. White, of Alexandria."

Through the courtesy of the pastor, Rev. L. L. Roberts, we have in hand a copy of a neatly printed Directory of tho Gibson Memorial Church of Vickshurg, Miss. It contains an excellent picture of the splendid new house of worship lately erected by this congregation and much interesting information concerning the various organizations and membership embraced in the make-up of this promising charge.

The Committee having in charge the Mississippi campaign in the interest of Emory University was scheduled to meet in Jackson, Miss., Wednesday of this week. This Committee is composed of Dr. I. W. Cooper and Rev. J. T. Leggett, of the Mississippi Conference, and Rev. J. C. Park and Rev. W. W. Woollard, of the North Mississippi Conference. Of course, Commissioner Selby was expected to meet with them.

Rev. J. J. Baird, our gifted young pastor at Brooksville, Miss., writes as follows: "As we enter upon our fourth year here, the indications aro most encouraging. Indeed, we hope to make this the best year of our quadrennium." Brother Baird's good letter brought us 12 subscriptions, 8 of which were new. He expected to have with him in the interest of Grenada College Friday night of last week Bishop Murrah and Brother Jaco.

We have received a notice from Rev. J. R. Jones, the presiding elder, concerning the Seashoro District Conference, which reached us too late for insertion in this week's Advocate, but which will appear next week. The date of this district conference is May 3-5. The brethren are requested to send the names of all delegaes to Rev. H. F. Tolle, Biloxi, Miss., the conference host, and to Rev. J. R. Jones, Gulfport, in order that he may make out in advance the conference roll.

A correspondent residing in the Port Gibson District, and who knows whereof he speaks, sends us the following item of interest: "Dr. T. B. Holloman, pastor of the Crawford Street Church of Vicksburg, who easily ranks as ono of the best pastors in any Conferenee, made during the past quarter 317 visits. Hardly a day passes that he does not visit the sick and bereaved. He has conducted within the past three months 14 funerals. It is worthy of note that both his Sunday school and congregations are growing."

The meeting at Epworth Church, this city, in which the pastor, Rev. C. M. Morris, was assisted by Rev. A. I. Townsley, closed last Wednesday night. There were several additions to the Church. By special invitation, Brother Townsley agreed to remain through Thursday and conduct a love feast at Second Church in the afternoon and preach there at night. It will be remembered that he served this congregation for a full quadrennium a few years ago, and he is greatly beloved by those composing its membership.

We regret to learn that Rev. W. D. Wendel, our pastor at Como, Miss., is not in the best of health, but we are pleased to know that his physicians think that by rest and proper care his physical condition will soon be much improved. Brothers Roberts and Gladney have lately been lending him a helping hand in his work—a service which he highly appreciates. Brother Wendel has many kind things to say concerning his attentive flock, and writes of his presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, in most complimentary terms.

Rev. C. H. Strait, of Carpenter, Miss., writes as follows: "I had the pleasure of hearing Bishop Candler's address on Christian Education in Jackson on March 17. This was indeed a treat. From Jackson I went to Brookhaven, and from there five miles out into the country to my father's home. My brother, George Strait, and Miss Lillian Rutledge were married at 7 p. m., with this writer officiating. On Sunday it was my pleasure to hear Rev. D. E. Kelly preach in Brookhaven. I had a great trip." Brother Strait's good letter brought us 7 subscriptions to the Advocate, 5 of them being new.

Rev. James Porter, of Oakland, Miss., sends us several subscriptions from his charge, and adds the following note: "On March 8 Rev. J. A. Bowen began a meeting with us here, which continued for 10 days. Brother Bowen is a man of great faith and much prayer. He lives close to the Lord and preaches a gospel of love and power. The Church was helped and given much strength. Our parsonage was recently re-papered and repainted and touched up in other ways. We now have a very attractive and comfortable house to live in. The people are very kind, and they are sure of a great reward."

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Oak Grove, La., sends us a postal card which reads as follows: "We have just closed a meeting here in which the preaching was done by Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss. We had many obstacles to overcome, such as card parties, dances, etc., but we closed last night, April 2, with things at high tide. Seventy joined our Church, and about 15 went to the Baptist Church. An Epworth League was also organized. Pray for us." We are delighted to hear of this fine revival at Oak Grove. We wish that every charge in the Advocate's territory could have a like spiritual awakening. Let the brethren keep Brother Bell busy.

The Dallas (Texas) Morning News of April 6 contained an interesting account of the presentation to Rev. W. J. Johnson, pastor of Grace Church in the city of Dallas, of a handsome seven-passenger automobile by about 40 members of his congregation. The speech conveying the gift was made by Judge J. E. Cockrell, one of the leading lawyers of Dallas. Mr. Johnson is a son of the late Colonel J. M. Johnson of Holmes County and a grandson of the late Rev. Stephen Johnson of Carroll County. He is making a great record as a pastor in the Lone Star State, having last fall closed a four years' pastorate at First Church, Beaumont, and prior to that having served a full quadrennium with a marked degree of success at Galveston. During the three and a half months that he has been in charge of Grace Church he has received 122 members.

SUGGESTIVE.

Earl Venable, secretary to Senator Borah, of Idaho, used to run a little weekly newspaper out in that State. One afternoon as the week's issue was about to go to press a man rushed in with a column and a half obituary notice. Besides the obituary he also had about a column of obituary poetry.

Venable told him it was too late, he feared, to get it into the paper, whereupon the man nearly wept. He said the obituary was that of a man whose sorrowing widow greatly wished to have the stuff printed. Any editor who wouldn't grant a request for a grief-stricken widow seemed to the man hard-hearted indeed.

Venable was touched by the widow's plea, and said he would do his best to print the long obituary notice, but it would be absolutely impossible to find space for the poetry, even if there were typesetters to set it up in time.

The friend of the family went out to carry this word to the inconsolable widow.

In a few minutes he came back, panting.

"Say, yon'll simply have to get that poetry in, somehow," he told Venable. "That woman'll never get over it if you don't. You see it's the same poetry she had printed when her first husband died, and if it isn't used now she's afraid it might look like playing favorites."—Commercial Appeal.

THE GRENADA EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE.

The Committee charged with arranging for the Efficiency Conference to be held at Grenada, May 30 to June 2, has about completed its arrangements for the speakers, and for the entertainment of the guests who are to be there. In a short time we will have printed and sent through the mails to each preacher a finished program. For the present we want to make announcement through the Advocate of what we will have for the Conference.

The College Commencement will close on Tuesday, May 30, at twelve o'clock. Brother Countiss has arranged to retain his servants for the time of the Efficiency Conference, so that all of us may be entertained in the College building. He indicated to the Committee that he would be able to give the entertainment at the nominal cost of $2.25 for the four days. This includes rooms and board. He has room for as many as 125. Should more than this come, entertainment will be arranged for them in town. However, we do not anticipate a larger number at any one time than this.

We are trying to arrange with the various examination committees for some special work for the classes of the undergraduates of the Conference, with the hope that some special help may be given them in their studies.

The following brethren have give us their engagement for the Conference: Bishop Atkins gives us two addresses on Bible themes; Dr. W. J. Young, of the Candler School of Theology, gives four addresses on the work of the preacher; George Stuart, four addresses on the preacher in evangelistic work; Dr. E. B. Chappell, our Sunday school editor, three addresses on religious education. Dr. W. F. McMurry, our Church Extension Secretary, will tell us in three addresses of Church architecture, Church building, and Church debt paying. Dr. W. W. Pinson, of the Board of Missions, in three addresses will present the vital interest of Missions. Now, is not this a most inviting list of speakers? In addition to these, as time will allow, we hope to have some of our own Conference men discuss some of the questions that we have to deal with in our pastorates. Then we will have an "Open Forum" for any question any brother may wish to bring to the attention of the Conference.

It is the purpose of this Conference to give all of us clearer visions of real efficiency, a kind of post-graduate course. We will be glad to have as many of our lay workers come as can do so.

There are many features about this Conference in mid-year which will appeal to our brethren. It is confidently expected that there will be a large attendance, and that we will all get out of it that which will the better prepare us for a larger ministry and service.

Signed in behalf of the Committee,
Columbus, Miss. W. W. WOOLLARD.

On March 26, 1916, the messenger of death came to the home of Brother Wm. Banks, at Bland, La., and caught away the spirit of little MARVIN, who was one of earth's jewels. He was exceptionally bright. While lingering with pneumonia for two weeks, seemingly conscious that the end was near, and though a child of only 6 years, 4 months, and 5 days, he exhorted those who visited him to live right, and called on them to pray in a manner so earnest that some who had never led in prayer were constrained to do so. We laid the remains away at the new church at Fitzgerald in the first grave ever dug there, and it was hidden beneath flowers when the large audience turned from the mound where the body of dear little Marvin was left to sleep, while his spirit always beholds his Father's face. God bless the bereaved ones! J. S. RUTLEDGE.

Our Church and town suffered a great loss in the death of Mrs. SALLIE FAIL, who passed away, leaving this earth for heaven on April 2, 1916, at 8:30 o'clock a. m. Sister Fail was one of the best women of this entire country. She was loved by every one who knew her. As long as she was able she was always in her place at church, but for a year or more her health was so bad that she could not attend services much. She leaves a husband, one daughter, five brothers, four sisters, some stepchildren, and a host of friends to mourn their loss. She came to the end as only one who trusted in the Lord could come, having no fear of death. Sister Fail joined the Church in childhood and lived a consistent Christian life till the end came at fifty-six years of age. We buried her in the Bay Springs Cemetery at five o'clock on April 2, 1916.

J. B. KING.

Bay Springs, Miss.

Brother HARELY DEAR was born near Mountain Creek, Miss., in 1856, and died on Jan. 31, 1916, near Star, Miss. He was married to Miss Anna Clark on Dec. 25, 1876. Of this union were born ten children, nine of whom are yet living to mourn their great loss. One was awaiting the arrival of the father at the beautiful gate. Brother Dear joined the Baptist Church at the age of 18 years, but, not being satisfied in that Church, he left it and joined the M. E. Church, South, shortly after his marriage, and remained a consistent member until God said, "It is enough; come up higher." Brother Dear was an exhorter in our Church. He was always ready to do what he could in that rank. For several years he was afflicted with that dread disease called consumption; but through all his suffering, instead of murmuring or complaining, he followed close to Him who had suffered all things for his sake. It was the writer's privilege to know this man of God but a short time, visiting him only twice before his death. He was not able to talk to me either time, but managed to tell me that "all was well with his soul." May God bless the family!

His pastor, M. W. PORTER.

Mrs. SUSIE BARLOW was born at Harrisville, Miss., on Feb. 22, 1887, and died on March 5, 1916. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Harris, of this place. She was married to Mr. N. R. Barlow ten years ago; of this union were born two children, one of whom still lives to mourn her departure. While in her teens, she was happily converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, of which she continued to be a faithful member until God called her to live with Him. She was an obedient child, a devoted wife, and a loving mother. Sister Barlow will be greatly missed in the home, in the church, and in the community. She will never stand again in the doorway to welcome her husband, sweet little Gladys, and her friends, but at the beautiful gate she awaits their home-coming. On the afternoon of March 6 her body was laid to rest in the Harrisville Cemetery, to await the resurrection morn. May the Lord's promise, "I will not leave you comfortless," sustain the broken-hearted loved ones. We do not grieve for Sister Susie as those who have no hope, but if we are faithful to the end, as she was, we will receive the crown of life that fadeth not away.

Her pastor, M. W. PORTER.

Dr. ROBERT EDWARD BIRDSONG, son of Emma H. and G. Edward Birdsong, was born in California on May 21, 1879, and died on Nov. 25, 1915, at Sonlater, Miss., where he had practiced medicine for some ten or twelve years. Dr. Birdsong was a warm personal friend of the writer, who was his pastor for four years. His association with him was pleasant and the splendid sentiments he heard him express at times in heart-to-heart talks and his knowledge of subjects high and lofty were strong and impressive. He was a brilliant man, and while he had many struggles to win over self in life, he was always ready to acknowledge his weakness, though not in a boastful way, and he always appreciated sympathy and kind words. In our conversations often he would demonstrate the fact that he had many splendid traits, especially those of sympathy and kindness. He was very liberal toward any good cause and gave his money freely. He ranked with the best in his profession, taking a place second to no one that I know. His affection for his splendid wife, his children, and his mother was especially noticeable. What he would not do for them was not in his power. He also leaves three children and two brothers to mourn his going away. Many friends and relatives gathered at McNutt Cemetery that day to pay their last respects to this brilliant man and loving friend. May God continue to comfort these broken and lonely hearts!

WALTER M. CAMPBELL.

Shelby, Miss.

Mrs. SALLIE SLATE PRICE was born in Brunswick County, Virginia, on Nov. 14, 1844, and died in Oxford, Miss., on Sept. 18, 1915. Her parents, Peterson J. Slate and Henriette De Cbridge Slate, moved to Lafayette County, Miss., when she was only one year old. This was before the first railroad in this county was built and the long trip was made by wagon. During her married life she lived about eight miles in the country from Oxford. It was there in this happy home, about 35 years ago, when he was presiding elder of the Grenada District, that this writer first knew her. He always found a hearty welcome and congenial companionship in that Christian home, where unbounded hospitality was dispensed. There an attachment was formed for the family that has lasted through all these years. Sister Price was a devoted member of the Methodist Church, and a cheerful and generous contributor to all its institutions. She was not loudly demonstrative, but always exhibited a firm trust in her Savior. With simple sincerity, she lived her life and followed her duty as she saw it, and the path led her straight to the throne of God. "Her spiritual house," like her material one, was in order. The quiet, helpful influence of her life extended to all who knew and loved her. During the last few months of her life she endured much physical suffering, but was patient and resigned, never questioning God's providence. Her friends instinctively felt the spiritual power that uplifted her life and bore it above all trials and limitations. She leaves three daughters, two sons, and a number of grandchildren, besides many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. My deepest sympathy goes out to them, and I pray that some day we all may meet her in the land "that is fairer than day."

JACKSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Raymond, May 8-11.

The pastors will please send the names of delegates, charge lay leaders, and others entitled to membership to our host, Rev. W. J. Dawson, Bolton, Miss. You will also please furnish me with names of delegates so that the roll of members can be completed before the conference opens.

The following examining committees have been appointed: License to Preach—R. P. Fikes, A. S. Oliver, H. P. Lewis, Jr.; Admission on Trial and Readmission—W. G. Henry, M. S. Adams, G. P. McKeown; Local Elder's Orders—W. H. Lewis, A. S. Byrd, and J. C. Ellis; Local Deacon's Orders—W. M. Sullivan, R. H. Kleiser, and J. S. Duke.

PAUL D. HARDIN, P. E.

A PROFITABLE OCCASION.

Mr. Editor: I know that you will likely receive reports of the Missionary Institute held in Newton, March 29 and 30, but it was such a treat to a poor, handicapped preacher's widow, I hope you will pardon me for sending you a few lines concerning it. The preaching was most excellent, and the discussions were very interesting.

On the last day, our presiding elder, Rev. W. L. Linfield, and his noble wife entertained all the preachers at an elegant luncheon in their own home. It was a most enjoyable and highly appreciated attention. I feel sure that the year will be one of success and great harmony, as the preachers will find their leader truly brotherly and sympathetic in his bearing toward them in all their efforts to advance the work of the Lord in this district. That God may bless the dear old Advocate, is the sincere wish of your friend.

Mrs. S. G. WEEMS.

CHURCH FIRES DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

A man who has made an inspection of a number of churches for the National Mutual Church Insurance Co., which operates under the direction of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, reports that the majority of church fires are due to the carelessness of the janitors. He found the floors of furnace rooms littered with trash and shavings; stoves setting on carpets or bare floors with no protection under them, stove pipe joints almost disconnected. This company, which insures only Methodist Churches and homes of Methodist ministers and sustaining members, has issued a bulletin on fire prevention which should be read by every member of the Methodist Church. Copies will be sent free upon application to Henry P. Magill, Secretary-Manager. The National Mutual Church Insurance Co., 1509 Insurance Exchange, Chicago, Ill.

UGH! A Dose of Nasty Calomel

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

RHEUMATISM EASILY RELIEVED

Yes, but how? A natural question. The answer is to cleanse your blood by stimulating it to healthy, vigorous action, so that it will throw off the germs and impurities that cause Rheumatism. The action of the wonderful blood purifier S. S. S. is to practically renew the life blood, give it vigor, stimulate the flow, making it throw out the germs and the poison impurities. Take the blood bath—Nature's blood tonic, S. S. S. Get it at any druggist's but insist upon S. S. S. Send for booklet on blood diseases. If yours is a peculiar case, write to Swift Specific Co., Dept. Z, Atlanta, Ga.

Take Lime for Tuberculosis

In the Journal of the American Medical Association (July 27, 1912, Page 308), Dr. C. F. Disen, of Minneapolis, holds that a "deficiency of calcium" (lime) is responsible for the physical conditions which lead to tuberculosis, "and the therapy he advocates rests on this basis."

One of the reasons for the wide-spread success of Eckman's Alterative in the treatment of tuberculosis is its ability to supply this deficiency. It contains a lime salt in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated by the average person. Many cases seem to have yielded to it.

We make no exaggerated claims for it, but prefer that it be tried on the same basis as any other prescription, and since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit forming drugs, it is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Sunday School

THE GOOD WORK GOES ON.

Rev. John W. Shackford, Superintendent of Teacher-training work for our Church, reports the following classes enrolled from the Gulf Division during the month of March:

Alabama Conference—one, at Castleberry, with 10 students; North Alabama Conference—two, at Athens and Albertville, with 19 students; Louisiana Conference—five, at First Church (New Orleans), Eros, First Church (Mansfield), Harrisonburg, and Merryville, with 48 students; Little Rock Conference—three, at Texarkana, Hope, and Mt. Prospect (Stephens), with 38 students; Mississippi Conference—five, at South Side (Meridian), Andrews Chapel, New Chapel (Latimer), Washington, and Fayette, with 72 students; North Mississippi Conference—two, at First Church (Tupelo), and Ackerman, with 22 students. Total for the Division—18 classes, 209 students. The total Church-wide enrollment for the month was 77 classes, 1007 students (including eight individual students).

The latest announcement from Brother Shackford is to the effect that all Methodism in America will probably be using the same Teacher-training course shortly, with identical text books. All pastors should secure a copy of the first text book in the course—"The Pupil, The Teacher and The School," by Barclay—examine it, and, as fast as possible, have classes organized in all their Sunday schools. There is no doubt at all about the beneficial effect it will have on the future work of the Church.

A. L. DIETRICH.

OUR NEW SUNDAY SCHOOL FIELD SECRETARY.

At a meeting of the Sunday School Board held Tuesday, April 4, in Shreveport, Bishop Atkins was asked to appoint Rev. C. V. Breithaupt to fill the vacancy caused by the recent appointment of Rev. W. H. Coleman to the pastorate of First Church, Alexandria. Brother Breithaupt will immediately enter the work of Field Secretary, and, living in Alexandria, he will have the benefit of the advice of our retiring Secretary.

The Board solicits for Brother Breithaupt the earnest co-operation of all our people in this field of work. And we believe he will, with the aid of our pastors and superintendents, carry on to success the work so wisely planned by Brother W. H. Coleman.

We would suggest that our pastors and Sunday school superintendents determine as to the best time to hold Children's Day this year, but that they do so as early as practicable after Easter, giving time to prepare the program and to assure a good offering.

Let us all, as early as convenient, if we have not already done so, send to the Treasurer, Mr. W. A. McKennon, Shreveport, our Conference subscriptions, and urge an early payment of our 2 per cent assessment, to be followed by Children's Day offering. The Treasurer is in need of funds now.

Signed: H. N. Brown, President; J. A. Alford, Secretary, for the Board.

RHEUMATISM DISAPPEARS

We would not guarantee to refund the money if we were not confident that "RENWAR" would relieve every case of Rheumatism. No matter how many remedies you have taken or how many doctors you have consulted, if you are a sufferer from Rheumatism, get a fifty cent bottle of "RENWAR" and commence taking it right away. If you cannot get it at your drug store, do not take a substitute but send fifty cents for a full bottle postpaid to the Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn., and remember you get your money back if it fails to prove satisfactory.

CENTENARY CHURCH, McCOMB, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We closed Sunday night, April 2, the greatest meeting I have been in for seventeen years. Four hundred and fifty, or more, made a clear confession of faith in the Savior. Deep and profound was the conviction evidenced, and a great turning away from sin the result. Nearly two hundred gave their names for membership in the churches of our city on profession of faith in Christ. Into the membership of Centenary, McComb, 115 were received.

We are greatly rejoiced at the manifest outpouring of the Spirit of God in the midst of us, and are reaching forward to yet greater things. Look at these facts: A larger number of our people are praying in public; many family altars have been erected; about 225 were at prayer meeting last night; our Sunday school is steadily increasing (375 were present last Sunday). A hearty good-will and a warm-hearted sympathy are growing among our membership; and there is an increasing devotion to the work of the Church. A great gladness in service is evident, and our church as a whole is coming to a more definite assurance of faith.

Dr. Arch. C. Holder of Shreveport, La., is one of our best helpers in a revival that I have ever had. His preaching is strong, thoroughly Wesleyan, and powerfully persuasive. He is humorous, pathetic, and grave. I found him neither cranky nor selfish. He exalts the pastor, and leaves him in good favor with his people. Indeed, his whole effort is to build up the Church.

His singer, Brother J. D. Swagerty, of Shreveport, is unexcelled. He is a splendid personality; has a strong, sweet, mellow voice, which he has consecrated to God. He is an intelligent personal worker and an able assistant to Brother Holder. The young people and children literally swarm to him, while the older people delight in him equally as much.

My people on last evening, in a most delicate, generous way, remembered the physical needs of their pastor and family, for which we sincerely thank them.

McComb City will for a long time to come remember this truly great meeting, and will thank God for it. We know that there are many hard tasks before us, many a difficult hill to climb, but, with greater faith, we move on.—G. H. Galloway, P. C.

SEASHORE DISTRICT NOTES.

Brother Neill was with us during the month of March working in the interest of the Sunday school. He is tremendously in earnest about his task, and is certain to be successful. Already we hear of the work taking on new life where he has been. We hope to have him again during the year.

The district parsonge has a rather sketchy appearance just now, but it looks much better to us than it did in its old state of dilapidation. The work is moving a bit slowly, since that is the way the funds have been coming in; but our faith in the members of the Seashore District hasn't faltered, and we hope for a livelier interest. We have been rather anxiously afraid that Dr. Jones will take off his coat, necktie and collar and go in to help cover the house himself, but so far such heroic measures have been avoided. It has been intimated that he sometimes gets so lonely that he works a little in his garden, though none of the neighboring preachers have as yet caught him in the act.

There have been few ships in the Basin this year. Brother Griffin holds a service at the Bethel when he can get together a congregation. Other times he farms here and there about the country. Kiln and Summit being the chief beneficiaries.

At the second quarterly conference of the Biloxi Church, held one night this week, it was reported that $1500 had been raised and distributed during the year. Brother Tolle is evidently having a successful year. Brother Van Hook, we are told, was placed on the board of stewards. In view of the fact that he is only President of one of the liveliest schools in the Conference, teaches a number of classes, is organist at the First Church, and extra preacher along the coast, we are not surprised that it was thought necessary to give him something to do while he was resting.

The Mississippi Centennial, to be held at Gulfport in 1917, is now an assured fact. We think that it will mean much to have this on the coast. Plans are already on foot to have an evangelist, representing all the Protestant Churches present during the entire time.

Hub has made the largest contribution for the district parsonage, according to ability, of any of the churches so far reporting the third Sunday collection. Brother Claude Jones is to be congratulated. Doubtless he is looking forward to the time when, having developed into the married state, he will need repairs for a parsonage.

Brother Nolan B. Harmon, of Magnolia, has been in the bounds of our district for some time, it being necessary for him to be at Moss Point at the bedside of his son, Robert, who was sick with typhoid fever. This week they returned home by the way of New Orleans. E. C. GUNN.

SPRING MEDICINE

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Great Blood Purifier, is the Best.

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate.

It is that run-down condition of the system that results from impure, impoverished, devitalized blood.

It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption.

The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old reliable family medicine purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood. It is an all-the-year-round alterative and tonic, and is absolutely the best Spring medicine.

Get your blood in good condition at once—now. Delay may be dangerous. Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and insist on having it, for nothing else can take its place.

Obituaries

Mrs. SUE STANFILL was born on Sept. 9, 1891, in Cheneyville, La. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in early childhood and lived in perfect accord with its teaching up to her death, and we feel sure that she is now enjoying the fellowship of the Triumphant Church.

After graduating at the High School in 1907 she attended the State Normal and graduated from it on May 12, 1911. She was the singing and drawing teacher in the Coushatta (La.) High School during the years 1911 and 1912. Here she met Mr. Tom Stanfill and they were happily married on June 26, 1912, at her parents' home in Cheneyville, La. They came to Coushatta where they resided until November, and then moved out on a plantation and lived there for three years. Sister Stanfill had one daughter who was born to her on April 5, 1913. Little Sue Bess and her mother were both stricken with illness; and on Aug. 3 the former died, and her spirit returned to the Father from whence it came. The mother lived for four weeks longer; then the finger of death touched her and she went away from earth to heaven to receive her reward. Every one who knew her at home or out in society feels that her going took a blessing from them that can not be replaced. She possessed those gifts that make one most appreciated by one's friends, and she was always greatly missed if she did not appear at a gathering, and especially so if absent from church. She was as an angel come down from heaven when she began to sing those special solos just before or after the sermon on regular preaching days in Coushatta. T. J. HOLLADAY.

A. F. GREER, M. D., was born in Marshall County, Miss., on April 12, 1860, and died suddenly in Holly Springs, Miss., on Feb. 17, 1916, of heart failure. Dr. Greer was the son of Hon. Robt. S. and Mrs. Elizabeth Greer, both of whom were of famous families. Dr. Greer received his preliminary education in the common schools, and finished at the University of Mississippi. His technical training was obtained at the Memphis Medical College, where he received the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1892. Since that time he had practiced his profession in both Lafayette and Marshall Counties, making his home at Abbeville. He professed faith in Christ, and joined the Methodist Church in young manhood. Since then he had been true to God, to his Church, and to his pastor. He was chairman of our board of stewards when he died. He was loved by all good people, and had not an enemy, save among those who felt the resentment of his righteous manhood agalnst their evil deeds. He always responded to the call of distress, giving his services to the poor, regardless of fee or other earthly reward. He lived not for himself, but for others, rearing and helping to rear three families of children, who loved him as if he were their own father, though in fact he was only an uncle. He leaves two brothers and two sisters, together with his many friends, to mourn their loss. A noble character has gone from us, but his memory will long be cherished in the hearts of all who knew him. The funeral service was conducted by the presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Felts, and his pastor, Rev. J. R. James, from the home of Mr. M. A. Green, his brother-in-law, in Holly Springs, on Feb. 18, and his remains were laid to rest in the cemetery in the same town with Masonic honors. May he evermore be at peace! J. R. JAMES.

Are you ever afraid to tell the Lord about your small things, as if they were not worth His attending to? Your great things are not any more worth His attending to. Cast all your care on Him.—Andrew A. Bonar.

In ancient Athens there was a law that any man who had a lighted candle and refused to allow another to light his candle at it, should be put to death. A greater law exists in our souls, that quenches the happiness of him who fails to give.—The Christian Herald.

What we have we must leave at the threshold of the grave. What we are goes with us into the other world. Riches will drop from our dying hands into the grasp of others. Character passes with us into the presence of God.—Bishop Boyd Carpenter.

NOTICE.

The Aberdeen District meeting will convene at Nettleton, on Friday, May 5. We are going to make of this an all-day meeting, and hope that a goodly number, in addition to the delegates, will attend from each auxiliary in the district. We are especially anxious that each new society be well represented. Much emphasis will be placed upon the reports from the delegates. We urge that each Young People's and Junior division be represented. Plans will be made for conserving the newly organized societies and pushing farther into the unorganized territory. Let us rally our forces and make this occasion an inspiring and enthusiastic one. Names of delegates must be sent to Mrs. Will Wiggin.

Mrs. J. H. HAUGHTON,
District Secretary.

HERE AND THERE.

An interesting report comes in from the Sarah auxiliary in the Sardis District. They report six members in the auxiliary, with eight members in the mission study class.

From Poplar Springs, in the Durant District, comes a report of an auxiliary with only four members and a mission study class of four. A splendid beginning for a rural church!

A most encouraging letter comes from Mrs. E. S. Lewis, of Oxford, in which she states that the work there is going forward by leaps and bounds. They are very happy to have with them now Mrs. B. S. Guyton, who will be remembered as Miss Kate Smallwood, and who was in Soochow, China, for five years under the direction of our Board.

The many friends of Miss Ethel Golding will note with pleasure her marriage at Boyle, Miss., on the 11th of March, to Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville. While we regret to lose her from our volunteer ranks, we rejoice with her in her new-found happiness and extend to her all good wishes.

Mrs. S. F. RILEY.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY SOCIETY OF FIRST METHODIST CHURCH OF BATON ROUGE, LA.

Our Woman's Missionary Society reports 36 members at present and 30 subscribers to The Voice. Two monthly meetings have been held regularly, one of these using The Voice program, the other being a business and mission study meeting.

About 23 meetings have been held during the year; the attendance for 20 of these averaged 16¼. Our best attendance has been 60; our lowest 8.

Our society had the privilege of having Rev. Geo. D. Harker, of Brazil, address it last May, and Mrs. S. S. Harris, a returned missionary from China, gave us a splendid talk in November.

Our dear president, Mrs. B. E. Eskridge, moved from our midst in the spring. Our society, through two of its members, told her of its love and appreciation, presenting her as a gift a copy of our Church Hymnal.

During the year death took from our rolls three of our members: Mrs. E. V. Smith; gentle, sweet Mrs. J. R. Holmes, and Mrs. Alice G. Drake, our life member, whose noble worth is known over all Louisiana.

Some charity work has been done, visits made to strangers, flowers sent to the sick, and a substantial box sent to St. Mark's Hall, containing sheets, pillow cases, towels, infant clothes, and a large rug. The fact that there are two other women's societies in our church, each doing a fine local work, makes our report weaker than the reports of those churches where the women are united in one organization.

Once, instead of having the regular program, we had a review of the autobiography of John G. Paton, with an appropriate map study—this program was later given before the Sunday School and Epworth League, with the hope of inspiration for the young people.

We entertained the women of the church with a program, followed by a tea, when we spent a pleasant time in social intercourse.

We report with especial interest the occasion when we had charge of the Sunday evening service, with a large attendance. A program of the last Council at Little Rock was given, the addresses delivered upon that occasion being committed to memory and spoken by those taking part. Nineteen young women served as proxies for the class that were consecrated at Little Rock—those representing missionaries wearing white and those representing deaconesses being attired in typical deaconess costume; all wearing, printed in large letters across their breasts, the names of the young women whom they represented. It was especially impressive that the young women who gave the missionary and deaconess addresses of consecration, themselves expect to devote their lives to this work. Our friends will see that since Baton Rouge Methodism couldn't go to the Council, we brought a bit of the Council to Baton Rouge Methodism.

For thought of this plan and its execution, and for some nine years' devoted, unselfish service to our society, we owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. H. S. Johns. No society in the Conference has a member who labors more unceasingly or intelligently than does she.

Mrs. C. A. BATTLE.

GOOD NEWS FROM UTICA, MISS.

Mrs. B. W. Lewis, Press Superintendent, writes: "We are glad to say that our work here is on the up-grade. Reports will show our membership doubled. Several of our members attended the conference at Vicksburg and came home with renewed inspiration and determination. We hope by the time we meet in Gulfport that we can report an auxiliary with every department in working order."

"I AM NOT GIVING WHAT I OUGHT."

In Chicago a mother whose drunken husband had deserted her and their six children said to me after I had given an address on missions: "I am not giving what I ought to send the Gospel to the heathen. But I can not give much more out of the money I earn as a wash-woman. I could sleep less though and spend more time at work."

She secured a position as a scrub-woman in a large office building where, after washing and ironing all day, she worked until ten o'clock at night scrubbing.

One day in my office, I received a letter containing some of this "scrub money." The letter was hard to decipher, but it said this: "I am not sending as much as I would like to this time, but it is all I have, and I have been thinking of late that maybe God doesn't look so much at what we give as he looks at what we have left after we get 'through giving'"—James M. Taylor, in Missionary News.

A HEALING SPRING AT YOUR DOOR.

Here is a very unusual and peculiar offer—one that you rarely meet with. It evidences the greatest faith on the part of its maker and inspires confidence. It is made by an earnest and enthusiastic man who not only thinks but knows from personal experience that he is right. He proposes to give you the equivalent of a three weeks' visit to a Mineral Spring of most remarkable restorative powers and make no charge if you are not benefited. His offer has been accepted by several thousands of sufferers in all parts of the United States and his records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, report no benefit.

If you suffer from dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder or liver disease, uric acid poisoning, or other condition caused by impure blood, take Mr. Shivar at his work and sign and mail the following letter:

Shivar Springs,
Box 17-H, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION

(Adopted by the Missionary Society, at Meadville, Miss.)

Whereas our Heavenly Father has, in his infinite wisdom, removed from our midst one of the oldest and most esteemed members of our Missionary Society, Sister M. A. Porter; and

Whereas in the long and intimate relation held with her in this society she was found faithful in the discharge of duty; therefore, be it resolved:

1. That the wisdom which she exercised in the aid of our Society by service, contributions, and counsel will be held in grateful remembrance.

2. That her sudden removal from among us leaves a vacancy that will mean a serious loss to our town and community and casts a shadow upon us that will be deeply felt by each member of our society.

3. That we express our deep sympathy for the bereaved family, and it is our hope that this great loss to us may be overruled for our good by Him who doeth all things well.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the records of our Society, a copy sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication, and a copy given to the bereaved family.

Signed: Mrs. J. S. Costly, Mrs. F. H. Round, Mrs. J. P. Gaugh, Committee.

GIRL COULD NOT WORK

How She Was Relieved from Pain by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Taunton, Mass.—"I had pains in both sides and when my periods came I had to stay at home from work and suffer a long time. One day a woman came to our house and asked my mother why I was suffering. Mother told her that I suffered every month and she said, 'Why don't you buy a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?' My mother bought it and the next month I was so well that I worked all the month without staying at home a day. I am in good health now and have told lots of girls about it."—Miss CLARICE MORIN, 22 Russell Street, Taunton, Mass.

Thousands of girls suffer in silence every month rather than consult a physician. If girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion would take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a safe and pure remedy made from roots and herbs, much suffering might be avoided.

REV. A. B. MOWERS ADVOCATES NERVE REMEDY.

Nervous indigestion is one of the commonest of the many forms of nervous trouble. It is very hard to treat usually, but those who have used Dr. Miles' Nervine all report that it was not long before their trouble vanish entirely.

Every ailment must have a cause and the cause is what should be removed. When the cause lies in the nervous system, Dr. Miles' Nervine cannot be too strongly advocated. It is backed by thirty years of successful use.

The Rev. A. B. Mowers, of York, Pa., is an ardent advocate of this remedy since it completely relieved him. He made the following statement for publication:

"Nearly 10 years ago I was troubled with nervous indigestion in its worst form. I had sick headaches nearly every day with a dizzy, dull feeling. I was extremely nervous, confused and suffered much with constipation. I was informed of Dr. Miles' Nervine and Liver Pills and determined to give them a trial. I used them as directed and received much relief. I continued the Nervine until I had used several bottles. I now enjoy good health, relish my meals and can eat any kind of food without fear. I take pleasure in recommending Dr. Miles' Remedies to the public."

Dr. Miles' Nervine or Liver Pills can be purchased at any drug store and the purchase price will be cheerfully refunded by the druggist if after using the remedies you are not satisfied with the results obtained.

Meadville Charge (Miss. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: The Meadville Charge is in a splendid condition at present, and we hope to have the best year in the history of the work, as this is my fourth year, at this place. We had a fine meeting at Meadville and one at Bude, both of which were conducted by Rev. D. E. Kelly and Rev. S. E. Kirby. We are getting ready to build a church at Bude. Our people are, as a rule, interested in the work of the Church. We are praying that we may have an old-time revival throughout the charge this year.—J. W. Thompson, P. C.

McCool, Miss.

Dear Mr. Editor: Rev. W. W. Mitchell, presiding elder of the Durant District, has just held the second quarterly conference of the McCool charge. While here, Brother Mitchell preached four times, to the delight and profit of all who heard him. He has certainly endeared himself to this people by the impression which he made upon them. My board of stewards are looking after the pastor in a material way. This makes me hopeful, and in a general way there are signs of improvement along all lines. I have six Sunday schools on the charge doing good work, and by the help of the good Lord and the co-operation and faithful assistance of this good people, I hope to be able to bring a clear balance sheet to the next Annual Conference at Winona. I ask an interest in the prayers of all the brethren.—T. L. Oakes, P. C.

Shreveport, La.

Dear Doctor Meek: On last Monday evening, March 27, a number of the good people of our church met at the parsonage and gave the pastor a nice "pounding." It was the regular time for the meeting of the "Earnest Workers' Bible Class," which meets every Monday evening. There were many nice things brought in, which will make our grocery bill much lighter for some time. One of the best features was the good cheer and genial fellowship which characterized the entire occasion. After a short business session of the class had been held, refreshments were served, consisting of ice-cream and cake, which were apparently enjoyed by all. Our work is moving along reasonably well, and we are hoping for a glorious revival in the near future. Our second quarterly conference was held on March 29, and our presiding elder was with us and was at his best.—I. T. Reames, P. C.

Algiers (New Orleans).

Our Algiers congregation had a very interesting public gathering looking to the promotion of their new church enterprise on April 7. Writing of this occasion, Mrs. R. M. Brown says: "We had more present at our banquet than we could seat, and, after a delicious repast, we were entertained by local singers and readers. Subscriptions amounting to $1375 were taken, making the total amount secured thus far in cash and subscriptions $9207. Over half of this amount is in cash. The congregations are perhaps the largest we have had in the last four years. While all departments of the church have their good points, our Epworth League especially is above the average. The fact that nearly all its members are of approximately one age and are about equally divided between the sexes, makes the work harmonious. While they are modest, our Leaguers are not backward about speaking, praying or going out to do religious work. The average age of our boys and girls is about eighteen years, and they are fun-loving; but we have no problem with reference to dancing or card-playing. They find their pleasures in the different phases of Church life." (We are printing elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate a toast in verse to our old Algiers Church, which Mrs. Brown read at the banquet mentioned above.—Ed. of Advocate.)

Strongs, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We appreciate the good parsonage at Strongs and the generous reception which we have had here and at Prairie, on the M. and O. Muldon also is an important part of this three-cornered station and entered the beginnings pleasantly. They do nice things out here and appear to think little of it. Thirty bales of hay, with corn and kitchen supplies, was simply an uncounted starter. Some choice additions to the parsonage furnishing also were in evidence. Even a Bishop could enjoy a thing like that. The "rock roads" in this big section add greatly to the convenience of going. My successor at Shannon gives it out that "they shouted" at one of his churches recently, but some other people might also shout if they got a new preacher. Shouting, however, is in order, for says the Word, "Rejoice in the Lord, oh, ye righteous, and praise is comely for the upright." My predecessor here writes poetry. They say also he can raise turnips. Once in a while, some kind of preachers can "raise cain," I have heard; but this author of poems could talk up the angels and cause people to think of heaven. The farmer prayed for a "trash-lifting" rain. At Strongs, we need a church-moving revival. The Strongs church is the original "Paine's chapel," where Bishop Paine came often to conduct revival meetings during his long residence at Aberdeen. This church has migrated several times, and even now is a short distance out from this I. C. railroad town, and is good to look upon; but to "behold the Lamb of God" to the best advantage from that pulpit, the church needs to be recast and located more convenient to the principal population. This people are fully able to do such things, when they have a mind in that direction.

Since the above notes, I was seemingly close down to the quiet waters of the beautiful "narrow stream" and could only say, "God's will be done." Later, the impression appeared to be spoken, "God's will shall be done." Mrs. Williams also was seriously ill and recovered slightly in advance of me. Little of sickness has come to us in recent years, and we were greatly favored in being so generously provided for, and to have had no few expressions of kindness and of solicitation. The physician was of great skill and one of God's men. We are grateful, and look to the future with hope and with recuperating strength.—A. H. Williams, P. C.

THE WISNER DEDICATION.

The beautiful new Methodist Church at Wisner, La., in the Monroe District, was dedicated on Sunday, March 12, 1916, at the eleven o'clock service. The day was an ideal one and the congregation filled the house. The special music by the choir was exceptionally good. The dedicatory sermon was preached by the presiding elder, Albert S. Lutz, who presented the necessity of the emphasis being placed upon spiritual matters and how the church should keep abreast of the times in the advancement of God's Kingdom.

The building committee, composed of Dr. W. A. Mecom, T. B. Gilbert, E. A. Pennybaker, and Dave Roach, not only did well in seeing that the church was artistically finished, but turned it over free from debt. The trustees were present and through E. T. McKee turned the church building over to the Presiding Elder, who pronounced the words of dedication and offered the dedicatory prayer.

This was immediately followed by the administration of the Lord's Supper to a large number of communicants.

The pastor, Rev. J. R. Roy, has been diligent since Conference in seeing that the building was brought to completion and in consequence his financial report led the district for the first quarter. He also arranged with the Presiding Elder to preach for him twice a day for eight days; so the new church got started with a revival that resulted in twelve accessions. The future of the Church is bright with promise that in a short time there will be a very strong congregation at that place. There are large developments taking place in this section, and it is destined to become one of the greatest agricultural countries in the world.

FOREIGN MISSIONS.

Foreign Missions literally means to send out of doors, or, in plainer words, it means to send beyond the lines or limits of one's own country. Any mission beyond one's own country is a foreign mission. The following are some unanswerable reasons for Foreign Missions:

1. The common origin of all people. All came from the same mother and father. This is taught very clearly in the following Scriptures: "And Adam called his wife's name Eve, because she was the mother of all living." (Gen. 3:20.) Not the mother of birds, fowls, and beasts, etc., no; but of the living, in the sense of never dying or ceasing to exist. Paul said to the people of Athens in speaking of God: "And hath made of one blood all nations of men." (Acts 17:26.) True science teaches that all people have one origin and that all belong to a separate and distinct cycle of life from all living creatures that are not human, and therefore, that all human beings belong to the same family, and hence are under obligations to respond to the needs of the needy of the same. The heathens are our brothers and sisters, and therefore our obligation to give them the gospel follows.

2. The second reason for Foreign Missions is our relation to God and Christ. When born again we become God's children and Christ becomes our Advocate and also our Elder Brother. Being in true fellowship with God and Christ, we become like them. Paul said: "But we have the mind of Christ" (1 Cor. 2:16); and hence the question, "What is the mind of Christ?" naturally arises, and part of the answer to it is found in Christ's own words when he declared: "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost." (Luke 19:20.) Therefore since his mind is the salvation of the lost, our mind must be their salvation, too. We should be interested in the heathens like him.

3. The third reason why foreign missions are right is the commission of our Lord. That commission is, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." (Mark 16:15.) That settles the rightness of foreign missions definitely and forever. Our Lord commands us to go to foreign and all fields with the gospel. The United States could send it to all the world if it would cease spending money for unneeded things, for which it is now giving annually $3,980,000,000. Note the following figures: chewing gum, $25,000,000; confectionaries, $290,000,000; soda founts, $415,000,000; tobacco, $750,000,000; jewelry, $900,000,000; spirituous liquors, $1,600,000,000. One should observe that we did not include in the above estimate what is spent on theaters, theatoriums, etc. May God wake our people up to see their enslavement to what is hurtful to their bodies and ruinous to their souls—in other words, their waste of God's money. We are his stewards. Let us be good stewards and use our blessed Lord's money for his glory and the greatest good to our race.

JACKSON DISTRICT NOTES.

Capitol Street Church, Jackson, has been enjoying a fine series of evangelistic services conducted by Rev. B. F. Lewis of Hazelhurst.

The pastor of Galloway Memorial Church and his flock are planning an evangelistic campaign to begin on April 16. It will be a meeting conducted by the pastor, aided by his active members.

The Canton Sunday school has undertaken a $25 special for Japan this year, while the Madison Sunday school has undertaken to raise $30 for China.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, our energetic pastor at Eden, has wrought a much needed improvement on his charge by moving the parsonage to a much more desirable location and remodeling it.

R. E. Rutledge, at Vaughan, and J. F. Campbell, at Benton, have both made fine beginnings in their new fields of labor. The people of their charges have shown appreciation of their energies by practically paying in full the first quarter's assessments for ministerial support.

Rev. M. F. Adams, at Flora, is carrying the banner for the best work done in the district for the Advocate.

A partial report on the Advocate Campaign in our district makes the following showing:

Galloway Memorial has one subscriber to every 31 members.

Madison charge has one subscriber to every 19 members.

Bolton charge has one subscriber to every 16 members.

Brandon charge has one subscriber to every 13 members.

Flora charge has one subscriber to every 10 members.

Come on, brethren, with that Advocate Campaign. We can lead the Conference, if we will. Won't you be one to say, "And we will?" ISOM.

THE DOORWAY OF LIFE.

In the dim, sweet woods, a few letters are deep cut in the bark of a spreading beech. The schoolboy who thus used his jackknife in carving the initials of his own name desired to be remembered. He had a kind of instinctive, but vague, longing for permanence. But the bark will heal in time, and well-nigh obliterate the wounds made by the boy's ambition. And at last the rippling waters below, that go on forever, will sing the requiem of the tree itself. And the achievements of the boy's mature years will be forgotten, and the stone on which other hands lovingly carved his name will crumble into dust.

Down in the cellar, a sickly, white potato shoot creeps across the floor toward the light. Over there an outcast weed pushes upward through a crevice. High up on yonder wall, in a little corner of masonry, where the flying dust accumulates, the rain has sprouted a seed, and a little tuft of grass is striving hard for life. But decay and death seem to belie all permanence, and to mock the ceaseless struggle for life.

Thus death seems the sum total of all our miseries. It is to many the tragic end of a tragic and transitory existence. But such is not the case, when the thought of the death we cannot escape directs our minds toward the great eternity.

Some one has said: "The picture of man before and after he knew death in the Legend of Jubal is as true to experience as to imagination. In the old, soft, sweet days before men knew death, when all that was known of it was the single black spot in the memory of Cain, his deseendants lived in gladsome idleness; they played, they sang, they loved, they danced, in a life that had no gravity and no greatness; but when the second death came, and men saw that there had come to one of their own race a sleep from which there was no awaking, a new meaning stole into life. The horizon which limited it defined it and made it great. Time took a new value; affection, by growing more serious, became nobler; men thought of themselves more worthily and of their deeds more truly when they saw that a night came when no man could work. Friends and families lived in a tenderer light when the sun was known to shine but for a season; earth became lovelier when they thought the place which knew them now would soon know them no more. The limit set to time drove their thoughts out toward eternity. The idea of the death which was to claim them bade them live in earnest, made them feel that there was something greater than play; for death had breathed into life the spirit out of which all tragic and all heroic things come. Death has thus added to the pomp and the fruitfulness, to the glory and the grandeur of life. Without it we should have had no struggle of the will against destiny; of the thought which wanders through eternity, and beats itself into strength and hope against the bars and barriers of time; without it man would have had no sense of his kinship with the Infinite, for the finite would have been enough for him."

This is true because death is only of the body. It frees the sont from the bondage of sense. The entrance to the tomb is the gateway of life. We do wrong to regard death as the sum of all our miseries. The Christian should regard it as the sum of all his joy, when with faith he looks for a land of permanence and of life.

In the beautiful Metairie Cemetery of New Orleans, there is indeed a silent and stately city of the dead. On its wide avennes are polished marble mansions of the departed. Love and wealth have been lavished to make their last resting places beautiful. But not one of these splendid mausoleums can compare with a sepulchre once cut in the solid rock. For that empty tomb forever tells men that the grave is not the end.

Shall we say that death is an unmixed evil, when it drives our thoughts out toward the great eternity and gives us a sense of kinship with the eternal God? It is, in reality, a great blessing to the righteous—it is the sum total of their joy, and the gateway of their beautitnde. It is only a transition from an earthly, sorrowing, and often tragic existence to the perfect life.

We must die to live. That is true of the sowing of seed. "That which thou sowest," said Paul, "is not quickened except it die." There is death around us that sometimes moves the sensitive soul to melancholy and to tears. In the autumn, the trees of the forest flaunt their million banners, yellow, glorious, golden. But after all, the splendid hues of the autumn leaves are only the ghastly colors of death—the gaudy, but pathetic death-mantle of the wood. Every brown and golden spot is but the blight and decay of death. The world seems wrapped in gloom as the brilliant autumn leaves fall to earth, and are covered with lee and snow, and the naked boughs rattle together in the wintry wind. The golden petals of the flower turn to a dull brown, and, with the stalk and blade, fall to earth and rot away. But with them falls a small seed, which abides through all the ice and cold of winter, and, with the recurring springtime, brings forth new and beautiful life. So in another glorious springtime, we shall not doubt that the tomb means life, not death—that it is but the doorway of life. R. H. H.

THE RESURRECTION OF CHRIST A NECESSITY.

The importance of Christ's resurrection can not be over-emphasized. The acceptance of the truths which he taught was staked upon it. A dead Christ would have meant a dead Christianity, for a living Christ is the soul of the religion which he founded. In rising from the dead Christ triumphed over death and fulfilled prophecies both in the Old and New Testaments.

This was the third of the three most joyful events that the world has ever seen, creation being the first, and the birth of Christ the second. These last two happy occurrences were marred by man, the one by his fall, and the other by the fact that Jesus came unto his own and his own received him not, but chose rather to put him to a cruel and shameful death. The [illegible]dness of the resurrection has no blight or stain upon it—it is for all time, and nothing can lessen its triumph or throw a damper over the joy which it brought to the world. Throughout the ages prior to it, there had been men who believed in immortality, but Christ proved beyond a doubt that there is a life beyond the tomb of a grander and more glorious nature than man had ever dreamed of.

The Savior had lived a sad life. He had been a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. His followers had continually misunderstood him, and when he had needed their support and sympatny most they had deserted him. The sweet fellowship that he had had with the Father in prayer and his great love for mankind had enabled him to complete his stupendous task. His resurrection was a vindication of himself and his teachings to the world. The joy which filled his breast when he returned to his Father, after having performed his mission of love to sinful men, must have caused him to receive greater glory than that which he had laid down to come to earth in the form of man. He loved the Father, and the Father's approval must have meant much to him.

What does the resurrection mean to you? It is capable of meaning much, but just how much each individual must determine for himself.

THE DENOMINATIONAL COLLEGE.

The Central Christian Advocate made some time since the following impressive utterance:

"Never can the American people disparage the denominational college. There is, to be sure, just now almost a craze in behalf of State institutions, but it will act as a counter-irritant if we stop and recall that eight of the nine Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States are college men, and seven of the eight are from denominational colleges. Eighteen out of twenty-six Presidents of the United States were college men; sixteen of the eighteen were from denominational colleges. Eighteen of the twenty-six recognized masters in American letters are college-bred men; seventeen of the eighteen are from denominational colleges. Of the members of Congress of 1905 receiving college education who were prominent enough to be mentioned in 'Who's Who,' two-thirds were graduates from denominational colleges."

This is indeed a fine showing for the Church college—one which the American people would do well to lay to heart. We are not sure that our contemporary, however, is wise in his use of words when he says, "Never CAN the American people disparage the denominational college" OUGHT would, in our opinion, be a more fitting word. The "denominational college" has already been considerably discriminated against in the United States, and is having to struggle for its very existence. It would be a sad day, indeed, for our country if Christian higher institutions of learning should be pushed to the wall, or if they should be secularized and stripped of the Christian spirit which made them such a mighty power in the days agone.

WHAT EASTER MEANS TO ME.

Rev. B. C. Wentworth.

To me the Easter morning
Scatters all the fears of gloom.
The Sun of Righteousness Himself
Dark shadows from the tomb.

To me the Easter morning
Means the breaking of a day
That shall shine as a light supernal,
When all pains have passed away.

To me the Easter morning
Speaks of "the loved and lost awhile,"
Who have left us and our weeping,
We shall greet them with a smile.

To me the Easter morning
Whispers, "We shall see the King,
Who makes victors over the grave
And robs death of its sting."

—Zion's Herald.

AN EASTER MESSAGE.

By Rev. Hollis Hunt, D. D.

In Revelation 1:18 we find the words of our glorified Lord: "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold I am alive forevermore."

The first thought here that impresses us is that Christ "was dead." The prophets had predicted for centuries that he would die to atone for the sin of the world. He himself had plainly told the Disciples again and again that he was going to die. The millions of slain bullocks, goats, pigeons, lambs, and turtle-doves that had been sacrificed on Jewish altars for centuries, all prefigured that he was going to die. It was the only way to atone for the deadly sin that rested like an impenetrable pall over the face of the whole earth, shutting out hope of mercy and the possibility of salvation. He "was dead."

It is one of the saddest thoughts that ever brought sorrow to my heart that the Being who loved me more than all other beings combined had to die for me to deliver me from my sins; but, notwithstanding the fact that the contemplation has broken my heart and I have wept over it again and again, I do not know of anything that even Jesus Christ has ever done for me that has my gratitude as much as the fact that he did love me enough to give his life for me, and that he "was dead" for my sake.

That he was dead, is one of the best attested facts of history. The Jews that conspired against Him were satisfied that he was dead; and the Romans, by whose authority He was crucified and who had the crucifixion officially in charge, were satisfied that he was dead. The Roman soldier pierced his side with an iron spear, and out gushed the water and the blood, and he was laid away in the grave, where he remained until the third day. Over all the earth settled down the solemnity of death, horrible darkness terrified the guilty inhabitants, and throughout all the goodly land that God had set apart for his own people, heavy hearts were sunk in despair, having given up all hope of the blessings to which they had been looking forward through this marvelous Friend and mysterious Being about whom their hopes had begun to cling. He "was dead." No sane man can question that. But how thankful we are that he did not remain dead. My heart is filled with gratitude that while my sins afflicted the Son of God, while my sins broke his heart and nailed him to the cross and laid him in the tomb, there was not evil enough in my sins, not evil enough in all the world, not power enough in the universe to confine him in the grave beyond the divinely appointed time. In the text quoted, He says, "I am he that liveth." Thank God for that glorious resurrection.

While I am engaged with thoughts like these, there is a man not far away who poses as a minister of the gospel and to whom a considerable number flock at times, who advertises that he is going to preach in his pulpit on the Resurrection and prove that there never was any resurrection of the body of our Lord, but that the soul will be the resurrection and the life. He declares that the resurrection of the body is absurd on the face of it, and that such things are impossible. But brethren, there is no subject so clearly and unmistakably established than any other fact of history that the human body of Jesus Christ was removed from Joseph's tomb and that on that Sabbath morning hour, while angels stood at the tomb, he ascended to the right hand of God. He that was dead is living.

In the first place, the Roman soldiers who had been appointed to guard the tomb feared the resurrection. The Jews that had determined to put him in the grave and did everything to keep him there, were so overwhelmed with the evidence that they never questioned it. The only subterfuge to which anybody resorted was to bribe the Roman soldiers and pay them to tell a lie by saying that the disciples stole him away while the soldiers slept.

There were eleven distinct appearances of the body of our Lord to his disciples between the resurrection morning and the ascension day. There were perhaps others. The fact is, the Gospels indicate that there must have been a number of others, but eleven of these are recorded for us in these sacred pages. These appearances were to different individuals, and to different groups of men and women, individuals and groups of different character and different locality—under different conditions, so that it would have been impossible for all of them to have been mistaken or deluded.

In the first place, you remember, we are distinctly told that he appeared to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven demons. I do not wonder that the risen Christ who went down into the grave with the sole purpose of redeeming sinners from their sins and delivering them from hell, made the first manifestation of his risen body to the woman that had fallen so low in sin and so powerfully under the domination of the evil spirits that tortured and strove to damn her soul.

We are told that He appeared unto those women that went with surprise and gladdened hearts, almost dazed by the gladness of the news, bearing the angel's message to the sorrowing and disheartened disciples. I do not wonder that Jesus appeared in the second instance to a few modest and holy women that had courage enough to face the perils of earth and hell and visit the grave of the most bitterly hated being that has walked this earth. Women who had thus dared to face the prejudices and the hostility of all earth and hell were going out with a message of love and of hope to hearts that were drooping, and spirits that were sinking, and souls that were despairing—to them he appeared.

Then, in the third place, we are told that he appeared the same day to Peter. There is a fitness in all these appearances that is wonderful. Peter had loved him so devotedly, had served him so courageously, yet his strong, manly heart had failed him in the crisis, when, above all times, he needed to be true. Peter had failed him when all others had failed him, and when it would have been more noble and heroic to stand by him than at any other time; Peter, who was more confident that he would never deny or forsake his Lord than any one else; Peter, who had failed his Lord more completely and denied him more profanely and wickedly than anybody else; Peter, who fell in the evil crisis and crash. It was to Peter that Jesus appeared to next.

Then, in the fourth place, in the evening of that same day were two disciples walking from Jerusalem out to the village of Emmaus, several miles away. Their hearts were sad and heavy. They were talking about this mysterious being who had been living in their midst, teaching them such wonderful messages, impressing them so by his comforting and sanctifying presence, bringing such light and such power and such joy into their midst. But now they suppose that he is dead; they know he has been dead, and think he is still in the grave, and that all is lost; but suddenly there appears a mysterious Being walking with those two discouraged hearts. While they do not know who he is or what his purposes are, somehow their hearts begin to warm up and burn within them. He begins to open to them, in a luminous fashion, the wonderful words of the prophets of old. They begin somehow to feel the impress of a wonderful spirit. By and by their eyes are opened, and lo, there is sitting with them at their own table, in their own home, the Son of God.

There was one other appearance that same day. These disciples at Emmaus could not rest content with the good news untold. I have never yet found a soul that had been mightily impressed by the Spirit of Jesus Christ but who found rising up from within a natural, spontaneous impulse to share the good news with others that needed it, and I tell you, my friends, whenever your noble forces that are striving for outlet in spreading these "glad tidings of joy," you are doing violence to your own soul, doing injury to your fallen fellows that need the encouragement, and you are grieving the Savior that went upon the cross and down into the grave to redeem you. They could not rest content after they had had a visitation from their Christ that their brethren had not enjoyed, so they hastened back to Jerusalem. They found ten of the Apostles assembled there in the upper room. Thomas was away, but these ten were sad of heart; they were lamenting the departure of their best friend; they were despairing of ever realizing the hopes that they had centered in him; they were behind closed doors, hid away up there in terror and in dread of the misfortune that might overtake them. Jesus entered, the doors being closed, as those ten Apostles and those two disciples from Emmaus were discussing the wonderful experience at Emmaus. The disciples were alarmed—they thought they saw a ghost in their midst; but the merciful and sympathizing Savior looked compassionately around and did everything he could to relieve their apprehensions, to comfort their hearts, and he breathed upon them, saying, "Peace be unto you; receive the Holy Ghost," and the Comforter came in.

Just one week from that event, you remember, the Apostles were assembled in the upper room again. Thomas was with them this time, and Jesus entered once more. Thomas had been debating this question in his mind all the week, declaring that he would not believe that Jesus had risen from the dead until he had thrust forth his finger into the wounds of the pierced side, and so Jesus stood before Thomas and exhibited his hands and said, "Thomas, reach forth thy finger and thrust it into My side," and, with evidence before him, Thomas cried out, as you have done after your periods of doubt many times, "My Lord, and my God."

I want to say right here that I have passed through many conflicts of faith; many disturbances of spirit; many times have the powers of darkness hovered about me and assailed my faith and hopes; there have been hours of prolonged struggle and awful conflict. But out of all these seasons of doubt and critical investigation into the foundations of my faith, I have emerged to loftier altitude and clearer light. Because of these temptations, my faith is infallibly grounded, and can never be removed.

Several days pass by and the scene changes. These Apostles were men of the Province of Galilee. It was natural, therefore, that after the Passover season they should make their way back into their native province. It was also in obedience to the divine command that they went into the Province of Galilee, for there the Savior had told them that he would meet with them. I think it was a natural thing also that some went a-fishing, for they were fishermen by trade. I have heard a great deal of abuse heaped upon these Apostles for going back to the old life, but I never had any patience with it. Jesus told them to go there in Galilee, and wait for his coming. Why should they go over there and sit down in idleness and depend for support on others, while waiting for the coming of the Lord? I would have a great deal more respect for many men I know if they would devote more of their time to business than they do devote to it. There is nothing dishonorable in labor at secular employment if it be entered into in the spirit of the lowly Nazarene with the purpose of preventing burdens to others and accummulating means with which to carry out the definite directions of God. There, as they toiled in the vain endeavor to catch fish, suddenly there appeared this wonderful Being in their midst. Before, their labors had been ineffectual, because that occupation that they were engaged in at that time was a type of what they were to engage in for all the coming years of their lives. Jesus was away; not one fish was caught; but when the Savior came and told them where to cast their net, they cast it down on the right side of the ship, and, bless God! the nets began to break. Out there on the sea of Galilee where he had promised to meet them, seven of them looked upon his resurrected body.

Shortly afterward he appeared to the eleven Apostles on a mountain in Galilee, and then he appeared also, Paul tells us, to above five hundred brethren at one time; he appeared also to the solitary individual, James, and then he appeared before the assembled disciples, and led them out to the height of Mount Olivet, and there in the presence of them all, he rose up above the earth and ascended towards the heaven until the clouds received him out of their sight. He was gone; but the angels hovered over these gazing disciples and declared that he would come again.

But after the ascension, you remember he appeared to Saul of Tarsus on his way to Damascus, striking him down on the highway helpless, under his exercise of living power. Saul cried out, "Who art Thou, Lord?" The response was, "I am Jesus of Nazareth, whom thou persecutest." That manifestation changed, not only the entire character, but changed the whole course of that powerful, positive life; that manifestation convinced one of the most learned and logical and powerful minds that has ever existed and wrought on this earth. You remember that Paul tells us about being caught up into the third heaven, there having revelations that it was not lawful to utter.

We pass on, recalling the fact that the Spirit had been poured out before Saul's conversion, in fulfillment of the Savior's promise. One of the greatest evidences that the Savior did rise from the grave, was the marvelous outpouring of the Divine Spirit on the day of Pentecost. Every time there has been a movement of the mighty Spirit of God from that hour till now, has been added evidence that Jesus did rise from the grave —that He is alive.

The power that overthrew the Jewish nation a few years later, in fulfillment of the word of the Savior, stands out in history as another startling evidence of the fact that Jesus rose from the dead—that He is living.

Coming on down to the first chapter of Revelation, you remember that John, who had leaned his head upon the Savior's bosom at the last supper, was banished to the island of Patmos. There, alone, he was in the Spirit on the Lord's Day, and he had a marvelous vision, in which he saw one "like unto the Son of Man." He was not in the humiliation state, not the sin-bearer; but Jesus glorified—the All-powerful, All-conquering Redeemer; and this majestic Being assured John, "I am he that liveth, and was dead." Then he adds: "Behold, I am alive forevermore."

Everywhere we look at this Easter season we behold continued evidences that Jesus is alive today. The fact enters into the world's commerce, and may be seen in every storehouse and in every shop window. On every hand one sees the Easter garments, the Easter plumes, the Easter flowers; and amid all the beauty rise the anthems, the sermons, and the voices of praise and adoration, attesting his resurrection. Whether you enter the palaces of the rich and great or go into the cottages of the lowly, in all you find the marks of the Risen Lord.

But who can answer the character of those who trust in this Risen Christ? In every age there have been those who believed in his atoning death and in his glorious resurrection and endless Life. These have been the noblest spirits of all the centuries, and without them earth would be poor indeed. Their characters, their lives and their service and testimony as to their experience of faith, added to the other evidences, satisfy and thrill our hearts; and, as we accept their faith, there come to us in turn new powers in life and unspeakable triumphs in death. He is 'alive forevermore."

CHURCH EXTENSION LOAN FUND DAY.

By Rev. W. F. McMurry, D. D.

At the last Annual Meeting of the Board of Church Extension, held in St. Louis, Missouri, May 6-8, 1915, a Loan Fund Campaign Committee, consisting of Bishop John C. Kilgo, D. D., Bishop A. W. Wilson, D. D., Bishop James Atkins, D. D., Bishop W. R. Lambuth, D. D., Rev. R. H. Cooper, Rev. S. H. C. Burgin, D. D., Rev. James Thomas, D. D., and the Corresponding Secretary, was appointed, and by a unanimous vote. It was the mind of the Board that this Committee should lay plans, looking to the presentation of the work of the Board of Church Extension, and with particular reference to its Loan Funds, on the date of the dedication of the new office building, which date has been fixed for May 7, 1916.

This special Committee met in Dallas, Texas, on November 1, 1915, at the Methodist Publishing House, effected an organization, fixed May 7, 1916, as Loan Fund Day throughout the Church, and instructed the Corresponding Secretary to prepare a program, and call upon all our pastors to preach on the subject of Church Extension on that day, and to give our people an opportunity to contribute to the Loan Fund Capital of the Board.

It was the judgment of the Committee that a call should be made for contributions aggregating $100,000, but that no pressure should be placed upon any pastor or congregation beyond the earnest request that a message on the subject of Church Extension be delivered, and that opportunity be given every congregation in Southern Methodism to contribute in cash or in the form of subscriptions to the increase of the Loan Fund Capital of the Board.

This proposition has received the hearty and almost unanimous endorsement of the Conference Boards of Church Extension. The Bishops who are members of the Board of Church Extension have not only endorsed it as such, but also added their individual endorsement of the proposition.

The contributions made by the congregations, or by any individual members of same, may constitute a separate Loan Fund, or be added to the Conference Loan Fund, or to any other Loan Fund now in existence. If a separate Loan Fund is established by the congregation or individual, the donors or donor may have the privilege of naming such Loan Fund. If it is established by the congregation, the name of the congregation would be an appropriate one for the Loan Fund to bear. Or, the congregation might properly honor the name of some worthy brother or sister. The amount secured on Loan Fund Day, undirected by the donors, will be used to create Loan Funds in honor of our two retired Bishops, Joseph S. Key and A. W. Wilson.

After the message has been delivered, and the cause presented, and the people have made their contributions, the list of contributors, giving name and address of each, together with check covering all cash payments, is to be mailed to this office. Care should be taken to give the name and address of every contributor, as it is the desire of the Board to receipt each individual for the contribution made, thereby giving credit where it belongs. Subscriptions may be made payable in installments or all in one payment at a future date. This office will assume the responsibility of collection, and the duty of the pastor will have been discharged after preaching on the subject and giving his people a fair opportunity to make their contributions.

At the close of the thirty-third quadrennium of Church Extension history, during which time we have moved our home in hired homes, old residences, temporary quarters, all of which have been inadequate and inconvenient, we are moving into a first-class, up-to-date, modern, fireproof office building, a building the Church may well be proud of. The cost of this building has been provided for, and the gathering of the funds for the erection has not been child's play. Not one dollar of the cost has come from the receipts on Church Extension assessment, or from public collections in the congregations. The entire amount has been secured by personal solicitation on the part of the Corresponding Secretary.

That should be a glad day for the whole Church when, on May 7 we assemble to listen to the dedicatory address by Rev. Samuel A. Steel, D. D., of Columbia, South Carolina, following which the formal dedicatory services will be conducted by the Bishops. We feel sure the pastors will join with us in spirit in the dedication of this new Church Extension home by complying with the request of the Board of Church Extension to deliver a message on the subject of Church Extension, with due emphasis upon the Loan Fund feature, and by giving our people an opportunity to contribute to the increase of the Loan Fund Capital.

At the close of the last quadrennium, March 31, 1911, the Loan Fund Capital stood at $560,562.62. The General Conference made a call to increase it to $1,000,000. One-half of the quadrennium is gone, and we have reached $802,091.58, considerably more than one-half of the amount needed. The two remaining years must witness the addition of the balance to make up the $1,000,000, or $197,908.42. If the Church upon May 7, Loan Fund Day, will lay upon the altar the $200,000 called for, the task of gathering the balance will be very much lightened.

If for any reason any congregation cannot observe Loan Fund Day on May 7, they are requested to do so as soon thereafter as possible. It will also be well to give the Epworth Leagues and Sunday schools a chance. The amount contributed by the Sunday schools should be added to the Sunday School Loan Fund.

We are sending to every itinerant minister in the Church a pamphlet entitled "Church Extension Loan Funds," which gives the history of this Church Extension Loan Fund movement, describes the several kinds of Loan Funds, and goes somewhat into detail on the subject of Memorial and Annuity Loan Funds. It also contains illustrations and examples of the practical working of these funds. A booklet entitled "The Gospel of Church Extension," which sets forth the work of the Board in a more general sense and from a somewhat different angle, has also been sent. A card from any layman in the Church will bring to his door a copy of both of these publications, and other Church Extension literature as may be requested.

We are confident that the Board of Church Extension will have the co-operation of the preachers and laymen throughout our connection in the observance of Loan Fund Day.

A BIRD'S-EYE VIEW OF THE CAMPUS OF EMORY UNIVERSITY, ATLANTA, GA.

The progress which has been made in establishing this institution is unparalleled in the history of education in the South. In less than two years its property holdings have come to amount to approximately $3,000,000; and a great campaign is under way in the section of the Church east of the Mississippi River to increase its resources. Scarcely a week passes that does not bring to it contributions, large and small, from various portions of the Church. Every Mississippi Methodist should claim the privilege of making a donation to aid the movement in the interest of Emory University which Rev. Robert Selby is now leading in the Magnolia State. Write Brother Selby concerning this great enterprise.

BEAUTIFUL FOR SITUATION.

The citizens of Atlanta have responded nobly to the call for a half-million dollars for Emory University, and one of the daily papers of that city says: "Emory University will be one of the great show places of Atlanta. Located on a magnificent campus of seventy-five acres in Druid Hills, which was chosen from all the tract as the most suitable site for the purpose, the University buildings will be constructed of concrete with a facing of white marble and will command a superb view of the surrounding country. Rising from the summit of an eminence in the center of the campus, the white buildings will stand against the sky line as Atlanta's everlasting monument to education, just as Atlanta's office buildings stand against the sky line as the city's monument to business enterprise and progress and prosperity. Under the direction of Henry Hornbostel, of New York, an architect both of buildings and grounds, who has laid out some of the great universities of the country, the campus and buildings of Emory will be treated together, as a whole, each corresponding and harmonizing with the other, the grounds setting off the buildings and the buildings beautifully adorning the grounds. Mr. Hornhostel, as consulting architect and builder, is associated with Arthur Tufts, of Atlanta. Work on the first building of the group is now in progress. It will house the Lamar School of Law, which is to be the Law Department of Emory, and the Candler School of Theology, which is the Theological Department of Emory. This building, like all the rest, will be a classic in architecture and will be equipped with every modern convenience for the students. A feature of the wing occupied by the law school will be a courtroom where law students will try cases before judge and jury, thus getting accustomed to actual courtroom work while their study of the law progresses. Taking a look into the near future, one sees a broad boulevard, which will probably be named "University Drive," that will sweep out Peachtree Road to Oglethorpe University, then to the east to Emory, on through Druid Hills and Decatur to Agnes Scott College, and thence through the parks and residence sections of the city. Visitors to Atlanta will be taken over this drive. Atlantians will make it their favorite drive. It will link together Atlanta's three great institutions of higher learning—the institutions that are destined to make Atlanta the educational center of the South."—Methodist News Bureau (Nashville).

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The Eighth Session of the Seashore Divinity School will be held this year on the delightful Seashore Camp Ground, Biloxi, Miss., beginning at 8 p. m., Tuesday, June 27, and continuing till noon July 6.

The Program Committee is not yet ready with its final announcement, but we are assured that the speakers secured will be well able to maintain the splendid record of past sessions. There will be three great lectures daily for all, besides other attractions that may be scheduled for an hour in the afternoon. But the afternoon will generally be given to rest, association and recreation.

The four undergraduate classes will be provided for as usual, with one instructor from that examining committee of each Conference, and the examination will be given those who have studied the course before coming.

Provision will be made for the instruction of those persons intending to apply for admission on trial into the Annual Conferences.

The Bishops who are to preside at the next session of each of our four participating conferences will be invited guests of the school, and we hope to have them all present and sharing the work and fellowship.

It is also expected that two meetings which should mean much to this section of our Methodism will be held: one of the presiding elders, and the other of the Presidents of the colleges and schools of the four Conferences.

Our last session was delightful. Every lecturer captivated and inspired. Rev. O. W. Bradley, the brilliant young pastor at Tupelo, Miss., had this to say of it: "I am glad to have the pleasure of expressing myself in regard to what the Divinity School has meant to me. This is my third year in attendance, and I have always received untold blessings. I have always felt better fitted for my work after having attended the school. This session in particular has been very helpful to me. The social features have also been excellent, and I have been pressed closer to God, having caught a larger vision of truth. I shall go away with a greater zeal for the salvation of the lost." Many speak and write in like appreciation.

The Divinity School affords opportunities that no preacher of the four Conferences can afford to miss. Why not every presiding elder and pastor be present this year? Let us make this the greatest session the school has known.

Our laymen and charges should realize that the AIM of the School—"A Greater Man for a Greater Service"—is for their benefit, and they should see that their preachers are given the opportunity and means to attend. And none should forget the warning we fly: "Rich and potent personality is not possible by cheap and shiftless methods."

Hoping to greet you all on the Seashore Camp Ground during the coming session, June 27 to July 6, 1916, I am yours sincerely,

H. M. ELLIS, Pub. Agt.

LOAN FUND DAY.

By Bishop W. B. Murrah.

I have observed with deep interest the announcement that Sunday, May 7, has been designated as Loan Fund Day. This is eminently fitting and I trust that the day will be memorable in our history because of fruitful results.

The work of Church Extension has been so wisely directed by our General Board that it relates itself, in a way most vital and influential, to all of our interests.

Our new building will be dedicated on the day named, and it is to be hoped that the inspiration of that great occasion will be felt throughout our widely extended connection.

If our Loan Fund Capital could be largely increased it would stimulate every worthy cause, and put forward all of our church enterprises. Loan Fund Day will give opportunity for informing our people of the great and far-reaching work of our Board, and, if the day is properly observed, the resources for future beneficence will be largely augmented.

FAITHFULNESS NEVER UNREWARDED.

"Never mind where your work is. Never mind whether it be visible or not. Never mind whether your name is associated with it. You may never see the issues of your toil. You are working for eternity. If you can not see results here in the hot working day, the cool evening hours are drawing near, when you may rest from your labors, and then they may follow you. So do your duty, and trust God to give the seed you sow 'a body as it hath pleased him.'"—Alexander Maclaren.

EASTER POEM.

By Mrs. L. M. Lipscomb.

Another joyous Easter is here,
Bringing to all sweet comfort and cheer.
The earth which has slumbered in winter's embrace
Awakes and shows a smiling face;
Bedecked in robes so fair and bright,
Glowing in the warm sunlight.

Hark! the church bells all are ringing,
While glad voices join in singing,
"Christ the Lord is risen to-day,
Sons of men and angels say."
Let all the world this news proclaim
And praise the Savior's Holy name.

Hundreds of years have rolled away
Since that first glad Easter day,
But still the message sweet and clear
Drives away our doubt and fear.
Christ is risen. Oh, joyful thought
With what peace and comfort fraught!

Let us forget on this Easter day
That strife and bloodshed still hold sway;
May the thought of the risen Lord
Bring peace instead of gun and swords!
Let all lands his praises sing,
While in our hearts we crown him king.

THE PROHIBITION OF THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

The warfare being so incessantly waged against the manufacture and sale of alcoholic drinks, encircling the globe as it now does, is from an ethical standpoint probably the greatest movement of modern times. The men so unselfishly engaged in the promotion of this worthy cause have already accomplished wonders, and national prohibition in the United States now seems certain to come within a few years. However, the growth of this great social reform is like that of all others, in that it has been gradual rather than phenomenal. There have been martyrs to the cause like the late Senator E. W. Carmack; but no man has ever, or will ever, lose his life in behalf of this or any other movement that tends to uplift humanity in vain. Senator Carmack was assassinated, many think, by agents of the liquor forces; but to-day Tennessee is numbered among the "dry" States and Ex-Governor Patterson has seen the error of his way, and has become one of the strongest advocates of prohibition in the country. Had he lived, Carmack would have accomplished much, but martyrdom may do for a cause what nothing else can. As one of the temperance speakers has expressed it, the liquor dealers now have their backs to the wall and are fighting for life itself. No wonder they fight national prohibition, for it would deprive them of an easy way to get hold of money which others have earned by hard toil. Of course, when prohibition becomes universal in this country the habitual drinker will suffer for a while, because he can not attempt to satisfy his unnatural and insatiable thirst; but his wife and children will not suffer for the necessities of life and because of the shame which his conduct has heaped upon them. It is better for one person in a family to suffer than for all the members of it to suffer.

Those who have been in the habit of drinking liquor will not suffer any more, if as much, when deprived of it, as have those other unfortunate people who have been in the habit of taking drugs regularly which can not now be obtained without presenting a doctor's prescription to the druggist. The law against the sale of habit-forming drugs is incomplete if it is not aided by the passage of a similar law respecting the sale and use of alcoholic beverages. States can become wet or dry when they please, but to obtain national prohibition it will be necessary to amend the Federal Constitution, and it is so difficult to secure an amendment to that Constitution that if it is once obtained it is never likely to be repealed. The liquor forces are fighting the prohibition movement with money, and they have a large quantity of this at their disposal. That is a powerful weapon in a civilized land, though not the most powerful. The temperance organizations are fighting for the cause which they believe to be right, by educating the people through the schools, by the use of that portion of the press not bribed by the gold of the liquor people, and from the pulpit and lecture platform, thus making them to know the ruin which must always follow the use of alcohol. Education is a most powerful weapon in the hands of a free people. Money can turn aside its thrusts for a short time only.

EASTER COLLECTION FOR THE LOUISIANA ORPHANAGE.

We again call the attention of the Methodists in Louisiana to the needs of our Orphanage at Ruston, and to the obligation which rests upon our churches and Sunday schools to take collections for this cause on Easter Sunday. We sincerely hope that every Methodist in the State will make a donation next Sunday. Certainly no pastor or Sunday school superintendent will fail to emphasize the importance of this matter, and give the people an opportunity to contribute to the support of this great work. By a united effort on the part of all, the funds that we now need can be secured. The continuance of our labor for the fatherless and motheless is absolutely dependent on the success of this collection. Faithfully,

CHURCH EXTENSION FUNDS.

By Bishop Collins Denny.

One of the greatest movements in the Church within our lifetime has been the organization and the work of the Board of Church Extension. We did not begin this work too soon. It is surprising that we did not begin it sooner, because the day has long since passed when we could do our work effectively without church buildings. This is a matter that ought to interest every member of the Church. Even a little help from each one will bring surprising results. It is cheering to think that each of us will have some part in all the success that will attend the work of the Church in every one of the buildings into which our gifts may go. We shall have an interest in every conversion that shall take place in each of these churches, and indeed in all other good work done in the Church. Only eternity can reveal how much our gifts to this cause will mean.

Very earnestly I hope that each of our people and preachers will give hearty co-operation to the effort to increase the funds to be placed at the disposal of the Board of Church Extension.

THE SALOON IS AN ECONOMIC CURSE.

The annual drink bill of the United States is $2,500,000,000. The Panama Canal cost $100,000,000. We spend annually for education $750,000,000. Our entire cotton crop annually, on the average, is $700,000,000. Our entire wheat crop annually, on the average, is $875,000,000. Compare these figures and see how enormous is the drain of the liquor traffic upon all constructive enterprises.

By the most conservative estimate, sixty-two out of every 100 persons who have been reduced to poverty were brought to their condition by drink. By the same kind of estimate, fifty out of every one hundred criminals were made criminals by liquor. The truth is that the percentage is more nearly eighty than fifty. The judge of one of Chicago's city courts says: "Not only are the saloons of Chicago responsible for the cost of the police force, the fifteen justice courts, the county jails, a great portion of the Joliet State Prison, the long murder trials, the coroner's office, the morgue, the poorhouse, the madhouse go anywhere you please, and you will find almost invariably that whiskey is the root of the evil."—Epworth Era.

BY WAY OF SUGGESTION.

We take the following from a late issue of The Baptist Record (Jackson, Miss.):

"Editor Graham, of the Christian Index (Atlanta, Ga.), told the Georgia State Convention that the combined forces of the missionaries, evangelists and pastors whose salaries have been supplemented by the Board had sent in during the year less than ten subscribers to The Index. He told them, further, 'that by actual measurement, more than 8000 lineal column inches of space' were given to the objects within the State fostered by the Board. This space at a very conservative estimate was worth $1000."

This statement is well worth meditating upon. The principle involved is not by any means limited to The Christian Index, or the State of Georgia, or to the Baptist Church. We haven't a particle of doubt that Church papers render more gratuitous service than almost any other agency in the land. If the value of the space they devote to the various boards and interests of the Church and Kingdom were figured up at advertising rates, it would, we dare say, in almost every instance be an eye-opener to many people; and, in addition to this, every line of type set up costs money. Yet the majority of such organs are given no financial assistance by the Church, but are merely started and told to "sink or swim, live or die," as best they can.

Our Church papers are always glad to open their columns to any good cause to a reasonable extent, but it is not pleasant to be complained of because they cannot submit to an exhorbitant free employment of their pages by some special organization, institution, or movement. And sometimes those who make the most demands upon Conference organs and find the most fault with them for not acceding to all their wishes are those who are thoroughly organized to circulate other periodicals and who never lift a hand to help along the paper that they seek most to use.

We hope that some day the constituencies that they serve will have a higher appreciation of the regular weekly journals of the Church and give them a better support.

RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY.

(This utterance of The Presbyterian Standard is well worth reading and thinking about. An editor who can sit on the tripod in such days as these and so write as to be really neither an earnest advocate nor opponent of anything definite is a remarkable development of the race. Yet there are some who come pretty near doing this.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Is doctrinal controversy an evil? If so, certainly not an unmixed evil. There is a certain pale, delicate, lavender-scented piety in our day which deprecates all strife among Christians, and pleads for such avoiding of dogmatism, and such mutual concessions as will insure unbroken peace among all who claim to worship the same God. Exponents of this type of piety are never so happy as when they can bring together on the same platform Trinitarian, Unitarian and Jew. They need to ponder the significance of the words: "The Son of Man came not to send peace but a sword." It is not by peace but by warfare, persistent and uncompromising, that the victories of the cross are to be won. Christ was born into this world that He might "bear witness unto the truth." He was a martyr to this witness-bearing. The Christian who has no convictions that he is willing to fight for is following the Master at a long distance, if at all. And if he is willing to fight for his convictions, he will find occasion. Peace at any price is even worse in religion than it is in politics. Christianity can accomplish its mission only by proclaiming the truth, and that not in any subdued, timid, apologetic tone, but in a tone of uncompromising hostility to all error. It is sure to incur the charge of bigotry, of intolerance, or narrowness. Better this than to shun the charge of paring down the truth, or by tactily agreeing to live on friendly terms with all forms of error.

BISHOP NEELY'S LATE BOOK.

By Bishop E. E. Hoss

When I got to San Francisco I went to the Methodist Book Concern and purchased Bishop Neely's "American Methodism," having been told that it also was a discussion of the question of union. Well, all I care to say about it now that I have gone through it, or gone over it, is that, to quote the language of the street, "It is the limit." In my time I have spent many thousand dollars in the purchase of books and have often made good bargains. But if I have ever before squandered a dollar and a half of good money so recklessly as that which went for this volume, I cannot now recall it. The gentlest criticism that can be passed upon it is to say that it is narrow, partisan, and should be entitled "Hark! From the Tombs." The good bishop has survived public opinion, but is not aware of the fact. If he had set out with the express purpose of trying to defeat any kind of closer union between the two great Methodisms of this country, he could not have contrived a more effective method than that which he has used. Such a sustained perversion and distortion of the facts of history I have not met with in all my reading. Dr. Charles Elliott's "The Great Secession" is fair and candid when compared with it. It was my intention to reply to it in detail, but I am getting old, and the doctors tell me that I must not unnecessarily excite myself. Some day, however, when I am thoroughly rested, I may venture to waste a good morning in pointing out the egregious blunders that Bishop Neely is seeking to pass off upon the world as sober truth. All that I choose to add now is, that if he has any considerable following in his Church, then it is good-by to union.

QUEER ARITHMETIC.

I've found a queer arithmetic.
When mother brings a treat,
If I divide my part with Bob
It tastes ten times as sweet.
And once when Brother Bob was ill
They gave me ice cream twice;
Though I had all and he had none,
It wasn't half as nice.

CLEAN HANDS.

Mother's checked kitchen apron reached from Phoebe's chin to her toes, and she stood on a wooden stool as she washed the dishes. But even though she was such a little girl, her hands worked so quickly in the warm suds, and the dishes were so clean as she placed them in the rinsing pan that any one would have said, "Ah, this is not the first time that Phoebe has washed dishes for her mother. She has learned how by doing it very often." And as Phoebe worked she sang so merrily that any one would say: "Phoebe likes to help her mother, even though the work is dish-washing."

While she was still singing, the door opened and Mabel peeped in. Mabel was Aunt Mabel's little daughter and Phoebe's cousin.

"Oh, how can you sing when you wash that greasy pan? Ugh, the thought of how your hands feel makes me creep," and Mabel looked at her own pretty hands. "I will not wash dishes."

"But to-day is Saturday, and Nora cannot do more than the baking. It is mother's busy day, and she needs help." Phoebe polished till the pan shone.

"Well, I wouldn't do it," Mabel cried, and ran away.

When the dishes were all put away on the pantry shelf, the small hands did look a little red, but do you think Phoebe cared for that when mother called, "Thank you, Phoebe dear; you have made the whole morning easier?" She did not take the checked apron off, for she knew that mother was hurrying to find time to polish the silver. It was a slow, tedious task, but mother had said to Nora, "I must try to do it."

Phoebe knew why. Uncle Matthew was coming to spend a whole week with mother. Uncle Matthew was the brother mother loved so dearly and had not seen since he went away to a far country to be a missionary. Phoebe was such a tiny little girl that she could not remember the day at all, but mother often told her the story.

In a short time the silver knives and forks and spoons were spread on the kitchen table, and how they began to shine! First, a dab of powder on the soft chamois cloth, then round and round went Phoebe's fingers; not a dark stain escaped her notice.

Suddenly the door opened. "Look at your hands. They're as black as a piece of coal." Mabel had come in. As she spoke she rolled her own dimpled hands in her white apron.

"It'll all come off," laughed Phoebe.

"Well, I wouldn't do that for any one. I thought you'd be ready to come out to play by this time."

It did take a good deal of scouring to take the stains away from the fingers when the bright silver was laid away in its place, but do you think Phoebe cared after she heard mother say to Nora, "See what the child has done! She is a little treasure!"

The clock on the kitchen mantel warned Nora that dinner time was coming, and she cried, "What shall I do? The vegetables are not ready. The baking and the extra work have made me late."

"I'll peel the potatoes, Nora. Let me." It was little Phoebe who spoke.

"You, child! They'll stain your hands again."

"Oh, the stain will all come off." Soon Phoebe was seated on the low kitchen stool, with a pan in her lap almost as big as herself, peeling potatoes, so that father's dinner should be ready on time.

Again Mabel popped her head through the kitchen doorway. "Well, you're the queerest girl!" she called.

"Queer girl, indeed!" snorted Nora. "Never a wee bit of help have ye given your mother and she as busy as Phoebe's. Ye ought to be full of shame when you look at your lazy, white hands."

Uncle Matthew came, and Phoebe soon found him to be as dear an uncle as mother had said. He had the strangest way of looking at one. Phoebe said to herself, "I believe he can almost see what I think." Of course this was not quite true, but certainly Uncle Matthew was very wise. He was so wise that it was not long before he understood just why Phoebe's mother was so gay and happy and rested, and why Mabel's mother sometimes seemed almost too tired to smile.

Both little cousins wondered when, the day before he went away, he caught their small hands in his big one; side by side they rested: Mabel's soft, dimpled, white ones, and Phoebe's roughened and red, with here and there a stain. Slowly he said:

"Beautiful hands are those that do
Work that is earnest and brave and true,
Moment by moment the long day through."

"It's a big mistake to think that loving work makes them ugly, my dears!"

The next day, when Uncle Matthew kissed Phoebe good-by, he pinned a beautiful gold and pearl pin under her chin as he whispered, "A badge of honor for the little maiden whose hands and heart are pure and clean and good and beautiful, because they are ready to give loving service."—The Canadian Baptist.

WHEN HE WAS THANKFUL.

"I can't think what you can find to sing about," said a blackbird to a thrush, who was pouring out a joyous carol from the top of an old stump.

"Can't you?" said the thrush. "I can't help singing when I'm thankful."

"That's just it," said the blackbird; "I can sing as well as any one when there's anything to be thankful for; but the ground is as hard as iron, there isn't a berry in the garden, and where I am to get my breakfast from I'm sure I don't know. Perhaps you have had yours?"

"Not yet," said the thrush.

"Well, I would wait for my song till I had found some food, if I were you," said the blackbird.

"I've never gone without yet, and I've no doubt I shall find some presently; at all events, it is a fancy I have to begin the day with a song."—Jewels.

THE CHURCH'S GREATEST NEED.

By E. B. Partin, M. D.

The Church's greatest need is not an educated ministry, although an educated ministry has its place of importance. It is not the need of young men in the pulpit, although young manhood, consecrated to the service of God, also has its place of importance. Neither is it the popular preacher who is a "good mixer" with the people; a preacher may mix so much with the people that he will become, like them, worldly-minded, and so lose his power to do them good. "Like people, like priest."

The greatest need of the Church to-day is an endowment of power from on high (Luke 24:49)—the power to preach the gospel with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven. This was the source of strength and success for which the apostles and disciples had to wait at Jerusalem, according to the instruction of the great Head of the Church. And it was absolutely necessary for them to obey this injunction before undertaking the great work to which the Lord had called them. Nothing else but this supernatural endowment, which was not of earth or of an earthly nature, but which came down from heaven, as the fulfillment of the promise of the Father, and in answer to united prayer, could qualify them and make them sufficient for the great work which the Master had left for them to do. It was a great undertaking, the setting up of the kingdom of Christ here in the world, but they had a great God to help them. One who could [illegible] in heaven and in earth. This was the secret of their wonderful and glorious success. And [illegible] source of strength and prosperity [illegible] greatest need of the Church on the [illegible] and enlightenment upon it was when Christ [illegible] up his kingdom here in the world. "Go teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things that ever I have commanded you, and lo! I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28:19-20.)

"Oh God! our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home."

Chunky, Miss.

ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have before me the Advocate of April 6. I see a letter from Brother James H. Felts of the North Mississippi Conference in which he quotes a letter from a member of the Class of the Second Year, who has completed five of the six books required by the Course of Study. In order to complete these books the brother had to pass forty-three examinations and read over two thousand pages of Bible history, theology, sermons, etc. The work was accomplished in one month. Now if I rightly understand the purpose of the Course of Study, and the aim of the Correspondence School, then the brother in question has defeated both; and Brother Felts by commending him and setting him before his classmates as an example is also doing an injury to him and any others who may be influenced to follow his example. I am a member of the Class of the Third Year of the Louisiana Conference, and, having finished the Second Year's work last November, I am thoroughly familiar with the Course and the studies required. I do not understand how any one could derive much benefit or profit from that amount of work in twenty-six days. If the work can be properly accomplished in one month, why is it called a "Year" Course?

I enrolled in the Correspondence School the first of this Conference year and I have completed three of the six books. I will finish one other before the summer revivals begin and this fall I will take up the other two. In this way, I have some time all along through the year that I can devote to my other work, and at the close of the year I have finished the entire course and have been greatly benefited. I usually study in the morning and take care of my other work in the afternoon. I would be glad to hear from Brother Felts or any one else on the subject, and if I have the wrong idea I shall be glad to be enlightened.

PUTTING ON IMMORTALITY.

The Apostle Paul uses a significant phrase when he says, "Our citizenship is in heaven." We belong to a larger city than the town or village where we do our work and have our residence. We are citizens of the heavenly Jerusalem. We belong to a greater republic even than America. We are citizens of the republic of God. The perfect social order of which we dream, with its justice and brotherhood, is not [illegible] realized, but now it is our part to make it real so far as possible in our own lives. Men who have lived in this spirit of immortality [illegible] in their own experience the prayer our Lord Himself taught us, that God's will may be done on earth, as it is done in heaven.—Zion's Herald.

OUR HONOR ROLL.

This roll is to be made up of charges in which all of the stewards are subscribers to the Advocate. At present it stands as follows:

1. Ripley and Blue Mountain, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neblett, pastor.
2. Court Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams pastor.
3. Kossuth Circuit, North Miss., Rev. D. R. McDougal, pastor.
4. Oak Grove Circuit, Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor.
5. Shuqualak Circuit, North Miss. Conf., Rev. A. S. Raper, pastor.
6. Flora Ct., Mississippi Conference, Rev. M. F. Adams, pastor.
7. Trenton Ct., Mississippi Conf., Rev. T. B. Winstead, pastor.
8. Brooksville Ct., North Miss. Conf., Rev. J. J. Baird, pastor.
9. Sumrall, Mississippi Conference, Rev. J. C. Chambers, pastor.

A UNIQUE CIRCULAR LETTER.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church will meet at Saratoga, New York, early in May. During the past year, while the election of delegates was in progress, a good deal was said in the Northern Methodist press about political methods being invoked by some persons in their efforts to secure seats in this great legislative assembly. This led us some time ago, while stating that we scarcely dared to advocate the introduction of politics into the Church, to declare that it is to be regretted that there is not some legitimate way to ascertain definitely beforehand how the men likely to be sent to a General Conference stand with reference to the leading issues that are before the Church, thus opening the way for the real sentiment of the membership of a denomination to express itself in the enactment of its legislation. Noting our comment upon this need of more of the representative principle in our Church affairs, our esteemed friend, Rev. M. L. Burton, a prominent member of the Mississippi Conference, sent us the following circular letter which he had had in hand for some years (we have, of course, eliminated the name of the colored brother who wrote it):

"Letter to the Lay Delegates of the M. E. Church.

"———, December 21, 1903.

"Dear Brother or Sister: On Friday, January 15, 1904, the Lay Conference meets in Hattiesburg, Miss., the site of the Annual Conference, to elect two laymen to the General Conference, which will be held at Los Angeles, Calif., next May, 1904. I am a candidate to go to said Conference. I have been a member of the M. E. Church for 25 years, and have held all the offices of the Church in the gift of my circuit for 25 years. I refer you to my present presiding elder, Rev. A. ———, or to any of his predecessors in office; also to Rev. J. H. ———, my pastor, or to any of my former pastors, as to my loyalty to the Church.

"I am a farmer. I own 940 acres of land, and raised 1,000 bales of cotton this year. If elected I will do all in my power to secure the election of a Negro Bishop in the next General Conference.

"I have been reading the Southwestern Christian Advocate for 20 years and am a lover of my Church and race. Yours, ———."

"P. S. I hope to secure your vote."

What do you think of this communication? It is easy to laugh at it and reprobate it as smacking of the nature of secular politics, but is not its candor and straightforwardness somewhat refreshing? We do not recommend it as a model for others to imitate, but the fact that the writer was open in his methods and was obviously willing for his fellow Church members to know how he stood on what he conceived to be the most important issue likely to come up is somewhat suggestive. We rather think that his course was preferable to that of the man who keeps quiet on all the leading issues before the Church of which he is a member until he takes his seat in a General Conference and then proceeds to act entirely for himself, caring little or nothing for the views of those whom he is supposed to represent. If, for instance, a member of an Annual Conference is for the retention of the time limit, is opposed to union with another Church, is against the uprooting of Southern Methodism in mission fields in which we have been establishing it for decades, and believes in specifically warning the people against dancing, card-playing, theater-going, and other prevailing evils, or if he is on the other side of all these questions, why should he have to vote in the dark and perhaps by his ballot send as representatives to the great legislative assembly of his denomination persons who would misrepresent him in almost every respect? Ought there not to be some UNOBJECTIONABLE way to set the representative principle to working to a greater extent in the Church? Who can suggest such a plan?

In our opinion, no man ought to want to represent constituents in either the State or Church with a majority of whom he is out of accord in his views—unless he is at least willing to subordinate his will to theirs when he knows what their sentiment is; and, even in that event, he would scarcely be capacitated to render them the best form of service. It seems to us that in a religious organization, if nowhere else, brethren ought to be perfectly frank and honest with one another, having no concealments whatever about what they conceive to be for the best interests of Zion and of the Kingdom. There should be no place for "pussy-footing" in the Church of God, with selfish or sinister ends in view.

THE SOCIOLOGICAL CONGRESS.

The Southern Sociological Congress which was held in New Orleans last week was largely attended and awakened considerable interest among the people of the Crescent City. The body met in several sections and many addresses were delivered by men of distinction. Some of the utterances made were, we think, wholesome and calculated to do good; while others were, in our opinion, unwise and misleading. Particularly do we object to the scheme which this, and most other like organizations, seem to have of laying hold of the Christian Church as an agency through which to effect purely secular reforms. This is a tendency which we are convinced the disciples of Jesus should vigorously resist.

The Conference for Education and Industry, which meets annually in connection with the Sociological Congress, is in session here at this writing. Much of the time yesterday was devoted to the consideration of the needs of the country church.

EASTER SUNDAY AND THE LOUISIANA ORPHANAGE.

Let all our Sunday schools and churches remember that they are expected on the next Sabbath, which is Easter Sunday, to take an offering for the Louisiana Orphanage at Ruston. The Annual Conference has ordered that this be done, and it is a matter of much importance that its instructions in this respect be carried out by every congregation in the State. The Orphanage now has no assessment levied in its behalf and is chiefly dependent for its financial income upon the offerings made on Easter Sunday and Thanksgiving Day. So, by every token, it behooves us to do something creditable next Sunday for this splendid institution, which is serving the Methodism of Louisiana so efficiently. Let all the money secured be forwarded at once to Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Ruston, La.

A MATTER OF MUCH IMPORTANCE.

In spite of our repeated statements, that the forms for the first half of our paper are closed on Saturday, and those for the second half on Tuesday at noon, and that we must give our time Tuesday morning to making corrections of copy already in type and the setting up of brief "personals," we are still deluged with matter which reaches us on Tuesday, accompanied with the urgent request, "Please get this in this week's paper." We should like to oblige you, brethren, but it is impossible. We can not incur the expense of delaying a whole office force to get in belated articles. A weekly paper is nearly a whole week in the process of being made, and when matter has been selected and put in type, it can not be discarded for other matter, and the work of getting the paper out held up until it is set up and made ready for publication. Why not send your copy in on time? In most cases, doubtless, this could be done.

WORTH NOTING.

Dr. H. A. Boaz, President of the Polytechnic College at Fort Worth, Texas, who is at present doing some postgraduate work at Columbia University (New York), had a very interesting communication in the Texas Christian Advocate last week that closed with the following statement, which is well worth noting:

"The more I see of the situation in the East the more earnest I am in the conviction that we must build our own great schools in the South to preserve our own ideals and maintain the faith handed down to us by the fathers. We are hearing daily doctrines that stir the hearts of orthodox Texans. But Whaling and I are immune. Our heads are too thick, or we are too old, to be infected."

DR. J. A. PARKER DEAD.

Just as we are about to close our forms (on Tuesday), we are in receipt of the following telegram from Rev. William Schuhle, of Lafayette, La.: "Rev. J. A. Parker died last night. Burial in Lafayette to-day."

This announcement will touch with sadness many hearts in Louisiana. Dr. Parker became a member of the Louisiana Conference in 1876 and was one of its best known ministers. He was a man of studious habits, scholarly acquirements, and of far more than ordinary preaching ability. He lived close to the Master and wrought faithfully to extend his kingdom. He was on the honor roll of the Conference and had been in declining health for several months; so his death was not unexpected. We extend sympathy to the bereaved and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them. We hope that some one in a position to do so will furnish the Advocate with a fitting memoir of the deceased at an early date.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. J. G. Johnson, of Black Hawk, Miss., has lately returned from Oklahoma, where he went to assist in a revival meeting.

From Bogue Chitto, Miss., Rev. Waldo W. Moore sends us a club of 10 subscriptions, for which we make grateful acknowledgment to him. He says that his charge must go on the Honor Roll.

Dr. R. E. Blackwell, President of Randolph-Macon College, at Ashland, Virginia, favored our office with a call last Monday.

Dr. I. W. Cooper is winning golden opinions as a presiding elder. A remarkably versatile man is this distinguished College President.

The Commencement sermon of the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, at Columbus, Miss., will this year be preached by Bishop James Atkins.

In a personal note to the Editor, Mrs. John M. Allen, of Tupelo, Miss., says: "We are all in love with Brother and Sister Bradley. Brother Bradley is doing a fine work."

At this writing Dr. A. F. Watkins, President of Millsaps College, in the Crescent City. He is taking a leading part in the Southern Conference for Education and Industry.

The Editor was out of the city from Thursday of last week to Monday morning. This will explain why some of his correspondence and other work has not been attended to more promptly.

Writing on April 11, Rev. L. P. Wasson, of West Point, Miss., says: "Everything goes well with us here. I go to-morrow to assist Rev. W. M. Campbell, of Shelby, Miss., in a few days' meeting."

Rev. George D. Purcell sends us the following notice: "Those desiring my services in revival meetings may address me at Plain Dealing, La. I shall be glad to make engagements for July and August."

A new volume of the Annual Conference Minutes is out in the usual form of that useful publication. Every pastor should have a copy. The price is 50 cents, net. Order of Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., or Dallas, Texas.

Dr. John M. Moore, Secretary of the Board of Missions for the Home Field, attended the recent Sociological Congress and Educational Conference in New Orleans. He brightened our sanctum with his presence for a brief season last Tuesday.

Dr. A. C. Millar, the accomplished Editor of The Arkansas Methodist, was in New Orleans last week to attend the Sociological Congress. He called at the Advocate office, but, much to his regret, the Editor was out and missed seeing him.

The New Orleans District Conference will convene at Bogalusa on Tuesday night, April 25, and will continue through Wednesday, and close Wednesday night. We are pleased to learn that the indications point to a large attendance and a good conference.

How about the Conference collections? This is a good time of the year to push them. The pastor who secures a good share of these assessments in the spring is certain to find it much easier to carry a clean balance sheet to the Annual Conference in the fall.

A program of the Vinita (Oklahoma) District Conference is on our table. Rev. J. W. Rogers, the stirring young presiding elder of that developing district, seems to have an admirable grasp of the work of the Church. The date of this gathering is April 26-30.

Writing under date of April 18, Bishop W. A. Candler says: "I received $500 from a young physician from Emory University last Thursday, and another subscription of $500 yesterday. The people are responding all along the line." This is, indeed, good news.

From the Texas Christian Advocate of April 13 we learn that Rev. B. T. Crews and Mrs. Crews have lately visited their son, Mr. L. E. Crews, of Dallas, Texas. Brother Crews is stated to have been much impressed with the buildings and work of Southern Methodist University.

Rev. J. C. Chambers, our pastor at Sumrall, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 8 subscriptions, forwarded on April 15, three of them being new. This places Sumrall on our Honor Roll. Brother Chambers, as is usual with him, is doing an excellent work in his present field.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Abels, of Ponchatoula, La., were visitors to New Orleans one day last week. Brother Abels did us the kindness to call at the Advocate office and bring with him several subscriptions. The Louisiana Conference has no worthier layman than Brother Abels.

The Mendenhall charge, Mississippi Conference, is having a good year under the leadership of its highly esteemed pastor, Rev. W. B. Waldrop. Brother Waldrop's letter brought us a club of 15 subscriptions, some of them new. We appreciate this good work in behalf of the Advocate.

In a letter bearing date of April 14, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference, says: "For the next two weeks I will be in the Winona District, after which time I will swing around to the several district conferences." Brother Gladney is an industrious worker.

Rev. W. O. White, pastor of the Iuka (Miss.) Circuit, sends us a club of 6 subscribers, and appends in his business letter the following note: "I am delighted with the work of the ministry. This is a pleasant charge to serve. The people are big-hearted and loyal to their pastor, and stand for high Christian living."

We are informed that our congregation at Greenwood, Miss., are much pleased with their new pastor, Rev. J. A. Hall, who is stated to have made a fine impression upon the entire citizenship of that progressive Delta city. Brother Hall is reported to be preaching to large audiences both in the morning and evening.

We have learned with much sorrow that Dr. H. G. Henderson, our popular pastor at Holly Springs, Miss., has been stricken with what is feared to be a stroke of paralysis, and that he is at this time confined to his bed. Let the brethren remember him and his loved ones at the throne of grace in this anxious hour.

Under date of April 13, Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Oak Grove, La., writes as follows: "Our church at Forest was finished yesterday." This congregation desires to secure some pews for their new house of worship at once. Any church having seats that it would like to dispose of would do well to write Brother Woodward.

Under date of April 10, Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of Tunica, Miss., wrote us as follows: "We had Bishop Atkins with us last Sunday. He dedicated two churches for us. We had a great time. We also had our second quarterly meeting. My people are ahead with me in the matter of salary. Our work generally is progressing well."

Rev. C. A. Northington, our efficient pastor on the New Albany (Miss.) Circuit, is making gratifying progress with his work. His charge has paid all the Conference assessments except those for Church Extension, Education, and the Conference Claimants. This is a strikingly good record for a pastorate composed of rural churches.

Prof. Dabney Lipscomb, the Lay Leader of the Columbus (Miss.) District, has issued an earnest call to his associate workers in that field to bestir themselves to increased activity. Prof. Lipscomb is an instructor in the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College, and is a recognized force among the educators of that commonwealth.

We have in hand a program of the Greenville (Miss.) District Conference which will convene at Benoit, Miss., on May 1 and continue through May 3. The accomplished presiding elder, Rev. H. S. Spragins, obviously knows how to plan for such a meeting. He is in his fourth year and has made a great record as the leader of our Methodist forces in the Mississippi Delta.

Through the courtesy of Rev. J. S. Purcell, President of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, Miss., we have received an invitation to the Commencement exercises of that institution, which will be held April 28 to May 1. The Commencement sermon and baccalaureate address will be delivered by Dr. I. W. Cooper. The graduating class of this school this year numbers nineteen.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Strongs, Miss., calls our attention to the fact that in his communication which appeared in the Advocate last week there was a typographical error, in which the word "solicitation" was substituted for the word "solicitude." We regret this error, for which Prother Williams was in no wise to blame, except that his handwriting is sometimes difficult for a lynotypist to read.

Our Church at Tchula, Miss., is enjoying a good degree of prosperity under the capable leadership of its present pastor, Rev. C. P. Moss. This is the first year that this church has been a station appointment, and the preacher's salary has been met monthly, and there is at present a balance of $160 in the treasury. The parsonage which this active flock has lately erected is a beautiful bungalow that reflects much credit upon the town.

Rev. H. R. McKee, of Rose Hill, Miss., states that in condensing his notice of the district conference of which he is to be the host, last week, we did not make it clear that he desires each pastor to ascertain who will attend the district conference, and how many will come in their own conveyances through the country and how many by rail. He wants definite information, that he may be able to make all needed preparation. Let the brethren write Brother McKee.

Last Sunday's Bulletin of our First Church at Baton Rouge, La., of which Rev. C. A. Battle is the brilliant pastor, announced the close, on the preceding Tuesday night, of the Klein revival meeting in that city, which had continued for ten days. It was stated that the meeting had accomplished great good. The membership of the Church was spiritually revived, and 1 members were received by certificate, 6 by baptism, and 17 by vows, making a total of 27.

Rev. R. H. Clegg, of Porterville, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for a fine club of 10 subscriptions—4 of them new. He has done a considerable amount of visiting among his people and is planning for aggressive work in several directions. His second quarterly conference has been held, and, though the finances were somewhat behind, they measured fully up to what was expected under the conditions existing. Brother Clegg is serving a good people.

Rev. J. D. Wroten, our capable young pastor at Benoit, Miss., who is to be the host of the approaching session of the Greenville District Conference, sends the Editor a pressing invitation to attend. As this is our own District Conference, it would greatly please us to be on hand, but a trip of 300 miles and back would take both more time and money than the Editor has at his disposal at present. We trust that the occasion will prove to be in every respect both a pleasant and profitable one.

We are pleased to be informed that Mrs. Vie T. Hoyle, of Tupelo, Miss., whose health has not been good for several months, is steadily improving, and that she hopes to regain fully her strength in the near future. Mrs. Hoyle is a woman of noble Christian character and unusual administrative ability. While she was President of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference it developed at a rapid rate, until it ranked second among the forty like organizations of the Church.

Mr. Embree Ross, who accompanied his distinguished father, Bishop Ross, on his recent trip to Australasia and China, Japan, and Korea, and who on his homeward voyage across the Pacific Ocean was stricken with appendicitis, for which he was operated on at Honolulu, reached the home of the family at Muskogee, Oklahoma, on April 15, feeling much better than he had for several months. We are delighted to have this pleasing information concerning this genial and highly esteemed young friend, for whom we have felt during the past few weeks not a little solicitude.

Rev. W. W. Perry, of Boyce, La., writes: "I have lately held a meeting at the Elen Bayou Church, which began on the night of the 10th inst, and continued through April 14. We had excellent congregations—the best, old people said, that have assembled there in many years. Though only night meetings were held, the interest grew steadily with each service. Seven persons were added to the membership of the Church—4 by baptism, 2 by vows, and 1 by certificate. A better day is coming for that church, as the community is fast being settled by industrious white people. All is going well with us on this charge."

A letter from Bishop Waterhouse, bearing date of April 12, states that his health continues to improve slowly, and that he expects to take some part in the work of the Episcopal College which is soon to be arranged for the following twelve months. The Bishop expects to go to Virginia in June, and, in order to avoid taking the long trip East from Los Angeles twice within the next few weeks, he will not attend the May connectional meetings soon to be held in Nashville, Tenn., and Louisville, Ky. We are much gratified to have this encouraging news from Bishop Waterhouse, whose safe leadership the Church cannot ill afford to be without even temporarily.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. T. H. Porter, Olive Branch, Miss., 8; Rev. W. M. Young, Pontotoc, Miss., 8; Rev. J. W. Thompson, Meadville, Miss., 9; Dr. J. M. Henry, Ruston, La., 2; Rev. J. V. Bennett, Monticello, Miss., 2; Rev. R. H. Bamburg, Eros, La., 4; Rev. A. S. Brisco, Lamar, Miss., 2; Rev. G. A. Baker, Eureka charge, N. Miss., 5; Rev. J. L. Carter, Wade, Miss., 7; Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss., 5; Rev. H. M. Cockrum, Chester, Miss., 6; Rev. A. W. Langley, Houlka, Miss., 5; Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Booneville, Miss., 3; Rev. S. D. Howard, Many, La., 6; Rev. A. H. Parker, Coushatta, La., 2; Rev. A. L. Harper, Sibley, La., 5.

HELP THE ORPHANS.

It has been a custom for a long time for the churches and Sunday schools and individuals in Mississippi to make a special contribution to the Orphanage on Easter Sunday. Just a word to call attention to the fact that we hope as many as can do so will make a special offering on the next Easter Sunday, April 23. Our needs are great, and, while quite a number are making regular contributions each month, our income is not sufficient to meet our necessary running expenses and the carrying on of much needed improvements.

The health in the Home is good at the present time, for which we are very thankful.

We appreciate very much the interest you have taken in our work and the publicity given through your valuable paper.

May this Eastertide bring renewed allegiance to the Risen One, and may this be manifested in the scriptural way, "Inasmuch as ye have done in unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me!"

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over 200 words in length will be published free of charge. All over 200 words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around. Remember the managers will be obliged to cut down to 200 words.

The death angel has visited the home of Mr. Mitchell under the wife and mother, Mrs. [illegible]-Hall. Her name was Amanda Bester. She was born in March of 1851 and died in April of 1916. She married Mr. R. M. Mitchell in Oct. 11, 1887 and to them were born eight children, five girls and three boys. It is said of her that she was a devoted wife and mother. Her family is what a sainted home has need of in order to fill a mother's place, but God in his infinite wisdom knows best and surely he will comfort the bereaved. He never permits a cloud of sorrow except it with some purpose for the good and the good of his loved ones. To every sad heart he offers comfort. Jesus himself was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. May the husband and children not grieve and complain at trouble but look and by living so that they may meet their loved one some day. The deceased was a member of the M. E. Church, South at Greenwood, La. She was a kind friend and neighbor.

A FRIEND.

On Feby 4, 1916, Brother HENRY WICHER of Pulaski Scott County, Miss., was very suddenly called to his heavenly reward. Brother Wicher for several years had been a resident of the Good Gospel Chapel neighborhood. He was born in New Hanover N. C., about 1836, and afterwards moved to Mississippi. He served in the Civil War for four years and came out safe and sound. In early manhood at about the age of 21 he professed religion, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church South at Trenton, Miss., in 1859. He was baptized by a minister of the Lutheran Church. Brother Wicher was a faithful member of the Church, being well clothed and well informed concerning its doctrine and teachings, and was a consecrated Christian. The funeral service took place at Gaspie Church on Saturday, Feb 5, 1916. It was conducted by the writer and Rev. A. M. Broadfoot of Meridian, Miss. Brother Wicher leaves to mourn his demise an aged wife, four sons and a host of friends and relatives. May God's richest blessings abide with those who are left behind to mourn his going. His pastor,

J. W. EVANS.

At an early hour on March 21, the spirit of Sister ELIZABETH LESLIE BELK quietly slipped away while the family were asleep and went home to God to enjoy the rich rewards of a long and faithful Christian life.

She was born in Pickens County, Alabama, in 1[illegible]. She joined the Church in early life. Soon after their marriage, she and her husband settled near Palestine Methodist Church in Clay County, Miss., of which they were both consistent members until they went to join the Church Triumphant.

On March 24, we carried her tired and wasted body out to the old church where she had worshiped so long, and amid the tears and flowers of a multitude of friends, we tenderly laid it to rest to await the resurrection morn.

One daughter, Mrs. W. H. Smith, of Jackson, and three sons, W. A. Belk of Holly Springs, H. A. Belk of Starkville, and J. W. Belk of West Point, with whom she lived after her husband's death, survive her.

To write her life,

"Make ink of tears, and molten gems and sunbeams mixed together.
With holy hand and golden pen, go write the name, Mother."

L. P. WASSON.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

It is with a feeling of sadness that [illegible] Miss Lucy Sandy of [illegible] Church at Bogalusa [illegible] that the Methodist Church at Bogalusa [illegible] Miss Annie G. Sandy. Miss Annie was a prime help in every [illegible] a true worker always ready to help the needy and deep in the way of the Lord. By her [illegible] she has left behind a [illegible] character [illegible] to be followed.

Therefore, be it resolved:

That while we as a Missionary Society bow in submission to our Heavenly Father's will we realize that we have lost a great Miss and that our Society is poorer because of the sister's removal.

That in sympathy we tender our deepest sympathy to the bereaved family our love and sympathy.

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family, a copy to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication and that a copy be placed upon the minutes of the Society.

Signed: Mrs. S. E. Perkins, Mrs. [illegible]

WANT AD.

Dear Dr. Mark: On account of the serious illness of Brother C. D. Arbuckle's little son, he was unable to hold my second quarterly conference, so he sent Rev. A. G. Shackle, our pastor at Mansfield, in his place. Brother Shackle preached a splendid sermon and presided over the quarterly conference with ease and ability. He was the guest of this scribe while in Many, and we enjoyed his visit very much. Brother A. L. Lightsey was here also and held the Sunday School lessons in Rev. W. H. Whitman's place. We were highly pleased with his efficient work, and feel that he must be good. All things considered, some of these [illegible] made on the Many charge, and we are expecting more pastors and greater progress. The Lord bless you and the whole Advocate force. Pray for me.

DON'T USE SOAP

on your hair. It is too strongly alkaline and will do a great deal of harm. The hair should be slightly acid to retain its soft and lustrous texture. Each individual hair is a delicate construction and requires careful, careful treatment. If your hair is harsh, dry, coarse and stringy, then you are not giving it proper treatment. The hair needs nourishment as much as the rest of your body, and in order to keep your scalp healthy and your hair plentiful and luxuriant you should supply it with the proper food and treatment. The Creoles of Louisiana possessed a formula for keeping the hair beautiful all the many years but the secret of themselves, but now you may enjoy their discovery by using 'La Creole' Hair Quina. Remember the same genuine which the Creoles used. It darkens hair in the natural way and keeps the scalp in healthy condition. For sale by all reliable dealers. Price $1. Stop! Calomel Is Quicksilver.

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There is no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 30 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

MANY FAILURES DUE TO HEADACHES.

A headache saps your energy and ambition. It kills your vigor and vitality.

Many have become not only nervous wrecks, but business and domestic failures, owing to the constant drain on their nervous systems by headaches.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have for the past quarter of a century proved to be the popular relief for headaches and other forms of pain. They bring the desired relief surely and quickly. They contain no habit forming drugs and have no bad after-effects.

People who have used them are only too glad to testify to their merits so that others may also be free from pain.

The Rev. J. A. Riley, of Trout, La., has the following to say:

"For over 10 years I have used Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills whenever I was in need of a remedy for pain, to allay fever or induce a natural sleep. I also find that they quiet the nerves. I have used them freely in my family to the exclusion of all other remedies and have always found them to do their work to perfection and never in a single instance have they had any bad after-effects. I heartily recommend them as a safe, pleasant and effective remedy."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are sold by all druggists at 25c for 25 doses. Your money will be refunded if they are not found to be satisfactory.

Crenshaw, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are in the midst of a great meeting under the leadership of Rev. J. H. Bell. We began on Sunday and never in my life have I seen greater results. Our Church and town are being stirred as never before. Brother Bell is preaching with great power. He is absolutely fearless in his fight against sin, and his preaching is bringing results in the conversion of sinners and the reclamation of backsliders. I do not know when we will close, as the end is not yet in sight.—W. R. Goodbody, P. C.

New Albany Circuit (North Mississippi Conference.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am very much encouraged over the progress my charge is making. I consider the New Albany Circuit one of the most promising fields in the North Mississippi Conference. We have the people and in connection with this we have a fine fruit country in the uplands. I have never eaten home raised fruit of a finer flavor in my life than that I had at the parsonage. With our drained bottom land we have corn to throw at the birds.

We are building good roads, consolidating churches, and buying automobiles. I have one consolidated church and it is the greatest country church I ever saw. We have every department in the Sunday school. I have a woman's missionary society with forty-five members. People come to this church from seven miles away.

I have received fourteen into the Church, and have made 114 pastoral visits, having held prayer in ninety-four of these homes since Conference. I have some 340 homes in my charge, over 200 of which I have visited. We have paid some in the parsonage fund. The ladies have installed a new suite at the parsonage.

This charge is made up of six churches and each one has a Sunday school. The people have made everything very pleasant for us since Conference. They know how to care for their pastor.

As a few of the brethren are making reports concerning their Conference collections, I feel I am true to my loyal and faithful flock this much. On February 11 I paid my home mission assessment in full. On March 13 I paid my foreign mission assessment in full. On March 13 I paid my assessment for Sunday School Field Agent in full. On April 11 I paid my assessment in full for Bishops' fund, and on this same date I paid in full the following assessments: American Bible Society, Ministers' Superannuate Endowment Fund, Delegates to General Conference. The end is not yet. No more faithful flock can be found in the North Mississippi Conference than the people who make up the New Albany Church. I am preaching to great congregations and I am happy in the work.

We are to observe our first Children's Day in the fifth Sunday in this month (April 30). Brother Pope has a grip on New Albany. He has over 100 to attend prayer meeting. Everything goes well here.—C. A. Northington.

Walnut Grove, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek:

I believe I will ask you a little as to the best thing to do when one finds that a district is getting too small for a presiding elder. Our presiding elder comes around too often. He is working us boys in the Newton District too hard. I want to say to the brethren in other districts that if they want to take a "rest" they need not come to the Newton District; things are humming here—there is no question about it.

There are four churches on this charge, and we are trying to do as much as any other preacher in the Mississippi Conference could do on a like work. Our people are supporting me nicely.

The Preachers' Institute, which was held at Newton a few days ago, was indeed a most enjoyable occasion, and was rendered doubly so by that elegant repast at the district parsonage to which the presiding elder invited the preachers of his district. I think that all of the preachers in the district, except three attended the institute, and all must have gone away feeling better equipped for their work. The good people of Newton know how to entertain preachers and we shall want to go there again.

Brethren, our Master has a right to expect the very best service which it is possible for us to render. Can we afford to lag in this great work? Let us pray often for each other, to the end that the Lord may bless us in whatever we set our hands to do.

The Advocate is getting better all the time. May the Lord bless the management.—E. H. Cooley, P. C.

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE

I wish very much that every reader of the Christian Advocate could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet, but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like to have you realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney, bladder and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning and other conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this Spring, and before I received all these letters from sufferers, I didn't take very much stock in advertisements like this. I therefore cannot blame you if you doubt, but my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous Spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the United States and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the guarantee offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it.

Shivar Spring,
Box 17J, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen:

I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

RELIEF SURELY COMES.

The use of "RENWAR" surely brings immediate relief to sufferers from Rheumatism. The makers of this remarkable remedy have hundreds of letters testifying to this fact. Copies of these letters will be sent to any one on request. No matter how long you have been suffering from Rheumatism and how many remedies have failed to relieve you, try "RENWAR." It is guaranteed to give satisfactory results or money will be refunded. Get a fifty cent bottle from your druggist today. If he does not have it we will send a full size bottle prepaid upon receipt of price. Warner Drug Co., Nashville, Tenn.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Hattiesburg District Conference for the current year was held at Prentiss, Miss., April 5-6. The session was harmonious and profitable.

In the absence of a Bishop, the presiding elder, Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, presided with amability and dignity. Everybody was in a good humor, and seemed pleased with himself and with everybody else.

Rev. P. H. Howse served the Conference as secretary, and Rev. C. W. Crosier as assistant. They filled the bill.

Rev. J. L. Neil, Sunday School Field Secretary, was present on Wednesday, and gave special attention to the Sunday school work, and Rev. C. W. Crosier had charge of the Missionary matters. These brethren showed a peculiar fitness for leadership in their respective fields of work.

Prof. D. L. Harrell and Dr. J. M. Sullivan were present and represented Millsaps College. Prof. Harrell as Conference Lay Leader, was diligent in his efforts to promote the interests of the Lay Activities movement. Brother D. R. Campbell, the District Lay Leader, was active and wide-awake in everything that touched his line of work.

The laymen attended the Conference in unusually large numbers, but several pastors were absent. Thirty-three laymen voted in the election of delegates to the Annual Conference—that those gives the district a fine representation.

Jno. A. McLeod, H. V. Watts, James Hand, and H. C. Clark were chosen as the principals, and G. W. Holloway and Dr. G. C. Terrell as alternates.

The preaching was well done by Rev. H. McLeod, Rev. C. W. Crosier, and Rev. W. J. Ferguson. Dr. Sullivan preached on Christian Education Wednesday evening.

D. M. Ferguson was elected district trustee in place of Judge J. M. Stevens, resigned.

Rev. P. H. Howse, Rev. W. A. Terry, Rev. C. W. Crosier, and Rev. T. W. Adams were elected the Licensing Committee.

Only one applied for license to preach—a bright young man from Petal. The Conference gave him license to try his call at the business.

Purvis was selected as the place of holding the next session. The race was close between Purvis and Magee. It was manifest that the brethren found it hard for them to decide how to vote.

The hospitality of Prentiss was unsurpassed. The Conference was royally entertained. Rev. J. M. Lewis, the greatly loved pastor, spared no pains to make his guests happy. He is a devoted host. His father, Rev. Henry P. Lewis, acted much to the pleasure and profit of the occasion by his presence, prayers, and sweet Christian spirit. He was with us throughout the session.

This year will finish the quadrennium of Brother Thompson on the district. He is loved by all. The Conference unanimously adopted some very flattering resolutions, bearing testimony to his worth and efficiency in the great office he fills so well.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Relieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, Which Renovates the Blood.

That tired feeling that comes to you in the spring, year after year, is a sign that your blood lacks vitality. Just as pimples, boils, and other eruptions are signs that it is impure, and that you also a sign that your system is in a low or run-down condition, inviting disease. It is a warning, which it is well to heed.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old standard blood and true blood medicine relieves that tired feeling by clearing the blood, gives new life, new courage, strength and cheerfulness. It makes the rich red blood that will make you feel, look, eat and sleep better.

Be sure to get Hood's Sarsaparilla. It embodies the careful training, experience, and skill of Mr. Hood, a pharmacist for fifty years, in its quality and power to cure.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTICE.

The Meridian District Conference will convene in the East End Methodist Church, at Meridian, Miss., on Tuesday, May 9, at 8 o'clock p. m. Rev. O. S. Lewis will preach the opening sermon. The pastors of the district are requested to have their delegates elected, and to furnish me with their names not later than May 5. Local preachers of the district are requested to prepare written reports, as is required by paragraph 179 of the Book of Discipline.

The following committees have been appointed: License to Preach—O. S. Lewis, J. L. Decell, and J. F. McClellan; Admission and Readmission—H. B. Watkins, J. A. Moore, and C. C. Evans; Deacon's and Elder's Orders—H. A. Gatlin, J. T. Abney, and A. M. Broadfoot; Quarterly Conference Records—B. L. Sutherland, C. A. Schultz, and J. M. Corley.

Great Old Remedy For Skin Diseases

DRIVES POISON FROM THE SYSTEM.

Get it fixed in your mind that skin eruptions, Scrofula, Eczema, burning, itching skin, and all such diseases are due entirely to impure and infected blood. Agree with us, get a bottle, and if it does not do as we say, return it to us and we will take back the remedy that has relieved thousands of people in the last fifty years. Get it from any druggist. If you like to write us first, write our expert medical adviser, Dr. Swift Specific Co., Dept. Z, Atlanta, Ga.

Rightness expresses of actions what straightness does of lines; and there can no more be two kinds of right action than there can be two kinds of straight line.—Spencer.

How to Fight Tuberculosis

Dr. J. W. Carhart, of San Antonio, Texas, says, "Since lime salts constitute three-fourths of all the mineral substances of the human body, they must be supplied in the foods or supplemented in mineral preparations, or natural starvation ensues, with tuberculosis unchecked. The spread of tuberculosis and other preventable diseases is due largely to decalcified lime lacking conditions of multitudes throughout the civilized world."

Chief reasons of the ingredients of Eckman's Alterative which is so successful is due to its combination in such a way as to regulate all these troubles.

Eckman's Alterative has established remarkable results in cases of this character, and apparently has proved to be the best spring tonic to drive away the last of winter colds, bronchial troubles, etc. It will build up both the old and young, and can be had by leading druggists, or direct from the laboratory. Write us for booklet and free trial bottle of value to sufferers.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

Rev. J. W. Lee, of Winnfield, has captured his people. Having served four years at Lake Providence, he has proven himself worthy and well qualified to build up this most inviting field. His is a lovely family. Winnfield is a fine railroad center, with a bright future. It has a most excellent public school, with Prof. J. L. Liggin, as superintendent, and Prof. Smith, as principal.

Rev. P. M. Brown is in his second year at Natchitoches. He and his good wife are educating their children for noble endeavor. Sunday was spent most pleasantly with them. They have preaching at 10 a. m., and Sunday school from 11 a. m. to 12 noon. They have an elegant concrete church. The great State Normal, with over 1000 students, is located here. They have about 40 teachers, Prof. V. L. Roy being the superintendent. This is indeed a fine school.

Rev. B. T. Crews preaches at Pleasant Hill, Victoria, and Martha, three nice railroad towns, with most excellent public schools. It was a pleasure to preach in each of these towns and to lecture at the schools. The kindness of the teachers and brethren will not be soon forgotten. Brother Crews is one of our truest and best preachers. A bright crown awaits him. He and his new wife have recently made a visit to Texas. They are held in high esteem by their brethren.

Rev. F. R. Power, of Pelican, is well named. He is a "power" for good. He has rebuilt the parsonage and will soon rebuild the church. He has a good wife and five bright children. Pelican has some fine people in the Joiners, Powells, Professor Phillips, and the noble band of teachers there. This is an important charge, with good prospects of success.

JAPANESE IN THE UNITED STATES.

Latest figures of the Japanese in America, compiled for the Japanese-American Year Book, report a total of 99,867, of whom 71 per cent are men, about 15 per cent women, and 14 per cent children. Nearly all of the children were born in America, and are thus entitled to recognition as American citizens. Of the total Japanese in the United States, only 10 per cent are affiliated with Japanese-Buddhist organizations. There are 44 Buddhist temples and 45 Buddhist priests in California, Oregon, Washington and Utah. There are 41 Japanese Christian churches in the Pacific Coast States, most of them are connected with the Methodist, Congregational and Presbyterian denominations.

"After adding together the somewhat indefinite total claimed to be affiliated with Buddhist organizations in America and the membership of the Japanese Christian churches we find that there remain [illegible] Japanese in the [illegible] without any provision for instruction and religious [illegible] 15½ per cent of our population have any connection with religious institutions. Buddhist or Christian. This large body of aliens constitutes a missionary opportunity which American Christians should not be slow to recognize."—The Missionary Review of the World.

NOTICE.

The Aberdeen District meeting will convene at Nettleton on Friday, May 12, 1916. We are going to make this an all-day meeting and we hope to have a large attendance in addition to the delegates. Let each new auxiliary make a special effort to be represented. Young people and juniors are also urged to send representatives. We want to make this an inspiring and enthusiastic occasion.

Names of delegates must be sent to Mrs. Will Wiggins, Aberdeen, Miss.

Please note the change in date of the meeting from the 4th to the twelfth.

Mrs. J. H. HAUGHTON,
District Secretary.

HERE AND THERE AMONG THE LOUISIANA AUXILIARIES.

Naborton.

On Tuesday afternoon, March 7, the district secretary, Mrs. Ben Johnson, with five "helpers" from Mansfield, went to Naborton to organize a missionary society. The ladies of Naborton had been preparing for this visit for two weeks, so everything was ready for the organization to take place.

Results of this visit were an adult auxiliary with 15 members, and a Junior division with 11 members.

Grand Cane.

The Grand Cane Adult Auxiliary has 19 members enrolled and has pledged $50 for 1916. From the first of December to the 17th of March, $27.4[illegible] was raised for local work. Grand Cane has a young people's auxiliary with 5 members, and a junior division numbering 33 members. The juniors have pledged $15 and the young people $6.

Greenwood.

The Greenwood auxiliary had a good year in 1915, during which they raised nearly $300 for all purposes. They hope to show an increase along all lines this year. Membership is 34; average attendance about 25; monthly meetings are held at homes of members and are always interesting. They have a scholarship in Brazil, besides pledging $25 on missionary quilt.

There is a junior auxiliary with 15 members, and a young people's Kodak Club of 7. The latter has a very interesting leader, which accounts for increase in numbers as well as in real work.

Zwolle.

The Zwolle Missionary Society has just closed one of its most successful years. It has increased both in numbers and in interest, and in the week of prayer has promised to raise $50 for their new church in the near future. There are 37 members, 3 [illegible] 4 babies.

Mansfield.

The Missionary Society of Mansfield is one of the best in the Conference not because it has more members, but because those who belong to it have caught the vision of a world-wide need and are ever ready to work for the Master. Under the guidance of their faithful president, Mrs. Ben Johnson, who has the help of each member in that they never refuse to do the things requested of them, they are doing a splendid work.

They have 26 members with an average attendance of [illegible]. Their pledge for this year is $[illegible]. They will pay for the support of their dear friend, Miss Walker, at Houma, La., $[illegible], and to the Mary Virginia Nash school in China, $[illegible].

The Juniors are doing good work and have pledged $[illegible].

THE IMMENSE FIELD IN INDIA.

If Christ had started on the day of his baptism to preach in the villages of India, and had continued up to the present, visiting the villages each day, healing the sick and proclaiming the gospel, he would still have left unvisited [illegible] villages in India. The villages of India contain nineteenths of the population of the land, or more than [illegible] people. It is among these villages that the great Mass movement is taking place.—Rev. A. B. Clancy in The Missionary Review of the World.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Sec'y, - Sardis, Miss.

The General Sunday School Board, through its Executive Committee, instructed the Divisional Field Secretaries to organize their districts auxiliary to the Annual Conference Boards, with the presiding elder's district as the unit.

The Annual Conference Boards of the Gulf Division, at the request of Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Field Secretary, have adopted the policy, and the President of the Conference Board, Judge J. G. McGowen, and the Field Secretary, R. H. B. Gladney, have been intrusted with the matter of putting the policy into effect in this Conference.

The Presiding Elder and the President of the Conference Board shall be ex-officio members of the district organization, and the Presiding Elder shall be chairman of the Executive Committee.

The presiding elders have nominated the officers for their respective districts. Most of those chosen have graciously accepted the trust committed to them and some of them have gone to work already.

The following are the nominations made by the presiding elders:

Aberdeen District—Mr. George Maynard, President, Tupelo; Mr. M. M. Miller, Secretary - Treasurer, Shannon; Mr. D. I. Yates, Superintendent Home Department, Sherman; Mrs. M. M. Miller, Superintendent Elementary Division, Shannon; Mrs. T. M. Clark, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Tupelo; Mr. W. C. Coggins, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Verona.

Columbus District—Hon. W. W. Magruder, President, Starkville; Mr. A. S. J. Glenn, Secretary-Treasurer, Brooksville; Mrs. M. Perry, Superintendent Elementary Division, Brooksville; Mrs. B. M. Howorth, Superintendent Elementary Division, West Point; Miss Mary Stokes, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Columbus; Mrs. W. W. Scales, Jr., Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Starkville.

Corinth District—Dr. L. B. Price, President, Corinth; Mr. L. K. Carlton, Secretary-Treasurer, New Albany; Mrs. J. H. Blakemore, Superintendent Home Department, Corinth; Mrs. Jake Taylor, Superintendent Elementary Division, Booneville; Rev. S. L. Pope, Superintendent Teacher-Training, New Albany; Mr. Ellis Finger, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Ripley.

Durant District—Dr. R. C. Elmore, President, Durant; Miss Elie Willingham, Secretary-Treasurer, Enpora; Miss Tommie Foster, Superintendent Home Department, Tchula; Mrs. A. Y. Woodward, Superintendent Elementary Division, Louisville; Miss Lillian Rathel, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Lexington; Mrs. J. W. Conger, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Vaiden.

Greenville District—Mr. J. T. Mathis, President, Leland; Rev. E. H. Cunningham, Secretary-Treasurer, Leland; Mrs. E. R. Smoot, Superintendent Home Department, Cleveland; Miss Helen Dunn, Superintendent Elementary Division, Greenville; Prof. John A. Donnolson, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Shelby. No Wesley Bibles Class Superintendent.

Holly Springs District—Judge J. G. McGowen, President, Water Valley; Rev. J. W. Dorman, Secretary-Treasurer, Water Valley; Miss Lillie Hartwell, Superintendent Home Department, Water Valley; Mrs. L. G. Faut, Superintendent Elementary Division, Holly Springs; Mrs. F. B. Patton, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Oxford; Rev. R. A. Tucker, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Grenada.

Sardis District—Mr. M. E. Jarrett, President, Batesville; Miss Nina Pollard, Secretary-Treasurer, Batesville; Mr. Grady Johnston, Superintendent Home Department, Hernando; Mrs. P. C. Wall, Superintendent Elementary Division, Sardis; Mrs. Willie N. Scott, Superintendent Teacher - Training, Horn Lake; Mr. W. T. Marshall, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Chalcston.

Winona District—Mr. W. H. Stokes, President, Greenwood; Mr. J. B. Small, Secretary-Treasurer, Winona; Miss Mamie Buckley, Superintendent Home Department, Winona; Mrs. D. B. Turner, Superintendent Elementary Division, Winona; Mr. R. V. Pollard, Superintendent Teacher-Training, Greenwood; Mr. J. B. Small, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class, Winona.

It will take time to effect an organization of this splendid group of workers, but when it is done the entire Conference will feel the influence of their efforts. Believe me, there is plenty for us all to do.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Biloxi, Miss., May 3-5.

The Rev. W. G. Forsyth will preach the opening sermon on Tuesday night, May 2, at 7:30 o'clock. At the conclusion of the sermon the sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered by Dr. W. H. LaPrade and Dr. B. F. Jones. Let all members of the Conference be present at this first service, if possible.

All committees will be provided for and announced on Wednesday morning, at the first session of the Conference. Pastors will please furnish Rev. H. F. Tolle, Biloxi, Miss., and me with a list of their delegates. It is necessary that I have a list of the delegates at the earliest date possible, in order that I may complete my official roll and make up the committees before the Conference convenes.

Brethren, let us come together for work, praying that the district conference may be a time of revival power. The officers of the Woman's Missionary Society are invited to be present and present their work.

I am sincerely,
J. R. JONES, P. E.

April 7, 1916.

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT NOTES.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am sending you a few notes from the Brookhaven District. The recent revival meeting at Brookhaven was all that we could ask in many respects. The work done in the church was great. Brother Kelly preached for us three weeks with great effect. His presentation of the gospel could not have been surpassed. His satire against shams and sin was superb. We were delighted with our Conference evangelist. I think the greatest work wrought was among the church members, though we had many conversions, and some of the most hardened sinners in the town were brought into the Kingdom and joined the Church. Forty-two united with the Church as a result of the meeting.

Galloway, of McComb, has had a great meeting, and Bennett, of Monticello, has held a successful revival, being assisted by Brother Kelly, Lewis, of Hazelhurst, is making advancement along all lines of Sunday school efficiency, and also in the development of greater interest in the work of the Church generally. Saunders, of Fernwood, is pushing things in his charge. Where he moves victory comes.

We all sympathize with Brother N. B. Harmon, whose son has been quite sick with typhoid fever. Harmon is full of energy and religion, and his people love him devotedly.

We regret the loss of Brother Selby from the district, but we are all delighted with Dr. I. W. Cooper as his successor. He will fill the place with great acceptability. We have few men like him in the Church. He is kind and courteous to all. I have been his pastor for a year and a half and have never heard him criticise a brother preacher. He has helped me in many ways.

"ESTABLISH THOU THE WORK OF OUR HANDS."

By Bishop E. R. Hendrix.

A generation ago our Church proposed to celebrate the first hundred years of American Methodism by raising $2,000,000. At that time we had no Church Extension work, so that a considerable part of the two millions that were raised went to meet urgent local needs. The aim to secure at least $500,000 for Church Extension was kept in mind and that sum is now in the Loan Fund of the Church. It is expected that an additional $100,000 will be secured this year. It is earnestly desired to increase the amount to One Million Dollars during the quadrennium. Part of this will doubtless come on the annuity plan, whereby the donor pays the principal and receives interest during his lifetime and that of his wife. The wise management of the Loan Fund has inspired great confidence in those who would create a memorial for themselves or others and at the same time establish a fund that will be of untold help in building churches or parsonages.

The completion and dedication of the new Church Extension Building in Louisville seems an opportune time of calling attention to this work. That was a wise remark made by a noble philanthropist recently when making a gift that will yield $35,000 a year to Church Extension, Home Missions, and to the Superannuates, "The Church is the only thing that lasts."

A GREAT REVIVAL AT MONTICELLO, MISS.

Dear Mr. Editor: For the second time in the space of two years have Monticello and its vicinity been shaken up and readjusted in the spiritual life under the preaching of Rev. D. E. Kelly, our beloved and inimitable Conference evangelist. His latter coming was two weeks ago, and the meeting just closed not only eclipsed the former one, but was one of the greatest revival seasons this people have known for many years. The good derived was not confined to the Methodists. Brother Kelly has a way of reaching the hearts and enlisting the support of the entire people, regardless of denominational connection or tendency, and all the community shared happily in the spiritual and intellectual uplift. Twenty-three were added to the Methodist Church, and one to the Baptist.

The way had been made clear for this great awakening by the careful and prayerful management of our esteemed pastor, Brother Bennett, who also had charge of the music. The Messrs. Greenway, young sons of the Methodist pastor at Silver Creek, Miss., were present with their saxophone and cornet, and gave valuable help in making what was generally conceded to be unusually good church music. Three local young men, Messrs. Bass, Roper, and Steen, also unselfishly gave great assistance with their violins. Any of these young men would be valuable help in any meeting where the importance of good music is recognized.

Brother Bennett is in his fourth year on this charge and his flocks will greatly regret the time he will have to leave. During his pastorate the membership of the Church has been more than doubled, and, what is better, a general improvement is apparent in all departments of the work—better organization, better attendance at Sunday school, prayer meeting, and preaching services being among the encouraging features that are noticeable. A more worthy and faithful pastor we have never had.

THE GLADDEST DAY.

By Bishop James Atkins.

May the seventh will be the gladdest day in the history of the Church Extension department of our Church. On that day will be dedicated the new office building in Louisville.

This great and ever-growing department of the Church has been without an adequate house from the beginning of its existence. Under Dr. McMurry's masterful hand the business has grown into such large proportions as to demand quarters of a convenient and permanent kind.

The house which has been built is the product of the business ability and taste of the General Secretary. He has built a house admirably adapted to the uses which called it into being, and as beautiful as a dream, without the waste of a dollar in gaudy ornamentation.

An element of gladness that will enter into the occasion will be the fact that this has been one of the best years in the history of the Board—in some respects the best by far.

It was eminently fit that this day of dedication should be fixed by the Board as the day for the proper celebration of the event throughout the Church. The form of the celebration is also the best. It is that in every pulpit in the communion a sermon on Church Extension shall be preached and a collection taken to increase the Loan Fund. We are needing a million dollars to lend on churches. We have about half that amount. Proper attention to this collection on May the 7th on the part of all the presiding elders and pastors of the connection ought to yield a large part of the other half million.

Let all the congregations conspire to make this occasion an illustrious success.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 63. No. 17. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3140.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, APRIL 27, 1916. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

AN ADDRESS TO THE CHURCH IN MISSISSIPPI.

To the Methodists of Mississippi:

The cause of education is vital to every elevating influence in our civilization. To the Church and organized governments, whose object and purpose is the advancement of its people, the proper education of youth is absolutely essential.

Our Church has from the beginning founded and fostered institutions of learning. It believes it to be its duty to offer the youth of the country an education in institutions permeated by the principles and influence of the Christian religion.

From the foundaton of Vanderbilt University until recently, our Church had supported it and fondly believed that it was her property. The Supreme Court of Tennessee by decision stripped the Church of any control over this institution and its policies.

Following this decision, the General Conference of our Church held at Oklahoma City, Okla., created an Educational Commission, the chief duty of which was to establish two institutions of university grade, one east and the other west of the Mississippi River, to be owned and controlled by the Church beyond a doubt—these institutions to embody all that the Church stands for in the education of the people.

The Commission has selected Atlanta, Georgia, as the seat of the university for the eastern section of the Church. It has been named Emory University to "perpetuate and extend a noble foundation," and to preserve with pride a splendid history.

Emory College has, by a legal act, been incorporated into Emory University as its collegiate department and brings with it in property, equipment and endowment funds, holdings valued at approximately $700,000.

Mr. Asa G. Candler, Sr., has given to the endowment fund of the University $1,000,000, and this gift is made upon such conditions that it will be forever impossible for the University by legal interpretaton to be taken from the Church. The city of Atlanta has given $500,000. The Trustees of the Wesley Memorial Building have tendered the use of that magnificent building for the use of the School of Theology, and this School was opened in September, 1914. The Trustees of the Wesley Memorial Hospital have offered that institution for the use of the School of Medicine. Other munificent gifts have been made which indisputably show that the University is very close to the heart of the Church and its people.

The people of Georgia outside of the city of Atlanta have started a campaign to raise one million dollars for the University. The Methodists of South Carolina are now engaged in raising a fund to found and build the James H. Carlisle Teachers' College. The Trustees of the Atlanta Medical College presented to Emory University the property of the Atlanta Medical College, valued at $270,000.

To bring before the Methodists of Mississippi the great work already done for the University, and to endeavor to promote it, the Joint Committee now addressing you, drawn from the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, was selected.

What will the Methodists of Mississippi do to show their support of this great institution and to evidence their love for the Church and their interest in coming generations?

It has been suggested, and the suggestion has been adopted, that the Methodists of Mississippi raise a fund of $50,000 with which to found and build a School of Law as a department of the University to be called the Lamar School of Law, in honor of the illustrious L. Q. C. Lamar, a Georgian by birth, a Mississippian by adoption, a graduate of Emory College, a member of President Cleveland's Cabinet, a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, a great lawyer, a United States Senator, a jurist and statesman, a devoted Methodist, and one in whose life and achievements every Mississippian has a pride.

To educate the lawyer, to instill in him those great principles of morality which thread our systems of law, is of importance to our Church, our country, and our civilization; for no one can deny the great influence of the legal profession upon our own Government and upon the people. The conservation of our rights rests with them—they are the guardians of them. To meet these obligations they must be trained and must have as a basis of character those great moral principles that can be derived from the Christian religion alone. In the establishing of such a school, as an expression of our love for our Church and country, we shall help to accomplish this great end concerning the legal profession, and at the same time promote the interests of the whole University and the influence of our Church, and erect a fitting memorial to a great Mississippian.

The campaign in the interest of this noble enterprise is already under way. We commend it to all our people, and urge them to give it their most earnest moral support and the most liberal possible financial assistance.

Rev. Robert Selby, of the Mississippi Conference, has been elected Commissioner for Emory University in Mississippi by the Executive Committee of the Educational Commission, which acton has been ratified by the Executive Committees of the Boards of Education of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, and he has been duly appointed to this work by Bishop James Atkins He is an honored brother, who is worthy of all confidence, and we bespeak for him a cordial reception at the hands of our pastors and people throughout the State.

THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

The annual meeting of this influential body, which was recently held in Atlanta, Ga., as its sessions invariably do, attracted widespread attention. The address of Miss Belle Bennett, the capable president of the Council, was a most suggestive and noteworthy utterance. The reports of the various officers showed the work in all departments to be in a gratifying condition. A number of distinguished speakers participated in the exercises, delivering messages that were both informing and inspirational. Six young women were appointed to foreign missionary work, viz: Miss Etha Mills, of Apple Grove, Va., Miss Kathron Wilson, of Dallas, Texas, and Miss Etta Lee Wolsey, of Bay City, Texas, who were commissioned to go to Africa; Miss Nancy Lee Holt, of Norfolk, Va., and Miss Lela Putnam, of Lockhart, Texas, who were assigned to Brazil, and Miss Mary Blackwell, of St. Louis, Mo., who was appointed to China.

We were much pleased to note that the Council will hold its session of 1917 in New Orleans. Lexington, Ky., and St. Louis, Mo., were earnest and aggressive in their efforts to secure the next meeting, but the invitation of the Crescent City so appealed to the hearts of the earnest workers gathered in the Georgia metropolis that a majority of them stood for accepting it. Touching upon this matter, The Council Daily says:

"The vote resulted in the selection of New Orleans. The missionary spirit was the ruling spirit in this decision. To every one who had tasted the cordiality of St. Louis six years ago, and who knew what St. Louis Methodism, headed by St. John's Church, can do in the matter of wide-open doors and generous plans, it was a real pain to decline the invitation. Dear St. Louis friends, know that every heart responded to your beautiful hospitality, and longed to accept it, and that in going to New Orleans we but followed the call to the place of greatest need. The large foreign population, and the power of the Roman Catholic Church there have had a paralyzing effect on Protestantism, and have made the forces of evil strong and demoralizing. We will look to you to unite with us to make of the 1917 session one which shall reach out in influence and service to the great city of New Orleans, and mark a new epoch in its history."

Our sisters may feel assured that the city of New Orleans and the State of Louisiana will extend to them an enthusiastic welcome and count their visit a great honor.

We have long had plenty of talking down the line in Southern Methodism. What we now need is some talking up the line. The hope of the Church lies in the soundness and trustworthiness of the great body of Christian men and women belonging to it. Any governing body either in the State or Church that is far removed from the people is apt soon to lose its sense of responsibility to them. All the agencies of Methodism—boards, colleges, etc.—should be kept closely related to the representative assemblies of our denomination.

BROTHER, SPEAK TO ME!

By B. O. Nair.

I know the doors are open,
The church seats all are free,
But no one yet has spoken—
"My friend, you'll come with me?"

My roommate tells of meeting
A man with earnest plea,
Who warned that time was fleeting—
(O Christian, speak to me!)

He spoke of the belov'd Son
Upon a cruel tree,
Who said, "I die for ev'ryone
That looketh unto me."

Is this the Christ my mother
Oft prayed that I might see?
Then may you, oh, my brother,
Be quick to speak to me!

NO RESERVATIONS IN THIS WARFARE.

By Bishop John C. Kilgo.

There are still some who hold with the old-fashioned saints that a partial consecration is neither pleasing nor acceptable to the Lord. They interpret the terms of discipleship as stated by Jesus in their obvious meaning and to their full extent, and insist that if any man will be His disciple he must deny himself, take up his cross daily, and follow the Lord Jesus Christ. A partial denial, a temporary respite from cross-bearing, and an occasional following they hold to be out of harmony with the teachings of the Scriptures, their well tested experience, and the intuitive impulses of the regenerated heart. The constant cry of their heart is for an increase of faithfulness and a growth in the most intimate fellowship with the Holy Spirit. At the love-feast they, with monotonous regularity, conclude their experiences with, 'Brethren, pray for me that I may be faithful to the end." This may seem to be a simple request, but underneath it lies the holy fear lest they should loiter by the way, fall below the sovereign claims of the Lord, and endanger their salvation. In this faith I was carefully brought up, and to it I most steadfastly hold, having at the center of my religious experience a penitential grief for and a fear of every form of laxity.

But the old-fashioned saint has small esteem in some quarters in these latter days. New ways, which are called better ways, have been invented, and their heroes are well pleased with them. It is now the popular thing to volunteer for a definite campaign, some of them short and others lasting till Easter. Lenten fidelity is not a new type of fidelity—it is only new in its adoption among some Methodist folks. Asbury, whose daily fidelity we are celebrating with much eloquence—perhaps because he is now dead a hundred years—never planted in Methodist soil, by word or deed, this doctrine of partial consecration. He believed in no type of soldier except the one who unreservedly enlisted for the entire war. He was not leading a "special campaign," the only definite idea in which was the time it was to end. He was in the mightiest sense a Soldier of the Cross whose commission was to fight every day, every night, and in every place till death pursued him, and this he literally did.

I saw in a recent issue of The Missionary Voice the form of a religious contract with God's Church to give eight months' service to it. What disposition was to be made of the other four months was not stated. Perhaps they were left for Christmas and a summer outing. The last issue of The Texas Christian Advocate announced the Evangelistic Valedictory of Brother Shuler, who had been editing the Evangelistic News during "The Evangelistic Campaign." He did a high order of work, and the articles he sent out each week no doubt cheered and comforted the hearts of many saints. But the time was up, the campaign as arranged was over, and he retired. I note other campaigns are not given time limits but numerical boundaries. When I was a boy on the farm I would occasionally ask my father to give me a task, and he would generally say, "Well, work till noon, and then go back and work till sunset, and you may have the rest of the day." He put me on the farm as a part of my education, and I long since came to know that he avoided every method that would tend to make me have spells of industry.

The "one-to-win-one-campaign" is another form of limited consecration with which the old-fashioned disciple finds it difficult to agree. The old Methodist preacher told us in former times, and told it with imperial emphasis, "Every Christian will do all he can to save sinners." He didn't call it personal work, nor did he organize it into a campaign. He asserted it with tremendous force. Those who have risen for the defense of this form of special service quote the Scriptures with impressive assurance, but too often interpret only a section of the passage quoted, an error all too common in handling the Scriptures. The instances of Andrew finding Peter, and Philip finding Nathanael and bringing them to Jesus, clearly prove that Christian work is personal work, and as long as it is done by persons toward persons it can not be anything else. However, it should be noted in these instances that Andrew and Philip did not enter into an organized agreement to bring one; they did not join a campaign of a special duration, and they went of their own accord—the single fact which contains the heart and soul of religious service, namely, that every converted soul at once is moved to bring others to Jesus and does not need the pressure of a special movement. It is also true that the Master sent out His disciples two and two, but He did not send them out to expel demons from one person, and therefore limit their power for "a-one-to-save-one-journey." They went forth with an abundant endowment of power to save all they could save, and their reports to Him show they cast the devils out of very many. There is not in all the Scriptures a word which justifies a disciple of Christ to feel that he has discharged his task when he has brought one member in a year, or in a Lenten season, into the Church. The Lordship of Christ in His Church and over His people knows no breaks and grants no furloughs, and to this every revelation of the Holy Spirit in the hearts of the truly consecrated gives constant force. If arithmetic is to be applied to our devotion to Christ, dividing the year into seasons of work and seasons of rest, and fixing a task for each saint, why should not one who gains three in a single year get exemption for three years?

The work of saving sinners is an awful work. Into it has been put the blood of the Son of God, and the echo of His atoning agonies is never out of His gospel. Men going hourly down to doom is the appalling tragedy of earth and should not be regarded in the light of a commercial problem. The tricks of trade have no place in the redemption of sinners. So now that many of the special contracts of evangelism are over, or will be at Easter, the old-fashioned type of disciples will go steadily on with their burdened hearts, praying and working to save all the sinners they can save through the presence and power of the blessed Spirit. Specialism is a type of weakness, to say the least, that will eventually bring the Church into sore grief. The call of God is for men who will enlist for life in the war of the eternities, not for men who will volunteer for a short campaign, and there are those who have put all they have, and for all time, under the Lordship of Christ, and they will keep up the battle. They often grow tired, but they never ask for release, not even think of deserting. They drag their worn feet and tired bodies into the fighting line day by day and rejoice that they may follow Him to the end. The story of ritualism, days, seasons, and limited consecration, is the tragic aspect of Church history sufficiently plain to be a final warning to all times. To many devout and earnest people the present trend of Methodism toward ritualistic specialisms is not only amazing but sorely grievous. Shall we soon have High Church Methodism and Low Church Methodism? If so, record my name among the old-fashioned saints and call them by any name that pleases a sneering world.

METHODIST UNITY.

By Rev. S. H. Werlein, D. D.

There can be no doubt that the time is approaching when the final step will be taken that will unite into one great organic body the various branches of the Methodist Church of America. There is no insurmountable difficulty to such a union. They were once one Church. The reasons which seemed to justify their separation no longer exist. The evolutions of history have brought about entirely different conditions. Those who were formerly disaffected now see eye to eye. Foes have become friends. Critics have become admirers. The separate branches of the Methodist Church are equally Methodistic, "joint heirs of the traditions and doctrinal standards of the fathers." The articles and doctrines and polity of the original body are substantially incorporated in each separate Methodist organization. That such a union is greatly desired by many of the representative men of these different Churches there is no doubt.

Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson said in one of the meetings of the Joint Commission: "Great as have been the achievements of the Twentieth Century, the greatest achievement of modern times will be the unification of Methodism." And Dr. Buckley wrote: "To see Methodism in this great nation substantially united would be worth living for and sacrificing for through long years." Bishop Hoss stated from the platform at the last General Conference: "During the past twenty years I have been on the Federation Committee. We have moved slowly, very slowly, so slowly, and at times I have been almost in despair of any practical results. I pray God that the day may come somehow and at some time, in which all the forces of Methodism may be organized into such a form as to constitute an organized, disciplined army for the spread of the Kingdom of God." Every one knows that our peerless Galloway advocated with trumpet note the organic union of American Methodism, and if among us to-day, his voice would be heard in cheering on this hoped-for event.

My graduation oration at Drew Theological Seminary was a plea for the union of the two great Methodisms of this country. The audience gave enthusiastic endorsement to it, and I believed then, and do to-day, that that audience represented the attitude of the vast majority of the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church with reference to this question. Many of the leaders in that Church have been born South of the Mason and Dixon Line and have always spoken of us with kindness and affection.

It has been my privilege to attend a number of the International Epworth League Conventions. At Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Toronto, and Seattle, in speeches burning with eloquence I have heard the strongest expressions in advocacy of one great organic Methodism. Appeals of that kind have uniformly awakened the liveliest and most enthusiastic applause. When we reach the high places of experience and spiritual vision, the feasibility and desirability of union are clearly seen.

What has kept the Churches apart? Some of the leading men on both sides have allowed their prejudices to darken their counsel, and to excuse the use of terms which have aroused suspicion and distrust. For a strong man to bequeathe his dislikes to weaker men is a very serious offense in the sight of God. No one will say that these ante-bellum animosities have not been fostered and procreated by some of the great leaders of the Church. What right have they in the sight of God to poison the minds of others? What excuse can they offer for using every opportunity to belch forth their uncharitable criticisms of their brethren, and in doing so widen the breach which from every angle of Christian ethics they should be eager to close? Partisanship and sectionalism may seem to be very plausible and may achieve the applause of unthinking and superficial hearers, but the great concerns of the Kingdom of God require largeness of heart and breadth of mental vision. Catchy ebullitions of provincial narrowness and local bigotry may be very musical in the ears of intellectual babes, but we have reached the time when we must march to the music of world-wide issues. Some years ago a leader employed the word "Absorption" when discussing the question of Methodist Union. Another leader on the other side threw it back, declaring that he and the Church he represented were not willing to be thus disposed of. This little digression set back the great issue a number of years. These worthy men have gone to their reward and have doubtless had ample opportunity to weigh the value of their personal opinions.

Bishop Earl Cranston of the M. E. Church, in a paper advocating one Methodism, says: "The only open way to unification is through such a reorganization of the separated communions as shall constitute them one great organic entity, so planned that every part can be loyal to the whole body, and the whole best serve its mission by protecting every part." This is exactly in accord with the action of the last General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. A tentative plan was proposed as a basis of union, of course subject to such alterations as may be deemed wise before final action shall be taken. At the General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church the basis of Union was adopted, and if the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church which is to meet in May, 1916, shall be favorable, the organic union of these three bodies will be consummated.

Why should the Methodist Churches of America be united? Because it will be a step in consonance with the prayer of our Lord for the union of his followers. No such prayer would have been made by the Son of God if the union of all Christians did not contribute to the advancement of the Kingdom of God. Union just for the sake of union means nothing.

Business men on both sides of the line many years ago saw that sectional prejudice was a poor asset and suppressed it. Southern Methodism would be stronger in some parts of the South than it is, if Northern people in the South had been treated with greater hospitality. If prejudice does not pay in business, does it pay to give it a place in the Church of God? Is it to the glory of God? What is not for the glory of God is manifestly not good for the Church. Unity among the people is imperative for national greatness and prosperity. Oneness of purpose, good will, mutual confidence and co-operation contribute to our glory as a Nation. Church disunity is a handicap to the Church. The Church owes the world the example and encouragement of Christian unity. The Psalmist says: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" The lack of it bodes no good to Church nor State. The crisis through which the Church is passing to-day is the logical result of divergent and conflicting opinions. Owing to the lack of harmony between the great Christian organizations the progress of the Kingdom of God has been hindered. The conflict between the Greek and Roman Catholic Churches, the Anglican, and the Non-conformist bodies has without doubt arrested the Gospel of Christ. All believers must get together if the Kingdom of God is to prevail. If Christian love cannot unite Christians, especially those of the same creed, the children of one common mother, how can it unite the conflicting bodies to which believers ally themselves? The Church must demonstrate the power of love.

That which separates human beings is not of God. The Apostle says: "There are diversities of gifts, but the same Spirit. And there are differences of administrations, but the same Lord. And there are diversities of operations, but it is the same God which worketh all in all." Any denial of this great truth springs from arrogance and bigotry and no one will affirm that these are of God. The cause of this great European war was the lack of love and confidence and consideration. Pride, self-esteem, prejudice, selfishness, are at the bottom of the war. And I cannot see but that the same principle has perpetuated the spirit of disunity among Christians. I do not say that denominationalism has accomplished no good, but I am persuaded that the spirit of real Christian unity would have been greatly more pleasing to God, and brought about much larger results. In mission fields the points of sectarian differences are not emphasized. It would be fatal to the cause to do so. Phillips Brooks took the position that missionaries are not to teach distinctive creeds and call attention to the things which differentiate one Church from another, but their supreme mission is to introduce their adherents to Jesus Christ and let them formulate their creeds and define their doctrinal position.

Who can doubt that the thing which would hinder the work of missions must of necessity hurt the cause of Christ at home? We should ask ourselves, "What is our responsibility in this matter?"

Patriotism demands Methodist union. The Civil War, which cost a million lives and brought grief and unspeakable loss to other millions, was largely inspired by the intolerance and sectional prejudice of many of the pulpits of this land. The political control of this great Republic has been to a large extent influenced by sectionalism. Party leaders, prominent candidates have been chosen with reference to their locality. Personal worth and pre-eminent fitness for official responsibility have been made subordinate to party affiliations and political control. We have heard of the solid South and the solid North, as though this country was not a unit, and as though the interests of one section were unimportant to the other section. Fire-eaters and sectional fanatics have kept up a constant and unhealthy agitation. We need a satesmanship not one-sided, not biased in favor of one section, but animated by the broadest patriotism. We need policies which are as broad and comprehensive as the Nation itself, which reach from the snow-capped mountains of Alaska to the silver-crested billows of the Gulf, from the fertile shores of the Atlantic to the radiant vistas of the Golden Gate. The great problems which confront this Nation cannot be solved by sectional dictation. Dispassionate and constructive statesmanship, infused with glowing patriotism and a spirit of complete unselfishness, is alone adequate to the needs of the hour. And if that is true of the State, what shall be said of the responsibilities which confront the Church?

Difficulties are in the way of the unity which we advocate. These we must respect. Some say the negro question is an insuperable obstacle. Let us be perfectly frank. There are millions of people in the South who believe that the M. E. Church inclines toward the social recognition of the negro. And there are many people in the North who are convinced that Southern people treat the negro in a most unchristian-like manner. The probability is that the North and South do not understand each other with reference to this question. I shall not discuss it. It would be absolutely unprofitable and unconvincing. Assume that both Churches appreciate their responsibility to the negro, and want to do him good. If it is settled that the white Churches should unite, the great question is what is best for the negro? What does he desire for himself? One thing is perfectly obvious. The negro has to work out his own salvation. He has to adjust himself to his environment. It cannot be accomplished by proxy. He must champion his own cause. He must demonstrate what he is capable of doing. He must win his own place. How far he is willing to be dominated by the mind of Christ and conform his conduct to the teaching of the Gospel is the question of supreme concern to the negro. On that depends what his future will be. It is manifestly the duty of the white Methodist to aid his brother in black. As the negro progresses, he must become more and more self-supporting and capable of self-government. The racial law embedded in him will naturally incline him toward his own color. He is infinitely more competent to-day to take care of himself than he was fifty years ago. If he wants to set up for himself, no obstacle should be placed in his way; if he wants to remain a part of the white Methodist Church, certainly he can do so under provisions which can be agreed to by all who are concerned. In adjusting a matter of this character sectional conditions must be recognized. The impossible of to-day may be the possible of to-morrow. Social customs, inherited tastes and convictions, prejudice and predelictions cannot be ignored. Wise leaders will seek divine guidance so as to steer these great interests without friction and controversy.

Can it be done? If this dream of union has been inspired by God and if the advocates of it have an eye single to the glory of God, who doubts the practicability of a plan which shall be acceptable to all parties interested? Some one objects: "Before further advance is made a number of questions must be satisfactorily settled. For instance, I speak from the Southerner's point of view, what about the Plan of Separation—has the Northern Church lived up to it? Has it not overstepped the agreement solemnly made at the Cape May meeting?" Let the past bury the past! Why give place to this sore old question. Why say we must be vindicated in our opinion and the other side must admit bad faith? Some have taken the position, if the Northern branch is so solicitous to unite with us, why do they not advise their people who live in the South to unite with the Southern Church? For the same reason that we do not encourage our membership in Illinois and California, Washington and Oregon to unite with the M. E. Church. A multitude of foolish questions can be suggested, but they do not conduce to union. Then as to the plan of union: that should be entirely flexible. No plan should be urged that indicates any lack of confidence on either side. There must be union indeed if there is union at all. The less South and the less North, the better. There should be a merging of all interests that have heretofore been separate and distinct. I want Northern Bishops to preside at Southern Conferences, and Southern Bishops to preside at Northern Conferences. Each section must bless and help the other. The intimate intermingling of all American Methodists alone can assure a large and co-operative organic existence. It will be a great day for American Methodism when Northern and Southern, Eastern and Western men shall have an interchange of pulpits, and when all our people shall see "eye to eye."

First Church was crowded on Sunday to hear Bishop Candler, and none of the speakers received a larger hearing than did this chief pastor of our Methodism."

GOOD FOR TUPELO.

Dear Brother Meek: Brothers Cummins and Jaco spent Sunday, April 16 with me, and presented the claims of Grenada College to two fine congregations. It was a great day. Brother Cummins' address made a great impression here. The collection amounted to $1080. We are sure of more later.

Things are moving along here in an encouraging way. I have received 51 into the Church since January—13 of them on profession of faith. We will have a union revival in June with the help of Rev. Jno. E. Brown of Siloam Springs, Ark.

April 20, 1916. O. W. BRADLEY.

Rev. B. P. Fullilove and the Late Mrs. Fullilove, of Flora, Miss.

Brother Fullilove was admitted to the North Mississippi Conference in 1906, and has made an excellent record in the ministry. His ministry has been a fruitful one and wherever he has wrought he has left behind a good name and a large circle of friends. His character is above reproach, and to know him is to respect and esteem him. His devoted and accomplished wife, who went from him to the heavenly home the latter part of last December, contributed her full share to the success which Brother Fullilove has achieved as a Methodist preacher. Their home was a Christian one in the highest and best sense, as is attested by the fact that they reared four daughters to a useful Christian womanhood: Mrs. Alma Richardson, of Ripley, Miss.; Miss Lily Jameson, of New Albany, Miss.; and Mrs. Beatrice Steele and Mrs. Ruth May Bynum, of Flora, Miss. Brother Fullilove belongs to that unaffected, devout, earnest type of ministers who made Methodism great in the past, and who must be largely looked to as the conservators of its imperiled faith and integrity in the future.

MEETING OF EMORY UNIVERSITY CAMPAIGN COMMITTEE.

Pursuant to the call of Rev. Robert Selby, the newly appointed Commissioner of Emory University, the Joint Campaign Committees of the North Mississippi and Mississippi Conferences met in the Edwards House, in Jackson, Miss., on April 12, 1916. The Committee organized by electing Rev. W. W. Woollard chairman and Rev. J. T. Leggett secretary. After a full discussion of the proposed campaign to raise $50,000 in the State of Mississippi for Emory University the Committee, together with the Commissioner outlined a general plan for a campaign which we hope will awaken sufficient interest among the Methodist people of the State to make possible not only the raising of the $50,000 proposed but to secure to this new educational institution the warmest sympathy and support of all our people. The success of the plan will not depend altogether upon the Commissioner, be he ever so astute, but also to a large extent upon the heroic co-operation of our faithful pastors and big-hearted laymen.

Brother Selby, our wide-awake and capable Commissioner, enters upon his work optimistically. We commend him and his work to the Methodists of Mississippi. Emory University is not the property of Atlanta, nor the State of Georgia. It is the property of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Let us rally to it and make it a potential factor in the future civilization of our Southland.

J. T. LEGGETT,
Secy Joint Campaign Com. of Mississippi.

LOAN FUND DAY.

By Bishop H. C. Morrison.

It was a happy, if not a providential, thought on the part of the Committee in arranging for a "Loan Fund Day" on the same day of the dedication of the new Church Extension Building.

This subject, so vital to the success of our Methodism, coming from the pulpit upon the minds and hearts of all our people, can but produce a result that will be memorable in the history of the Church. The money given on this Loan Fund Day, May the seventh, will work while the donors live, and continue its work when they are gone, and will not cease from its work until the Church militant is taken up into the Church triumphant.

This May 7—dedication day for the new Church Extension Building—and a Loan Fund offering from 1,000,000 of our people, will constitute a historic day in our Zion.

BISHOP MURRAH IN GRENADA COLLEGE CAMPAIGN.

Upon assuming the duties of my office as Commissioner for Grenada College, my mind very naturally turned to Bishop W. B. Murrah, as not only a great leader in our Church, but one who for many years was so successfully a leader in our educational work in this State, and one who naturally was in deep sympathy with this institution and its new advance movement. As soon as asked, he really consented to give us a week or more of his valuable time. He came to us first at West Point and went from there to Starkville on the same day. He spoke with great force at each of these points.

The itinerary took in Macon, Okolona, Brooksville, and Columbus, where he was heard by splendid audiences. This being the section where his first preaching and pastoral work were done, there was much sympathetic interest shown the cause he presented because of early associations, as well as the keen interest felt in the deliverances of the man because of his masterly treatment of the subject. The liberal hearing given him on these occasions meant much for the College especially, and Christian education in general. The school has never received a large patronage from this section, nor had the matter ever been forcefully presented there. The increased interest will secure for the institution a better support. The inquiries made about the school, and some pledges coming in since the canvass, indicate the good luck. The further working of this territory and improved commercial conditions will bring in yet larger financial returns. No part of our Conference will be satisfied with doing anything but the very best for Grenada College.

BEN P. JACO, Commissioner.
Grenada, Miss.

Dr. E. B. Chappell, the Editor of our Sunday School Literature, will be the fraternal messenger from our Church to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. J. W. Lee, presiding elder of the St. Louis Mo.) District, will be one of the speakers at the centennial celebration of the American Bible Society that is to be held in connection with the General Conference of the M. E. Church, which will convene at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., in May.

LOAN FUND DAY.

By Bisbop John C. Kilgo.

The Board of Church Extension at its next session to be held in Louisville, Kentucky, May 6-9, will dedicate the new handsome building whicb has been provided for the needs of the work of this Board. It is a striking coincidence tbat this achievement occurs during the one hundreth year since the death of Bishop Asbury, tho incomparable prophet of American bistory. He was in himself a church extension which turned back from these shores the tides of French infidelity and saved this nation to Protestant Christianity. It is eminently fitting that the Board of Church Extension should at this time do something to celebrate the faith and labors of this good man in a permanent way. It has been decided by tbe Board to observe May 7 as Loan Fund Day, when our preachers will present the great work of tbis Board and call upon our people to make a contribution to its Loan Funds. It is not the wish of the Board to urge the collection upon our people, but it is tho desire of the Board that all our people be given a chance to make a voluntary contribution to this most important work.

Our Church is a very busy Church. God has called us to very large tasks, and at no time in our history bave there been such pressing needs upon us. In all this we should greatly rejoice. It is an unmistakable sign that God is still with us and tbat He still appoints us to hard fields of work. In all the many lines of work we are carrying on at tbis time, none is larger and more pressing than the work of the Board of Church Extension. With more than two thousand congregations without houses of worship, tbe demands for larger houses of worship adapted to the larger work of the Church, and the needs of new congregations whicb are constantly being formed, this Board is burdened far beyond its resources. Dr. McMurry has achieved wonderful success in all the work of the Board of Church Extension, but in the matter of increasing tbe Loan Fund he has gone far beyond anything the most hopeful could have expected. Yet every year the pressure for larger available funds to care for the smallest needs of the Church increases and is far beyond present resources. It is desirable that all our people on the day set apart to this work will gladly make a contribution to this fund, both meeting a vital need and celebrating the memory of Bishop Asbury in a worthy and abiding manner.

REV. G. W. BACHMAN.

Dear Brother Meek: The sterling qualities of Brother Bachman, together with my long and intimate acquaintance with him, justify me in putting on record my testimony to his worth as a man and brother. He was to me a strong, personal friend. I esteemed him highly and loved him much.

I met him first at Aberdeen, Miss., in 1860, when he applied for admission into the Memphis Conference. For twelve years after that I met bim at our annual sessions. Then I went to Arkansas, where I remained eighteen years. During these years I saw him only once—that was at the session of the North Mississippi Conference beld in Grenada in 1881. Our acquaintance, renewed in 1890, ripened into a friendship that lasted until tbe close of his earthly life on January 25, 1916.

The time and place and personal appearance of Brother Bachman, the first time I saw bim, are distinctly remembered. Of his ability, promise of usefulness, etc., I could form no estimate. We were both young, and of course we were heard neither from the pulpit, nor on the Conference floor. But he was possessed of one gift that always attracts attention and counts in a man's favor: he could sing. He could lead or follow as occasion demanded. Generally, especially in his mature and later years, be led tbe Conference singing, a thing not every good singer can do, for the reason tbat most Conference singing is done without tbe use of an organ. Possibly an organ might bave been helpful to him, but I doubt it. He was, I dare say, the only man in our Conference that could sing "off band" all tbe old Methodist hymns to the old tunes. One of our brethren, a few years since, was in New York, where, in one of the churches he heard a beautiful tune, which he supposed was new as well as beautiful. On his return bome, meeting Brother Bachman, he related the experience and sang the hymn. It was an old hymn, sung to an old tune familiar to Brother Bachman in his boyhood.

Brotber Bachman entered the itinerancy on the eve of the great war, and adhered to the work throughout the struggle, and, as the minutes of the Conference show, brougbt up the course of study without halting, and in due time was ordained to the full work of the ministry, in which be labored, counting from the date of his license, nearly fifty-six years. The early years of his career as a preacher were not favorable for development except in grace and courage. The troubles incident to the war, and the days of anxiety and poverty that immediately followed, were all against tbe preacher. But Brother Bachman never faltered—this, too, notwithstanding he served some of the hardest circuits the Memphis Conference could boast. His convictions and sense of duty held bim to the work. He could not be turned from his calling. Many a man, in his position, would have been governed by his surroundings rather than bis convictions. He professed religion in bis boyhood and joined the Methodists. This was in opposition to his father's wisbes, who was a strong Baptist of the Primitive type—a sect commonly called "Hardshells." When he became a Methodist preacher, the breach between him and his father was complete. He remained true to his convictions. Not until ten years passed did the father's prejudices give way. In the meantime his mother joined our Church, and his father "took a great liking" to the son's wife. These two things doubtless tended to soften the old man's heart.

Brother Bacbman never ranked as a popular preacber. He never aimed to be such. His studies were not in tbat direction. He rather studied to show himself approved unto God, and to rightly divide tbe word of truth that be might not be ashamed before God or man. In this he succeeded. He mastered the theology of his Church, wbicb be believed to be founded on the Word of God, and gave his bearers sound gospel preaching that was not barren of fruit. But his most conspicuous work was as colporter—selling Bibles and good books, and circulating the religious papers of the Church. He was peculiarly fitted for this work, and was remarkably successful. He spent thirty years in this capacity. In his later years, perhaps as many as ten, he served both the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences. This required much travel, and long and frequent absences from home. So admirably did he shape his plans that, whether at District or Annual Conference, or camp-meeting, he was ready at the opening with his fine assortment of books. I never knew or heard of him being behind time. His business with our Publishing House amounted to many thousands of dollars. The House never had a better customer. He was always prompt in settling his accounts. In his intercourse with the brethren he was pleasant and ever ready to accommodate them, often extending long credit to young preachers rather than let them go without the books necessary to bring up their courses of study. This was a kindness duly appreciated.

Brother Bacbman was fortunate in his family relations. He and his good wife, who died in 1906, reared four sons and one daughter. Of the sons, tbe eldest was left by his first wife, who died young. These children are all living. They were trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and to-day rise up and call their parents blessed. They loved and cared for their father in his old age, and comforted him in his dying bours.

Brother Bachman was religious. He had faith in Christ and knew God in the pardon of his sins. He lived daily in the enjoyment of his blessings and privileges as a Christian. He gave himself to tbe study of the Word and good books, and was well informed in Methodist literature, especially in Methodist history. He never gave up the habit of study. I believe no violence is done to the truth by saying that he was a better student, and made better use of his knowledge, after he passed middle life than before he reached it. At any rate, as he grew older he was more useful and better appreciated.

"All is well" with him. He rests in peace. Amen!

AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY'S CENTENNIAL.

Bishop Collins Denny sends out the following message to our pastors: "The American Bible Society on May 7 will celebrate its hundreth anniversary and has asked the Churches to observe that day as Centennial Universal Bible Sunday. As one of the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, on the Co-operating Committee, I have been requested by the officers of the Society to call the attention of our preachers to this date and to urge them to bring to the attention of all our congregations the claims of the Society. The usefulness of the Society, its hearty co-operation with the Church, its great and growing work, and its needs are well known to all our preachers and people. It would be altogether appropriate, and indeed it could be made a spiritual uplift to all our people, if our preachers on that day would select some theme connected with the influence of the Bible on the lives of the people of our country and of the world—the Bible as the Word of the living God, the Book that reveals man to himself and God to man, and our blessed Lord as the only and sufficient hope of salvation for all who repent of their sins and believe on him. I am glad to bring tbis matter to the attention of my brethren, and I hope that the celebration will be general in our Churches. Any of our preachers proposing to observe this day will receive literature helpful for that purpose by writing to the Secretaries at the Bible House, Astor Place, New York City."

"HERNANDO DE SOTO,"

Judge Walter Malone's Great Epic Poem, Commended.

ALEXANDER HARVEY
in Reedy's Mirror

"Now this theme of De Soto is a treasure house. Othello himself did not bedazzle Desdemona with more golden terrors or with enchantments so fantastic. Tbe conuest of Peru, the crossing of the Mississippi, the war with the Chickasaws, the ambuscades in the swamps of Florida—these are a few among the episodes which form a connected tale of the life and adventures of the very greatest of all the conquistadors. The study of character is convincing. De Soto emerges sharply, well-defined, true to life. He is romantic in his boundless capacity for love. He improvises the most reckless expedients in crises threatening to overwhelm him. He is brought into hostile contact with nature in her most savage moods, yet in aspects so beautiful that the background of the story is a source of no less excitement than is its protagonist with his incredible retinue of adventures, Indian maidens, and conspiring braves. The effect of reality is imparted so vividly, too, that we seem to hear the 'trumpets of the frail convolvulus' and see the 'Inca throned upon his palanquin.'"

THE WITNESS OF THE SPIRIT.

By R. C. Elmore, M. D.

Herein is the Christian assurance that he is a child of God, the Spirit "bearing witness with our spirit" results in a joint testimony, the witness of God's Spirit preceding the witness of our own spirit.

Emotional experience is not necessarily a test, but the Christian graces which are the "fruit of the Spirit" afford substantial testimony in so far as they are manifest in our Christian character. A very gratifying assurance being, that we love the brethren. The "fruit of the Spirit" however, is not the DIRECT witness, but follows, rather is an immediate consequence of the direct testimony.

Loving obedience gives assurance of a strong testimony of His presence in the heart, for "Whoso keepeth His word in him verily is the love of God perfected: hereby know we that we are in Him." The victorious life has an abiding testimony.

A citizen of the commonwealth enjoys freedom and liberty in the consciousness that he has related to law; in a much higher degree, the regenerated soul freed from the bondage of sin, has not only an inward consciousness of spiritual fruits, but also KNOWS that the indwelling "Spirit of His Son, crying, Abba, Father," is "even now bearing direct witness that he is a child of God."

We cherish the reality of an earthly friendship, a relationship depending on personality, but far more glorious is the indwelling personality of the Holy Spirit, who, by His speaking in the written Word, by his leading, his assistance in resisting the flesh, imparting hope, likeness in the way of holiness, guiding into all truth, giving access to the Father, revealing the things of God, and otherwise, makes "that inward impression on the soul" of the Spirit-filled believer whereby the relationship of "one with Christ" is more real than any earthly tie.

AN ENDOWMENT FOR THE LOUISIANA METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

We are glad to announce that Dr. Luther Sexton, a prominent physician of New Orleans and a well-known friend of homeless and destitute children, has given $5000 to the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage. This donation is given in the form of an endowment, and it is hoped by Dr. Sexton and the Management of the Orphanage that this is the beginning of many such donations toward the establishment of an adequate and permanent endowment fund. This gift is in stock of the Findlay-Dicks Drug Company, of the City of New Orleans, and the Orphanage has already realized the first dividend of 8 per cent on the stock, bringing $400 to the help of the work at a time of very great need.

We sincerely hope that this splendid gift will be the means of inspiring other friends of homeless children to add to this fund such sums as will increase this endowment to a sufficient amount to make possible the realization of a permanent income adequate to meet the ever-growing needs of the institution. ROBT. W. VAUGHAN, Supt.

TO THE POINT.

That was a very good reply that one man gave to another as reported in one of our exchanges last week. The first speaker said, "I do not believe in Christianity any more. After ninteen centuries of preaching peace, look at this world war!" "I do not believe in medicine any more," was the reply of his friend. "After fifty centuries of implicit faith in the god of medicine, Aesculapius, look at this national epidemic of la grippe!" There was surely just as much point to the one putting of the case as to the other.—Christian Guardian.

THE LITTLE BROWN HEN.

Susan Hubbard Martin.

The little brown hen couldn't do very much,
But she laid an egg each day;
Deep in her nest we found it there—
In the soft and sweet-scented hay.

The little brown hen could no plumage boast,
Or sing any roundelay;
But happy and busy she laid her egg
In her sweet-scented nest of hay.

The little brown hen in the old barn-yard
Knew that only a chicken was she;
That no matter how high or how far she might fly,
That she but a chicken would be.

So deep in her nest in the big red barn,
In the yielding, fragrant hay;
She did her best to brighten the world,
By laying an egg each day.

THE LITTLE LEAVEN.

Mrs. B. H. Friend.

Ed was an awkward boy of fourteen, the only child of well-to-do parents. He possessed good qualities of nature, but years of uncontrolled stubbornness and self-will had made him the dread of teachers and parents in the rural community in which he lived. His father was a godless, domineering man, unrefined even to roughness. His mother was gentle, but of that weak type who resent nothing and accept everything as right. Ed had grown up thus without fear or love for God or man. He swore as if by nature, and when he condemned a teacher, so did his parents. One girl teacher rejoiced when Ed's father thought she was not a suitable teacher for the boy and took him to a city school. She resigned in the spring and went elsewhere to teach. Then Mary Slater, a slip of a girl not yet twenty, applied and was elected teacher of the school, in "Ed's neighborhood." Mary was reared in a home of refinement and love. She was more sweet and pretty than beautiful; more charming than handsome. She was tender and clinging, but God's love and grace made her strong and brave for the duties that lay before her. The magnet of Christ's love had drawn her heart while she was a child at school. She went voluntarily to Sabbath school, and her heart, being empty of sin and wrong, was soon filled with the knowledge of God and his love. Her teaching was with His help; nevertheless her heart sank when she heard that Ed had been sent home from the city school and was to enter the rural school where she had taught only a little while. Though she was depressed. God heard her extra prayers for help; her trust grew stronger and she felt brave to do "all things;" so she said over and over: "Line upon line, precept upon precept."

The first day Ed was defiant and tried to annoy her in every way possible. When she called him to her, he went as noisily and indifferently as he could, and stood beside her frowning and surly-looking.

Mary, smiling sweetly, said, "Would you like for me to call you Edward? It sounds more manly than Ed."

The frowns grew lighter as he replied, "Don't care."

"Well, you shall be Edward then," she said.

She took his book, assigned him lessons, and sent him to his seat. He rattled his desk, shuffled his feet, worried the girl near him, annoyed the boys around him, and did not once look in his books. Mary pondered as to what should she do. To correct or rebuke him, would make him worse; to let him continue, would demoralize the school. After thinking, as she thought, desperately hard, she called in her sweet, soft tones, "Edward, come with your lesson."

"I aint studied no lesson," he replied, in a tone and manner that seemed to add, and "I shall not study any."

"Well, come here," she said, and when he came she asked him to read some part of his lesson for her. She expected him to refuse, but her kind tones and gentle manner seemed to compel him against his will.

"You read quite well Edward," she said after he had read a paragraph. "Who taught you?"

"Nobody," he said.

"We shall get acquainted to-day," she said, "and I shall try to find what grade suits you best to-morrow."

Ed was surprised. This ignoring of his efforts to annoy her was new to him. Why did she not scold him, threaten him, and show she was worried. His looks still showed antagonism, but mentally he avowed, "She is a winner," as she sent him to his seat, and prepared to close school for the day, which had been to her one of strain, anxiety and some fear, for she knew not what to-morrow "would bring forth."

At roll-call, each child was expected to repeat a verse from the Bible. Mary asked Edward if he knew one; he answered, "No."

"I wish you would learn one for to-morrow," she said, and handed him one written on a slip of paper. He took it without a word and crumpled it into his pocket.

After school was dismissed, the children gathered round Mary, shaking her hand and twining arms and dirty little fingers about her waist to say good-bye. They loved her truly and were sorry that Ed had come to "treat her so." They did not speak this, to be sure, but she felt their sympathy and Ed felt their censure.

That night he thought never before had any one treated him like Mary had done. She was kind and gentle as if she thought he was worth while and as if she knew he would obey and act gentlemanly without telling him he must. Finally, he studied some, read over the verse she had given him, and was so quiet, that his father said, with an oath, he believed the boy was sick, whereupon Ed threw aside his books and went to bed. The next day there was a change in him; he had resolved to live up to the manly name of Edward; but this he could not do suddenly—too long he had been "hateful Ed;" but, day by day, the little leaven worked. He grew more and more studious, more obedient, and tried hard to gain and keep the respect of Mary. His parents were surprised and glad to note the change in their son. Their hearts began to glow with pride as the boy became popular, trusted, and respected in the school and in the community. The father found that he, too, must change. He saw Edward, as they now called him, shrink as he used the oaths he had been accustomed to hear from his babyhood days. The boy read the Bible Mary had given him nightly, and was always ready with a verse for school. Slowly but surely the leaven was working; refinement and love sprang up in Edward's home. The weary little mother grew light-hearted and happy in the sunshine of love and helping hands from father and son.

When the Board met in spring to elect a teacher for the fall term, they expected to hear Edward's father, as usual, in swearing terms, condemn the present teacher as unfit for the place, and propose to try another. What was their surprise, when in gentle tones, and smiling, he said: "Gentlemen, that little teacher is a wonder; I want to know her and find wherein her power lies. She is making a man of Ed, and it seems as if she will make heaven out of our home if she keeps on. I have never spoken to her; but see what she has done for my wife and me! Why, men, that boy won't let me swear in the house any more; it seems to hurt him somewhat and make him feel bad; so I quit, and I feel better, too. From the way Ed studies and is learning, I believe he will be a big man some day, and I swear to myself that he shall not ever again be ashamed of his father."

Of course, Mary was unanimously elected. Near the close of the term Mary's beautiful little sister of thirteen years came for a week-end visit. She spent one day at the school, and met the parents and children of the community at Sabbath school. The evening before her departure, the next morning, she said to Mary, "Sister, Edward Manning is the nicest boy in your school, he is so handsome and strong, and so thoughtful of you and me. I love him best of them all, don't you?"

Dear little Mary! Her heart seemed to stand still for a second, for very joy; then she lifted it to God in thankful praise for his power given through her. The little leaven had worked largely.

WHERE THE CRYSTAL RIVER FLOWS.

Tune: "Where the River Shannon Flows."

There's a happy place called Heaven,
Where crowns to those are given,
Who have trusted in the Savior
And have tried to do their best;
'Tis a place of joy and singing,
With happy voices ringing,
And our sheaves we will be bringing
To that land of peaceful rest.

Chorus—
Where the crystal river's flowing
Where the tree of life e'er grows,
To that land we'll soon be going,
Where there are no griefs nor woes,
And our loved ones there will greet us,
At the pearly gates they'll meet us
And with love and kindness treat us,
Where the crystal river flows.

Oh, this world is full of sadness,
But up there all is gladness,
Where eternal flowers are blooming
And the golden sunlight glows;
Of God's love it is a token,
For there no hearts are broken,
No sad farewells are spoken
Where the crystal river flows.

DOING THE WORK OF AN EVANGELIST.

Dear Brother Meek:

I remember your request to write you. After being with you in New Orleans, I spent two days resting at home, after which I went to Rev. W. T. Woodward of Oak Grove, La. In that meeting we had 125 conversions and 72 additions to the Church. Dancing and card-playing were, furthermore, broken up in the community.

From Oak Grove I came to Crenshaw to assist Rev. W. R. Goudelock. We closed our services to-night, April 18, with more than 100 conversions, and 27 persons were received into our Church and 15 united with the Baptist Church. This was the greatest meeting I was ever in. When I came to Crenshaw two weeks ago the people were, for the most part, cold and dead spiritually. Dancing and card-playing were practiced, more or less in nearly every home; only one woman would lead in public prayer. To-night 75 or more will pray in public. It was a beautiful sight to see so many at the altar. It was my privilege to preach for the negroes once since I have been here.

I am going home to-night to get a week's rest before going to Purvis, Miss. All my time is taken up until September. I am quite weary, but I am well.

J. H. BELL.

Crenshaw, Miss.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. We revise the dates once a month.

Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise. If you desire that your subscription be canceled when it expires, it is necessary that you notify us to stop the subscription.

When ordering the address of a subscriber changed, please give the old address as well as the new.

The subscription price of the New Orleans Christian Advocate is $1.50. We allow 8 months for $1, provided remittance is made by money order or cash. In making remittances by check add 10 cents for exchange. Banks charge 10 cents for collecting checks out of town.

DR. WERLEIN'S PLEA FOR METHODIST UNION.

We are printing this week an earnest plea for the union of the Methodist bodies of the United States from the pen of Dr. S. H. Werlein, the able pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of New Orleans. Of course, with much of his utterance we do not agree; but we think it is quite proper that he should have the privilege of expressing his convictions concerning this most important question in the organ of the Conference of which he is a member.

We will not now undertake to point out the particulars wherein we are at variance with Dr. Werlein's views—it has been our wish to refrain from anything like a full discussion of this great issue until after the Northern Methodist General Conference, which is to convene in May, has taken action concerning it—but there are one or two things in the Doctor's paper which we think some of our readers might possibly misunderstand and which we will briefly mention.

It should be noted that he uses the words that he employs to refer to a uniting of Methodism rather loosely. For instance, "organic union" is commonly understood to mean a complete merging of the two Churches, with practically no reservations of any kind; while "unification" is usually interpreted to mean a connection which, though it is in a sense organic, gives less of solidarity and safeguards to some extent the smaller bodies from complete dominance by the larger ones. These distinctions are not observed by Dr. Werlein in the presentation of his appeal.

Bishop Hoss does not favor the "organic union" of Methodism, viewed in the sense here described, which Dr. Werlein seems to advocate. In his extraordinarily luminous address before the Joint Commission which wrought out the plan that is now under consideration, Bishop Hoss said: "The Southern Methodists do not wish to absorb anybody, and they are not going to be absorbed. Many of us, at any rate, before submitting to that, would camp under God's kindly stars." This, according to our understanding, is also Bishop Wilson's attitude. And if Bishop Galloway, though he ardently favored the general principle of Methodist union, ever made an utterance, spoken or written, that committed him to "organic union" of the kind that we have described, we are not aware of it. We are certain that he cherished no dream of an early union of all the Christian Churches, for several times in his later years we heard him express the hope that the spiritual children of Wesley, instead of merging with other communities, would continue to preserve their identity in all lands.

As Dr. Werlein very properly says, the Negro question still exists to disturb the two great Episcopal Methodisms. Instead of four million Negroes, the number that existed at the close of the Civil War, there are now ten millions of them in the United States—mostly in the South. The "organic union" of Methodism, upon such a basis as would wholly wipe out the autonomy of the Church, South, would leave Southern Methodists in pretty much the same plight that the entire Southern people would be in if States' rights were completely swept away and the Southern commonwealths were governed wholly by the Federal Congress, as the District of Columbia now is. The latter arrangement would, we dare say, be regarded as nothing less than an unspeakable calamity by all loyal Southerners. And those who are cherishing the hope of any such form of union between the two Churches as that just mentioned, in our opinion, had as well dismiss it, for generations will pass before it is likely to come within the range of possibility, if indeed it ever does. We feel sure that the great body of our people would never, under the conditions now existing and which cannot be changed, could permit union to take place upon such terms. If union is to come in the near future, it must, in our judgment, be along some such lines as those laid down in the plan which was formulated by the Joint Commission, and which now holds the stage.

OUR ITINERANCY A SAFEGUARD.

In the recent Doctrinal Number of the Nashville Christian Advocate, one of the most suggestive articles was from the pen of Dr. F. N. Parker, of the Candler School of Theology, who wrote on "Methodism the Guardian of Arminianism." The following quotation from Dr. Parker's interesting discussion sets forth some claims for our itinerant system which we think deserve careful consideration—especially at this time when there are some among us who seem disposed to think that the days of its serviceableness have largely passed:

"One of the greatest factors in conserving the doctrinal integrity of our system has been the itinerant system. The system has done two things of immense importance: It has provided a regular process for inspecting the character and work of the ministry, and it has done something more important—it has provided a disciplinary administration which demands self-denial and detachment from worldly concerns. If ever the Methodist preachers cease to itinerate and settle down to self-chosen fields of work, there will be a decline in spiritual power. Other Churches may build up an organization around a man or a ritual or a prospective dogma, and they have their reward, but a Methodist church can never build itself into real strength except in the social consciousness of a company of believers profoundly aware of their acceptance with God. The Methodist preacher must let his personality be merged in the intensity of his mission. Methodism has been described as 'Arminianism on fire.' It is the business of the preacher to keep the fire burning. Let us look to our doctrine and to our discipline and to our ministry. Methodism demands great things of its preachers, but great is their reward. What more glorious earthly calling than to follow in the steps of Wesley, Asbury, McKendree, and the hosts who have made the declaration of an immediate, full, and free salvation their one business here below?"

HAVE YOU HEARD ANY SUCH?

Writing in Zion's Herald Bishop J. F. Berry, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, says:

"I heard a young preacher a while ago who did not quote during the whole sermon even one passage from the Bible. He quoted Emerson and Browning. At three places in the discourse he gave us a stanza from Longfellow. The stanzas were all right. Indeed, they were beautiful. But I found myself longing for some of the very words of the Word. How wonderfully a sermon may be buttressed and enriched by well-chosen quotations from the Scriptures! Indeed, a sermon is scarcely a sermon without it."

Have you ever heard ministers belonging to the type pictured above preach? We have frequently done so, and always with a deep sense of disappointment and regret. The parading of culture in the pulpit, to the neglect of real preaching which has the single aim to help and strengthen souls, is far too common in this day. It is well for a Christian minister to have learning, but it ought to be subordinated and made wholly contributory to the one supreme work to which God has called him. Who could think of the Apostle Paul or John Wesley or Charles H. Spurgeon spending a half hour in an effort at oratorical or philosophical display, with a congregation of needy and hungry hearts before him? Ambassadors of Christ are commissioned to preach the GOSPEL, and there is nothing else that the burdened, struggling, suffering children of men, who are fast being borne to death and the grave and what may lie beyond, desire so much to hear.

ADHERE TO THE HIGHEST.

The human body was made to wear out and go to destruction in the course of a few years; but not so the human soul. The latter was made for unending growth—for illimitable expansion. But violence may be done to it by disregarding the laws of its well-being and its faculties may become impaired and set to working in a disordered and ruinous manner. He who has begun to debate with his conscience and to fall below its highest dictates as to right and duty has started upon the path that leads to the wreck of one's moral nature. A man must be true to the best that is in him if he would become better still.

AN IMPORTANT SUGGESTION.

There are some important temperance measures that will be pressed before the approaching session of the Louisiana Legislature by the prohibitionists of this State, namely: a bill to prohibit the sale of near beer in dry territory; an enactment to restrict further the shipment of liquors into prohibition parishes, and a bill to prevent the sale of intoxicants within five miles of the State University, at Baton Rouge. It would be well for our pastors and laymen to get into touch with the members of the House and State Senate in their parishes and urge them to support these wholesome measures. Rev. A. W. Turner, the Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, suggests that this be done without delay.

A COMMENDABLE BENEFACTION.

Elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate we are carrying an announcement of a gift of $5000 by Dr. Luther Sexton, of New Orleans, as the beginning of an endowment for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage at Ruston. Dr. Sexton also gave some years ago $10,000 for the construction of a building on the grounds of the Mississippi Methodist Orphans' Home at Jackson. He was born and reared in Mississippi, where most of his life was spent; but for a number of years he has been a prominent physician in this city. Money thus applied cannot but exert a wide and lasting influence for good, and the wonder is that more people of means do not give generously to such causes.

A NEW PUBLICATION.

The Presbyterian Journal, a new weekly that is to be issued in New Orleans, is on our table. The initial number is highly creditable in every respect. This publication has been established by the Synod of Louisiana, but it is expected to serve other Synods in near-by States. The Editor-In-Chief is Dr. George Summey, who is a religious journalist of experience and recognized ability. We wish for our good-looking, new contemporary a large and ever-widening sphere of usefulness.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Bishop J. H. McCoy will preach the Commencement sermon of Clemson College, South Carolina.

We cannot consider for publication copy written with a lead pencil. We have made this statement in our columns a number of times before, but not a little such matter continues to come to our office.

Our Felicity Street congregation worshiped in the main auditorium of their restored church last Sunday. It is needless to say that Dr. Felix R. Hill gave his parishioners a stimulating Easter message.

Rev. T. M. Bradley, of Durant, Miss., writes as follows: "Our new church will be completed by June 1. Our presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, has made a fine impression all over the Durant District."

Dr. J. M. Henry, our pastor at Ruston, La., is making a fine record in that delightful charge. We make grateful acknowledgment to him for some good work which he has recently done in behalf of the Advocate.

Rev. R. F. Harrell, of Centerville, Miss., cheered the Advocate office a few days since with a club of 8 subscriptions, with a check to correspond. He continues to make full proof of his ministry in his present developing field.

Rev. C. F. Emery, our genial pastor at Natchez, Miss., remembered us with a club of 5 subscriptions last week. We always count upon the interests of the Advocate being well looked after in the field under Brother Emery's supervision.

The services at the Louisiana Avenue Church, New Orleans, were especially interesting and impressive last Sunday. The pastor, Rev. A. J. Gearheard, was at his best in the pulpit, and there were 26 additions to the Church—all but one on profession of faith.

Rev. A. D. Martin, of Raceland, La., writes interestingly of the Lafourche Mission in a communication which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which we hope to publish next week. Brother Martin has the burning heart of a true missionary.

Dr. I. W. Cooper, President of Whitworth College, left his home at Brookhaven, Miss., for Nashville, Tenn., Monday of this week to attend the meeting of the General Board of Education, of which he is a member. The sessions of the Board began Wednesday morning.

Rev. H. B. Perritt, of Colfax, La., calls our attention to the fact that he is entitled to a place on our Honor Roll, which we have failed to give him and his worthy charge. Our failure to do this was an oversight, for which we apologize to Brother Perritt and his flock.

Mrs. J. D. Barbee and Miss Phillips, of Greenville, Miss., spent several days in New Orleans last week, being guests of the Grunewald Hotel. Mrs. Barbee, prior to her arrival in the Crescent City, visited the home, in Mobile, Miss., of Mr. D. R. Barbee, the brilliant Managing Editor of the Mobile Register.

Rev. R. O. Brown, our popular pastor at Clarksdale, Miss., has our thanks for a club of 1 new and 10 renewal subscriptions, forwarded on April 21. Methodism has long been the foremost Church in Clarksdale, and is continuing to enjoy a goodly degree of prosperity there under the capable leadership of Brother Brown.

Rev. W. W. Perry, of Boyce, La., gives us an additional list of 4 subscriptions, which advances his record since Conference to 41 new subscribers and 6 renewals. Brother Perry states that his work is progressing to his liking. This will not be surprising information to those who know this faithful and effective pastor.

Rev. C. W. Crisler, of Hattiesburg, Miss., was in New Orleans last week and paid the Advocate office an appreciated call; but the Editor was not in, and hence was disappointed in not getting to see him. Brother Crisler is one of the most successful pastors in the Mississippi Conference and his work at Hattiesburg has been of a high order.

In a note to the Advocate Mrs. A. Y. Wilbourn, of Crenshaw, Miss., speaks in glowing terms of the revival recently conducted at that place by Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss. She states that the influence of the meeting was deep and widespread, and that a marked change was wrought in the spiritual status of the entire town.

As is indicated by Rev. B. P. Jaco's communication in this issue of the Advocate, Bishop Murrah's recent tour through East Mississippi in the interest of the Grenada College campaign made a profound impression. When Bishop Murrah talks on the subject of Christian Education, he may be depended upon to reach and maintain a high level.

Mr. W. D. Hawkins, of Meridian, Miss., states that the Annual Meeting of the Epworth Leagues of the Mississippi Conference will be held in Biloxi, Miss., June 8-11. A number of distinguished speakers have been secured and the occasion promises to be one of much interest. A fuller notice concerning this gathering will appear next week.

Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner for Emory University in Mississippi, has taken up his work actively and is hopeful of accomplishing successfully the important task which has been committed to his hands. Let the brethren respond promptly to his communications and assist him in every other possible way. The undertaking to which he is addressing himself is theirs as well as his.

Last Sunday was a great day with our Carrollton congregation, of which Rev. N. E. Joyner is pastor. The accomplished choir rendered a choice musical program, and the sermons delivered greatly pleased the large audiences in attendance. The sum of $856 was raised on the indebtedness of the Church, and the Sunday school took a collection of $33 for the Orphanage at Ruston.

Rev. E. L. Shettles, of Navasoate, Texas, spent last Thursday in New Orleans and brightened our sanctum for a brief time with his presence. He was en route to Nashville, Tenn., and Louisville, Ky., to attend the annual meetings of some of the Boards. Brother Shettles is an ex-Mississippian, having formerly resided at Pontotoc, one of the historic old towns of that commonwealth.

In the assignment of deaconesses at the late meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council at Atlanta, Miss Martha Nutt, who for some time has wrought so efficiently at St. Mark's Hall, this city, was transferred to San Antonio, Texas, where, it is stated, she will be given work among the Spanish-speaking people. Miss Gibson, of Missouri, will take Miss Nutt's former place at St. Mark's Hall.

It is with sincere pleasure that we publish the article on "The Witness of the Spirit," from the pen of Dr. R. C. Elmore, which appears on another page. This article won complimentary mention in the recent prize contest conducted by the Nashville Christian Advocate. Dr. Elmore, who is one of the most capable laymen in the North Mississippi Conference, is an active worker in our church at Durant, Miss.

In a business letter to our office, Rev. A. R. McPhearson, of Patterson, La., says: "I appreciate your fearless stand in giving your views of the things vital to our Methodism. Let the good work continue." Thank you, Brother McPhearson. A word of encouragement to the Editor is scarcely amiss, since there are those who fain would brand him as "a troubler of Israel" and constrain him to silence, except on local issues.

Mr. Clark Herd, of Miguel, Texas, writes: "I should like very much to find my father and mother and two brothers and two sisters. My mother's name is Lucy Herd and my father's name William Herd. My brothers' names are Wiley and Alfred, and those of my sisters Rosena and Annie. We were lost from one another in 1867, and at that time they were in Baton Rouge, La. Any information concerning them will be gratefully received."

Rev. J. A. Poe, of Sidon, Miss., sends us some subscriptions from his charge, and appends in his letter the following note: "We have just closed a fine revival meeting at Cruger. Rev. J. A. Bowen conducted it and did very efficient work. He is good help, being deeply spiritual and much in earnest. We had 16 additions to the Church, and organized a fine Men's Bible Class in the Sunday school. Cruger is a fine small town. It is beautifully located and its citizenship is made up of a very fine class of people."

The Lamar School of Law of Emory University will open with one of the best law libraries in the South. Already Methodist lawyers have given the Supreme Court Reports of Alabama, Tennessee, and Georgia; and a few days ago Hon. W. A. Trawick, of Cedartown, Ga., gave a complete set of "American Decisions," consisting of one hundred handsomely bound volumes. The Georgians are manifesting no little enthusiasm in the campaign for Emory University. Already some $25,000 has been secured from the Georgia Methodists outside of Atlanta, where over $500,000 was recently given. The campaign has scarcely begun, but it starts most hopefully.

We give, with grateful acknowledgment, the names of the following brethren who have sent us two or more subscriptions within the past few days: Rev. W. J. Dawson, Bolton, Miss., 1; Rev. G. W. McLain, Sunflower, Miss., 2; Rev. C. R. A. Brantley, Okolona Ct., N. Miss., 3; Rev. J. W. Price, Hermanville, Miss., 3; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Winnsboro, La., 4; Rev. J. H. Ingram, Ruleville, Miss., 7; Rev. W. R. Goudelock, Crenshaw, Miss., 3; Rev. C. P. Moss., Tchula, Miss., 7; Brother F. A. Howell, Durant, Miss., 1; Rev. J. C. Chambers, Sumrall, Miss., 3; Rev. T. L. Oakes, McCool, Miss., 6; Rev. T. E. Gregory, Caledonia, Miss., 2; Rev. J. J. Garner, Kilmichael, Miss., 7; Rev. W. M. Williams, Collins, Miss., 2.

The prize recently offered by the Nashville Christian Advocate for the best brief article on "Regeneration" was won by Rev. Robert Randle, of the Louisiana Conference. This was the only prize article on any suggested theme that was written by a contributor in Louisiana or Mississippi, though the following brethren were given special mention for the excellence of their papers on different subjects: Rev. J. H. Felts, Holly Springs, Miss.; Rev. T. H. Porter, Olive Branch, Miss.; Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, Starkville, Miss.; Dr. R. C. Elmore, Durant, Miss.; Rev. J. L. Greenway, Silver Creek, Miss.—an unusually large number compared with those receiving such mention in other Conferences. The prize for the best article on "Sanctification" went to Rev. John Paul, formerly of the Mississippi Conference, but who is now stationed in South Carolina.

Rev. G. W. McLain, of Sunflower, Miss., writes: "Our work in this charge is progressing well. We have four churches and six Sunday schools. Half of my time is given to Sunflower, where we have built a bungalow to furnish Sunday school rooms. Our Sunday school has an enrollment of 250, being twice as large as our Church membership. We will start to building a parsonage in a few days. Our second quarterly conference was held on April 15. Every church was represented, and the pastor and presiding elder were paid up to date. We hope to make a full report at Conference this fall. I take this opportunity to request the prayers of the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference for my wife, who is to undergo an operation at Winona on the 25th of this month." We sympathize with Brother and Sister McLain in this time of anxiety, and pray that they may have with them the conscious presence of the Holy Spirit.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor of First Church, Mansfield, and his excellent wife are highly spoken of by their people and are worthy and well qualified to serve their cultured congregation. They have a superior brick church, a large membership, and a fine Sunday school, of which Brother Thatcher is the live superintendent. Mansfield has an extra fine public school, of which Prof. B. C. Fair is the superintendent, and Prof. A. M. Culpepper is the principal. The faculty also embraces a choice corps of lady teachers. A $50,000 brick schoolhouse is to be built this summer.

Rev. S. S. Holladay is the pastor of the South Mansfield Church. He and his good wife are much loved. They have trained some nice children and are happy in their work. Some day they will hear their Savior say: "Well done, good and faithful servants." Brother L. M. Harris is the Sunday school superintendent. He is a good one.

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb and his cultured wife are in charge of Zwolle Station. A finer and better equipped couple would be hard to find. They have both had special training for Church work and will succeed. They are highly appreciated. Brother S. H. Porter is the efficient Sunday school superintendent. He is a consecrated business man. Prof. S. A. Chenault and six well equipped ladies have charge of the public school. Zwolle is a really nice town. A new brick church is needed and will no doubt soon be built.

Rev. John L. Williams, stationed at Leesville, is one of the best educated and most earnest preachers in the Louisiana Conference. He has received 70 members since Conference, and is planning to hold a revival meeting soon, with Rev. D. L. Coale to do the preaching. He is capable of filling our best appointments. Sister Williams takes a deep interest in the work of the Church. Brother E. M. Lewis is the worthy Sunday school superintendent. Prof. E. F. Dumenier is superintendent of the large public school, having 16 competent teachers associated with him in the work of instruction. Prof. A. A. Boyd is the Parish Superintendent. Leesville is an excellent business town, with a fine people.

On March 5, 1916, ELIZABETH CAROLINE DERDEN, wife of Dr. A. S. Campbell, deceased, took her departure from earth to heaven. Sister Campbell was the daughter of John W. and P. W. Derden. At the time of her death she was in her eighty-fifth year. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Long Branch when she was twelve or thirteen years old, and remained a consistent member for seventy-two or seventy-three years. Many of these years were spent in Water Valley, quietly serving God and her family. All who knew her well speak tenderly and appreciatingly of her useful, thoughtful, and beautiful Christian life. Such a name is worth living eighty-five years to obtain. Her husband and most of her children had gone on ahead, and her departure was to meet those she loved long ago. She left many relatives and friends to mourn her absence. The writer, assisted by the Rev. J. E. Hobson and other friends, laid her body to rest in Water Valley, Miss., on March 6, 1916.

J. W. DORMAN.

On July 5, 1915, the Master called home Brother A. W. TOWNSEND. Brother Townsend was born on Dec. 1, 1842. From his boyhood he had been a consistent member of the Church. He was a Confederate veteran and on many a well contested field he displayed that sublime heroism which invests with undying glory those heroes who fought so bravely and so well during the Civil War. Though brave and chivalrous as a knight, he was at heart as tender as a little child. He passed by unheeded the cry of no needy person. He loved everybody, and, so far as I know, everybody loved him. He was a delightful Christian character and his life made the world better. The earthly Church suffered a loss in the death of this Christian man who counted nothing too dear to be offered upon her sacred altars. He died sweetly. No star ever went down more gently. "Let me die the death of the righteous and let my last end be like his." We shall meet him where "the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest."

IN MEMORIAM.

(Adopted by the Woman's Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, at Edwards, Miss.)

Whereas, on the 29th day of February, 1916, death summoned hence our beloved Brother D. M. Chichester, for many years an honorary member of this Society, and the mortal "putting on immortality," his spirit returned to God who gave it; therefore be it resolved:

1. That in the death of Brother Chichester this Society loses a valued and faithful co-worker, the Church a zealous and consecrated member, the community a citizen of spotless character and constant influence for good, and his children a faithful, tender and affectionate father.

2. That, while recalling his many virtues, in fancy hearing again his ever kindly greeting and remembering how his consistent Christian life was a comfort and encouragement to others, we cannot but mourn the loss of our brother, yet we are comforted by the consciousness that he "died in the Lord," that his "works do follow" him, and that in that "brighter world beyond the sunset's radiant glow" his inheritance is that "Crown of Life" vouchsafed to those who are "faithful unto death."

3. That we profoundly sympathize with his bereaved family, and our prayer is that "He who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" will abide with and comfort them in their affliction.

"Sleep calmly on; thy noble life,
With care and love replete,
Has left on us its impress, rife
With memories fond and sweet."

That a page of our records be set apart and these resolutions be inscribed thereon as a testimonial to the memory of Brother Chichester.

Signed: Mrs. C. N. Harris, Mrs. G. P. McKeown, Committee.

A GREAT REVIVAL AT CRENSHAW, MISS.

Dear Brother Meek: We closed here last night a ten days' meeting, which is conceded by every one to have been the greatest revival ever held at Crenshaw. Rev. J. H. Bell, one of our Conference evangelists, came to us on April 9, and to say that he preached with wonderful effectiveness, is expressing it mildly. I have never seen the Holy Spirit manifest himself with greater power anywhere. Brother Bell laid bare sin in its various forms and the Holy Spirit rooted it out of many hearts. To make a long story short, dancing and card-playing Church members stood up and publicly confessed their sins and renounced these practices. Oh! it was glorious to be in these services. It was impossible to count all the conversions and reclamations, but I think it would be a conservative statement to say that there were at least a hundred. There were 37 additions to our Church and 11 united with the Baptist Church. Many old differences were settled, and some who had not spoken for a long while met in the church and in their homes and embraced each other. It was, furthermore, again demonstrated that religion has power to open the pocketbooks of the people. Before the services started I was reluctant to invite Brother Bell to come to us for fear that we could not pay him; but at the close of the meeting we met his expenses and handed him $150. And these good people remembered the pastor and his family, giving us the greatest "shower" that we have ever received. It included $42 in money and at least $25 worth of dry-goods. Then came Miss Marguerite Carothers and the schoolgirls (all in the party had been converted except one), and she gave her heart to Christ in my house) and profusely showered the pastor's little daughter. Space forbids me telling more. I could fill a page of the Advocate with the results of this meeting, but I must desist.

To all the brethren of the North Mississippi Conference, I would say you need not send away from home for an evangelist. I fully believe that Brother Bell is second to none. I say this, having heard many. If the pastors in our larger appointments would open the way for him, unbridle him, and stand by him, he would clean up their towns and cities.

Calomel To-day, Sick To-morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a 50-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.—Adv.

CHILLS

and fever, though not immediately dangerous, are extremely unpleasant and if neglected may prove fatal. If you are troubled with dumb or shaking chills and fever, malaria, liver trouble or jaundice why not safeguard yourself against such discomforts and avoid a possible fatality? Use only that which has been tried and proclaimed efficient by others. Plantation Chill & Fever Tonic and Liver Regulator is a well known reliable remedy, harmless but effective. Contains no calomel, arsenic or other dangerous drugs. For sale by best dealers everywhere, price 50c. Manufactured by The Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

CONSTIPATION IS NO TRIFLE

We often Dismiss Constipation as a Trifle—something that will correct itself. Not so. Ask your Doctor.

Constipation clogs the body and poisons the blood stream with uric acid, resulting in rheumatism and other serious complications.

The condition which the doctor calls Auto-intoxication (self-poison) is reflected in a sallow complexion, mental dullness, bodily fatigue and loss of vigor.

Jacob's Liver Salt is a rational and accepted treatment of all congested and HEPATIC DISORDERS and is entirely free from Calomel and other drastic drugs. Cooling and soothing to the stomach and bowels. Taken a short time before breakfast, establishes regular movements of the stomach, producing a vigorous physical and mental condition. Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

In the Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, Dr. John F. Russell says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation. * Among inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance. * but if the salts are not in organic combination, it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food."

Years of widespread use confirm our belief that the success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis is due largely to its content of lime, in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

Doubtless this has had much to do with the results in many cases which appear to have yielded to it. As it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe to try. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary, Sardis, Miss.

Brother Bullard, pastor at Duck Hill, is at work in his charge, getting his collections, visiting the people, and giving full proof of his ministry. On Saturday we visited Gore's Springs, held two services, organized a Wesley Bible Class and a Teacher-training Class of four members. In the afternoon we held three services at Chapel Hill, organized a Wesley Bible Class and a Teacher-training Class of twelve members, and at night held services at Mars' Hill. Sunday we held services at Duck Hill, organized a Wesley Bible Class, and a Teacher-training Class of six members.

On Monday Brother W. J. Wood, pastor of the Winona Circuit, took me to Bethesda where we held three services in the morning and three in the afternoon. We organized a Wesley Bible Class and a Teacher-training Class with seven members. Tuesday we held three services at Bluff Springs in the forenoon and three in the afternoon, and organized a Cradle Roll, a Home Department, a Wesley Bible Class, and a Teacher-training Class. The officers and teachers agreed to give missionary instruction monthly, temperance instruction, observe "Decision Day" and hold a Workers' Council regularly. This was a great day.

On Wednesday Brother J. H. Smith met me at McCarley, where we held services in the morning and in the afternoon. We organized a Wesley Bible Class and a Teacher-training Class with five members. At night we held services at Carrollton, and on Thursday held services at North Carrollton, and organized a Wesley Bible Class and a Teacher-training Class with six members.

Tour Number Two.

In February Mr. Dietrich and I held twenty-three institutes in as many counties. Beginning on May 16 we expect to hold eight more, and some time in June we will hold ten. Then we shall have been in reach of every school in the Conference. These institutes are to be held for the preachers, superintendents, and teachers. The following is the list of our appointments: Water Valley, May 16; Oxford, May 17; Holly Springs, May 18; Ashland, May 19; Hernando, May 20; Senatobia, May 22; Batesville, May 23; Indianola, May 24.

FROM BLUFF SPRINGS, MISS.

We had Brother R. H. B. Gladney with us at the Bluff Springs Church on Tuesday, April 18, and we feel that we were greatly benefited by his forceful lecture on "The Sunday School as It Should Be." He showed in a clear way how to conduct different branches of the school, and we hope to put his teaching into practice and have a more active and efficient school than we have had in the past. On account of the farmers being so busy, there was only a small attendance, but those present were greatly impressed by the earnestness and power with which Brother Gladney presented his views and plans. He would have us surrender our lives wholly to Christ and let him work through us for the glory of God. We feel that any Sunday school that desires to do God's work in the fullest sense would be greatly helped and encouraged to have Brother Gladney come to their church and lecture. We hope that it will be our good fortune to have him with us again sometime.

TO THE PASTORS AND LOCAL PREACHERS OF THE SEASHORE DISTRICT.

Dear Brethren: Let special effort be made to secure the attendance of all delegates at the district conference, which will meet in Biloxi, May 3-5. Let's break the record in attendance.

Local preachers are expected to make written reports to the Conference. See paragraph 175, of the Book of Discipline. Let the pastors see that their Quarterly Conference Record books are on hand for examination.

The following committees have been appointed: License to Preach—E. C. Gunn, L. F. Alford, and H. W. Van Hook; Admission and Readmission—W. H. Huntley, W. B. Jones, and J. L. Sells; Deacon's and Elder's Orders—G. S. Harmon, L. A. Darsey, and J. E. Gray; Quarterly Conference Records—B. E. Meigs, J. T. Weems, and W. L. Blackwell.

J. R. JONES, P. E.

FROM BATESVILLE, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please allow me a little space in your valuable paper in which to report a most remarkable and helpful revival which closed here Tuesday night, April 18. The preaching was done by that gifted man of God, Rev. J. L. Morrill, of the South Georgia Conference. The meeting was in progress sixteen days. Here are some of the results: 23 joined the Church. Eighteen joined our Church and there are more to follow. Most of these are adults who joined on profession of faith—only four by letter. Twenty-one family altars were erected. About twenty backsliders were reclaimed, who committed themselves again to God for service. We had a hard fight, which resulted in a glorious victory. The entire church and town were revived. Conviction, as the result of an uncompromising gospel, fearlessly preached, got hold of the people, causing them to confess and forsake their sins and seek God. The Holy Spirit was allowed to do his perfect work. The evangelist and pastor endeavored to be led by the Spirit throughout the entire meeting, using no man-devised method, nor clap-trap methods of any sort. With the evangelist it was not a question of whoever wanted salvation just hold up the hand or stand at the seat, but come to the altar, confessing and forsaking sins. It was an old-time Methodist revival. The altar, or mourner's bench, was used at every service. Time and time again the altar was filled and at the altar men and women were converted. We had a glorious time. Genuine work was done and I know the work will abide. Repentance was genuine because conviction was deep. Brother Morrill is clear-cut in his preaching—a John Wesley type of preacher. He is a great teacher, wonderfully gifted as an evangelist. Not only is Brother Morrill a great preacher, but he is a man who understands the Methodist doctrines. He is a Methodist out and out. He teaches and upholds the doctrine of the Methodist Church. He indoctrinates. Brother Morrill is now with Brother Collins at Courtland.

E. G. MOHLER, Jr., P. C.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT NOTES.

Rev. J. T. Abney, our faithful pastor at Buckatunna, is holding a revival meeting in Houston, Texas. He will be away for ten days. His work at Buckatunna is prospering.

Rev. C. C. Evans, the faithful pastor at Scooba, is in the mdist of a revival campaign. Rev. D. E. Kelly, our Conference evangelist, is doing the preaching. A great victory is expected.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Neill, did most excellent work at the three Institutes which were held within our district. These two young, consecrated workers are proving to be "efficient." Their messages are distinguished by a note of encouragement and hope instead of groans of despair.

Our capable presidng elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, has recently had work outside of his "diocese." His wise conservatism and great execntive ability are rightly being ntilized by those who are charged with the responsibility of the important movements in the interest of the Lamar School of Law at Emory University, and the Tri-State Hospital at Memphis. He attended executive meetings in behalf of these enterprises last week at Jackson and Memphis.

The Border-line Methodist Preachers' Association was organized last week at Shubnta, during the Sunday School Institute, with the following officers: Rev. J. T. Abney, President; Rev. O. S. Lewis, Secretary. Besides these, Revs. H. E. Raley, W. E. Dickens, C. E. Downer, D. E. Vickers, A. J. Davis, and J. Loyd Decell are inclnded in the membership. They propose to make the "Alabama-line" fellowship to be genuine and profitable. The first meeting will be held at Waynesboro on Tuesday, May 2. All the members and their wives are expected to be present. Rev. D. E. Vickers will preach the sermon and a helpful program has been arranged.

STRONGLY COMMENDED.

Dear Dr. Meek: I desire to recommend Mr. J. E. Brokaw to our ministers or to any one who may desire an excellent choir leader for revival services. He is the son of a Methodist preacher who is at present serving a church in Columbus, Ohio. The young man came to Bunkie, La., about six months ago and now holds a position in the Neilson Hotel. He, like many other young men, has had his season for sowing his "wild oats," but he has been reclaimed, and now desires to devote his life to gospel singing. We nsed him in a ten days' meeting at Marksville and the people were highly pleased with his singing. He is a fine soloist and a most excellent leader of a choir. He can play most any musical instrument, but his special instrument is the trombone. We recommend him to the brethren and trust that they will use him largely in their revivals dnring the summer.

Fraternally,

Bunkie, La. R. S. WALTON.

ENRICH THE BLOOD

Hood's Sarsaparilla, a Spring Tonic-Medicine, is Necessary.

Everybody is troubled at this season with loss of vitality, failure of appetite, that tired feeling, or with bilious turns, dull headaches, indigestion and other stomach troubles, or with pimples and other eruptions on the face and body. The reason is that the blood is impure and impoverished.

Hood's Sarsaparilla relieves all these ailments. It is the old reliable medicine that has stood the test of forty years,—that makes pure, rich, red blood—that strengthens every organ and builds up the whole system. It is the all-the-year-round blood-purifier and health-giver. It embodies the careful training, experience, and skill of Mr. Hood, a pharmacist for fifty years, in its quality and power to cure.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER GRIFFIN.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our people may be interested to know that we still have some shipping at Gulfport, there being now nine ships at anchor loading lumber. We nearly always have some work to do among the sailors, though it is nothing like normal. Testaments, tracts, and magazines are distributed, and a goodly number visit the Bethel every night where we try to care for them as our wards while they are ashore.

The Wesley House at Biloxi has in its Sunday school 40 on the Cradle Roll, from 75 to 90 scholars in attendance, and an enrollment of 175. There are over 60 in the kindergarten, between 22 and 28 in the day nursery, 63 in the sewing school, and 25 in the night school. The main Street Church, Biloxi, sends Miss Koonz to assist in the kindergarten work.

Brother Alsworth has won the hearts of the people by his genial companionship and will doubtless bring about many good results.

The District parsonage is assuming the shape of a comfortable home for the presiding elder.

At Kiln, a sawmill town on the Jordan River, we have taken up work one Sunday in each month and have found in this thriving place a number of Methodists. W. T. GRIFFIN.

HATTIESBURG DISTRICT NOTES.

Quite a number of the members of the Mississippi Conference were in Hattiesburg during the State Sunday School Convention held here in the First Baptist Church on the 11th, 12th, and 13th of this month. They were Revs. B. A. Sutherland, H. A. Gatlin, and J. T. Leggett, of Meridian; Rev. C. E. Downer, of Eucutta; W. J. Ferguson, of Mt. Olive; Rev. L. F. Alford, of Saucier; Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood; Rev. W. E. Harrison, of Seminary; Rev. W. B. Waldrop, of Mendenhall; Rev. O. S. Lewis, of Shubuta; and the Rev. Mr. Carlisle, of the North Mississippi Conference, stationed at Guntown. Come again, brethren. We will always be glad to welcome you to the "Hub City."

It is a girl at the Sumrall parsonage. Congratulations to Brother and Sister Chambers. May God bless the baby!

The late meeting at Court Street Church was a delightful occasion. It was a time of refreshing and strengthening to the Church. A few members were added to the roll. Rev. W. B. Hogg did very fine preaching. Rev. J. S. Duke led the singing, and did it well.

Our presiding elder has grown to be very popular as a Commencement preacher. He is swinging around at a lively pace. Crystal Springs, Heidelburg, and Pelahatchie have laid commanding hands on him.

Norton, Ramsey, and Fikes had better look well after their jobs—Thompson's time is out.

Three of our Hattiesburg preachers were on the run this week—Thompson at Crystal Springs; Crisler, at the Sociological Conference, New Orleans, and Adams, at the Summit conference. Terry was delegated to hold the fort.

The pastor of Court Street Church had the pleasure of uniting in holy wedlock, in the parlor of the parsonage, on March 23, two of his best young people, Mr James Herbert Owens and Miss Bessie Donovan. They begin their home life by taking the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

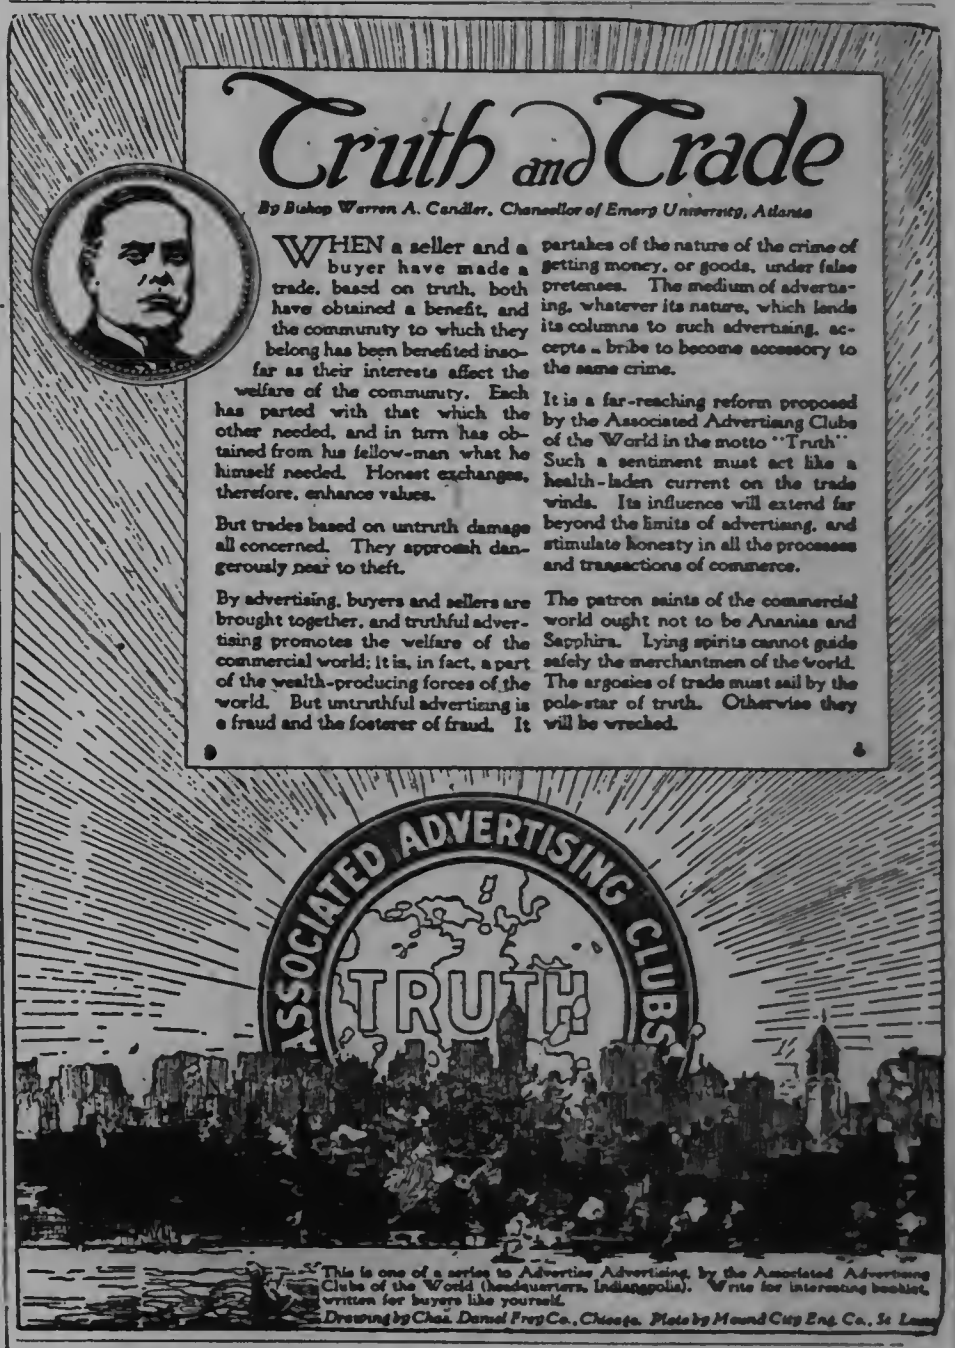
CATARRH A BLOOD DISEASE

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, it has been common practice to treat it with salves, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment cannot give permanent relief, and if overdone may aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. It is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proven effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S., the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by giving new life to the red blood corpuscles and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. If you need special advice, write the S. S. S. Co., Dept. Z., Atlanta, Ga.

Chalmers' Gelatine
ALWAYS BEST BECAUSE MADE BEST



Truth and Trade
By Bishop Warren A. Candler, Chancellor of Emory University, Atlanta
WHEN a seller and a buyer have made a trade, based on truth, both have obtained a benefit, and the community to which they belong has been benefited inasfar as their interests affect the welfare of the community. Each has parted with that which the other needed, and in turn has obtained from his fellow-man what he himself needed. Honest exchanges, therefore, enhance values.
But trades based on untruth damage all concerned. They approach dangerously near to theft.
By advertising, buyers and sellers are brought together, and truthful advertising promotes the welfare of the commercial world; it is, in fact, a part of the wealth-producing forces of the world. But untruthful advertising is a fraud and the fosterer of fraud. It partakes of the nature of the crime of getting money, or goods, under false pretenses. The medium of advertising, whatever its nature, which lends its columns to such advertising, accepts a bribe to become accessory to the same crime.
It is a far-reaching reform proposed by the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World in the motto "Truth" Such a sentiment must act like a health-laden current on the trade winds. Its influence will extend far beyond the limits of advertising, and stimulate honesty in all the processes and transactions of commerce.
The patron saints of the commercial world ought not to be Ananias and Sapphira. Lying spirits cannot guide safely the merchantmen of the world. The argosies of trade must sail by the pole-star of truth. Otherwise they will be wrecked.

A STARTLING QUESTION.

If God were to guarantee you $1000 in cash for every soul won into the kingdom, would you work harder to win souls to him than you are working now? If so, why?—From "Missions."

AN URGENT APPEAL.

Through Mrs. A. P. Holt, Corresponding Secretary of the Louisiana Conference Missionary Society, we have before us a letter from Mrs. A. D. Martin, wife of the pastor of the Lafourche Mission, near Raceland. It is written in broken English and is a strong plea for help in building a church at said point. Mrs. Martin writes that they have raised a little more than half the amount needed from among the membership, and at the time of writing the women had taken "the charge to raise pledge somewhere else." They are so eager and anxious for a church and ask that any one interested in helping forward the kingdom of God in this darkened part of our Southland send contributions to Mr. Martin. The need is great and imperative, for Mrs. Martin writes: "People by thousands and thousands, and not a Protestant church on this bayou! Are we going to deny the lamp of light to souls benighted?"

NOTICE.

Another change has been made in the date of the meeting for the Aberdeen District, which will convene in Nettleton, Miss. Mrs. Haughton writes that she will be compelled to have a service on the night of May 11th and close on the afternoon of May 12th. Let all delegates make note of this change and make their plans accordingly. Do not let the change interfere with the sending of your delegate. A large representation from adult, young people, and junior auxiliaries is desired, and especially from the new auxiliaries.

Send names of delegates to Mrs. Will Wiggin.

REPORT OF LOUISIANA CONFERENCE TREASURER — FIRST QUARTER.

Our receipts for the Louisiana Conference Woman's Missionary Society, for the first quarter are $2861.09—eight hundred more than first quarter last year. The pledge this quarter is $1073.18, against $547.57 last year.

Mrs. J. J. HOLMES, Treas.

This is a splendid showing and one worthy of imitation. This is not the only example they are setting for us. They have been slow in coming forward (with items from their work), but now they are here, and we foresee from their plans that this is to be an unusually busy year. Knowing the women of this State as we do, we predict great achievements for them in their work this year. They seem to be on fire with missionary zeal and enthusiasm, and have started out in a thoroughly business-like manner since their annual meeting. Every officer seems to know what is her duty and is losing no time in carrying out same. We could say much more about them but refrain, for they are very modest and prefer to let their works speak for them. God will surely crown their consecrated efforts with abundant success.

WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN IN LOUISIANA.

May 7-14.

When—Begin now with a day of prayer.

Help the District Secretary by having in each auxiliary a Campaign Committee consisting of the President as chairman, and the two Vice Presidents, or two others who will divide the entire membership of the auxiliary

Into teams of two, to visit uninterest- church members, and squads of one or more teams to visit unorganized churches.

Reason—There are 9000 women in the Louisiana Conference, and only 2226 members of missionary societies. There are 146 pastoral charges, and 351 preaching places, with only 95 adults, 26 young people, and 50 children's societies.

Look to your District Secretary for plans and supplies of literature and missionary periodicals.

Week in and week out have teams and squads meet to pray for those they are to visit.

Inform the churches to be visited of the time and purpose of your coming. If possible, send postals to all women in the unorganized church.

Notify all unenlisted women of the campaign and the day of visit, asking for a sympathetic hearing.

Do not forget that the "shut-ins" can be a mighty power for prayer while the visitors are at work.

Confer with your pastor and—

Ask him to preach on Woman's Work on Mother's Day, May 14.

Make use of the newspapers.

Push your plans, they will not work themselves.

Add to your missionary knowledge day by day. You cannot give to others a vision that is not your own.

Insist that all work shall be followed up so that results may be conserved.

Get members and with all thy getting use tact.

Notify your District and Conference Corresponding Secretary of all organizations and new members.

EXERACTS FROM MISS BENNETT'S MESSAGE TO THE WOMAN'S MISSIONARY COUNCIL.

"At the last annual meeting of this Council, two splendid missionary organizations of devoted church women * * * became one, and to-day organic union has had its initial year of trial and is an accomplished fact.

"The year has closed with the unprecedented record of more than eleven hundred new auxiliaries, twenty-seven thousand new members, and a financial advance of $28,000 over the collection of the preceding year."

In speaking of the Church-wide campaign which was inaugurated late in the past year Miss Bennett says: "We still have a great unoccupied field of more than 11,000 churches. More than twelve hundred thousand women, girls, and young children who sit in the pews of these unreached churches and who help to make up the congregations of all other churches in our Methodism, and know but little of the awful need of the non-Christian world, or of the unreached millions in our own land.

"Will it not be possible during the eight months before us to gain an additional fifty thousand members and by an advance of $50,000 in dues and pledges, make our Conference offering for 1916 $500,000? Does this seem an impossible goal? I know we can make it if we will, and we must make it, if we meet our obligations for the work already projected."

The imperative need of the Scarritt Bible and Training School was also presented in Miss Bennett's message. We all know of the embezzlement and loss of the endowment fund and the twenty endowed scholarships. If immediate action is not taken at this time, the doors of this institution must close at the end of this scholastic year. Miss Bennett urges that the Council appropriate a sufficient amount from its annual collections to make possible the continuance of this school of learning and Christian training which for the past twenty-five years has been such an important factor in the efficient carrying on of our work at home and abroad. Miss Bennett shows her faith in the women of Southern Methodism when she says: "I cannot believe there is a woman in the Council or its Church-wide constituency who would fail to approve of a good and sufficient appropriation for its annual support."

is closely connected with your nerves, so close in fact that anything which effects your nerves must necessarily effect your heart and vice versa.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, symtoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. EXPERIENCE IS THE BEST TEACHER OF ALL.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating." One is far more apt to believe a man who tells what he has done, than a man who tells what he could do. So it is with medicine. The real proof of the merits of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies lies in the fact that they have been used beneficially for over a quarter of a century and thousands have actually testified to benefits they have received.

We know that Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve all aches and pains because thousands have found this to be proven by actual experience.

The Rev. W. D. Barger, of Hagerstown, Md., has stated:

"Voluntarily and unsolicited I wish to bear witness to the high character of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies. To me personally they have been a great blessing, especially the Nervine, the Anti-Pain Pills and the Liver Pills. In case of headache or pain of any kind they act like a charm. I have given many of them to the suffering and the results have always proven gratifying."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have no unpleasant after-effect. They are not constipating. They do not contain any of the dangerous habit-forming drugs. We do not claim that they remove the cause of the pain, but we do claim that they bring quick relief in a harmless manner.

They are sold by all druggists at 25c a box, containing 25 doses. If not satisfactory your money will be cheerfully refunded.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

From the Field

Ruleville, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: It seems somewhat like old times for me to begin writing to you. Everything is going well with us up this way. We have over $7000 subscribed toward the erection of a new church at Ruleville. We are going to put up a brick building and we hope to start to work on it soon. We held services last Sunday in our new house of worship at Doddsville. Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, our presiding elder, preached two good sermons. We had a fine quarterly conference. I am sending you 7 subscriptions—3 of them renewals, and 4 of them new. We are going to get on the Honor Roll soon.—J. H. Ingram, P. C.

Marietta Ct., N. Miss. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: On April 18, Brother Dorsey came to us and held our second quarterly conference. We had an interesting session. Brother Dorsey preached a very fine sermon and all present expressed themselves as having been greatly benefited by hearing his message. Brother Dorsey is the right man in the right place, and the preachers, with the co-operation of the people throughout the district, are going to help him to make the Corinth District the greatest in the North Mississippi Conference.

Brethren, we can do it. Let us work and pray for the greatest number of conversions that has ever been known, throughout the district, so that when we go to Conference this fall our reports will be spiritual, and our finances in full.

My work is moving on nicely. We are placing new organs in our churches, and are making a good start toward building one new house of worship. We are expecting the Marietta Circuit to make the best report this fall it has ever made since it has been a circuit. Pray that we may succeed in this undertaking, and that it may finally be said of us, "Well done, thou good and faithful servants." And as we grow as a circuit, may our growth in the love of God be doubled. —M. E. Scatt, P. C.

Mentorium Charge (Miss. Conf.)

The Mentorium charge, which consists of five churches, is in fairly good shape. The church work seems to be on an upward trend along all lines. We have quite a number of very choice laymen, besides three local preachers in the persons of W. W. Broom, J. M. Alexander, and Joe Cain to hold up the pastor's hands and help to carry on the great work of the Church. We have three Sunday schools, one of which we organized this year. All of them are doing faithful work. We have one prayer meeting. It is a real inspiration to see so many driving a distance of several miles to attend these mid-week services. We have expended $40 on parsonage improvement, and have paid $50 on the $100 indebtedness on the parsonage. We had with us in our second quarterly conference, April 15 and 16, Rev. J.R.Jones, the presiding elder of the Seashore District. There were more than one hundred people present at the Conference on Saturday, and thirteen of the official members answered to roll-call. The stewards say it was the best conference this circuit has ever had. We had good reports along all lines. While here, Brother Jones preached four times to good congregations, besides administering the Sacrament twice. His sermons were full of thought and edifying to all who heard them. When we announce that Brother Jones is to preach, we can depend on having a fine congregation. He has certainly endeared himself to this people by the impression which he has made upon them. We are working and praying for a really good year. May God bless the Advocate and help us to get it into the homes of more of our people.—Paul H. Grice, P. C.

Patterson-Jeanerette (La. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a revival in Patterson in which we had the services of Rev. Martin Hebert of New Iberia, La. Brother Hebert brought us, as he always does, some inspiring messages. The visible results of the week's campaign were twenty applications for membership, several reclamations, and many pledges to render more active service in the work of the church.

We have our work very well organized and the young people of our congregations are doing a most excellent work. Patterson and Jeanerette have each heretofore had a station preacher, and now, since they only have one between them, and a very small one, our young people, with the assistance of our lay leader, conduct services in the absence of the pastor, which enables us to have worship in both churches every Sunday. Eighteen of our people are taking teacher-training work, and out of that number we expect to select our teachers for another year. Our Sunday schools are meeting the requirements of efficiency necessary to be graded as standard schools. We have the Junior and Senior Leagues working and find them a source of great help to our worship; and they seem to give a spiritual momentum to the life of the Church. The philosopher said "preparation is the life of service," and we feel like writing after this truth, probatum est. We are, having our church at Jeanerette revarnished on the inside and have finished our Sunday school rooms. The parsonage has also been made to shine forth as though touched by the hand of Phidias. All this work is being done by the "Alders." Long live the "Aiders," provided they keep out of the way of the Bishop! Our membership is on the increase and we have reason to believe that the Lord is good and will still save men and women from their sins and admit them to the fellowship of the saints eternal.—W. R. McPhearson, P. C.

SOME FINANCIAL POINTERS.

By Rev. W. W. Pinson, D. D.

The total income of the Board of Missions for 1915 was $1,308,382.33. This was divided as to departmeuts into: General income—Foreign $626,791.13, Home $155,433.19; Woman's Work— Foreign $292,341.20, Home $273,816.76. The increase over 1914 was in good part from irregular sources, such as hequests, annuity bonds, and emergency fund. This emphasizes the importance of putting emphasis on the assessments and hudget specials for 1916.

The gross deficit was $42,198.15 less in January, 1916, than at tbe same time in 1915. Bills payable showed a decrease of $41,000. This notwithstanding $17,000 paid on the deht in Brazil, which was not hitherto reckoned in our bills payable.

A reserve fund is being accumulated. More than $30,000 has been set aside for that purpose. Some have expressed a desire to contribute to such a fund. Bequests and annuities are to be so directed until $100,000, at least, is accumulated. One-third the amount the first year is a fine beginning.

A brother in South Carolina has offered to donate a farm valued at $15,000, the proceeds of which are to go to the perpetual support of a missionary. He has learned the luxury of supporting his own missionary and wants to provide for its perpetuity.

Interest in our annuity bonds is increasing. We bave received several of these "conditional donations," for which we have issued honds, since tbe first of January. A good sister, in taking an annuity bond, said, "I wanted to will my property to some good cause, but when I saw your plan, it seemed to be a wiser and safer way." When we consider the fact that a will has just come to light whose settlement has waited fourteen years, all unknown to tbe Board of Missions, which was the beneficiary; that in another case a lawsuit has for four years been pending involving a good sum of money for missions; in another a lawyer has just been employed; and in another there are questions in equity undecided, the annuity plan commends itself as direct, safe, and free from complications of any sort.

A gift of $1000 from a Cherokee Indian woman, Mrs. L. A. Clark, of Vinita, Oklahoma, has just come to the Board. It goes to swell the "Training School Fund" for the special training of missionaries. Sister Clark writes that she is happy to he able to help this good work of training missionaries.

We have just ordered the building of a $5000 church at Sungkiang, China —$4000 of this comes from our churches in Asheville, N. C., and $1000 from the native congregation and missionaries (one-half of the thousand dollars from a young Chinese woman, the first graduate and first convert of tbe Susan B. Wilson School).

New specials assigned from the annual budget from January 1 to April 1, 1916, amount to $30,599.66. This is the largest amount for any three months of our history. We now carry 625 of these specials, and tbey are multiplying.

The Executive Committee bas authorized the erection of the building for the Primary School at Songdo, Korea. With furnishings and equipment it will cost $5000. The money bas been furnished by tbe Lynchhurg District of the Virginia Conference. What a relief and blessing to that over-crowded institution this additional building will be!

We recently received a $3000 annuity from a gentleman in Florida, and another of like amount from Kentucky, both because those interested in missions had called their attention to our annuity plan.

The Executive Committee recently ordered the building of a $15,000 church in Shanghai, to be located on the site of the old Trinity Church, our oldest church in China. We very much need another church in Hongkew, in Shanghai, to cost $10,000, which should not have to wait much longer.

We have had two of the hardest years financially that we have experienced in many years. The Board has found difficulty, hut has maintained its work without serious embarrassment or increase of deficit. This year, it now appears, is to bc one of the hest years financially we have known in many. There will be no excuse left us if we fail to greatly increase our missionary income. There is every reason why we should. It is clear that we can, and the unmistakable indications are that we will. But it will require a whole year's work by the whole Church on the lines of our whole missionary policy.

Editorial

The man of faith is still the man of spiritual power.

That man is responsible for his belief is clearly the teaching of the Divine Revelation. The prevailing latitudinarianism cannot revoke this tremendous truth.

As a result of recent prohibition legislation, which went into effect on April 30, it is stated that the breweries in Georgia are dismantling and preparing to move elsewhere. Happy Georgia!

In the preface of his "Sunday Service Recommended to the Societies in America," John Wesley said: "Most of the holy days (so called) are omitted as at present answering no valuable end."

In the terrific fighting that has gone on about "the Dead Man's Hill" near Verdun, it would seem that this well known height has won many times over the right to the name by which it is called. That human lives should be thus ruthlessly sacrificed is most heart-rending. Let us hope that the end of this awful and unparalleled war is not far off.

When the Attorney-General of the United States threatened not long since to have the libel suit against Editor Tom Watson tried outside of Georgia, it looked very much like a political party dancing to the frown of the Vatican. There are few things that the politicians of the United States are more afraid of than they are of the Romish Church.

No preaching or teaching of the Word amounts to much which falls short of effecting obedience to it. The Master settled this question for all time in his great Sermon on the Mount when he said: "And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand," etc. Not how many hear the instruction that we seek to impart, but how many heed it, is the important thing. Here is the true measure of the value of the work of both the pastor and Sunday school teacher.

Geniuses are perhaps more or less conscious of the possession of great powers, and Shakespeare possibly may have believed that the passing centuries would add to the lustre of his fame; but, in view of the kind of life that he lived, we scarcely think that he ever cherished a dream that he would become the paraded hero of religious journals. We saw in a great Methodist weekly some months ago an extended article on "William Shakespeare, the Great Christian Teacher." There WAS A TIME when the Church held that it required a "new birth" and a moral life to constitute a Christian of any kind, and no exceptions were made in favor of the gifted and distinguished of the race.

OUR BISHOPS FOR THE NEXT YEAR.

At the meeting of the College of Bishops just held in Nashville, Tenn., the two Mississippi Conferences were assigned to Bishop W. B. Murrah, and the Louisiana Conference to Bishop E. E. Hoss.

This will be the first time that Bishop Murrah has had charge of the Conferences in his home State since his election to the episcopacy six years ago, and the Methodists of Mississippi will be delighted to know that he is to labor among them in the capacity of a general superintendent. Virile in intellect, splendidly poised, and a preacher of unusual gifts, he has made an excellent impression wherever he has gone in the discharge of his episcopal duties, and his administration in Mississippi may safely be counted upon to be wholesome in its influence and promotive of progress. It is peculiarly fitting that the North Mississippi Conference should meet this fall in Winona, where Bishop Murrah formerly served as pastor and where he is universally loved and honored, and that the Mississippi Conference should assemble in Jackson, which was the Bishop's home for so many years, and where his friends are numbered by the thousands. We predict that both of these occasions will be memorable in the annals of Mississippi Methodism.

Of Bishop Hoss, who will serve the Louisiana Conference, we do not need to speak. As a scholar, writer, preacher, and leader, he has no superior in any branch of world-wide Methodism. Great alike in head and heart, he is the peer of any chief pastor that Southern Methodism has ever had, and we predict, Providence permitting, that he will render the Church in this State a service far-reaching in its influence. This will be his first visit to this commonwealth in an official capacity as a Bishop, and we are glad that the Conference will be held at Baton Rouge, its Capital City, where all the surroundings will be favorable for a great session.

We pray that the present year in all three of our patronizing Conferences may be characterized by a larger degree of spiritual prosperity than they have ever known.

THINK METHODIST UNION IS FAR AWAY.

The Church News Association (New York) recently sent out the following statement concerning the question of union among the several Methodist bodies of the United States, which we think is of sufficient interest to be reproduced in the Advocate:

"Methodist leaders say, as their General Conference date at Saratoga approaches, that the likelihood of favorable action by the Methodists of the North on the subject of organic union with those of the South grows appreciably less. Half a dozen of them, interviewed within the last few days, agree that Methodist opinion is not ripe for such a step. All say union is coming, but most of them put the date for its coming twenty years in the future at least. They say another generation alone can bring it about.

"The plan proposed was for the merging of Methodists, North, South, and Protestant, except only the colored Methodists. These were to be left to be dealt with later. The merger effected, there has been proposed a division of the country into three general districts for administrative purposes. These districts are the North, South, and the region west of the Mississippi River. Various adjustments were also talked of in the way of general legislative and administrative bodies, but the general work of all, such as missions and education, are to be brought together.

"Now, Northern Methodists, those who know and help to make public opinion, say the new plan will result in greater division than now exists. They also say that the leaving of the Negro out of consideration, to be acted upon some time, will prove a door to trouble. In one sense the matter of unity is said to be up to the Northern Methodists at Saratoga, other Methodist bodies having acted. The opinion among Northern Methodists seems to be that the North stands ready to accept the responsibility for postponing union for the present."

SMASHING SOUTHERN IDEALS.

A friend sends us the following clipping from the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner of April 27, with the suggestion that we reproduce it to let the public see to what extent Vanderbilt University is at variance with the ideals of our Southern civilization:

"It is announced that Gov. Tom C. Rye will introduce Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst when she comes to Nashville on May 1. She is to speak at the Ryman Auditorium under the auspices of the young ladies of Vanderbilt University. An admission of 25 and 50 cents will be charged, and 500 seats have been reserved at the latter price."

Mrs. Pankhurst, as most of our readers will doubtless remember, is the militant English suffragette who has won world-wide notoriety by her numerous acts of violence and lawlessness, and who has often been in jail. To have its young lady students to become sponsor for her appearance in the historic Capital City of the Volunteer State, with a view to securing money for its endowment fund, is "going some" even for the Carnegieized "new Harvard of the South."

A press dispatch stated a few days since that Dr. Joseph Kemp, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church of New York City, led in having 1331 names stricken from the membership roll of his congregation, which numbered 2300, because of indifference and non-attendance. Such a pastor is somewhat of a clerical anomaly in this day when a lust for numbers possesses so many preachers and all sorts of hasty and enticing methods are brought into use to secure additional members. We rather suspect, however, that a work of judicious excision would prove helpful to not a few churches.

THE NEW BATTLE HYMN OF THE REPUBLIC.

(We give below the new Battle Hymn of the Nation. It was written by a Mr. Ford, and, though it may not take high rank as poetry, its stanzas are quite stirring and suggestive.—The Editor.)

We've got them out of Georgia, Colorado and from Maine,
We've got them out of Tennessee, Alabama's dry again!
And on the liquor traffic we will place the mark of Cain.
Our country's going dry.

Chorus—
Glory, glory, hallelujah;
Glory, glory, hallelujah;
Glory, glory, hallelujah,
Our country's going dry.

They're out of West Virginia, and Virginia's won the day;
Carolina's on the wagon, north and south, and dry to stay.
Oregon and Washington, Idaho and Iowa.
Our country's going dry.

Arizona, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kansas, too,
Mississippi, North Dakota, all have joined the temperance crew;
New York is on the programme, and now it's up to you.
Our country's going dry.

We're out for prohibition, clear across our native land,
The North and South united, both for prohibition stand;
Atlantic and Pacific are together heart and hand.
Our country's going dry.

THE DANGER SIGNAL.

Bishop J. T. Berry.

I rejoice in the new emphasis which is being put upon the spiritual culture of childhood. It is great. To preachers, teachers, and editors who are engaged in this propaganda I say, All hail!

But there is danger. Some of the leaders do not seem to see it. They do not intend to do so, hut they really make the impression that as the hasis of the spiritual development of children, regeneration is not essential. They teach spiritual evolution. They do not insist with sufficient clearness that every child who becomes a Christian must start with a definite and conscious acceptance of Jesus Christ as Savior and Lord. Rather, they want him to grow into goodness. Now, I do not ask that children shall he converted as older people are converted. I do not expect the same sorrow for sin, the same struggle with unbelief, the same emotions which manifest themselves in adult conversion. But I do insist that children shall be really converted.

The trend of modern evangelism is altogether in the direction of superficiality. You shake hands with the evangelist, or sign a card, or unite with the church—that makes you a full-fledged Christian. We are filling our churches with unconverted members. And I fear that much of the current teaching about the spiritual education of childhood will help to put into the Church multitudes of young people who are wholly destitute of a victorious heart experience.

THE YOUNG MOST IMPRESSIONABLE.

When Dr. (afterwards Bishop) C. H. Fowler left the pastorate to accept the Presidency of the Northwestern University, a gentleman said to him: "Well I hear you are going to stop teaching men, and you are going to teach boys." The Doctor paused, a moment, and asked, "If you wanted to write your name on a brick so it would stay, would you write it when the clay was plastic and impressible, or after it had become burned?" The gentleman saw the point, and replied, "Why, on the brick before it was hurned, of course." Dr. Fowler did not apply his illustration. That was unnecessary. The pastor and evangelist and reformer are trying to write truth upon burned and hardened bricks. How difficult and discouraging the task! But how great is the privilege of the parent and Sunday school teacher! He makes his impression upon the soft and receptive clay. The marks we make upon youthful hearts will last. Shall we not be most careful what we write?—Zion's Herald.

WELL SELECTED AND EQUIPPED BOARD OF CHARITIES AND CORRECTIONS.

By Rev. J. L. Sutton.

The Prison Reform Association (a voluntary association of men and women) of the State of Louisiana was organized for the purpose of securing the proper treatment and management of the derelict and defective classes of the population hy the State and its appointed officials, that the derelict may he reformed as far as possible and the defective made physically and mentally better, to the end that society may be protected and benefited as the result of such treatment and management.

The Association from its early organization appreciated that little could he accomplished without the direct support of the strong arm of the State itself, and, therefore, labored earnestly for the appointment of a Board of Charities and Corrections, to be vested with supervisory powers over all the institutions of the State, whether corrective or for the detention and care of the insane and defective.

It was eventually instrumental in having written into the Constitution of 1898 Article 295, creating a Board of Charities and Corrections with necessary supervisory powers over all State institutions, and requiring biennial reports to the sessions of the General Assembly, with recommedations.

A well selected Board was appointed in 1905, but no provision was made for the salary of a competent Secretary and his traveling expenses, and despite the earnest appeal of the Prison Reform Association it has heen impossihle to secure the necessary appropriation from succeeding Legislatures. The Board of Charities and Corrections has, therefore, been practically emasculated, and the State of Louisiana has lost the services of one of the strongest hranches of its administration.

Political economists concede that the handling of the derelict and defective classes is easily one of the most difficult prohlems of administrative government, and that a State needs all the assistance that modern Sociology can give it.

Sociologists assert that a properly selected and equipped Board of Charities and Corrections is one of the most helpful arms of a State administration reaching out in a supervisory capacity into all the corrective institutions of the State; recommending the abolition of evils and betterment of the management in all such institutions; supervising the haphazard methods of the constantly changing sheriffs; introducing a stable system of rules of classification, and segregation, and discipline, and employment. A Board of Charities and Corrections is the very hulwark of a State administration in one of its gravest and most responsihle duties, for the State owes to its people the proper handling of the derelict and defective classes, which means, according to the system thereof, either the increase or decrease of the criminal classes, the degrading of the great majority of those incarcerated by improper methods of prison and institutional management, or the elevation and reformation of that majority by proper and humane treatment and discipline. No State should be without a carefully selected Board of Charities and Corrections, provided with a competent Secretary qualified to make inspections and recommendations. The large majority of the jails and penal institutions are either in the hands, or under the political control, of the parish officials, who give little or no attention to the care or management of them, and many of them in this State are in a woeful conditlon—a disgrace to the State.

It is a deplorable fact that this State is without a legislatively enacted law for the government of its penitentiary and other penal institutions. The Board of Control of the Penitentiary has formulated rules for the management and discipline of the Penitentiary and farms, and the several police juries have made rules for the government of their parish jails, which naturally are not uniform. Hence, the State needs a Board of Charities and Corrections which would recommend, for enactment a model law for the government of the State Penitentiary and all other penal institutions, fashioned after the best laws in force in the States which are most advanced in the handling of the derelict classes.

States whose penitentiaries and penal institutions are controlled by reform, humane methods are under the supervision of well selected Boards of Charities and Correction. Notable among these are Indiana, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Ohio, and the majority of the Eastern States.

The Prison Reform Association has reason to hope that the incoming Governor and Legislature will appoint and provide for the proper organization of a Board of Charities and Correction which will be a credit to the State, and which will inaugurate and carry into effect the many reforms now needed in the prison and jail management of this State.

New Orleans, La.

ANSWER TO MEXICAN MISSIONARIES.

By Miss Martha Nutt.

Dear Doctor Meek: Answering a protest published by a small group of missionaries in your paper some weeks ago, I should like to quote from a reply to this, which has been made by our General Secretary of the Board of Missions, Dr. W. W. Pinson. (This reply has been put in circular form.) Space does not permit the answer concerning "Union College," "Protestant Paper," and other things of interest. This circular, which may be had at Nashville, is in part as follows:

A Protest Without A Proposition.

1. It is a protest without a proposition. The Protestants give us no hint of what they offer as a substitute for what they oppose. That against which they protest is a plan which has grown out of three years' discussion, from one body to another. It is a deliberate and systematic proposal to remedy acknowledged defects in our missionary situation in Mexico. It is the only remedy that has been proposed. It passed under the review of the executive officers of eleven hoards, a conference of our own missionaries, three sessions of our own Board, an interdenominational conference at Cincinnati, and in every case has been approved by a unanimous vote or an overwhelming majority. Now we have a protest with no suggestion of a better remedy for the acknowledged defects. Nobody has yet denied that a remedy is needed. I doubt if anyone will have the hardihood to defend the status quo.

Astray on the Facts.

2. In the second place, this protest is woefully astray on the facts. If the facts were as represented by the signers of the protest, I would protest, too. For instance, we are solemnly told again and again that we "give away," "relinquish," vast property values and "get nothing in return." Of course, no such thing was ever for a moment thought of. An equitable exchange of property or its purchase in all cases at a fair valuation is a fundamental part of the Cincinnati plan. For any property we might relinquish we would get either other property of equal value or its equivalent in cash.

Again, these protestants have sent out a map which represents a caricature of the proposed territorial arrangement. They represent our territory as being split entirely in two parts. They include the State of Michoacan, which is in the Methodist Episcopal territory, and leave out Guanajuato, which the plan allots to us. They did not take the trouble to inform themselves as to the recommendations. This is a blunder that has been persistently made by those who oppose the action of the Board.

The estimates given in the protest of properties we are to surrender do not correspond with the figures of the official report of our property agent. Our hospital at Monterey is valued at $35,000. In the report of our agent it stands at $20,000. Laurens Institute is put at $75,000. Official figures give $40,000. Seth Ward College is valued at $30,000 Mexican. The building cost the Board $1500 gold.

Referring to the property values involved in the readjustment, the protestants make some strange statements. On pages six and seven of their printed protest they list the properties we are to surrender, aggregating $645,296 Mexican. In this list they place the Saltillo properties, which they value at $55,000 Mexican, though this station was specifically left to our Church in the Cincinnati agreement, as the protestants themselves admit. (See protest, page 5.) We must assume that it was wholly by accident that they put it in the list of properties to be surrendered and left it out of those to be retained. Figuring out Saltillo, their valuation of properties to be surrendered aggregates $590,296 Mexican, which normally would be $295,148 United States currency. The properties to be retained they list at a total of $364,274 Mexican. Adding Saltillo at their valuation we get $419,274, or $209,637 gold.

Now, let us compare these valuations with the official manifest of our properties in Mexico, compiled by Brother J. B. Cox, the Board's property agent, (a signer of the protest, by the way), and filed with the Department of State as a basis for claims for any damages that might arise from revolutionary disturbances. Studying it item by item we find that the total value of the properties to be surrendered is placed at $200,775 American, and of those to be retained at $284,950. Putting these side by side for better comparisons, we get the following exhibit:

	Protestants' Valuation	Official Valuation
Properties to be surrendered.	$295,148	$200,775
Properties to be retained....	209,637	284,950

The official figures, it will be seen, practically reverse the proportion of values fixed by the protestants, showing that our Church, instead of surrendering three-fifths of its property in Mexico, is really to retain about three-fifths. It is certainly fair to assume that the official figures are correct.

Analyzing the two property lists shown by the protestants in comparision with the official figures, some interesting specific cases emerge. Note the following:

Values in United States currency.

Properties to be surrendered—

	Protestants' Valuation	Official Valuation
Laurens Institute	$75,000	$40,000
Monterey Hospital	35,000	20,000
Villadama	1,230	300
Monclova (some mistake surely)	4,400	375
C. P. Diaz	2,250	700
Palmore College	75,000	40,000
Torreon properties	30,000	22,500
McDonell Institute	46,050	30,000
Guaymas	3,773	2,500
Pitiquito	2,250	1,500

Properties to be retained—

Mexico City	$65,000	$75,000
Guadalajara	42,750	55,500
Tepic	Nothing	2,250

As noted above, the protestants put Saltillo, which we are to retain, in the list of surrendered property, while from the list of properties to be retained they have left out not only Saltillo, but sixteen others, the total aggregating $68,450, which the protestants either ignore utterly or put on the wrong side of the showing. There is little reason to suppose that the membership figures given by the protestants are any more accurate than their property valuations. If not, no great importance need be attached to them, certainly.

They make much of our hospital in Monterey, which, according to their representation, we are to "give away." They ignore the fact, which must have been well known to them, that it has never been proposed that we shall "give away" any of our properties, but that equitable exchange or sale at fair valuation is the only suggestion that has ever been made or considered. They either do not know or purposely ignore the fact that we have already had overtures looking to the purchase of the hospital. Neither do they mention that we are to get from the Methodist Episcopal Church a much better hospital at Guanajuato. These are mentioned merely as a few cases characteristic of the onesidedness and unfairness of the protestants' presentation of the case.

Much is made of our one hospital in Monterey that we are to "give away." Nothing whatever is said of the larger and more expensive hospital we are to get from the Methodist Episcopal Church in Guanajuato. The fact is overlooked that there are two sides to the transaction. Furthermore, they either do not know or do not tell us that the Northern Baptist Board has been anxious to purchase our hospital at a fair valuation.

Only One Denomination.

3. The third fatal defect of this protest is that it is framed entirely from the view-point of a single denomination. Are we to set our property interests, our "forty years' service and sacrifice," our traditions and prerogatives, our statistics and constituencies over against the combined interests of the Kingdom and the spiritual needs of the whole country? Has it come to this, that of all people Southern Methodists are content in the twentieth century to draw apart and consider the great question of Christian comity and co-operation from the standpoint of Methodist—Southern Methodist—interests alone? Are we the only people called on to make sacrifice? Is it nothing to us that the Northern Presbyterians are willing to limit themselves to the least promising and most difficult part of the country? Are we ready to count as a thing of naught that the Southern Presbyterians are willing to give up all their territory and begin in an entirely new territory? Have they not sacrificed and labored? Have they not suffered and toiled? Shall we meet the spirit of brotherhood and Christian co-operation with the clamor for our rights, and count our values and balance, our losses and gains, to the last penny? One can not read this protest thoughtfully and prayerfully without a sense of pain, not at its conclusions, but from the fact that the whole argument is based first, last, and all the time, on the single consideration of denominational interests as the primary concern, and that largely on the basis of property values, or other statistical quid pro quo. It savors too much of making sure of our last penny's worth of the seamless robe.

I do not underrate denominational loyalty. I do not put a low estimate on the worth and weight of Methodist leadership. I am jealous of Methodist history and of her freedom and opportunity to do her largest service. But I am not yet willing to subordinate everything to a temporary denominational advantage, nor to abrogate in the interest of an exaggerated loyalty the privilege and duty and glory of corporate sacrifice. There can never be any unity nor any co-operation until denominations, like individuals, are willing to "look also on the things of others." Mutual concessions for higher ends is the only possible basis for that unity which is slowly but surely coming. This note, which breathes in the last prayer of our Lord, so characteristic of the spirit of Methodism, so dominant in the Christian thinking of the twentieth century, is sadly lacking throughout this protest. Whether right or wrong in its contention, this is the chief weakness of this protest—that its facts and arguments are drawn from only one hemisphere of the subject.

Endorsed by Others.

During the Latin-American Conference at Panama, February last, a group of 68 out of the Conference representing Bishops, Secretaries of Mission Boards, missionaries who have been active in Mexico, and natives from the field, met in St. Luke's chapel, Ancon, Canal Zone, February 15. The following motion was made and adopted unanimously:

"First, that we unqualifiedly support the Cincinnati resolution in principle; second, that we express our strong conviction that the Missionary Boards should proceed as rapidly as possible to carry out the plans of the Cincinnati Conference; and third, that we endorse the proposal to have a National Convention held in Mexico at the earliest practicable moment."

In speaking to the motion, Dr. Earl Taylor, Jr., Secretary M. E. Mission Board, said: "We seem to be in agreement in supporting the Cincinnati resolutions in principle, and if we should here frame our belief it would be simply that much accomplished by common agreement. Some of the Boards accept the Cincinnati resolution not only in principle, but also in toto, and that there are Boards therefore ready to begin carrying out that plan, and that time is being lost until they begin." He said that after working 17 years among the churches, Sunday schools and Young People's societies in the Home Base, he knew of "nothing that has been done for Mexico or Latin-America that has so stirred the Church, that has so commanded the interest of the Church, as the action taken at Cincinnati." He ventured this statement: "I think you should find an almost unanimous vote among the laity in the homeland in favor of that proposition." In closing he said: "If you of Mexico, who have taken the lead in this thing, if you weaken now in the face of this opportunity you discourage every attempt in Latin America. There will come to you tremedous resources of prayer and interest and life and financial support if you lead out in a large way in some co-operative measure that will command the interest and support of the laity at home..... You cannot make a layman go through the thousand names of missionary societies and organizations as published in the Edinburgh report and make him believe that that is the final and ultimate alignment of forces. And you cannot take the little map of Porto Rico and make him believe that is the final adjustment of forces for Porto Rico. Nor can you make him believe that the hodge-podge of the forces in Mexico is the final adjustment there. The Board I here represent has gone through this thing with thoroughness and heart searching. Some think in going in for this thing we are giving up our sacred tenets of theology and all the rest. We have gone through all that, but we have come to believe that in the union of Protestant forces in cases like China and Korea there has been such increment of strength, not only to the forces on the field but to the forces on the home field, as to mean progress and victory."

Dr. Jno. R. Mott, speaking in favor of the Cincinnati Conference plan, said: "No step has been taken with reference to Foreign Missions in recent years which has so favorably impressed discerning laymen of large outlook and large financial possibilities. I honestly believe that the attitude and expressions of the workers right here in this room, from Mexico, from the Boards interested in Mexico, will have more to do in pointing the way to the solution of the most obstinate problems, in this and in other parts of Latin America, that are coming forward these days than any other single thing done on these grounds. We have had enough resolutions. We have seen the path indicated at Cincinnati, but Cincinnati went one step further than resolutions. They have said: 'We will take this matter right into the Board rooms and we will apply our principles.' it would seem, therefore, that if in a concerted, statesmanlike, courageous and sacrificial manner we would go forward on the lines that we cannot believe we were led into by selfish considerations, even though we might have been mistaken here and there in detail, that such action would prove contagious."

Bishop Oldham made a strong plea for the plan and gave an instance of interdenominational co-operation between Methodists and United Brethren in the Philippines, where there has been exchange of territory and realignment of congregations, and said that one of the Methodist congregations first declined to become United Brethren. The Methodist Board withdrew its aid and the people went in with the United Brethren, and in a few years it would have been as difficult to change them back as it was to change them in the first instance.

The time has come in the history of evangelism when we are concerned more about the coming of the Kingdom in the hearts of men than we are about whether they be Methodist, Baptist, Episcopal or Presbyterian. This plan suggested and known as The Cincinnati plan will surely mean an advancement and hasten the coming of THE KINGDOM.

A MINISTER SHOULD BE HONEST.

Some years ago we heard a prominent Episcopal clergyman ridiculing the doctrine of election. We asked how he could do that when the seventeenth of the thirty-nine articles set forth that doctrine as plainly as did our Confession of Faith. He replied that he did not and never did believe it. We then asked him about what he did when he was consecrated a priest of the Episcopal Church. "Did you not then solemnly profess your belief in these articles of religion?" And his answer fairly took my breath away. "Yes, but I did it with a mental reservation." Now what are we to think of a man who will, in the most solemn moment of his life, on his knees, profess a belief in a doctrine which he does not believe, and promise to preach it when he has no idea of doing it?

Well, there are men in the ministry of the Presbyterian Church who think and preach against the doctrines of our Church. Now, when these men were ordained, they made a solemn declaration that they believed all the doctrines of our Confession of Faith, and vowed that they would preach these doctrines and defend them against all comers. Now, what do you think of a man who has made these declarations turning around and ridiculing the doctrines he professed to believe? We think he is not an honest man. A minister is bound, if he changes his mind about the doctrines of his Church, to first of all resign from the ministry of a Church whose doctrines he can no longer conscientiously defend, and go out into the world on his own responsibility to preach whatever he does believe.—Presbyterian of the South.

A CHALLENGE.

By Rev. W. H. Saunders.

I have not the least desire to enter into a discussion of the Vanderbilt question, for I think that matter should be accepted as settled for all time to come. It was thought for a long time that the Church really owned Vanderbilt, but it turned out that Vanderbilt thought it owned the Church, and this caused the clash that has stirred the Church and brought about the separation of the University and the Church.

Now that this severance has been effected, let us leave it as it is. Nor do I have the slightest desire to dispute with Dr. H. S. Prichett, President of the Carnegie Foundation, who in a statement that he made at Atlanta in May, 1908, said: "The time has now come when you must control yourself, and with that control you will naturally assume your own support. The time can never come when you can be beyond my sympathy and cooperation and so much as possible, my aid. The bonds between us shall be as sympathetic, as friendly, as full of affection as you will allow them to be; but you have now come into freedom and into the full responsibilities of a man. I can help you best by giving you frankly that freedom and asking of you such allegiance as affection may suggest."

The only answer I care to make to that statement is, that the Church is much older than the universities, and at the same time is much younger. The Church of God is contemporary with the ages and is the only agency we have to keep the human race pure. It is true our great reformers came out of the universities, but they had to leave the schools that they might lead the reform movement, and at the same time they were repudiated by the schools.

Then, again, I have heard of sons whose conduct rendered it impossible for the father to co-operate with them, and a school might do the same thing. Dr. Prichett is carrying out the desire of the founder of the Foundation with which he is connected, and if that suits him, let him carry it out. If Mr. Carnegie thinks it best for the universities to throw off the Church and is trying to run the Church out of the educational business, and the Church is willing to sell out, let it go. I feel very sure that when all the schools, both small and great, are out of the business, the Church of the living God will he at the old stand telling the people that Jesus Christ died to save sinners, and that he was the greatest Teacher the world has ever had or will have.

For a good, easy time in old age, some preachers will sell out, but I am sure there are men—preachers and professors, too—who will live hard, work hard, and die hard, before they will sell out for an old-age pension.

Mr. Carnegie challenged the Church when he established this Foundation, and the Church has asserted her faith in refusing to accede to his requirements. Mr. Asa Candler, of Atlanta, has challenged the Church (of course, I mean the Southern Methodist Episcopal Church) in giving one million to found another University to be owned and controlled by the Church. That University has been founded in the best city in the South for a location, and named as it should have been. At the head of this University is the greatest preacher, Church leader, and educator of the South, and as great as you can find in any part of the Nation.

The city of Atlanta has challenged the Church by the very liberal donation it has made to Emory University. The State of Georgia is soon to launch a campaign to raise a million outside of the city of Atlanta, and this is a challenge to the Church, to show her faith by her works.

Surely the Church east of the Mississippi River has the greatest opportunity that it has ever had in its history to show that it does believe in higher education, and if this whole section does not respond liberally to these combined challenges, we had better turn the matter over to Dr. Prichett, and let him manage it. We cannot plead as an excuse for failure a lack of money in the section included in the territory allotted to Emory University. At the time Mr. Candler made a gift of a million, there was more money in circulation, more iron and steel being produced, more cotton being manufactured and sold, more stock grown, more lumber being cut and disposed of in the Southern States than in all the United States put together in 1880.

Since that time, I do not doubt but there has been a considerable increase in the wealth of the South. There is nothing that can keep Emory University from being, in the near future, one of the best equipped institutions of higher education but a failure on the part of Southern Methodists to appreciate the greatest opportunity ever given to any Church.

Nothing but ignorance and selfishness can prevent a mighty movement to make this institution what it should be. If we are to preserve the Southern traditions, ideals, and standards, and hand them on to the future generations, elevated, refined, and purified, we will have to do it through a university that we can build and guard against the encroachment of sentiment imported from the East and from Europe. Rome conquered Greece with the sword, but the Greek teacher conquered Rome at last. We want all the good we can import, but there are many things we do not want, and there are many things we cannot give up.

What about Mississippi?

A movement was launched at Jackson a few days ago by Bishop Candler and a joint committee representing both of the Annual Conferences in this State to raise the sum of $50,000 for the purpose of putting on the University Campus at Atlanta a building to be known as the Lamar Law School Building, and a Commissioner was placed in the field to lead in this undertaking.

It is a great honor to the Church in Mississippi to be given an opportunity to do this much for this great cause, and the management of the University has said to the Church in this State, "We have faith in you." Will we disappoint this very reasonable expectation?

Rev. Robt. Selby, the Commissioner, should be given a response by our people, and especially from the lawyers of this commonwealth, and should soon have the desired amount in hand. The Church and its friends in Mississippi in that State should give more than this amount.

Mr. Lamar was a great man, a great lawyer, a distinguished Christian, and an ideal Southerner. No greater thing could be done to honor and perpetuate his memory and hand his ideals down to coming generations than to link his name and fame with Emory University in the manner proposed. He was a great constructive statesman, and would have rather been right than held an office, even though it had been the highest office in the gift of the people. Let the State rally to Brother Selby and bring this enterprise to an early consummation.

THE BUSINESS MEN'S BIBLE CLASS OF FIRST CHURCH, WATER VALLEY, MISS., SETS THE STANDARD.

The business Men's Bible Class of the Sunday School of First Church, Water Valley, Miss., has broken the record and set a new standard for contributions from Sunday schools for the METHODIST HOSPITAL. As soon as these big-hearted men heard of the great need for a Methodist Hospital, and learned that a contribution of $1000 secured the privilege of a Memorial Room, they at once set to work and raised in cash and subscriptions $1062, thus giving themselves a little margin over the necessary amount.

We sincerely thank these splendid men for their generous contribution, and heartily congratulate their faithful and efficient teacher, Mrs. S. N. Berryhill, on the Christly spirit they thus manifest. These are not rich men, but hard-working and self-sacrificing. The numbers, the wealth, the culture of a Sunday school class are matters of minor importance, but the spirit of Christly compassion and brotherly helpfulness are of vital concern.

I'd like to challenge those Sunday schools which have been competing in multitudes they could gather in and noses counted on one or two Sundays to enlist their enthusiasm in something that is really worth while, and that will count in blessings for all years to come. I dare any Sunday school class to beat the generosity of the splendid Business Men's Bible Class of our First Church in Water Valley, Miss., in helping forward this needed hospital for our Church.

REV. M. B. MONROE.

Rev. Marion Baker Monroe, Local Evangelist, was the son of Hon. John T. Monroe, Mayor of New Orleans when Com. Farragut captured it. Born in 1859, he was 57 years of age. He died at his home on Wednesday, April 26, and was buried the following afternoon in the family tomb in the Firemen's Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by Dr. John T. Sawyer, Rev. A. J. Gearheard assisting and making the prayer.

Brother Monroe did a great deal of successful street preaching; and, also, as opportunity offered, held revival meetings in the cities and towns of Mississippi, Louisiana, and other States.

He was the inventor of the Monroe ladder, and manufactured them steadily for years, at the same time doing what preaching he could. He was a good man and live Christian, and his end was peace. He leaves a good wife and nine living sons and daughters out of the fourteen born unto him. He did not spare himself in the service he rendered the Master; and, finishing his consecrated life in triumph, he rests well in the home of the blest.

THE GRENADA EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE.

Dear Bro. Meek: Please let me add a word of exhortation to what has been said respecting the Conference to be held in Grenada May 30 to June 2, inclusive.

We have spared nothing to make the Conference both attractive and helpful to all who come. To be sure of this, you have but to note the following features of the program:

Bishop Atkins is to speak on "The Christologic Prophecies," and "Jesus the Teacher." Dr. W. J. Young of Atlanta will deliver four addresses on "The Prophet as Priest," "The Prophet as Preacher," "The Prophet as Pastor," and "The Prophet as Man of Affairs." Dr. George Stuart will deliver four addresses on "Lop-Sided Preachers," "How to Get an Audience," "How to Use an Illustration," and "The Use of Humor and Pathos in Preaching." Dr. McMurry will speak on "The Modern Church House," "Projecting the Enterprise," and "Paying Church Debts." Dr. Pinson will speak on "The Twentieth Century Neighborhood," "Big Brother Among the Nations," and "Methodism and Missions." Dr. Chappell will deliver three addresses on Sunday school work.

We think the helpfulness of this program must appear to any one who thoughtfully considers the problem of Christian work. But it is for you; and its helpfulness will depend upon your presence. Do not let anything cheat you out of hearing these leaders upon the vital questions now before the whole Church.

But this is not all. We are just in receipt of a telegram saying that we are to have the Wisdom sisters for the entire Conference. Brother G. A. Klein has kindly released them that we might enjoy the pleasure and profit of their contribution in the service of song. Let every preacher and worker come—especially the preacher.

Our Advocate Campaign

The exhibit below shows the status of our Advocate campaign to secure 3500 new subscribers, as it stood at the close of April 30. This exhibit extends back to the time of the Annual Conferences, thus showing all that has been done. No renewals are given. It is difficult to avoid all errors in such a campaign, and possibly there may be a few mistakes in these figures, but they may accepted as substantially correct. We are deeply grateful to all who have aided us in this effort to increase the circulation of the Conference organ. The next exhibit will be made in our first issue in June.

In 1915 the increased value of all farm products in the United States over 1914 was $526,070,000, and of this gain $317,209,000, or a little over 60 per cent, was in the South. We believe that the South has a great financial future, but we know that she can not produce nobler men and women than she did during the Civil War period.

How scarce and costly paper is in certain parts of England can be understood by the following, which we quote from the Youth's Companion: "Butchers are asking their customers to bring platters on which to carry home their purchases; and in some parts of Prussia the authorities urge men to wear unstarched shirts, so that the potatoes from which starch is made may be used for food."

It is said that neither King George nor Queen Mary (of England) like to play cards. This is in keeping with what we have heard concerning the character of the King, it being stated that he reads his Bible daily, and it is not likely that such a man would tolerate a card-playing wife, though doubtless the Queen abstains from this very objectional form of amusement of her own accord.

The Christian Guardian, a Canadian religious journal, says that "the humanity of Germany is not dead, but sleeping." God alone can raise it from the grave in which it sleepeth. Germany needs a second Martin Luther to defy the Kaiser, as the first one did the Pope of Rome. God works his greatest wonders through such men, and all Christians should pray for one to rise up and cause the German Government to be for the people rather than for the Emperor.

There are 52 universities and colleges in the German Empire. During the summer of 1914 their total enrollment of (German) men in these institutions amounted to 56,000. It is said that in the first year of the war 54,000 of these students went to the front, and since then they have doubtless been followed by others. The effect of the war upon the educational institutions of Germany, and very likely also upon those of the other warring nations, seems to be very disastrous. However, we doubt whether the world would lose much, so far as religion and morals are concerned, if the German educational system were wiped out entirely.

Theodore Roosevelt announced in a statement issned on the night of April 23 from his home at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay, N. Y., that "in the event of a war involving the United States he and his sons and son-in-law would offer their services to the United States." And no one who knows anything about Mr. Roosevelt can doubt for one moment that he would do exactly what he says he would, should the occasion for doing it arise, for he has shown in the past that he can act bravely as well as talk boldly, and it is likely that if he had any cowards in his family he would disown them—at least this latter statement is our opinion of the man.

A PLAN SUGGESTED.

(The author of this article is the Managing Editor of The Mobile Register and The Mobile Item.)

Dear Dr. Meek: Last Sunday night I read with much interest your editorial on "A Unique Circular Letter." Your discussion started my mind on a train of thought that I sometimes get on, and I am, therefore, tempted to make a suggestion or two in answer to your question: "Who can suggest such a plan?"

The General Conference is a representative body, but it is not a democratic body. The constitution of our Church will not let it be democratic. The Church itself is democratic, but its itinerant system, which is its strongest arm, is a pure autocracy. Because of the absolute authority given the General Conference, it, too, is an autocratic body.

It is possible for a minority in the Church to control the General Conference and through legislation do much harm. This is historically true. It has been done.

To democratize the General Conference it will be necessary to amend the constitution and incorporate in it the initiative and the referendum. If every law enacted by the General Conference had to he referred to the several Annual Conferences for ratification, and it took two-thirds of the Annual Conferences to ratify, we would have direct legislation, and it would not he possible for such matters as the present status of the Vanderbilt case to vex and irritate the Church.

If it be argued that this is a cumbersome way to legislate, I reply that in Oregon they enact political statutes that way, and so successful has the referendum been that it is now being widely practiced. The Swiss Republic submits all of its general laws to all of the people and they ratify or reject them. Is our Church any more complex than the Swiss Republic?

I would have the Annual Conferences ratify the election of Bishops and connectional officers, and it would he promotive of much good if we had the recall of such officers in the hands of the Annual Conferences. This, however, is probably more radical than the Church could be led to accept.

By the same means that laws are ratified they could he proposed. The principle of the initiative is no longer an experiment. We have something like it now in the Church, for resolutions go up from the Annual Conferences and are later enacted into laws by the General Conference.

The circuit rider is the glory as well as the enduring legend of Methodism. He should have a more definite voice in the making of the laws and in the election of the officers of his Church. The way he can have this is to be given a direct vote on both, and not a delegated vote. I am yet to be persuaded that all the brains, all the wisdom and all the safety in the Church are to be found in the General Conference. Our strongest and wisest men are not always elected to that body, and in late years the boys in the trenches are not sent at all.

D. R. BARBEE.

Mobile, Ala., April 25, 1916.

WHAT SHALL BE TAUGHT?

Sooner or later and sooner rather than later the people of this country will have to determine what subjects may be taught and what subjects may not be taught in State supported public schools. The demands for the exclusion of certain subjects and the inclusion of other subjects are becoming increasingly emphatic. Little by little school boards are yielding to these demands of men of various races and differing religions. In many places in compliance with a demand the reading of the Bible has been discontinued, and now we find ourselves taunted with our "godless schools." "The Merchant of Venice" has been forced out of the lower schools of at least one town, lest it wound the sensibilities of a portion of our fellow citizens. Now comes a demand that no child shall be allowed to sing in a public school such time-honored Christmas hymns as "Holy Night" and "It Came upon the Midnight Clear." We are not to be allowed to sing in school "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Rock of Ages," and "Abide with Me." On the other side of the account we find demands that this, that, and the other subject. Gaelic, Polish, Irish history, shall be included in the school curriculum.

Suppose we put to ourselves a blunt question or two. Is there any possibility, by a process of inclusion and exclusion, in response to demands, of framing a school system which will satisfy all the elements of our population? If it be found possible, would such a school system be worth maintaining? If it is not possible, which should we do—cut out or insert as each demand arises, or determine once for all that the schools shall be shaped and maintained in accord with the majority? It is a thorny question, but sooner or later it must be answered.—Zion's Herald.

THE BUTTERFLY.

By Helen M. Richardson.

From flower to flower I idly fly,
A happy, care-free butterfly.
I have been taught no other way
To pass a pleasant summer day.
But, though no work I find to do,
I make a charming sight for you.
My spotted wings in airy flight
Are both a pleasure and delight.
And, though I know not how to work,
I never have been called a shirk.
Since being happy in God's way
Is what I do from day to day,
That is my duty—just to be
The happy butterfly you see.

HOW CHARLIE'S FORTUNE WAS TOLD.

This happened a good many years ago, and I'm not going to tell you the real names of these two persons because I have not their permission, though they would probably be willing to give it.

Mr. Allen was a well-to-do but quite peculiar old merchant; and when he needed a boy one time, he found a very original way of trying him. The boys of the town who wanted a place in the store came at once when they saw the sign, "Boy Wanted," in Mr. Allen's window. There were six boys who applied, but none of them stayed more than a few days; for Mr. Allen's test found them all more or less lacking.

Such a queer test as it was! Up in the attic over the store was a big, long box full of nails and screws and rusty iron, good for almost nothing—unless to try the patience of a boy very severely. Each boy in turn had a trial over that box—not the first day or hour, perhaps, but some time when there seemed nothing else to do. For if the boys had realized that this work was a test, of course they would have persevered. But to each boy Mr. Allen had given the task of putting to rights that box of iron "trash," as they called it. Some of them had worked very well for a while, but sooner or later had given up in disgust, telling their employer that there was nothing worth saving there. And soon after that they were sent away.

By and by Charlie Dixon came. He had not applied before, because he was working for Jackson, the grocer. But Jimmy Jackson, the grocer's son, was to help his father as soon as his school term closed, and the grocer would not need Charlie, who must find another place, as he helped to support his widowed mother. As Charlie did not know the other boys, having been too busy to play and not being able to attend school because of helping his mother, he had not heard of that box. He did the errands given him for the first day like any errand boy. But the second morning, a rainy one, brought few customers, and there was less work to be done. So in leisure time Mr. Allen told him to go up into the attic and put in order the long box of iron. Dinner time came, but no Charlie. He was still working away.

"Have you got through?" Mr. Allen called up the stairs.

"No, sir," came down the answer; "not half, I think."

"Well, it's dinner time now. Go to your dinner, and then you can go back to the box," Mr. Allen told him.

After Charlie had eaten his dinner, he went back again to his task. And all that long, rainy afternoon he worked away at the "trash." At last, when it was almost dark and his hours for work were really up, and more than up, Charlie came down into the store.

"I've done the best I could, Mr. Allen," he said. "I've got it in order now. And I found this at the bottom of the box." And he handed a five-dollar gold piece to his employer.

"Queer place for gold," mused the merchant. And the darkness hid the twinkle in his eyes as he took the money Charlie held out to him. "Glad you found it. Well, good-night. You'll be on hand in the morning, of course?"

"Yes, sir," nodded Charlie, glad that the merchant seemed planning to keep him.

After Charlie had gone home, Mr. Allen took a lantern and went up into the attic. There was the big box in perfect order in spite of being the gathered rubbish of many years. Mr. Allen's eyes twinkled again as he looked at it. Charlie had been most thorough. He had made little compartments with some shingles, and each pile was labeled carefully, a shingle with the words marked plainly being laid on top of each: "Screws," "Fairly Good Nails," "Poor Nails," "Picture Hooks," "Keys," "Bent Keys," "Iron Scraps," and so on.

How Mr. Allen laughed to himself over his rubbish box! "I've found a boy, and I rather think he has found a fortune," he chuckled to himself alone in the attic.

Next morning the sign was gone from the window. Mr. Allen had found his boy. One day the old merchant brought a motto for Charlie, and told him to hang it at the foot of his bed. "It tells your fortune for you," he said.

Charlie unwrapped it and read: "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much." Charlie had told his own fortune in that rainy day's work on the old box. But it was not until a long time afterwards that he learned the secret of the old box of iron trash. Charlie owns the store now. Mr. Allen made him a partner years later, and, when he died, left it all to his one-time errand boy.—Normal Instructor and Teachers' World.

LIES TRAVEL IN LARGE COMPANIES.

Some one has well said: "The way down which the bad ship Wickedness slides to a shoreless ocean must be greased with lies."

This is a very true statement, for when one lie has been told, it is pretty sure to be followed by another and another, until the liar is really unable to tell how many lies he has told.

Seldom can a boy or a girl tell one lie and then stop at that. Dean Swift, the famous writer, once said: "He who tells a lie is not sensible how great a task he undertakes, for he must be forced to invent twenty more lies to maintain that one."

Let us beware of telling the first falsehood, for lies travel in large companies, and if we never tell a single falsehood, we shall not be tempted to tell other falsehoods in order to try to conceal the first one.—Central Christian Advocate.

THE BLIND GIRL'S GIFT.

The blind girl came to her pastor, and gave him a dollar for missions.

Astonished at the sum, the minister said: "You are a poor blind girl; is it possible you can spare so much for missions?"

"True," she said, "I am blind, but not so poor as you think; and I can prove that I can spare this money better than those who see."

The minister wanted to hear this proved.

"I am a basket maker," answered the girl, "and, as I am blind, I can make my baskets just as easily in the dark as in the light. Other girls have, during last winter, spent more than a dollar for light. I have no such expense, and so have brought this money for the poor heathen and the missionaries."—Methodist Recorder.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARIES.

At the end of the first year comes the cotton wedding, and those that follow are: Second year, paper wedding; third year, wooden wedding; sixth year, sugar wedding; seventh year, woolen wedding; eighth year, India rubber wedding; ninth year, willow wedding; tenth year, tin wedding; eleventh year, steel wedding; twelfth year, silk, and fine linen wedding; thirteenth year, lace wedding; fourteenth year, ivory wedding; fifteenth year, crystal wedding; twentieth year, china wedding; twenty-fifth year, silver wedding; thirtieth year, pearl wedding; fortieth year, ruby wedding; fiftieth year, golden wedding; and seventy-fifth year, diamond wedding.

THE EVANGELISTIC NOTE.

In former days this note had special prominence in the message which came from Methodist pulpits, and the response awakened in our churches by that note has been most comforting and inspiring. But of late years in not a few localities the response has not been what it was in former years, and the evangelistic note has, possibly in consequence of this, not been quite as prominent in our ministry as heretofore.

And there is another possible reason for the change which we cannot overlook. The truth is that to strike the evangelistic note correctly is one of the hardest tasks of the ministry. One famous preacher voiced his own experience as follows. He said: "The evangelistic note is the highest note that has ever been raised, and it is the most difficult to sustain. There is nothing that chokes out my soul like that. I could be a literary preacher on half the struggle. I think I could be the president of a college and not half try; but oh, the travail of soul in order to be just where the note will ring out clear, and every man shall hear it as a message from God!"

When we are dealing with the souls of men our own conscience demands absolute honesty, and to make the evangelisite note effective every atom of mental and physical and spiritual force within us must back it up. Many a preacher, when striving to deliver such a message, has suddenly waked up to the fact that he himself had become like Samson—the Lord had departed from him, and he had not realized it until he came face to face with the tremendous task of saving men. And in the days that are gone many a preacher has gone from his pulpit to his closet, humbled and ashamed, to get his own soul right before he dared again attempt to lead his people to higher ground.

But when the preacher gets right with God, when all his ecclesiastical ambitions and plans are laid upon the altar, his own petty interests thrust into the background, and his whole soul thrilled with the one desire to help and save his fellows, then the message from his lips will burn its way to the hearts of men. There is no easy method of evangelism. There is no padded pathway to the salvation of men. The old way and the only way is the way of the cross, the cross on which our Lord Jesus Christ hung, and the other cross on which the preacher's own self hangs, a voluntary offering for the salvation of his flock. We can save men to-day if we are willing to die for them. We do not mean that the preacher should die, but that self should die, so that the message should ring out clear and full and strong, and that men should hear it and live.

There is an idea that this evangelistic note should be sounded especially during the winter months, and there is wisdom undoubtedly in the custom of holding special meetings mainly during the winter; but so long as men sin and suffer and die during all the four seasons, so long will it be necessary for the pulpit to send out this message at all times, and so long will it prove a tragedy if the inner spiritual life of the preacher be allowed to sag or deteriorate during any period of the year. The preacher is the natural center of evangelistic activity in his church, and the tone of his own inner life has a most manifest effect upon the inner life of his people. There is no more responsible post than that of the Christian minister, and there is no harder task if he will be true to his trust, and for the sake of his God and his people live constantly upon the spiritual uplands.—Christian Guardian.

NATURE'S RESURRECTION.

"God makes a wardrobe we call spring
From many a burned or buried thing,
And brings a body from the hearse
And charnel of His universe.
Then, if there any dubious be,
Open your heart, your eyes, to see."

OUR HONOR ROLL.

This roll is to be made up of charges in which all of the stewards are subscribers to the Advocate. At present it stands as follows:

1. Ripley and Blue Mountain, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neblett, pastor.
2. Court Street, Hattiesburg, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor.
3. Kossuth Circuit, North Miss., Rev. D. R. McDougal, pastor.
4. Oak Grove Circuit, Louisiana Conference, Rev. W. T. Woodward, pastor.
5. Sbuqualak Circuit, North Miss. Conf., Rev. A. S. Raper, pastor.
6. Flora Ct., Mississippi Conference, Rev. M. F. Adams, pastor.
7. Trenton Ct., Mississippi Conf., Rev. T. B. Winstead, pastor.
8. Brooksville Ct., North Miss. Conf., Rev. J. J. Baird, pastor.
9. Sumrall, Mississippi Conference, Rev. J. C. Chambers, pastor.
10. Hermanville, Mississippi Conference, Rev. J. W. Price, pastor.
11. Colfax, Louisiana Conference, Rev. H. B. Perritt, pastor.
12. Tchula, North Mississippi Conference, Rev. Chas. P. Moss, pastor.

THE ANSWER TO MEXICAN MISSIONARIES.

We are publishing this week a somewhat extended reply to the "Protest" against the so-called readjustment of our mission work in Mexico that was printed in a recent issue of the Advocate, this answer consisting principally of the reproduction of a considerable part of a lengthy public statement lately made concerning this important matter by Dr. W. W. Pinson, our chief Missionary Secretary. It is but fair that both sides should be heard concerning this proposed rearrangement, and we have cheerfully given space for the view set forth in this issue of our paper. We trust that our readers who are interested will carefully consider together these two utterances. It may be, however, that some of them have not preserved the number of the Advocate in which the "Protest" of the Mexican missionaries appeared; so we will call attention to a few things that we think should be noted in this rebuttal statement, if such we may term it.

The missionaries signing the "Protest" were "a small group" compared with the missionaries of the numerous denominations which lately met at Panama, but they were a large percentage of our own missionaries to Mexico—in fact, the list of names appended to it embraced a majority of our male missionaries to that country.

It is suggested that the "Protest" was one "without a proposition." We suppose that what these Mexican missionaries would like to do would be to continue their work as heretofore, strengthening and extending it as fast as the conditions would permit. We take it that it would scarcely have been becoming in them to assume the authority to block out, without being solicited to do so, a complete line of administration for our Board of Missions and Bishops.

The "Protest" did not expressly state that our Church was to receive no equities for the properties surrendered—it was made to the Board of Missions, which perhaps the protestants thought would know all about the conditions. The publication of it, however, was calculated to mislead the public at this point, and it is well to have it corrected. Of course, we feel sure that there was not the slightest purpose upon the part of these workers in Mexico to give a wrong impression as to the facts. This also applies equally to the valuation of properties in Mexico, about which men might easily differ.

But, after all, money can hardly be said to be the equivalent of established churches and institutions. Prestige, constituencies, alumni, and patronage count for much. For instance, even if one had ample funds it would be a most difficult undertaking to establish an out-and-out new educational institution in the South, if everything else had to be built up. The Northern Churches operating in this section have certainly found this to be true.

We think the suggestion that the Cincinnati program has the unanimous support of our Board of Missions lacks much of being accurate. All of our Bishops are on the Board, and it is our understanding that a majority of them are opposed to it. We may at a later date have something to say concerning the complexion of our present Board of Missions and its general leanings. Nor would the Southern Methodist Church stand alone if it should decide to continue its work largely as heretofore in Mexico. The great Southern Baptist Church is pursuing this course. If these two denominations were to decide to adhere to this policy, it would commit to it a large majority of the Christian people of the South, where orthodoxy and religious conservatism still prevail. To be sure, this would probably bring upon us from some quarters the charge of being "narrow," but, for our part, we had rather incur that criticism than to have our Church associated in educational and missionary work with the "liberals" of the North, some of whom deny the virgin birth of our Lord and his resurrection and advocate the mutilation of the Holy Scriptures, to say nothing of sundry other things.

Most of those quoted as standing for the Cincinnati scheme in the paper which we are this week publishing are members of other Churches. That, as we see it, is one of the most serious objections to the present administration of our missionary interests—its policies seem to be too largely dictated by outsiders, who care little for Southern Methodism. There are plenty of leaders in our Church who in all the elements of strength are quite the equals of Dr. John R. Mott, and who are far better capacitated to direct the affairs of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The issue that has arisen in our foreign missionary operations involves several questions that are vital in character, some of which are:

1. Are Southern Methodists in foreign lands to have no rights in the determination of their Church relations, and are they to be shifted about from one denomination to another at the will of a Mission Board thousands of miles away? Let Methodists in the homeland ask themselves how they would like to be informed that it had been decided to sell all the Methodist churches in a certain county or district to the Campbellites or Congregationalists, that the establishment of no others would be permitted, and that they must join one or the another of these denominations, or remain outside of any Church? Should we subject Southern Methodists in other lands to a policy that we would not be willing to submit to ourselves?

2. As we have before said, we are face to face with the question as to whether in the future we are going to do interdenominational or Methodist missionary work. And the interdenominational program that now seems to be in contemplation would mix us up with all sorts of communions with their higher criticism and unsound teaching. Is there nothing in Methodism, which has so blessed the people of our own happy land, that is worth passing on unimpaired to the peoples of other countries? It is not Mexico alone which is involved in this issue, but all our foreign missionary work (a committee is even now figuring on Cuba), and ultimately the very preservation of our beloved Church in the United States; for, if the teachings of these denominations are largely given our acquiescence abroad, they can not logically be combated at home.

AN EASTER OFFERING FOR EMORY UNIVERSITY.

A few days ago Bishop Candler received a contribution of fifty dollars from a superannuated preacher (not in Georgia) accompanied by this beautiful note:

"My Dear Bishop: I send an Easter offering for our Emory University. Record it—a gift from a superannuate and his Georgia wife. My salary now is but fifty dollars per annum, yet I am glad to help a bit in so good and great a work as you are engaged in."

This is one of the most beautiful and inspiring notes that any university has ever received, and the Bishop's heart was greatly touched by it. More and more our two new Universities are taking hold of the affections of the two million Methodists of the South.

PROHIBITION IS PROHIBITING.

According to reports, the efforts of the recent Legislature of Mississippi to suppress the illicit sale of intoxicating liquors in that State promises to prove effective. The Jackson (Miss.) Correspondent of The Times-Picayune sent to that journal on May 1 the following statement bearing on this important matter:

"The officials of every city and town in the State will no doubt agree with those of Jackson that the new prohibition law restricting liquor shipments to one quart every two weeks, has, or soon will, put the 'blind tigers' out of business, largely because the handling and sale of such a small quantity is unprofitable, and any attempt to handle more than one quart in fifteen days is very risky. Several old offenders have tried it on other towns, making a trip to some Louisiana town and returning with a trunk or satchel filled with 'booze.' In many instances they have been caught 'with the goods on' and sentenced to pay fines of not less than $100, or 30 days in jail, or on the county farm. One dose like that is guaranteed to cure the worst case. The express companies everywhere report a great falling off in the business. Where a year ago, or until the new law went into effect, many gallons were received every day by express, the shipments now amount to but a very few quarts, and the 'blind tigers' are not getting much of that."

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Mrs. E. R. Morrison has done us the kindness to send us a program of the Easter service held in our Church at Covington, La. The musical features of it obviously were of a very high order.

Rev. J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, Miss., has lately been holding some excellent meetings in North Mississippi. As an evangelist, Brother Bowen ranks with the best. The pastor who uses him may feel assured that solid and enduring work will be done.

Rev. J. D. Simpson, of Louisville, Miss., says: "Things are moving along very well in this charge. Rev. G. A. Klein and his workers are to be with us in a meeting in June. We are praying for large results in these services."

We are pleased to state that we have been informed that our gifted pastor at Holly Springs, Miss., Dr. H. G. Henderson, is steadily improving, and that it is thought that he will soon recover from his recent attack, which was not so serious as it was reported by some to be. This will be gratifying news to Dr. Henderson's many friends in Mississippi and elsewhere.

The General Conference of the Methodist Church began its session at Saratoga Springs, New York, this week.

Dr. S. H. Werlein is this week in Homer, La., where he is aiding Rev. J. G. Snelling in a revival campaign.

Rev. R. H. Harper left Tuesday night for Jonesboro, La., where he is assisting Rev. G. A. Morgan in a revival meeting.

The attendance at the Parker Memorial Church on Easter Sunday was 272, which is said to have broken the record. The Sab[illegible] school on that day was also largely attended.

Rev. A. J. Davis writes optimistically of the outlook on the Waynesboro (Miss.) Circuit, of which he is the popular pastor. His good letter brought us two names for our mailing files.

Remember that next Sunday is Church Extension Day throughout Southern Methodism. Every congregation should observe it and take an offering for this most meritorious cause.

Rev. C. T. Barton, of Ansted, West Va., in renewing his subscription to the Advocate, says: "Your paper is a pleasant visitor to our home. We enjoy it very much. On April 9 we raised a $255 debt on our church at Gauley Ridge."

Rev. A. J. Coburn, of Clinton, La., sends us an interesting report of his work, which reached us too late for this issue of the Advocate, but which will appear in our next issue. A considerable measure of success is crowning his labors in his present field.

Dr. R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College, and Rev. C. A. Battle, of Baton Rouge, were in New Orleans Thursday of last week, and paid the Advocate office appreciated calls. Both of these esteemed brethren were looking well and seemed to be in fine spirits.

Rev. W. T. Woodward, of Oak Grove, La., continues to place the Bible and the Conference organ in the homes of his parishioners. This is an excellent work. Nearly all the Methodist preachers in the heroic days of Methodism in America counted it an honor to scatter good literature abroad among the people.

It is with sorrow that we learn of the death of Mrs. Henry Skipwith of Baton Rouge, La., who recently passed away at her home in that city. She was the mother of Mrs. R. H. Harper, of New Orleans, and a relative of Dr. H. M. DuBose, of Nashville, Tenn., her maiden name being DuBose. We extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Rev. C. W. Crisler, who recently succeeded in wiping out all indebtedness on our Main Street Church at Hattiesburg, Miss., announces the dedication of that splendid edifice on May 14 by Bishop J. H. McCoy. All former pastors are invited to be present as guests. We are grateful to Brother Crisler for a kindly invitation to attend the exercises on this interesting occasion.

A note from Rev. W. D. Bennett, our pastor on the Sardis (Miss.) Circuit, brings us several subscriptions to the Advocate, for which we thank him. We are sorry to learn that Sister Bennett is in a poor state of health, and we trust that her physical condition will soon be much improved. Let the readers of the Advocate remember her and her solicitous loved ones at the throne of grace.

We have in hand the Minutes of the Fifth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference, which was held at the Crawford Street Church of Vicksburg, February 14-18. This publication is from the press of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, and presents a very attractive appearance. It is brimful of interesting matter, and reflects much credit on its editors.

Through the courtesy of those having its issuance in charge, we have received a bound file of The Council Daily—the attractive paper that was published during the recent meeting of the Woman's Missionary Council in Atlanta, Ga. We think that the daily issued by our sisters this year is superior to any that they have hitherto brought out, and we are pleased to have been thus remembered by them.

Rev. G. S. Harmon, our pastor at Poplarville, Miss., was in New Orleans Wednesday of last week and greatly refreshed us with a pleasant visit. He is pleased with his present field of work, in which good progress is being made. Brother Harmon is an able expositor of the Word, who lives close to the Master. It is heartening to come in contact with a man of his consecration and earnestness.

Rev. J. O. Bennett, of Jena, La., has been pressing the claims of the Advocate in his rounds, with gratifying results. He gave us on April 24 nine new subscriptions. Brother Bennett says: "I hope to have my charge on the Honor Roll in a short time. No one can be an intelligent Methodist and not read his Church paper. Those of us who read the New Orleans Advocate over this way are delighted with it."

We have on our table a copy of the Minutes of the Sixth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Louisiana Conference. It is a neat pamphlet of 85 pages, well arranged and edited, and contains much instructive information. It was printed and bound in the Advocate office. Our Louisiana women are resourceful and faithful in their work for the Master, and are making a great record.

We acknowledge the reception of a pamphlet, entitled "The Methodist Church and Sanctification, Its Greatest Doctrine," by D. S. Harmon, of Meridian, Miss. This publication is from the Tell Farmer press of Meridian, and embraces 30 closely printed pages. It shows what many Methodist authorities have said concerning this important and much-debated doctrine, and is well worth a careful reading. Send the author 10 cents and secure a copy.

Within the past few days, the following friends, to whose service we have not made reference elsewhere, have brought us under obligations for two or more subscriptions: Rev. J. T. Lewis, Greenville, Miss., 8; Rev. W. L. Graves, Montpelier, Miss., 2; Rev. S. A. Brown, Kosciusko, Miss., 4; Rev. R. S. Walton, Bunkie, La., 5; Rev. I. F. Holland, Macon Ct., N. Miss. Conf., 5; Rev. H. M. Young, Vaiden, Miss., 2; Mrs. S. F. King, Pelahatchie, Miss., 6; Rev. H. B. Thomason, Winnsboro, La., 7.

Under date of April 22, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, the newly appointed Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference, writes as follows: "The last of the series of Sunday school institutes which was planned by Brother Coleman, and in the conducting of which he was assisted by Brother A. L. Dietrich and other workers in the State, was held at Mansfield this week. Great interest was manifested in these meetings, and doubtless they have resulted in the accomplishment of much good."

A note from Dr. I. W. Cooper states that at the late session of the General Board of Education in Nashville Whitworth College was placed in Class B. This will be pleasing news to the many friends of that historic institution. With an A-Grade Male College (Millsaps) and a B-Grade College for young men, Mississippi Methodism is educationally in an encouraging condition. Moreover, we are informed that it is pretty certain that Grenada College also will be in Class B before the opening of its next session.

Rev. A. T. McIlwain, our diligent young pastor at Glen Allan, Miss., sends us a club of 5 subscriptions from his charge and appends in his business letter the following note: "Our work is progressing nicely. The church at Glen Allan raised the pastor's salary $100 this year, making the assessment for his and the presiding elder's salaries $700. This, as you know, is good for the Glen Allan congregation, which is not large numerically. The Sunday school here has almost doubled within the past few months, and we are really bringing things to pass in it."

Rev. D. W. Babb, our faithful pastor at Crawford, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for 7 new and 10 renewal subscriptions to the Advocate. His letter contained the following statement of interest: "We are ordering the material to rebuild our church at this place, which was destroyed by lightning last fall. We hope to be in it by the last of July. Everything is moving on harmoniously in our district. Brother Woollard, our presiding elder, is proving himself to be a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. He is making good in every respect."

Referring to the Brookhaven District Conference, lately held at Summit, Miss., Rev. W. H. Saunders, of Fernwood, Miss., says: "It was a very pleasant occasion. The presidency of Dr. Cooper, our new presiding elder, gave great satisfaction. Brother Selby was there in the interest of the cause committed to his hands. His address was a strong plea for Christian education, which indicated that he is going at the task he has before him in dead earnest. He recently spent a Sunday with us at Fernwood and made some headway toward securing the amount that he is expected to raise."

Rev. Algie Oliver, of Eden, Miss., says: "The work is going on encouragingly in this charge, in spite of the fact that it has been much hindered by the backwater from the Yazoo River. I am glad to state that I managed to get through the water, and that I have filled every appointment since Conference. We had on the occasion of my recent visit to Thornton, according to Dr. Pollard, a prominent resident in that community, the largest congregation that he has seen there." We make grateful acknowledgment to Brother Oliver for a club of 6 subscriptions, forwarded on April 24.

Rev. S. A. Brown, of Kosciusko, Miss., writes: "Prof. G. F. Boyd died here on April 15, after having been confined to his bed for about two years. He had taught school here for twenty years and was one of the foremost educators of the State. He was a steward in our Church at this place, and was for many years its faithful Sunday school superintendent. Rev. R. A. Tucker, a former pastor and one of his devoted friends, attended his funeral. A more extended memoir will be sent to the Advocate later." We regret to be informed of the death of this choice layman and capable educator, and we extend heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved loved ones.

Rev. G. W. Gordon, of Noxapater, Miss., writes: "Our second quarterly conference was held at Stallo last Monday. Bro. W. W. Mitchell, our faithful presiding elder, preached there Sunday night and on Monday at 11 a. m. After an excellent dinner, which was served on the ground, the business session of the conference was held. The financial report was considerably in advance of that of the first quarter. Everything points to a prosperous year along all lines. We had the pleasure of having with us Miss Elie Willingham, of Eupora, who represented the Sunday school work in a telling manner. We are preparing to observe Children's Day at each of our five appointments."

From Ratliff, Miss., Rev. A. J. Henry writes as follows: "The second quarterly conference of the Mantachie charge has been held and has passed into history. Rev. T. H. Dorsey, our presiding elder, preached four very able sermons, delivering the first one on Friday night. When the business session was over we found that the pastor had been well cared for. We have two more Sunday schools this quarter than we had last quarter. One of them especially is doing good work and is contributing to the Orphanage and to missions." Brother Henry's letter brought us three subscriptions, for which we extend him our thanks. He states that he hopes to place his charge on the Honor Roll.

The Commencement exercises of the seventy-third session of the Memphis Conference Female Institute are to occur May 6-10. There are nine candidates for diplomas in the literary department, three in piano, two in voice, two in expression, besides several who are to receive certificates in various departments. The Commencement sermon will be preached by Rev. Cleanth Brooks, of Mayfield, Ky., and the address to the graduating class will be given by Rev. J. H. Roberts of Memphis, Tenn. The attendance throughout the present session has been the largest that the school has had in quite a number of years. The trustees had a meeting April 26, and accepted a deed by which the interest which certain citizens of Jackson held in the property was passed over to the Memphis Conference.

The following is the schedule of exercises announced for the approaching Commencement of Port Gibson Female College: May 5, 8 p. m., W. C. T. U. contest, by Co-eds; May 7, 11 a. m., Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. M. B. Sharbrough; 7:45 p. m., Sermon to Y. W. C. A. by Rev. M. B. Sharbrough; May 8, 10 a. m., Senior Class Day and Art Exhibit; 8 p. m., Girls' W. C. T. U. Contest; May 9, at 9 a. m., Meeting of Board of Trustees; 11 a. m., Baccalaureate Address, by Dr. H. W. Featherstun; 8 p. m., Grand Concert. President O'Neil says: "The present session, considering the financial stringency, has been a very good one, the enrollment being ten in advance of that of last year. The finishing class this year is unusual both in numbers and quality. Thirteen will graduate in the Literary Department, 6 in Art, Piano, 2 in Voice, and 2 in Expression."

A REVIVAL AT KOSCIUSKO.

Dear Brother Meek: Our meeting closed last night, April 28. Brother J. A. Bowen came to us on the 15th and preached three times daily. The interest in the meeting grew steadily throughout the services, the last congregation being the largest. I doubt if there is a member of any church in the town that failed to get a blessing. Many who were backsliders were reclaimed and the loyal membership got a new vision. "The Brotherhood" idea seems to have gripped the town. Twelve have given their names for membership in the churches and we expect more to join. Brother Bowen's methods are ideal. He preaches the Gospel with power sent down from heaven. I don't think there is a better way. I am especially delighted with the expressed determination of our faithful members to perpetuate the good work begun and advance every interest of the Church. S. A. BROWN.

"Happy is the man, who, in the midst of all the great changes going on in the world, realizes that there is One that changeth not, that He is the same yesterday and to-day and forever; and that He ruleth over all."

On April 16, 1916, Mrs. LOUIE LOUIS OWEN received her summons to the home eternal. She was the daughter of Mr. T. E. and Mrs. Rosie Gassaway; was born on July 16, 1881, and was married to Mr. Sam Owen on Nov. 20, 1900. She leaves a husband, two children and a host of relatives to mourn her death. She was converted at the age of eleven years and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at old Mount Olivet Church. From the time of her conversion till the hour of her death, her faith did not waver. She was a woman of unusual traits. She was a dear lover of her Church and proved her faith by her walk in her every-day Christian life. Her influence was not only felt by the family, but she was looked upon in the community where she lived as a leader. Her influence was far-reaching. I commend them to God, who alone can comfort them in this hour of bereavement. Her remains were laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery to await the morning of the resurrection.

C. A. NORTHINGTON.

WILMER BLUFORD WRIGHT, the subject of this sketch, was born near Caseyville, Mississippi, Nov. 19, 1895. He united with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at the tender age of seven years, and remained a consistent member of that Church till January 18, 1916, when he was transferred to the Church Triumphant. In the home, the community, and the school, the name of young Wright was the synonym of all that is pure, and good, and true. No one knew him but to love him, and no one spoke of him but to praise him. At the time Bluford contracted the fatal illness which took him from the earth he was a student in the Franklin County Agricultural High School at Meadville, Miss., and when he died almost the entire school accompanied the body to Roxie, Miss., where it was interred. In the church where the funeral ceremony was read, the principal of the school paid a very beautiful tribute to Bluford. Amidst a great concourse of friends and kinsmen, we laid the body to rest in the Roxie Cemetery. Earth is made poorer, but heaven is made richer by the going of this young man.

T. J. O'NEIL.

DEATH OF DR. J. L. BEAVERS.

On January 4, 1916, Dr. J. L. Beavers died in the Baptist Hospital at Jackson, Miss., after a serious operation. He was born in Covington County, Miss., on November 11, 1839, and when he departed this life he had passed the average life, and hence, by reason of strength, he had entered into his 77th year.

At an early age he united with the Methodist Church during a revival. After he had completed his education at Zion Seminary, he went to the University of Mississippi and had finished his Junor course in that instituton at the beginniug of the war between the States. Being very patriotic in his feeling, he enlisted with a company of infantry under the leadership of Capt. John T. Fairly. His company was ordered to Virginia, and while en route his train collided with another near New Orleans, La., and his leg was broken, which disqualified him for service in the Civil War. Subsequently he entered the Tulane Medical College at New Orleans, from which he graduated in medicine in 1866, and after that took a post-graduate course there also.

On March 22, 1866, he was married to Miss Sallie Fairly. Of this union three boys and six girls were born, all of whom survive him except two of the boys. He began the practice of medicine in Lawrence County, Miss., but did not remain there but one year, and then moved to Mount Carmel, where he remained until some period between 1890 and 1895, and then moved to Wesson, Miss., at which place he prosecuted his medical work until his decease. His son, Dr. John H. Beavers, is still practicing medicine at Wesson. May God greatly bless and comfort his wife and children, who survive him, and keep them ready for heaven at all times!

ISAAC L. PEEBLES.

Wesson, Miss.

WILLIAM JASPER SCOTT.

William Jasper Scott, son of William Jasper and Adeline Scott, was born in Franklin County, Mississippi, on the 13th day of April, 1846. At the age of 18 he united with the Baptist Church, and on Jan. 9, 1868, he was married to Miss Eugenia Merredith. Of this marriage there came three children, Ennette, Thomas, and one who died in infancy.

After the death of his first wife he was married on the 30th day of November, 1881 to Mrs. Falby Carter. His second wife had two children at the time of their marriage, Henry Carter, who lives at Laurel, Miss., and Rev. H. E. Carter, of the Mississippi Conference, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at McGee. Of the second marriage there were eight children born, Seth, Vince, Curtis, John, Mayhelle, and Stella. All of these live in the town of Fernwood, Miss., and, together with Thomas and Ennette, were with him when he died, as were also Brother Carter and his only sister, Mrs. M. E. Scott of Vicksburg, Miss. He joined the Methodist Church in 1885 at Muddy Springs; then he was a member at Pisgah, near Summitt, and for some years the family lived in the neighborhood of Pleasant Grove Church, east of Brookhaven, in Lincoln County.

He moved to Fernwood twenty-two years ago and entered the employ of the Fernwood Lumber Company, and remained so up to the time of his death. Though he was unable to do any work for more than a year before he died, his name remained on the pay roll of the company, his work being done by other members of the family.

Soon after he united with the Methodist Church he was made a steward, and remained one up to three months before his death, and most of this time he was recording steward. At the time he resigned, his youngest son, John, was made steward in his father's place. Brother Scott's life was an open book, known and read of men, and the kind of life he lived is shown by the fact that all the family are worthy and valued members of the Church.

It was my privilege to be associated with Brother Scott for more than two years, visiting him often and talking to him on the matter of his preparedness for the other life, and he was ready to go. A short while before he went, he stated to the pastor and the family that he was ready. "Not one cloud is between me and the Father," he said.

Brother Scott loved his family, his neighbors, and his Church, and he was prepared for the summons. On the 7th of March, at about 5 p. m., surrounded by all his family, the spirit of this good man went up to God, and the next day his funeral was held in his church at Fernwood, and we laid his body to rest in the cemetery at Magnolia to remain till the sound of the trumpet that shall call him to come forth.

His stepson, Brother Carter, pastor of our church at McGee, writes this to me about his stepfather: "He took the place of a father with me. He tried to bring up his children right, always giving the best advice possible. He helped me a great deal and made it possible for me to be where I am today, for which I shall never forget him. I had known him for 34 years, and for the past 15 or 16 years he has lived close to God. He wrote me some time ago that the time of his departure was near, that he was only awaiting the summons to come up higher, that the way was clear, that his soul was happy, and that he would soon be with Jesus. He loved to take part in all religious services, loved God, read his Bible, and was much in prayer."

This from Brother Carter's letter speaks for itself and means more than all I could say. The life of this good man will live still in the lives of his family. I am glad I knew him.

His pastor, W. H. SAUNDERS.

CONTINENTAL CAPACITY CONTINENTAL

is measured by the CAPACITY of his plant—what it will do in a day's run. Whether you gin forty bales in ten hours or fifty bales in the same time, the cost of operation of your plant is the same. Increase your output twenty-five per cent. and your profit is increased two-fold.

It is a fact, proved every ginning day in the year, that a Continental Plant, operating under the same conditions, will turn out MORE COTTON in a day than a plant of any other make.

AFTER SIX YEARS OF SUFFERING

Woman Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Columbus, Ohio.—"I had almost given up. I had been sick for six years with female troubles and nervousness. I had a pain in my right side and could not eat anything without hurting my stomach. I could not drink cold water at all nor eat any kind of raw fruit, nor fresh meat nor chicken. From 178 pounds I went to 118 and would get so weak at times that I fell over. I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and ten days later I could eat and it did not hurt my stomach. I have taken the medicine ever since and I feel like a new woman. I now weigh 127 pounds so you can see what it has done for me already. My husband says he knows your medicine has saved my life."—Mrs. J. S. BARLOW, 1624 South 4th St., Columbus, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains just the virtues of roots and herbs needed to restore health and strength to the weakened organs of the body. That is why Mrs. Barlow, a chronic invalid, recovered so completely.

It pays for women suffering from any female ailments to insist upon having Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Field Sec'y.

I am informed that Rev. W. W. Perry, of the Boyce Circuit, assisted by Mr. W. W. Williams of Alexandria, made addresses on the Sunday school work at Hemphill and Eden, two places on the work that were without Sunday schools, and it was planned to organize a Methodist Sunday school at Hemphill on Easter Sunday, Brother J. H. Morse of that place being appointed Superintendent. The organization of a school at Eden was discussed and it is hoped that very shortly a suitable man can be found who will agree to lead the work.

Rev. R. S. Walton, of Bunkie, 'phoned Alexandria and had Mr. Richard Coorpender to come down and make an address on the Sunday school work there.

Rev. J. W. Faulk, of Glenmora, has planned to make an address at Long Leaf on "The Efficient Sunday School" this week.

Rev. L. E. Crooks, of Pollock, is planning to make a trip out to Slash Bayou, near Holloway, La., and speak on Sunday school work.

The Sunday school at Boyce has been planning a splendid Easter service and is hopeful of having 150 people in attendance.

The Sunday school of First Church, Alexandria, is conducting a very efficient visitation campaign for the purpose of organizing a Home Department. The attendance at this school has increased largely during the present year, and, with Rev. Mr. Coleman in charge as pastor, even greater things are expected.

The Sunday school at Tioga, La., is said to be more efficient and has a larger attendance than in several years. Mr. J. B. Gillis has been doing splendid work with the Bible Class and the people seem delighted with the work of their pastor, Rev. H. B. Vandenburg. Some are planning to organize a mission school out some distance from Tioga.

The Sunday school sentiment seems to be greater in Louisiana at this time than ever before, and we feel that the Lord is graciously answering our prayers.

The Committee on Sunday schools at the New Orleans District Conference made the following report, for this year: New Sunday schools, 1; new pupils, 387; organized classes, 84; pledged for China mission, $620; 8 Sunday schools are giving to the China special; 3 will study missionary literature for China Special for one quarter; 5 of the schools are up to the standard of efficiency; 4 others grade 90 per cent; 4 new schools are recommended.

Rayne Memorial has adopted the duplex envelope system in the Sunday school and reports 100 per cent increase in finances as a result. Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of Louisiana Avenue reports that 90 per cent of his Sunday school remain for the preaching service. The New Orleans District Sunday School Union will meet at Carrollton Avenue Church on Tuesday, May 2.

Among the many good things resulting from the recent series of institutes held by Brothers Deitrich and Coleman, together with local workers throughout the district, 174 volumes of books on Sunday school work and methods were placed in the hands of our officers and teachers. The distribution of these books will inevitably bring good to our Church.

NORTH MSISISSIPPI NQTES.

R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary,
Sardis, Miss.

Are you getting ready to observe Children's Day in every church?

The Memphis Conference has no blanks in its reports—North Mississippi is well able to match this great Conference to the north of us.

The secret of this wonderful showing is, one man had determined in his heart that this thing shall be done. Multiplied thousands are made better because this work is done. God help us to do as well or even more!

Remember to forward, as the law of the Church directs, the entire amount of Children's Day offering to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss.

Every dollar of this money is invested in the home field for the extension of Sunday school work and for the religious education of all our people.

Although our church building at Moorhead was destroyed by fire, the plucky pastor and people observed Children's Day with marked success, the liberal offering was forwarded to the Treasurer, and they are moving right along with other work.

The reports from the pastors of the Winona District show that Brother Lipscomb and all men are looking after the religious education of the people and everything else pertaining to the building of the Kingdom of our Lord.

Mr. Dietrich and I look to the preachers and superintendents of the elght counties where Sunday School Institutes are to be held during May to advertise these meetings and bring out a large number of officers and teachers to the place nearest them. The institutes held in February were successful, the weather is more favorable now, and the attendance ought to be much larger. The County Institute is the quickest and best way we know of to reach all our workers.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT NOTES.

Rev. H. S. Westbrook and family bave moved into their new parsonage at Seventh Avenue. Presiding Elder Leggett bas had the responsibility of bringing the enterprise to a successful completion. Brother Hilary has performed nine marriage ceremonies and has received 28 into the Church so far this year.

Revival fires are burning on our district altars. Rev. Dan Kelly is putting the host of sin to flight at Scooba; and the Fifth Street, Meridian, revival is growing in interest and power. Rev. Wiley J. Ferguson is giving the enemy no quarters. His sermons are clear, forceful, and fearless presentations of Gospel truth.

The Epworth League flying squadron, under the direction of W. D. Hawkins, and led by Mr. Tom Peebles and Rev. Earl Howell, visited Enterprise recently, and succeeded in organizing a most promising senior Epworth League. The pastor, Brother Corley, is planning and working preparatory to his revivals. His meeting at Enterprise will begin on May 12. Rev. J. Loyd Decell of Waynesboro is to assist him.

Mr. B. J. Nelson, a prominent citizen of Meridian, and the president of the official board of our Fifth Street Church, and Miss Viola Gilbert, a most highly esteemed lady who is the teacher of tbe "Delta Alta" class in the Sunday school of the same church, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's aunt last Monday evening. Their pastor, Rev. H. A. Gatlin, performed the ceremony. "Nuntius" wishes them great happiness in their new venture.

Under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., witb Rev. H. P. Coor as secretary, Judge Richard F. Reed of Natchez, Miss., delivered a strong address in Meridian on the fourth Sunday in April. His theme was "Steadfastness." With the processes of a legally trained mind he proved to his audience that "steadfastness in religion" was the need of the hour. Rev. Andrew Sledd, D. D., of Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., is to deliver an address under the same auspices in the near future.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

To the presiding elders, pastors, and Epworth Leaguers of the Mississippi Conference Epworth League:

The Mississippi Conference Epworth League will convene in Biloxi on the evening of June 8, and remain in session through June 11. We are very anxious to make this the best Conference we have had, and with this in view will ask for your active co-operation. We should like to have as many of our presiding elders and pastors present as possible, and would like to have every Epworth League in the Conference represented. As a pastor, if you have not an Epworth League, we would like for you to send one or more of your choicest young people from each church to the Conference, that they may receive inspiration and help that will be profitable to them.

Our program is now being arranged with the thought in mind to make it very helpful to all who attend.

The general theme for the meeting will be "Young People in Relation to the Kingdom of God."

We have asked the following out-of-State speakers to be with us: Dr. H. M. DuBose, Nashville, Tenn.; Bishop J. H. McCoy, Birmingham, Ala.; T. C. Chao, of China, and the Rev. Mr. Powell, of Cloverport, Ky.

Rev. J. L. Neill will have charge of the devotional period preceding each session, and we expect to have a sunrise prayer meeting each morning.

Biloxi not only agrees to provide free entertainment for all who go, but also to give us a boat ride on the Gulf and to royally entertain us. More definite information will be furnished later as to the program.

In conclusion, allow me to appeal to your interest in the young life of our Church, by asking you to see that your young people attend this meeting.

Faithfully yours in the work,
W. D. HAWKINS, President
Miss. Conf. Epworth League.

HAVE GOOD HEALTH

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Old Reliable Spring Tonic.

Don't let the idea that you may feel better in a day or two prevent you from getting a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla today from any drug store and starting at once on the road to health and strength.

When your blood is impure and impoverished it lacks vitality, your digestion is imperfect, your appetite is poor, and all the functions of your body are impaired.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful blood tonic. It will build you up quicker than any other medicine. It gives strength to do and power to endure. It is the old standard tried and true all-the-year-round blood purifier and enricher, tonic and appetizer. Nothing else acts like it, for nothing else has the same formula or ingredients. Be sure to ask for Hood's; insist on having it.

Dr. Osler on Tuberculosis

Sir William Osler, Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford, says in his "Practice of Medicine" (1892), on page 249: "The healing of pulmonary tuberculosis is shown clinically by the recovery of patients in whose sputa elastic tissue and bacilli have been found. * In the granulation products and associated pneumonia a scar tissue is formed, while the smaller caseous areas become impregnated with lime salts. To such conditions alone should the term healing be applied."

The success of Eckman's Alterative in tuberculosis may be due partly to its content of a lime salt in such combination with other valuable ingredients as to be easily assimilated.

It is worth a trial, unless other treatment already is succeeding. We make no promises concerning it any more than do reputable physicians with their prescriptions, but since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, it is safe. Price $1 and $2 per bottle. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct from the Laboratory. We would like to send you a booklet containing information of value and references.

THINKS IT MAY BE DONE.

Dear Dr. Meek: In the Advocate of April 20, I notice an article by Brother T. L. Bryson, who does not agree with Brother J. H. Felts in commending the preacher who completed the Second Year Course with the Correspondence School in one month. It seems to be Brother Bryson's opinion that the work cannot be properly accomplished in so short a time: that to do so, defeats the purpose of the course and the aim of the Correspondence School, and that Brother Felts is doing an injury to the member of the class referred to, and to all who might be influenced by his example, by commending him.

Can the work be properly and profitably accomplished in one month? I submit that it depends largely upon the previous training and ability of the student. It goes without question that a man whose mind has been fortified and disciplined by many years of study in "theology, Bible history, and sermons" might, by studying and writing ten or more hours every day, not only read the six books of the course, but so digest their contents as to be able to write a creditable examination on every lesson.

Now, if the studeut has actually mastered the contents of the course and his papers show that his work has been thorough, why has he "defeated the purpose of the course and the aim of the Correspondence School?" Why should not that month of downright, hard, honest study be profitable?

I fail to see wherein he has "set a bad example;" nor do I understand why he should be required to take the work in thin, lingering slices just to make it last a year if he is able to devour it in large chunks and digest it all in four weeks. Intellectual indigestion, produced by excessive study, is not so common or so dangerous as mental starvation resulting from a want of study.

A majority may find it either impossible or impracticable to complete a year's course in one month; still I do not see why it should be considered a crime to do so if possible.

Wheeler, Miss. W. T. BAZZEL.

JACKSON DISTRICT NOTES.

Rev. J. F. Campbell, on the Benton charge, is raising money for some needed repairs on the parsonage. His charge is making an honorable record in ministerial support, having paid up to date at the second quarterly conference. Campbell also owns a Ford.

Rev. T. H. King, on the Terry charge, is enterprising some improvements on two of his churches.

Rankin Street, Jackson, under the leadership of Rev. J. S. Duke, has either paid or pledged all Conference collections for the year.

Pelahatchie Methodism has progressed towards the organization of an Epworth League.

Rev. A. S. Oliver, of the Eden charge, is the first preacher of the district to report collected and paid all the assessments for Conference claimants.

Some results of evangelistic services held recently at Galloway Memorial and Capitol Street are revived condition of the membership and about 24 additions to the Methodist Church.

Rev. M. M. Black and family, who had been living in a rented house since the burning of the parsonage at Canton last year, are now in the new parsonage.

Nine of the preachers in the Jackson District own cars, and find them wonderfully helpful in serving the Church. Rev. G. G. Yeager, of the Fannin charge, gets over his work on a motorcycle. Before Yeager learned how to control his conveyance, it ran away with him once, throwing him against a bank and bruising him up considerably.

Rev. M. F. Adams, of the Flora charge, is holding his revivals early in the year. He is now engaged in his second one at Bentonia, with J. V. Bennett helping.

Rev. W. M. Sullivan, at Yazoo City, will begin a revival season in his church May 14, with Brother J. A. Bowen to lead in preaching, and the Lewis Brothers' Quartet to conduct the singing. ISOM.

THE BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Brookhaven District Conference convened in annual session in the town of Summitt, Miss., on Tuesday, April 18, 1916, at 2:30 p. m., with Dr. I. W. Cooper, the newly appointed presiding elder, in the chair. Rev. B. F. Lewis was elected secretary, and Rev. J. L. Smith, assistant secretary. Seventy-eight members of the Conference answered to their names, or were present during the session. The Conference was delighted to have present Prof. J. M. Sullivan, representing Millsaps College; Prof. G. L. Harrell, Conference Lay Leader; Rev. J. L. Neill, Field Secretary of the Board of Missions and Sunday School Board; W. A. Chisolm, one of the field workers of the State Sunday School Association, and Rev. H. M. Ellis, Field Agent, Methodist Hospital in Memphis. Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor of Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, and Dr. H. W. Featherstun, of Port Gibson, were also with us, together with the pastors of the Baptist churches in and around Summit.

Reports for the various charges showed an improvement over last year. In some instances marked advancement has been made. Most of the committee reports showed that thought had been given the subjects discussed, and several valuable suggestions were made. Especially was this true when the Committee on Temperance submitted its report, which by the way was written by a layman and offered among others the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Resolved, 2. Since no preacher can enter the Conference who uses tobacco, that we pray for those who are in the ministry who do use the filthy stuff in any form, whether it be chewing, dipping, snuffing, drawing or puffing, that God may give them grace and strength to quit such a habit that is unworthy of imitation, and discreditable to the ministry."

The hospitality of Summit was unstinted. On Wednesday afternoon an "auto" ride was given the delegates "around the belt," a trip twelve or fourteen miles long, over some of the best graveled roads in the State.

A resolution of appreciation of the faithful administration of the retiring presiding eider, Rev. Robt. Selby, was ordered printed in the Advocate.

The next session of the Conference goes to Crystal Springs. Two young men were licensed to preach: Cato Younger Higginbotham, of Meadville, and William Herbert Saxon, of Bayou Chitto.

The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: W. D. Davis, P. H. Enochs, B. F. Goza, and J. S. Decell, with T. W. Sullivan and J. S. Sexton as alternates.

B. F. LEWIS, Secretary.

Calomel Seldom Sold Here Now

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist—has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel to-day and to-morrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

EASTER CELEBRATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: Did we? I should say we did. Did what? Why, Mr. Editor, Columbia's M. E. Church, South, had the grandest Easter celebration that her people have ever witnessed, or ever will. No, I take back "ever will," because it is to be hoped that the pleasure will be given us to assist on many such occasions.

Instead of the regular night service, we had the gospel sung to us. An Easter cantata was rendered by a choir of forty voices. It is significant that the choir, en rapport with the gospel sung, was "universal," as our Presbyterian friends had loaned us their best singers, which, with a Catholic young lady, two Baptists, noncommunicants, and Methodists, made up the choir; and even Mr. Elsman, one of our Jewish friends, a young merchant of our town, played a violin solo as the offertory.

The complete success, and it was a huge one, was due to the leadership of Mr. G. P. Evans, who was in charge of the choir, and who for the last two months had drilled the singers and brought them to such wonderful perfection. All of the choruses of the cantata were harmoniously sung, and the "pianissimo" and "forte" were rendered effectively.

Mr. Evans is a man of small stature, but his brains are indeed musically wired; therefore, he has power which he knows how to communicate to others. Any town might well be proud to possess such a music leader; besides, he is a vocalist of no mean merit. All the participants acquitted themselves in such a manner that everyone of them should be entitled to unstinted praise.

We had solos, trios, double quatuors; all were musical beauties, and were rendered by Mesdames Austin, Drummond, Ford, McCoy, Ratliff, Switzenberg, Trascher, White; Misses McKinley, Redding; and Messrs. Carpenter, Evans, Huntley (the Doctor, himself) Lenoir, Morgan. The accompanists were Miss Walton and Mrs. Colbert, both perfect, but Miss Walton is entitled to be classed as a virtuoso-accompanist.

Dr. W. H. Huntley, our pastor, opened the celebration with prayer and closed with the benediction. An immense congregation filled our vast edifice, and this occasion will be long remembered.

In closing, I wish to say, Mr. Editor, that we have immensely enjoyed your two editorials on "amusements," and are eager for some more. Get a sharp axe, attack the tree, and let the chips fall where they will.

Columbia, Miss. A METHODIST.

AS BROTHER GEARHEARD SEES IT.

Dear Dr. Meek: I am in a pickle, figuratively speaking. In the same mail came the New Orleans Christian Advocate containing an article from Bishop Hoss in which he says of Bishop Neely's new book, "American Methodism," that "it is the limit," and a circular from our Publishing House advertising the same book to be "a standard, authoritative book of reference on the subject which it treats." How can we poor Methodist preachers know what to buy? We young fellows who didn't "fit, bled and died" in the war, are face to face with the fact that there are two great Methodist Churches in America teaching the same doctrines. What do we care about their separation now? We can read histories just as well as Bishop Neely or any other man. None of these Bishops were there when the separation came about, and if they and others will just quit sweeping ancient book-shelf dust in the eyes of present day leaders, perhaps we can get where we belong—into one solid phalanx of united Methodism.

A. J. GEARHEARD.

HELD TO BE CONSTITUTIONAL.

Judge H. C. Niles, of the United States Circuit Court, at his home in Kosciusko late yesterday, April 25, handed down an opinion upholding the constitutionality of the one quart every two weeks liquor law passed at the recent session of the Mississippi Legislature.

The court held that the Legislature had the right to regulate shipments of liquor into the State under the Webb-Kenyon act.

This law, known as the Weakley law, provides that shipments of liquor into the State cannot exceed one quart of whiskey every two weeks, or twenty-four pints of beer during the same length of time, but that the two shipments cannot go to the same party. The law went into effect on April 16 and immediately a liquor association got out a writ of injunction seeking to prevent railroad and express companies from refusing to accept shipments of larger quantities, claiming that it was an interference with the interstate commerce law. Judge Niles' decision denies that contention and upholds the right of the Legislature to place limitations upon the amount and frequency of shipments.—Jackson (Miss.) Daily News.

SACRED TO THE MEMORY OF MRS. REBECCA ANDERSON.

There is a beautiful City whose Builder and Maker is God, and Jesus told us that He was going to prepare us a mansion not made with hands eternal in the heavens. This mother in Israel, whose Christian life was an inspiration to all who knew her, has put off mortality and clothed with immortality, gone to inherit the mansion prepared for the faithful. On July 27, 1915, the summons came and found her watching and waiting. She would have been 89 years old the first day of September, and had been a soul-winner for Jesus over 70 years. All who passed her way heard of a Savior who was mighty to save, and keep that which was laid upon the altar. If it were possible to blend two characters in one, she really and truly served like Martha and sat at Jesus feet like Mary, imbibing the spirituality of her Savior. Her home was in Claiborne Parish for more than 45 years, having moved from Alabama about 1868 to Louisiana, where she reared a family of six children, three of whom survive—Mr. W. W. Anderson, of Franklin, La., and Mr. J. M. Anderson and Mrs. John Algood, of Summerfield. She never turned a beggar away from her door; she nursed the sick, and her home was the preachers' home. She was a devout member of the Methodist Protestant Church, but her experience in the Christian faith was so rich, that there was no room for prejudice, and her heart was full of charity for all humanity. In early childhood she was our nearest neighbor, and because we felt under so many obligations to her, we could look back and see her noble, self-sacrificing life. I decided to make her a visit last year, just one year before her death. It was a kind Providence that permitted this wonderful privilege of having her take my hand and say, "I'm ready to go, my passport is sealed, my name is in the Lamb's book of life." She praised God that she had lived to see her children and grandchildren serving the Lord, but when we parted she said, "If we don't meet in this world any more, I'll meet you over there." So, when she died, the message came saying, "Ma is gone; she died as she had lived, full of faith; but we are so lonely without her." Earth seems nearer heaven since she went away, and we can feel the sweet assurance of that beautiful promise, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

HIGH PRAISE FOR METHODISM.

In his address to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church last week, Dr. H. B. Workman, Principal of Westminster College, London, the fraternal messenger from the British Wesleyan Church, said: "One of the greatest of all your scholars, not of the Methodist Church, a man whose father came over with the Mayflower, whose name is known throughout the English-speaking world, said to me the other day in New York, 'Methodism has done more for this continent than all the other Churches put together.'"

This is a large claim, and, coming from an outside source, is quite remarkable. Whether it is correct we will not undertake to say. But certain it is that Methodism has played a great part in the upbuilding of the mighty civilizaton that exists in this western world.

But what of the future? That, in our opinion, depends upon what Methodism shall stand for in the coming years. The Methodism that wrought such mighty achievements in the past was a simple Methodism, measurably free from empty form and ceremony, with an unshaken belief in the Holy Scriptures, and the power of God upon her. If she should undergo a change, don the habiliments of formalism, become weakened in faith, and grow to be less self-denying and prayerful, and get to be less in touch with God, will not her glory depart from her, and will she not stand, like Samson, stripped of her strength and impotent to cope with the evil forces with which she should grapple? Have not the conditions of spiritual power, in their essential elements, been the same in all the ages, and will they not forever so remain?

Mere outward methods may change somewhat, frequently no doubt for the better; but what can take the place of penitence, of self-renunciation, of simple faith in Christ, of the new birth, of fasting and prayer, of the baptism of the Divine Spirit, and of true holiness of heart and life? Are these things pertaining to human salvation and the Kingdom of our Lord waning or increasing among us? This is a question that we would do well to consider observantly and honestly before God.

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."

AN ADMIRABLE ADDRESS.

We have read with much interest the address of Dr. E. B. Chappell, the fraternal messenger of our Church, before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now in session at Saratoga Springs, N. Y. Dr. Chappell spoke on "The Common Task of American Methodism," pointing out its several important phases, and stressing the thought that the obligation to contribute to its successful performance rests alike upon all the branches of Wesleyanism in the United States. After adverting to the direful condition of things in Europe in a very impressive manner, it was shown that the situation in our own country is such that it calls earnestly for apostolic fidelity and heroic action upon the part of the Christian Church. But, while frankly recognizing the gravity of the problems now confronting us, there was no note of pessimism in anything that was said.

As a remedy for our menacing ills, three things were specifically suggested:

1. Such a spiritual evangelism as will give men a conscious knowledge of personal salvation, thus awakening within them a faith that nothing can shake and making them witnessing disciples for Jesus. It was held that this was the work that Methodism performed in England in the eighteenth century—a work that overcame the prevailing skepticism, worldliness, and wickedness when all else had failed—and that "American Methodism in the twentieth century is called upon to repeat that marvelous miracle."

2. A larger and more effective expression of the Christian spirit in the reformation and betterment of society. We quote from the speaker's discussion of this obligation the following brief statement: "The Church must send her converts back to the world not only aflame with social passion, but also with an adequate appreciation of what social duty requires. She must send them forth definitely and enthusiastically committed to the purpose of working together for the abolition of the saloon, of city slums, of helpless ignorance, of hopeless poverty, of economic injustice, of political oppression, and of international suspicion and hatred, and for the bringing in of the reign of righteousness and peace and world-wide co-operation in the one great human task of making godlike men and women."

3. The right training of youth in Christian homes, in our Sunday schools, and in truly Christian educational institutions. The necessity of this was set forth in a most illuminating and convincing manner. The following paragraph is well worth noting: "You have perhaps heard that the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, during recent years has had some trouble about the right to control certain of her higher educational institutions. The report has been circulated that it was a conflict between medievalism and the spirit of the twentieth century. But those who understand the situation know how utterly false this representation is. Instead of a battle for the revival of medievalism, it has been a battle for modernism in one of its most vital forms. We do not want to control our schools in the interest of narrow sectarianism, but solely in the interest of vital catholic Christianity. We feel that we must have schools of religious leadership, and we do not mean to have our purposes thwarted by boards of trust who may yield to the temptation to sacrifice their spiritual birthright for the sake of larger endowments. We are determined that our schools shall not fall under the influence, much less under the dominance, of corporations which owe their foundation to some of the most sinister agencies in our modern life."

Dr. Chappell's reference to the union of Methodism was brief and in exceedingly good taste. He touched upon the benefits of co-operation, and stated that as the plan passed upon by the legislative assembly of our Church was in the hands of the Northern General Conference, it would be indelicate for him to discuss the question as to how the two great Episcopal Methodisms should be related to one another.

Altogether, it may be said that Dr. Chappell acquitted himself as our representative in a manner that was most creditable. There was in his speech no straining after effect, no "playing to the galleries;" but it was throughout a dignified, modest, scholarly utterance, expressed in choice and vigorous English, and evincing a clear insight into the status of things and a comprehensive grasp of the great issues that are now before the Church of Christ. As a fraternal message it must be accorded high rank.

Southern Methodism owes Dr. Chappell a debt of gratitude for the distinguished service which he has rendered with so much propriety and ability.

THE SUCCESSION THAT COUNTS.

Referring to Francis Asbury in his felicitous fraternal address to the General Conference of our Sister Church on Tuesday evening, May 2, Dr. Workman, of England, related the following pointed story, which forcibly illustrates an important truth:

"I do not know whether anecdotes are permitted in this august body, but may I be greatly daring and tell you one? It is a tale of one of my honored predecessors, Dr. Watkinson. When he was a young man he went down to Lancaster, and there was asked, along with a vicar, to speak at a Bible Society meeting. The vicar spoke on the advantages of having a Church of Apostolic descent to interpret the Holy Book. Dr. Watkinson followed. He said:

"'Mr. Chairman, my host at dinner gave me a fowl and said, Mr. Watkinson, do you see that fowl? It has come down in succession from the cock that crew when Peter denied his Lord. And I replied, What! You kill a fowl with a descent like that? Yes, he said, it didn't lay, and so we killed it.'

"The test of Apostolic descent is the power to produce children, men and women of God. And surely, tested by that, no man can be more truly said to have been in the Apostolic succession than Francis Asbury."

This is the only "succession" that any Christian minister needs to concern himself about being in.

We talk of men's reaching through nature up to nature's God. It is nothing to the way in which they reach through manhood up to manhood's God, and learn the Divine love by the human.—Phillips Brooks.

THE ACCEPTED TIME

I will not wait. I press
To grasp the hand
Of Him who long has stood outside the door
To lead me home.

I will not wait. I press
The call to hear
And make reply, while listening to the voice
Of Him my soul loves.

Lest wait a little while—
Time hastens on
And in my chamber I cannot delay
Till eve is gone.

HE WILL KEEP THEE

He will keep thee in the night of the eye
He will keep thee in the day, and not thee only, but others through thee.
He will keep thee in the midst of the world.
He will keep thee from all evil.
He will keep thee from the evil one in the world.
He will keep thee from falling.
He will keep thee from the hour of temptation.
He will keep thee in all places whither thou goest.
He will keep thee in the way, and bring thee into the place which he has prepared.
He will keep that which thou hast committed to Him.—Annie Wittenmyer Address.

A FIVE-HUNDRED-DOLLAR EDITOR.

A Chinese boy in Singapore has attracted to be valedictorian of his graduating class at the university of Hong Kong. He is the first Chinese to win a scholarship at Hong Kong and the first to be graduated from the University. One of the conditions was "The winner must be a Christian." To a boy whose father's displeasure in case baptism was very great, he refused and there before the altar for baptism at the appointed time. A friend, a Confucianist, said next to him in the university, but was so impressed that he refused the scholarship saying, "I Confucianist is worth so much to my country, it can be worth so less to me. I will be a Christian." He also was baptized.—Christian Observer.

SABBATH REST IMPERATIVE.

The Republican Club of New York City recently discussed the question. Is one rest day in seven necessary for safeguarding the economic, moral, and spiritual welfare of the people? and the outcome was a unanimous agreement in the affirmative. Jacob Aaron H. Parker, formerly Democratic candidate for President, was invited on what stands to be present and the following statement: "Your patriotism demands of you that by prayer and example you do all you may to save that great institution, the American Sabbath. In performing that duty to your God and your fellow countrymen, you will insure also great good to yourself and your property because of the benefit you will physically derive from a decent observance of the day of rest."—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

THE SUNDAY NEWSPAPER.

A contemporary mentions some of the "things we learn in the Sunday paper" as follows: How to cure a rattlesnake. How to tell when death is approaching. How to take a sunbath. How to breed maggots. How to make your ears beautiful. How to wind a watch by electricity. How to make portiers from leather scraps. What to do when you smell gas. All very well, but what a comment on the kind of stuff that they are fed on whose mental culture and moral training are at the mercy of the average Sunday paper! A needless yet powerful foe of the Christian Sabbath, spiritual worship,

THE MOVING PICTURE SHOW.

By Mr. James H. Walker.

For the last ten years I have often wondered where and what was the cause of our Church institutions having such a hard time to secure funds to carry on the work they are intended to do. After reading what William Milburn Dye, B. D., had to say about the Moving Picture Shows, I have about decided that it is one of the obstacles that are in the way. Whatever contributes to real science, art, literature, or morals, to the refinement and the piety of society, and the general betterment of the community, city, State, and Nation, should receive the encouragement of all good people, so far as their time, means, and influence will permit. On the other hand, whatever tends to destroy these chief elements in humanity's highest attainments, as above indicated, should be first corrected, and then, by the proper authorities, encouraged, governed and supported by all who have the highest interest of humanity at heart to the extent of their ability.

I have no disposition to indiscriminately antagonize the moving picture show because of its present day misuse. It, like many other great and useful inventions, has unfortunately fallen into many bad hands, but this is not a sufficient reason for discarding any morally legitimate business, and deprive the world of one among its greatest 20th century inventions, which has in it many great possibilities for usefulness.

It is stated, there are over ten thousand moving picture shows in the United States alone, but this is not merely an American craze—its extent is now world-wide. The capital invested in the business is said to be $60,000,000. There are more than 20,000 feet of new films made daily. Mr. Edison's royalty on this is said to be $116,000 per year, and the middle men or "exchanges" pay the manufacturers $9,000,000 annually for films, which these "exchanges" rent to the show men for about $18,000,000 annually. They, in turn, collected in the year 1909, in nickels and dimes, from these 10,000 shows $57,500,000. The daily attendance numbered more than two and a quarter millions of children and adults. It is stated that enough people attend the picture shows to make an army of 11 persons deep, standing two feet apart, to encircle the earth at the equator. As to the expenditures for attendance upon shows, let us note some of the things that this money would do. First, let us send 2000 missionaries and teachers to the countries which need the gospel at a salary of $1000 for ten years, using for this purpose $20,000,000. This would leave us $37,000,000. Suppose with some of the remainder, we should build 3000 churches at $10,000 each, to be used for public worship on the Sabbath, and for educational purposes during the week days. Subtracting this $30,000,000 used for church and educational buildings, we should have left $7,500,000. This we might invest as an endowment fund, at 6 per cent interest, and it would yield $450,000 annually. This would enable us to gather up 10,000 orphan children and give toward their board, clothes and instruction for ten years $45 each, thus aiding in turning them out equipped to some extent to assist in civilizing and evangelizing the world, and we could then collect 10,000 more waifs from the streets and alleys and slums of all countries of the world for another ten years; then turn them loose with the first company, and just keep repeating this until all the nations shall know of Jesus Christ, and we would still have the $7,500,000 endowment. All this could be done with the receipts of the moving picture show business for one year, contributed in nickels and dimes, largely by the poor people of the United States, the rich going mostly to the theaters. Is not this sum out of all due proportion to the good that is now being done by the "movies?"

But some one may retort, "Whose business is it?" The wisdom of the answer depends upon circumstances. Let me give you a concrete illustration, coming under my personal observation a few years past. A family lived near me, some of the bread-winners of which worked in a sawmill, getting $1.25 per day. There were four in the family, with house rent and doctor's bill to pay, and they made a practice of patronizing the picture show. The time came when death overtook the man of the home, and positively he did not have a change of clothes. Charity came forward and provided for his clothes and burial. This family said as others do: "It is nobody's business how we spend our money." Ah, is that so? We reply, "legally, yes, but morally, no." Was it "nobody's business" how this man spent one-fourth of his legitimate wages? Is it nobody's business to afflict a whole community with the injudicious squandering of one's means at the expense of the entire community, when it could be easily avoided? What do you think? We hold that every one who does such a thing as this, sins against society as well as against his own dependent posterity.

Let us look at the intellectual and moral influence of this institution as it appears to-day—not as it necessarily is, but as it positively now exists—and it would continue to grow worse were it not for the moral arm of the law, influenced by the awakened conscience of an offended people. There are said to be 700,000,000 persons, one-half of whom are children and youths, going annually to these exhibitions, and they are being more or less contaminated by the larger percentage of these shows. It is fair to say, that as a whole, they are not all bad; nor are they by any means all good.

Truant officers, juvenile judges, and societies for the prevention of cruelty to children give some appalling accounts of the influence of the moving picture shows. During the eleven months ending November 1, 1911, in New York City, there were 40 convictions, with 32 offenders sentenced to State prison for crimes traceable directly or indirectly to the moving picture shows. Juvenile Judge Nash of the city of Buffalo said in 1911 that if the laws of that city were enforced, 75 per cent of the picture shows would be put out of business.

Our plea is for their reformation, not their extermination. Moving pictures might be highly innocent, extremely interesting, and instructive and morally elevating to both children and adults. Suppose the pictures were all high-class scenes dealing with historical, scientific, artistic, religious matters—what might they not accomplish? They could be made contributory to the highest good of all humanity, instead of exercising an immoral and damning influence. Let every honorable and righteous effort possible be put forth to eliminate from this widespread agency the unwholesome things which are defiling childhood, defaming girlhood, demoralizing manhood, bereaving homes, and breaking the hearts of parents. Let us cry aloud, and spare not, until the last improper film shall ascend in the smoke of its own destruction. The devil has waylaid, held up, and robbed society of this rightful possession, and has so perverted the use of the moving picture business that Christians cannot witness most of its exhibits without doing violence to their consciences and offending their Christ. It is not only our privilege, but our Christian duty, to raise the voice of protest and put forth a determined effort to rescue this great agency from the domination of evil and turn it to account for good.

Pollock, La.

MRS. EMILY B. KITTLE.

Mrs. Emily B. Kittle, whose maiden name was Emily Broadnax Barton, was the daughter of Rev. W. P. Barton and was born in Woodville, Miss., on April 23, 1854. She was baptized in infancy by Rev. William Winans and professed religion and joined the Church when a small child at old Sweet Water Church, near Black Hawk, Miss.

She was the eldest of a family of nine and early in life assumed responsibilities in helping her mother and the younger brothers and sisters.

On November 2, 1876, she was married to L. H. Kittle at Durant, Miss. She was the mother of eight children, four sons and four daughters. In 1885 she came with her husband and family to Evansville, Miss., where she made her home. Her husband died on Jan. 16, 1893. With her wonderful tact and religious knowledge and zeal, she reared all her children to be noble and strong Christian men and women. Three of the girls are graduates of Grenada College and have taken high rank among educators, one of them being a teacher in the High School of Memphis for 12 or 15 years.

The first year of the writer's ministry was spent in her home. Truly, this home was a heaven on earth. There was never a discord. Love reigned supreme there. The country would indeed be better off if every one, as she did, possessed the genius for home-making. Her ideal of keeping a home for her children and her sacrifices to that end, her untiring energy, her ability to accomplish the results she planned and her keen ability to divine the absolute truth, her readiness to give herself, the very best of herself, whenever and wherever she felt she was needed, was truly remarkable. She always found time to read and talk and drill in manners and morals and constantly hold up before her children the ideals by which they were to shape their lives. This she did in a newly settled country, in which there were practically no standards, holding before them the highest standards and at the same time making home the most attractive place on earth.

Surely it was a great blessing to fall under such influence and into such hands as these the first year of one's itinerancy, having her to become really a mother to one just beginning in this great ministry. And truly it was a sad going when called to conduct the last service we could render to one so noble and gentle and great. Yet we all realized fully, in spite of our great sorrow, that she had just slipped away quietly and gone home to heaven; and one of the most consoling thoughts of all was of that reunion which took place on her arrival, and to know, too, of a certainty, that the others are moving in the same path to the same place.

It is a fact that many of the noblest of God's people see only the meager aspect of their circumstances, and that they live and die without having felt the intrinsic and the relative greatness of what they were and of what they did. We so often look chiefly at the social and material measure of an act which is the accident. Christ looks at that which is of the essence. How fitting, therefore, to have read at this time Matt. 25:40: "And the King shall answer and say unto them," etc. There are many men and women who do great deeds, speak great words, and suffer noble sorrows, the greater part of which will never be known till that hour when many that are great shall be small and many that are small great. The fierce light of the last day will reveal these hidden things and picture them in large characters on the great white throne. What patience it takes to play the small parts, and what strength to sustain them uncomplainingly! We perform nameless acts of kindness, forbearance and equity. These have a self-propagating power and go on reproducing themselves in an endless harvest.

Miss Mary Duval, in conversation regarding this splendid family, said: "You see, I knew her father, Rev. W. P. Barton, and to have known him as I did was in itself a liberal education. I did not know Mrs. Kittle personally, but knew her sister, Mrs. Freeman, and taught her daughter, Elizabeth, at Grenada, where I met also her brother, Dr. Barton; and she (Mrs. Kittle) was evidently in perfect accord with the traditions and practices of the Barton family. By all the memories of the past, by these lives of the children and grandchildren, by the solid, enduring, unobtrusive works he did, the noble Rev. W. P. Barton, being dead, yet speaketh."

We must say: "Truly to have known Mrs. Kittle was to love and appreciate her beyond what we can express in words. At that day, methinks we can hear the Master say, 'Well done, thou good and faithful servant.'"

The publishers of The Daily Advocate to be issued during the present session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church have announced that it will carry no illustrations, or literary or controversial articles, their purpose being to hold it strictly to the one function of giving correctly the proceedings of the Conference. We think that this decision is to be commended.

One of the most useful and courageous ministers in Southern Methodism is Dr. E. G. B. Mann, Editor of The Central Methodist, our Kentucky paper. Dr. Mann's utterances on the subject of worldliness always ring true. It is such men as he that the Church should put in places of large responsibility. This is no time for us to pin our faith to a negative type of preachers who never stand for anything.

The New York Tribune states that there is promise of a lively controversy over the question of the priority of Philip Embury and the old John Street Church of New York City and that of Strawbridge and the Sam's Creek Church in Maryland at the present session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Even if the outcome should be favorable to the contention of the New Yorkers, it is not likely to weigh as much with the general Methodist public as the decision recently given out at Baltimore by the Commission composed of the representatives of three Methodist denominations: the Methodist Protestant, Methodist Episcopal, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

Francis Asbury: Pioneer Bishop of American Methodism. By Edwin D. Mouzon. Smith & Lamar, Publishers.

This is a paper-bound volume of 59 pages. It is dedicated "To The Noble Army of Itinerants Who Follow in His (Asbury's) Train." The introduction is from the gifted pen of Bishop Hoss. The titles of the chapters are as follows: I, Portraiture and Pen-picture; II, Asbury and the Organizing Conference of American Methodism; III, The Christian; IV, The Preacher; V, The Bishop; VI, Pioneer and Martyr. Bishop Mouzon has rendered Methodism a valuable service by bringing out this choice and instructive volume at this time, when the centenary of the Father of American Methodism is being celebrated. He is a painstaking student, who knows how to sift out the chaff in the investigation of a subject and give his readers the pure wheat. In the present discussion he grips the attention on the first page and does not permit it to slacken until the end is reached—all too soon. We heartily commend this timely publication to our pastors and people, wishing for it a wide circulation. It would be a capital book for Adult Sunday School Classes to use now, when all branches of Methodism in the United States are focusing attention upon the apostolic life and labors of the majectic man who did more than any other person to plant Methodism in this wide-reaching Western Republic, where it has won its mightiest triumphs. The price of a single copy is 25 cents; if several copies are taken, it may be had for less.

Vision and Power: A Study in the Ministry of Preaching. By John A. Kern. Fleming H. Revell Company, Publishers.

An admirable series of discussions bearing upon the minister's equipment and work, evolved from St. Peter's remarkable vision from the housetop in Caesarea and his ministry to Cornelius. Dr. Kern, who is the head of the Biblical Department of Randolph-Macon College, excels in this style of writing, and in this publication he has given us a volume which is a fitting companion-piece to his great work, entitled "The Ministry to the Congregation," that has been so serviceable to the preachers of Southern Methodism. It ought to have a place in the library of every forward-looking pastor who aspires to the largest effectiveness in his labors. One cannot read it without being stirred, strengthened, and incited to higher purposes. Particularly do we advise our younger itinerants to procure it and meditate upon its illuminating pages. The production of such a book by one of our communicants reflects credit upon our entire Church.

OUR VIEW OF THE MATTER.

(By the Editor)

We are printing in this issse of the Advocate a very striking communication from the pen of Dr. E. H. Randle, of Hernando, Miss., a well known educator and writer. With much of what he says in the course of his discussion, we are in the heartiest accord. That there is a large amount of worthless tinsel and superficial show in the work done by the over-rich and overgrown educational institutions in the Northern section of our own country and in other lands, we do not in the least doubt; and that not a few institutions with far less pretentious equipment are doing a work that is in reality more solid and thorough than the class of schools just mentioned, we firmly believe. Still the fact remains that the influence of these imposing universities is becoming increasingly dominant not only north of the Ohio River, but also in our sunny Southland. It is a fact that cannot be denied that the time has come among us when a professor applying for a chair either in our stronger State colleges in this section, or in those of any Church, has almost no chance of being chosen for the position to which he aspires unless he has a postgraduate degree from some large institution, to which has been accorded great prestige. We do not say that this should be so—we are inclined to think that it should not—we are merely calling attention to a state of things which must be reckoned with.

As a result of the present situation in this respect, our institutions of learning in the South are becoming increasingly "Northernized" in their sentiments and ideals, and in the course of time this stream of influence, flowing through them, must powerfully affect the views and standards of our population as a whole. As we see it, the Southern States, with their conservative political principles and sound Christian teaching, need few things more than they do to become to a large degree educationally independent. For far too long a time we have been toadying to other far-away States in this particular, securing in consequence not a few importations that we would be better off without. Surely the time has come when we need to endeavor to equip and train our educators and other professional men at home, thus keeping them loyal to our traditions and in accord with the genius and aspirations of our people.

And since, whether wisely so or not, attendance upon large universities is very generally accounted to be a necessity for such workers, how are we of the South to achieve this important end unless we establish among us some institutions of impressive proportions? The very preservation of our splendid Southern civilization would seem to demand that this be done.

As yet, however, there is no near prospect of securing anywhere on this side of Mason and Dixon's Line any educational plant of anything like the dimensions of those in the North concerning which Dr. Randle writes so interestingly. The total resources of Emory University, than which there is, taking everything into consideration, no more promising institution in the South, have not yet gone beyond the three million mark, and the present aim of those who are directing its interests is to try to increase its property holdings to $5,000,000, which, for a university, is certainly a very modest sum. In our judgment, no enterprise in Southern Methodism is more vitally related to the welfare of our Church and section than this, or is more deserving of immediate attention and support. Every Methodist east of the Mississippi River should count it a privilege to help to promote its progress with both his means and influence.

THE YEAR'S WORK.

There are those throughout the Church who may be interested in a condensed statement of the work of the Board of Church Extension for the fiscal year closing March 31, 1916, and for the benefit of such the following is given:

Receipts on Church Extension Assessment, $205,112.41, an increase over the preceding year of $17,096.72.

Receipts on Specials, $56,968.78, an increase over the preceding year of $41,011.62.

Increase in Loan Fund Capital, $133,192.89, an increase of $22,339.33 over the preceding year.

Principal repaid on loans, $155,022.51, an increase of $91,197.42 over the preceding year.

Receipts from miscellaneous sources, $17,382.35, an increase of $6,286.35 over the preceding year.

Donations refunded, $3,427.85, a decrease of $2,622.55 from the preceding year.

Total receipts	$571,107.79
Total receipts last year	395,798.90
Net increase for the year	$175,308.89

A NEW BEGINNING.

"I haven't time, mother," replied Louise, impatiently, lifting her eyes from the volume she was reading, pencil in hand.

"What are you doing now, dear?" her mother inquired, patiently.

"Reading up for my essay, 'Beginnings of Literary Women.' Mr. Ray told Miss Green that he thought I was one of them myself. He said my story in The Independent showed large promise. Mother, aren't you glad and proud?" exclaimed the girl, impulsively.

Her mother looked grave, but neither glad nor proud. Louise did not notice that she looked very tired.

"I want you to make biscuits for supper and help with the mending."

"But, mother, I really haven't time."

Her mother made no reply; at least Louise, buried again in the "Life of Mrs. Somerville," heard not a word; but after a few moments she felt several words that her mother did not speak.

"Mother, I have no taste for housekeeping; literary women do not have, as a rule. You know, Harriet Martineau's brother told her to put up her sewing and write; other women could sew."

"Then she did know how?" replied her mother, quietly.

"Oh, yes; I suppose so," acknowledged the "promise" of the literary woman.

The next evening Louise settled herself in the "study corner" of the sitting-room, with her books and papers about her. Charlie had the toothache, and was nursing his face over the register; Clara was puzzling herself with mending a rent in her school dress; mother was washing the supper dishes in the kitchen.

"Louise, daughter," said her father from the lounge, where he had stretched himself with the headache, "put away your 'Beginnings' and come here a while. I want to tell you about a few literary women."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed Louise, delightedly. "I stayed two hours at the library after school, and couldn't find what I wanted."

"I fear I shall not tell you just what you want," he said, with a twinkle in his eye, as she nestled down on the rug before the lounge. "I have been 'reading up' literary women to find out if they ever did like to make biscuits and mend stockings."

"I don't believe they ever did, papa; the tastes conflict, you see. It isn't only lack of time," began the literary girl, decidedly.

"Well, we will see. You admire Miss Alcott. She was so fond of sewing at twelve that she set up for a doll's dressmaker and put up a beautiful dressed doll for a model in her window. In pinching times at home she was brave enough to go out to service for two months."

Louise exclaimed: "Out to service!"

"Which is rather harder than staying in to service with one's mother. Caroline Herschel prepared meals and waited at tables, besides undertaking needlework and knitting. Her education had to be taken in stolen half-hours. Harriet Martineau, who was the woman statesman, in her political economy series and her hundreds of leaders in the London Times, states that, as she grew up, she made all her clothing excepting 'stays and shoes;' and she plaited straw bonnets and knitted stockings. She said she was saved from being a literary lady who could not sew; and when in the height of her fame she was admired for not being helpless in regard to housework, she explained that she could make puddings and iron and mend, and, if need be, support herself by her needle, as it was once necessary for several months; and sometimes she felt herself a good housewife spoiled."

Louise silently picked at the fringe of the rug. Her mother was mixing bread at the kitchen table, and through the open door listening to the conversation that had become a monologue instead of a dialogue.

"George Eliot was a good housekeeper, and what could not Harriet Beecher Stowe do in the kitchen? In her 'Memoirs' is a comical account of a magazine story written at her dictation while she was teaching an inefficient servant to do the week's baking. Maria Edgeworth's ever busy fingers accomplished many a piece of fine needlework. She liked not to be idle while conversation was on."

"As I am this minute," laughed Louise, picking at the fringe with nervous fingers. Her mother must have told her father that she refused to make the beds before school this morning, and had left her last week's mending for her to do. "Oh, dear!" she sighed, with heated face.

"I will read you something Mary Howitt writes." He took the book from under the lounge pillow and sat upright: "'No more counting of threads and three hundred and sixty-eight stitches to the inch for me.' Here's an extract from a letter: 'It is very long since I wrote to thee. It is quite astonishing; and yet when I consider the vast quantity of needlework I have had to do, it is not so very astonishing, after all. Helping to do the upholstery work has quite filled up my time. When I began to look at our several wardrobes, the mending and making had accumulated to such a degree that I was like a hardworking seamstress sewing from morning till night.'"

Dropping the book, her father fell back on the lounge pillow. "You love Lucy Larcom's poems. She often did her own washing and ironing while she was teaching at fourteen dollars a month. Mary Lamb wrote to a friend about some cooking she was doing; and she wrote an article on needlework, of which she must have had special knowledge. You would not care for any higher appreciation than to be spoken of by Tennyson as next to Shakespeare; and Jane Austen, the woman rated so high, could do such excellent needlework that she almost put a sewing machine to shame."

"Don't, papa," laughed Louise, with eyes brimful of tears; "don't make me feel like that sewing machine."

She sprang up and went not to her "study corner," but to the kitchen table.

"Mamma, I've learned about the real 'Beginnings.' I don't want to be a sham literary woman; but (with a sigh) I don't love housekeeping."

"You will, if you keep on," said her mother, comfortingly. "A womanly woman is better than any other kind of a woman."—Methodist Recorder.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference:

Please take your collection for the superannuated preachers and their widows and orphans. They need the money. It will take $1500 more than we have to pay them in full for this quarter. Our report for the first quarter shows a deficit, and we can't pay these worthy claims unless you collect the money. Brethren, please raise your assessments for this cause and forward the money to S. A. Tomlinson, Gulfport, Miss.

J. M. MORSE,

IT DIDN'T FIT.

(From "Francis Asbury, Pioneer Bishop of American Methodism," by Bishop Monzon.)

Concerning the matter of "forms of worship," there is an amusing story to be told. John Wesley, who lived and died a member of the Church of England, had prepared a liturgy little differing from that of the Church of England," and had directed it to be read in all the (American) churches. So the Methodist Church came into being with a Prayer Book. Jesse Lee had not been present at the Organizing Conference of Methodism. When Asbury was ordained he forthwith arrayed himself in the gowns and bands of a Presbyter of the Church of England, and started out, Prayer Book in hand, reading the service according to Wesley's direction. When he came to Salisbury he ran upon Jesse Lee. Imagine Francis Asbury decked out in canonicals and reading prayers! No wonder that Jesse Lee, a man of sense as well as humor, was amazed and amused. It is said that after leaving Lee, Asbury returned to his primitive simplicity, and never again arrayed himself in clerical paraphernalia. The Church owes a debt to Jesse Lee for this service. No, I will not say that; for we may be quite sure that the good sense of Francis Asbury would soon have asserted itself. The Prayer Book, of course, soon disappeared.

Editorial

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We desire to express our grateful appreciation of the good work which has been done in behalf of the Advocate by many of our preachers and other friends. They have given us between 900 and 1000 new subscribers. This lacks a great deal of reaching the 3500 mark which we had as our goal; but, notwithstanding this fact, the paper has been helped appreciably hy the moderate success that has been achieved in placing it in this additional number of homes. We trust that the brethren and all others who may be interested will continue their efforts in this direction. Loaded as he is with the whole of the work in the office related to the editorial department, the Editor is so situated that he cannot press this campaign by correspondence, to say nothing of taking the field in its behalf. Our dependence in this important matter is wholly upon our friends.

We desire to state in this connection that we have in the various charges hundreds of expired subscriptions, which must soon be discontinued unless they are renewed. Nine hundred new subscriptions will not increase our circulation if we have to strike from our mailing files 900 old subscribers. Dear Brother Pastor, will you not kindly help us to secure the renewals in your charge? You can do this hy writing to the office and securing a list of those getting the paper, and calling their attention to the fact that they need to renew, or having some one else to do so. We shall highly appreciate any assistance that may be given us in this necessary and urgent work.

THE ETERNAL ISSUES NEED TO BE KEPT IN VIEW.

A few days ago a pathetic tragedy took place in the city of New Orleans. A young man, twenty-three years of age, who was afflicted with an incurable blood disease, and a girl of seventeen, who had tuberculosis in its incipient stage, became infatuated with each other and desired to marry. Being forbidden to do this, they resolved to commit suicide; so, after writing notes disclosing this purpose, they left the girl's home ostensibly to go to a picture show, but proceeded to the Mississippi River and plunged into it, locked in each other's arms. Their bodies were discovered, rescued, and huried several days later.

Considering the youthfulness of the girl, one cannot but feel deeply sorry for her. The young man, heing older and having hrought his affliction upon himself, is, we think, less deserving of sympathy. That he should have been willing to drag another who was little more than a child down to destruction with him certainly indicates that he possessed few of the worthy elements of manhood.

But what we wish to say is this: The increasing number of suicides among us is a matter that we may well concern ourselves about. Varlous reasons are assigned for this—but may it not, in some measure at least, he due to the earthy and easy-going religious teaching that is so widely prevalent in this day? The awful issues of eternity are not now stressed from the pulpit and in other places where Bible instruction is given as they once were. When preachers prate about "death being life's most heautiful adventure," why should troubled men hesitate to seek it?

We have little faith in the effectiveness of a "soothing-syrup theology" either to restrain people from evil-doing, or to incite them to high endeavor. When its horizon is limited to time and it is given no certain perspective beyond the grave, human life is dwarfed and impoverished in almost every conceivahle way. There is great potency in the doctrine of the accountability of every human being to God in the judgment, and that the deeds done in this life will place the deathless soul in heaven or in hell, according to whether they be good or bad.

IS IT WISE AND OPPORTUNE?

At the recent Educational Conference held in Birmingham, Ala., Dr. Stonewall Anderson, the Educational Secretary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, read a paper in which he stated that the estimated needs of the various colleges of the Church was $6,810,000, and suggested that $2,000,000 he added to this amount for Emory and the Southern Methodist University, and that a Church-wide campaign be inaugurated to secure this large sum—nearly $9,000,000. This proposal was also brought before the General Board of Education during its late session at Nashville, and that hody, without endorsing it, suggested that Dr. Anderson take the matter up with the various Conference Boards of Education.

This scheme, at the first blush, looks good and is quite an appealing one. That our colleges need this much money, and more, we have not the least doubt; and we trust that in the not-far future the Church, in whatever way promises the most, will find it practicable to set its hand vigorously to the task of strengthening their equipment and resources. But for the immediate present we helleve that the more advantageous course for the Church to pursue is to concentrate its energies chiefly upon the work of establishing our two projected universities upon a safe and creditable basis. By doing this for the next two years this undertaking ought by that time to he pretty well out of the way, so that when the next General Conference assembles it would he feasible to launch a connection-wide educational campaign for the benefit of all our other educational institutions, if tbat course of procedure should he adjudged the one that would he most effective.

Of course, there are some schools wbose financial needs are so pressing that they must be assisted without delay; but we think that the Conferences that own them, with such assistance as the General Board of Education through its ordinary methods can give them, may he trusted to see that they are not overtaken by disaster.

The thing of the most pressing importance to our educational interests at this extremely critical time is to get our two universities, with their theological schools, to working properly. To be sure, it is proposed in Dr. Anderson's $9,000,000 scheme to give them $1,000,000 each; but it would probably, at the best, take years to raise so large a sum, and they doubtless would receive only a small percentage of the money that would come in.

Georgia alone is proposing to raise a million dollars for Emory University, and the Educational Commission has put agents in the field and has already started campaigns in its behalf in several other States. Why hegin another movement at this crucial period that might confuse matters and interrupt the execution of these carefully matured plans?

We sincerely hope that our Conference Boards of Education and those directing our various colleges and secondard schools, in so far as it is possihle for tbem to do so, will unselfishly and magnanimously stand against interfering with the canvasses that are already under way to obtain funds for our universities. We feel sure that, in the long run, they would gain much more than they would lose by such a course. Au omnibus scheme of the kind which seems to be in contemplation would not, in our opinion, yield results anything like as satisfactory as would the plan of letting each institution make its own appeal to its friends and constituency. People would be likely to reject requests for contributions to a connectional fund on the ground that they prefer to give their money to schools in their own territory. The Twentieth Century Educational Campaign was in its essential features very much like the one that is now being proposed, and it was comparatively a failure and did no institution much good.

Neither Emory nor the Southern Methodist University yet has the buildings that are imperatively necessary to do its work. Their theological schools have not been provided with adequate loan funds to aid our young ministers, who are being offered generous assistance by Vanderbilt University from the funds that were given by Methodists for the education of our preachers. Whercin lies the wisdom of inaugurating a general policy of scatteration at this transitional juncture? For our part, we are unable to see it.

CLERICAL PLAGIARISTS.

The Presbyterian, of Philadelphia, says: "The widow of a minister recently deceased sent to a friend certain selected sermons from her husband's 'barrel,' that he might look them over and write a fitting introduction to the volume of them that she was about to publish. They were returned with a book of sermons already in print, showing that the introductory sermon of the series was made up bodily of stolen matter. Some years ago, the Aviator published an article upon a subject which had cost him ten years of research. Within ninety days he found his whole article printed in a college magazine under the name of a student for the ministry. What ought a minister to do in such a case?"

It is easy to state what the guilty person ought to do under such circumstances: he ought to repent and seek forgiveness for his sin, and make a public acknowledgment of his wrong-doing and a promise to amend. A more important question is, what the Church ought to do when it develops that a preacher in her service has been guilty of plagiarism. Surely such an offense should not be passed over, no matter how high may he the place the offender holds. Indeed, the more conspicuous his position the greater is the harm that is donc, and the more important it is for the Church to show that she will not tolerate so indefensible a practice.

THE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

The National Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America, which will be held at Indianapolis, Indiana, June 26-29, 1916, promises to be a great and memorable gathering. It is expected that every State in the Union will be represented, and many speakers of national prominence are booked to be on hand. We note that the National Daily (Westville, Ohio) of April 13 carried an excellent picture of Rev. A. W. Turner, the capable leader of our temperance forces in Louisiana, stating that he would have a place on the program. We trust that Louisiana and Mississippi will be well represented at this important council of the men and women who are waging war against the rum traffic, which is the greatest evil that inenaces the welfare of the American people.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

We are informed that it is expected that our beautiful new church at Durant, Miss., will be cpened on Sunday, June 4.

Purvis, Miss., has lately enjoyed a gracious revival conducted by Evangelist J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss. The singing was led by Rev. J. M. Lewis, of Prentiss, Miss.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church is now getting down to work in dead earnest. The Daily Advocate which gives its proceedings makes very interesting reading.

The Commencement sermon of the High School at Booneville, Miss., will be preached on Sunday, May 21, by Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, of Winona, who on the following day will also deliver the baccalaureate address.

On account of advancing age and ill health, Dr. Levi Gilbert has announced that he does not desire to continue as editor of the Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati. He had held that position for 16 years.

The papers report that at the recent session of the Seashore District Conference Rev. Robert Selby, our Mississippi Commissioner, took a collection of $600 for the Lamar Law School building at Emory University.

Rev. George S. Sexton, who is in charge of the First M. E. Church, South, of Shreveport, La., continues to have a fruitful pastorate in his great field. He possesses in a remarkable degree the elements of efficient leadership.

Dr. Josiah Strong, the distinguished Congregational minister and author, died on April 28. He wrote many books which were widely read, the best known of them probably being "Our Country" and "The Challenge of the City."

Rev. R. V. Fulton, of Zachary, La., writes as follows: "The three churches of this charge raised $65 for our Orphanage at Ruston on Easter Sunday. Two Epworth Leagues have been organized this quarter. Everything is progressing nicely with us."

The closing exercises of Grenada College will be held May 26-30. The sermons of the occasion will be preached by Rev. A. F. Watkins, D.D., President of Millsaps College, and the Annual Address will be delivered by the Hon. L. G. Fant, of Holly Springs.

On May 8, Rev. G. A. Morgan, of Jonesboro, La., wrote us as follows: "We are in the midst of a revival meeting at this place, with Rev. R. H. Harper, of New Orleans, leading the forces. He is a fine preacher, and great crowds are waiting upon his ministry."

Our church at Amite City, La., of which Rev. H. T. Young is the active pastor, has lately had a gracious season of spiritual refreshing. Following the revival services, an enjoyable reception was given in honor of the new Church members received, being held in the Sunday school rooms.

Rev. J. E. Stephens, of Coahoma, Miss., writes: "I have a delightful charge. The people are unusually good to us. For all purposes we have raised up to the present date $1500." Brother Stephens' letter brought us a club of 8 subscriptions, included in which was that of a colored Baptist minister.

On a postal card, just received, Rev. E. H. Cunningham, of Leland, Miss., says: "Great day here yesterday (Sunday, May 7). Children's Day was observed, the church being beautifully decorated for the occasion. An excellent program was rendered, which everybody enjoyed. All is going well with us at Leland."

We are in receipt of an attractive card which reads as follows: "Rev. and Mrs. Hugh C. Castles announce the arrival of Edythe Welmar in their home at Vimville, Miss., on May 4; weight 8 pounds. Came on her father's birthday." We congratulate the happy parents, and pray God's blessings on the little one.

Rev. T. H. Morris, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Monroe, La., has made a most favorable impression upon the people of that prosperous city, and all the indications point to a good year for him and his flock. It is nothing new for Brother Morris' labors to be crowned with a large measure of success.

In company with Rev. W. E. Thomas, Mrs. Emily Walker Herr, the new missionary assigned to the Mary Werlein Mission of this city, called at the Advocate office one day last week; but unfortunately the Editor was out and missed the pleasure of meeting these earnest workers. He trusts that they will come again.

Rev. R. T. Nolen writes optimistically of his work on the Williamsburg charge, Mississippi Conference. He states that all is harmonious, and that the interest in all the activities of the Church is on the increase. He is looking after the interests of the Advocate in his rounds, for which service he has our thanks.

Rev. H. K. McKee, our hustling pastor on the Scotland (Miss.) charge, has our thanks for a fine club of 19 subscriptions, 11 of them new. We appreciate his efforts to circulate the Advocate among his parishioners, and we trust that it will prove a great blessing to the homes into which he has been instrumental in sending it.

The Board of Missions of our Church has resolved to adopt the week preceding Easter Sunday as a season for prayer and self-denial. We think it is well for the Board of Missions to have such a season, but we regret that this time was fixed upon, as we fear it will tend to aid in fastening upon our Church the observance of "Holy Week."

A letter from Col. J. G. Hamilton orders his Advocate changed from Pasadena, Calif., to Durant, Miss. Col. Hamilton has been spending the winter with relatives in the Far West, but we infer from this order that he expects to return to his home in Mississippi soon. He is one of the most highly esteemed laymen in the North Mississippi Conference.

It was with sorrow that we learned of the death of Mrs. J. J. Yeates, of Starkville, Miss., which occurred suddenly at her home in that city on April 26. Only a few days before her decease she had celebrated her 69th birthday. Her pastor, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, says of her: "She was a gentle, generous-hearted, appreciative Christian woman." We extend sympathy to the bereaved.

The press dispatches have been announcing a great revival at New Albany, Miss., under the leadership of Evangelist W. M. McIntosh and the pastor, Rev. S. L. Pope. Brother McIntosh has lately conducted a meeting of much interest at Clarksville, Texas, in which there were scores of conversions. He knows how to reach the consciences of men and win them to Christ.

Rev. A. W. Turner, Superintendent of the Louisiana Anti-Saloon League, is a very busy man these days, and will continue to have his hands full of work for some time in taking care of the prohibition interests before the State Legislature, which convened this week. He should have the hearty co-operation of all our pastors and people in the laborious and difficult duties which are before him.

The Macon (Miss.) Beacon thus refers to the address delivered at Macon on Confederate Memorial Day, Wednesday, April 26, by our gifted young pastor at that place, Rev. E. N. Broyles: "The principal address was made by Mr. Broyles, of the First Methodist Church. His speech was one of the most notable ever delivered in Noxubee County, and has been widely commented upon for its scholarship, breadth, and true sentiment."

Rev. A. M. Broadfoot, pastor of our South Side Church of Meridian, Miss., brought a smile to the face of the Publisher a few days since by sending to the Advocate office a club of 22 subscribers, 16 of which were new. Referring to his work, Brother Broadfoot says: "Our church is loyal to its pastor and shows appreciation of his services. Our meeting, which has just closed, had an uplifting effect upon our people. The situation with us is encouraging."

Rev. R. H. Clegg, of Porterville, Miss., has secured the quota of new subscribers that was expected from his charge in the Advocate's present campaign. In his communication, Brother Clegg says: "We had Dr. Beeson, the district lay leader, with us last Sunday (April 30), and he brought with him two of his students from a foreign country, who told us some things that were new to us. Everybody enjoyed the program, which we hope will be a blessing to us."

Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, presiding elder of the Winona District, says: "Sister McLain, the wife of Rev. G. W. McLain, our pastor at Sunflower, Miss., was operated on in Winona on April 20. She stood the ordeal well and is rapidly recovering. Dr. J. W. Price, our pastor at Lambert, Miss., has for some time been severely afflicted, but is somewhat improved now. The Winona District Conference, lately held at Itta Bena, according to all estimates, was a great occasion."

Not content to rest on his laurels, Rev. M. F. Adams, of Flora, Miss., gave us on the 6th inst. an additional club of 6 subscriptions, 3 of them being new. He also sent us an interesting report of some happenings in his charge, which will appear next week, and wound up by telling us in a tantalizing manner how well the fish were biting in the Big Black River. We scarcely need to say that we highly appreciate the good work of this worthy young friend in behalf of the Conference organ.

We have received, inclosed in a letter dated Coldwater, Miss., R. F. D. No. 2, an obituary written with a lead pencil and signed, "A Friend." Two of the rules of our office are thus violated: one requiring all copy to be written with ink, and the other not to publish communications of any kind from an unknown source. We do not require that the name of the writer shall appear in print, but, for our own protection, we must know who the writer is. We cannot dispose of this obituary until we have the name of the person who sent it to us.

Rev. J. A. Patterson, of Tyro, Miss., gives us a club of 6 subscriptions from his growing charge, and in his business letter appends the following note: "Our presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder, made his second visit to us on April 29 and 30, and gave us four great sermons, which edified and strengthened all who heard them. He is optimistic concerning the Sardis District, as though he had had a vision. He is progressive in spirit and is a fine organizer, and great advancement along all lines may be expected in our district this year under his leadership."

Called to Memphis by the serious illness of his sister-in-law, Mrs. J. F. H. Barbee, who, we are happy to state, is now better, Mr. J. D. Barbee was unable to be present at the late session of the Greenville District Conference, held at Benoit, Miss.; but, notwithstanding his absence, the brethren elected him a delegate to the Annual Conference. This attestation of appreciation was well merited. We have been closely associated with Brother Barbee for a number of years, and we have a very high estimate of both his capacity and his devotion to the Church.

Mr. W. S. Telson, of New Orleans, died on May 5, 1916, aged about 66 years. He passed away quietly, after a long illness. He was a worthy and honored official member of Felicity Street Church, and was well and favorably known in New Orleans and to the Methodists of Louisiana generally. His funeral services were conducted in Felicity Church on May 6 by his pastor, Dr. F. R. Hill. It is with regret that we chronicle the demise of this good man, and we pray that the Holy Spirit may comfort and sustain those who have been made lonely and sorrowful by his translation.

Brother H. L. Austin, of Philadelphia, Miss., sends us, under date of May 4, the following note: "Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Yazoo City, Miss., conducted revival services for the pastor, Rev. J. G. Galloway, in the Methodist Church here from the second to the fourth Sunday in April. Brother Sullivan is a strong preacher who declares the whole counsel of God. He preached a series of most excellent sermons. The visible results were not what had been hoped for, only one person joining the Church; but we feel that many good resolutions were made, which we hope will be faithfully kept."

In an interesting letter, written on May 5, Bishop Waterhouse, of Los Angeles, Calif., expresses appreciation of the considerateness of his Episcopal colleagues in making it possible for him to safeguard his health by a further period of rest, but states that he cannot but feel a bit sad over receiving no specific assignment of work. The Bishop further adds: "My health continues to improve, and I am hoping to be of some service to the Church during the year." We are much pleased to have this cheering message from this beloved chief pastor, who we trust will continue to gain steadily in strength.

We are indebted to Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, for the following information of interest concerning the work in the New Orleans District: "At the late District Conference the purchase of a district parsonage, not to cost over $4000, was authorized, and a committee was named to execute this order. The reports made to the conference showed splendid results in all the charges since the Annual Conference last fall: 331 members had been received into the churches, the net gain being 201. Most of the charges reported the finances to be in better shape than last year, and the fact that more than $28,000 had been spent on buildings within the last six months attested that considerable active work is being done."

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. J. T. Abney, Bucatunna, Miss., 6; Brother F. A. Howell, Durant, Miss., 2; Rev. J. W. Dorman, Water Valley, Miss., 4; Rev. L. P. Wasson, West Point, Miss., 2; Rev. J. E. Cunningham, Corinth, Miss., 2; Rev. J. T. McVey, Lorman, Miss., 5; Rev. A. W. Langley, Houlka, Miss., 2; Rev. J. C. Ellis, Florence, Miss., 6; Rev. F. H. McGee, Independence, Miss., 3; Rev. T. B. Holloman, Vicksburg, Miss., 2; Rev. J. M. Brown, Haughton, La., 6; Rev. W. T. Woodward, Oak Grove, La., 2; Rev. T. E. Yancey, Verona, Miss., 5; Rev. S. B. Myers, Okolona, Miss., 5; Rev. T. W. Adams, Court St., Hattiesburg, Miss., 5.

Our pastor at Clarksdale, Miss., Rev. R. O. Brown, and his loyal congregation are getting busy in pushing their new church enterprise. Mr. Chas. O. Pfeil, a noted architect of Memphis, Tenn., has been engaged to draw the plans for the handsome new structure, which is expected, when complete in every respect, to cost between $40,000 and $50,000. A very interesting device will be used in raising funds to finance this splendid enterprise, in the shape of a large clock which will be set up in a public place, so that everybody can see exactly how the funds are coming in. We confidently expect to see this projected house of worship going up at an early date. When the people of Clarksdale make up their minds to accomplish a thing they usually do so upon a scale and with a dispatch that challenge admiration.

LAFAYETTE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Lafayette (La.) District Conference will meet in Lake Charles, La., May 30-June 2. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. Wm. Schuhle on Tuesday, May 30, at 7:15 p. m. All who expect to attend the conference will please notify Rev. K. W. Dodson, Lake Charles, La.

Dear Advocate: The springtime has come, but it has brought to us clouds of gloom along with the rays of sunshine. We have had an epidemic of pneumonia in this charge (St. Tammany). Some weeks ago I buried little MARVIN BARKER, son of Wm. and Mary Barker. In a few days his uncle, JOHN FUSELL, a Baptist minister about 41 years of age and a good man, passed away, leaving a wife and seven children to mourn their loss. A few days later he was followed to the grave by OLA FUSELL, his oldest daughter. So within a few days there were three deaths from the same disease, but they all died victoriously. This was true even of the child of a few years who was happy as the end approached, as was also the man who had preached Christ to many, and the young lady of sixteen who sang and praised God. As their bodies all repose in new-made mounds in a new cemetery at a new church, their spirits walk the streets of the new Jerusalem. May God bless the bereaved ones!

Bush, La. J. S. RUTLEDGE.

On March 28, 1916, Miss NANCY BOX fell asleep. She was 64 years, 6 months, and 15 days of age. Hers was a life lived amid adverse circumstances, but one of completeness. She possessed the qualities which go to make up a rounded character. She early in life made a profession of her faith in Christ and united with the M. E. Church, South, to which she clung tenaciously and loved dearly till the time of her departure. It was not her privilege to enjoy the fondness of a mother's love, except for a brief time, her mother having preceded her a number of years to the great beyond. Her father, with whom she lived until his death in 1908, was a veteran of the "lost cause." After his death, she chose to live by herself in the little cottage he left her approximately the remainder of her days. Miss Nancy leaves to mourn her departure a sister, Mrs. W. T. Moore, and a number of relatives and friends, with whom we profoundly sympathize, and we pray that "He who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" may comfort these bereaved ones.

"Sleep calmly on! Thy noble life,
With care and love replete,
Has left on us its impress rife,
With memories fond and sweet."

Her pastor,
W. C. BEASLEY.

FROM BROTHER WELLS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Allow me space to say to the members of the late Port Gibson District Conference, held at Gloster, Miss., that I sincerely appreciate that the said Conference learned "with deep regret the circumstances which prevented" my attendance, and also that the following words touched a tender chord: "We pray the blessings of the Heavenly Father upon you." Let each member of said conference turn to Numbers 6:24-26, and he will find my feelings toward him.

I am glad to say the prospects in Oak Ridge charge are encouraging. I am preaching, planning, praying for, and fully expecting a string of Pentecostal revivals all over the work.

J. A. WELLS.

A REPORT AND EXHORTATION.

As I have seen nothing from the Grady's Chapel (North Miss. Conf.) in some time, I will write you a note concerning our work. We have a good Sunday school which has been in operation for some years, but which seems to be growing better all the time. We also have a Woman's Missionary Society, which is doing fairly good work. Rev. C. R. A. Brantley is our pastor and we feel that he is going to be a great help and uplift to our community.

Let us to-day resolve that, God helping us, we will live more thoroughly in harmony with those noble principles which Christ re-enforced by his teaching and adorned by his example. In the family let us cultivate the graces of patience, forbearance, and self-sacrifice; in the social circle let us seek to manifest meekness and purity, and in our business pursuits let us show that we are actuated by justice and integrity. Life is not measured by the time we live; we should so live that we shall be remembered when we have gone hence. In going forth from our homes, we should always leave them with loving words, for they may be the last that we shall speak.

Mrs. T. E. GRIFFITH.

ELLISVILLE, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: A real revival meeting began here in the Methodist church on the third Sunday in April and closed last night, May 3. Rev. J. E. J. Ferguson, our pastor, was fortunate in securing the services of Brother W. B. Hogg, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Laurel. Brother Hogg is pre-eminently a practical preacher. His trumpet gave forth no uncertain sound. He is one of the most gifted speakers I have ever heard. Large congregations attended the services and gave him undivided attention from the beginning to the close of every sermon. If the Mississippi Conference ever needs another evangelist, in my judgment, no better man than he could be found for the place. Twenty-nine members will be received into the churches at Ellisville as a result of the meeting, a few of whom will go to the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches. While it was not professedly a union meeting, the pastors and members of other Churches attended and gave cordial and sympathetic co-operation in the good work. A free will offering, amounting to a handsome sum, was presented to Brother Hogg at the close of the meeting, and he went away carrying with him the love and good-will of a host of new-made friends.—L. Carley.

AN APPRECIATION.

Dear Dr. Meek: I have just read in last week's Advocate with great pleasure, and I trust with profit, Bishop Kilgo's great utterance on the subject, "No Reservations in This Warfare." In this day of great rush and hurry when the Church is taking on so many new things called by different names it seems to me we are in great danger. And when such men as our great Bishop Kilgo sound these notes of warning, it is time that we should take notice. I fear that we are drifting too far from the paths trodden out by our fathers and mothers, and that we are too much inclined to expect the salvation of the world to be accomplished in a kind of mechanical way, instead of viewing it as the great work of Christ and his Spirit, and considering ourselves only instruments in their hands through which they are to work.

Now, I have always appreciated very much the revival season as a time of great refreshing from the presence of the Lord. I have always loved the protracted meeting—it is such an opportune time for people to be loving and for the saved to get close to God—but I have often found that just after the revival, which was called great had been held, the church would fall far below the condition it was in during the meeting. And I often find this (the period following the revival) to be the hardest time of the year with the church. Congregations will often fall off and the Sunday school and prayer-meeting services will frequently decline in interest. Now, this should not be the case, and it does seem to me that our revivals are deficient in some way. I am sure, as we say, that we are to sow the seed and let God give the results, and that we cannot always judge of the work done. But, while this is true, it is also true that better conditions should follow a series of revival services than we often find.

I do not believe that we could give up our revival season without great hurt to our Church and people, yet I believe that if we could keep the fire on the altar all through the year our success would be much greater.

The great thought of the Bishop, that the work of salvation is not for special seasons alone, is both timely and Scriptural. His earnest message of love and faith should do great good.

PORT GIBSON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Port Gibson District Conference met in the graceful little city of Gloster, Miss., on April 27, and was in session until the evening of the 29th ultimo.

Rev. M. B. Sharbrough sat (softly) in the chair, and directed its affairs with the charm and precision of a dignified prebendary. He is an active, wise, and efficient ecclesiastic, who grows in favor, as the people hear and know him. He is positivo in his rulings, and enforces his ideas with terseness and energy, while a magnificent spirit governs all he says and does.

If some preacher or layman forgets, or fails to do his duty, Brother Sharbrough will find it out, and with the knack of skill, dexterity of discrimination, and nicety of perfection, will let the brother know that he knows.

The pastors were all present except five, who were kept at home by sickness in the family, or by circumstances over which they had no control.

Several local preachers were present, and the absent ones sent reports. Each passed in character, or had his license renewed. The Conference took special notice of the work being done by L. L. Stokes, a local preacher, and conveyed to him an expression of appreciation of his work.

The attendance by the lay members was far below the number on the roll, but those who were present added greatly to the profit and success of the occasion. Mr. J. G. Parham and Mr. R. S. Myers, of Rolling Fork, set the lay members a good example by coming to Gloster all the way from the delta, a distance of about 150 miles. It is not often that those two gentlemen get to see the everlasting hills, and they always enjoy the sight. If, when they were boys, they failed to slide down a steep hill on a slick board, they missed a novel experience.

Several "lay leaders" were in attendance, and helped to make the gathering worth while. Men like M. M. Satterfield, J. D. Ireland, Guy Forman, and others, are always helpful and the Church could not get along without them. Oftentimes the preacher is conspicuous, while the layman sits quietly by furnishing inspiration, his prayers and sympathy, and the sinews of war. The layman has a great part in the Kingdom, and will in no wise lose his reward.

Revs. W. W. Simmons, W. W. Cammack, and Ira B. Robertson, superannuates, were present; men who are nearer the golden sunset than to the morn and liquid dew of youth; men to whom the Church owes debts of gratitude, and who should be made comfortable as they sit and reflect upon the incidents and labors of former days, and watch the indications of His coming.

The attendance of the town people was not large, yet a goodly number peeped in to see how a Methodist District Conference is operated, and to hear the gospel sermons.

The preaching by Roberts, Hollomah, Emery, Hopper, O'Neill, and Chapman, was helpful, and met the demands of the occasion. A fellow by the name of Ellis tried to preach, and did fairly well! Sharbrough, Chapman, McVey, and Foreman stayed over Sunday to preach, and it is likely that they preached Christ to the people.

The entire Conference was harmonious, and there was scarcely a dull moment throughout. The preachers were cheerful, and made very good reports. Every fellow who had a part in any program was prepared—and set a good example to the United States of America!

Prof. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, made a magnificent speech, urging upon Methodists the duty of loyalty to that institution, and asking enthusiastic support from the preachers. The Conference heard Prof. Sullivan with pleasure, and pledged its cooperation.

The address by Rev. J. B. Randolph, manager of the Orphans' Home, showed a thorough grasp of things, and that a good man is in the right place. Our Orphans' Home cannot get along without the systematic support of the Methodists of Mississippi, who should rally to the man who is doing a work second to none.

Prof. G. L. Harrell, Conference Lay Leader, delivered a helpful address on the Laymen's Missionary Movement. The Conference resolved to make greater use of our good laymen, and to put into operation the policy of the Church concerning lay activities.

Mrs. Mabel Brown addressed the Conference concerning the missionary work of the women of the district, and she won an expression of appreciation and the pledge of co-operation.

Mr. M. M. Satterfield, lay leader of the district, pleased all who heard his address. He can stir up interest and enthusiasm wherever he goes, and all the pastors should use him.

Rev. L. L. Roberts represented Emory University in the absence of Dr. Robert Selby, Commissioner of Mississippi. Roberts showed a familiarity with things, and represented the cause with the profundity of a college dignitary. Roberts is a worthy fellow, and will yet rise higher and higher.

Rev. J. L. Neill, Sunday School Field Agent of the Mississippi Conference, was on hand, overflowing with sparkling intelligence, helpful ideas, and useful methods in the work of the Church, all the way from the cradle roll on earth to the highest round of the ladder in the spiritual university in the skies. Neill knows something about everything, and can tell it in a pleasing way. The preacher who fails to have him in his charge will miss the help and inspiration of an expert Sunday school worker, and all other kinds of religious worker. Neill has unusual ability, and will "make good" anywhere a Bishop chooses to place him.

The Conference had words of praise for the Advocate: "The New Orleans Christian Advocate, so carefully and ably edited by Dr. R. A. Meek, should be in the home of every Methodist in Mississippi. This paper is our own Conference organ, contains tidings from the field, informs us of the happenings of the day, announces the triumphs and needs of the Church, keeps the reader in touch with his brethren, and tells what other Churches are doing. Indeed it is a repository and dispenser of all that is conducive to spiritual health and growth. We heartily commend the paper to our Methodist people, and insist that they subscribe for it, and read it, contending that no money is better invested, or will bring larger returns."

The Conference also said by resolution:

"Resolved, That we set apart the first Friday in each month, during the months of May, June, and July, as a day of fasting and prayer for the conversion of souls and the building up of the Church, and that we pledge ourselves sacredly to observe these seasons, and urge our people to do the same."

Lay delegates to the Annual Conference were elected as follows: J. G. Parkham, J. D. Ireland, M. M. Satterfield, and N. S. Loftus.

Alternates: C. W. Flowers, and Guy Forman.

Port Gibson was chosen as the place of meeting for the Conference in 1917.

The Conference expressed grateful appreciation to the people of Gloster for their splendid hospitality. Rev. J. E. Williams, the pastor, made a good host. Williams serves a station, a half-station, a circuit of four preaching places, and does missionary work. He preaches three times on the Sabbath, and holds prayer meetings and League meetings. He is building one church, repairing or repainting three others, and taking subscriptions on the Conference collections. He is clerk of the Woodmen of the World, and Secretary of the Masonic Lodge. He visits his membership, sermonizes, plays the violin occasionally, attends to domestic affairs and correspondence, reads the newspapers, and runs on errands. He owns a Ford automobile, is the father of eight children, and enjoys the consciousness of a present salvation.

It is a pleasure to visit Gloster and meet such spirits as Bill Webb, J. L. Rhogilio, E. J. Forman, W. J. Connerly, J. E. Brown, M. A. Randell, and others. 'Tis said that the fellow is yet to come along and find Bill Webb in a bad humor.

This scribe was entertained in the home of Mr. Clarence McLain, and the members of that family will often throng into memory.

Brother Sharbrough tried to keep all the preachers and delegates at Gloster over Sunday, but many of us wended our way homeward Saturday evening, after the Conference had completed its business.

JNO. D. ELLIS,
May 1, 1916. Secretary.

Don't Let a Cold Get a Good Start

The way to check a cold is to fight it from the first. Even the worst maladies often are easily conquered if attacked early enough. Colds may leads to asthma, bronchial troubles and pulmonary affections. In the treatment of these one of the first needs is to build up body resistance.

Eckman's Alterative often has assisted in such upbuilding. As a treatment for the troubles named, it has been used for more than twenty years. And in many instances it has effected lasting relief.

As with any other medicine, it should be regarded only as a first aid to right care and hygienic living—and a safe one. For it contains no narcotics, opiates or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

BOARD OF EDUCATION MEETING.

Our General Board of Education held its annual meeting in Nashville on April 26, the meeting of the committees of the Board being held on April 25, and much of the detail work having heen completed ln this preliminary meeting. The full Board was in session only one day. Bishop E. E. Hoss as Chairman of the Board presided, and Dr. Andrew Sledd was the Recording Secretary. Only one member of the Board was absent from the meetlng.

Dr. Stonewall Anderson, Corresponding Secretary, stated that the enrollment of students in our schools during the present sesslon is larger than in the previous year and that in amount paid on assessment for education there had heen a substantial advance over the 1914 record. In reporting the Educational Conference, recently held in Birmingham, the Corresponding Secretary called attention to the paper read hy him before that Conference. In this paper Dr. Anderson stated that the colleges of our Church, according to the statements of their own representatives, needed $6,810,000 to meet thelr immediate needs. He suggested that to this amount be added an amount sufficlent to care for the immediate needs of our two universities, and that a Church-wide campaign to secure the full amount be lnaugurated. The Board of Education requested Dr. Anderson to submit this paper, with his suggestions, to the various Conference Boards of Education; and whatever plans the Annual Conferences mlght adopt, the General Board pledged to them its support and cooperation.

Dr. Anderson's report contained the following statement concerning a matter of great interest to the Church: "The Sunday School Board recently appointed a committee consisting of three members to act with a like committee from this Board whose duty it shall he to outline certain courses of instruction in relligious education suitable to he offered as credit courses in our standard colleges. I recommend that you appolnt a committee to act with the committee from the Sunday School Board for the purpose mentioned above and that the results of the work of the joint committee be communicated hy thls Board to our colleges for their consideration, approval, and use."

The Board took action on this recommendation; and the commlttee appointed is Drs. Stonewall Anderson, James Canon, and Andrew Sledd.

Other matters discussed in the report of the Secretary were the progress of our new universities at Atlanta and Dallas and the recommendation that an assessment be levied providing sufficient funds to eare for the work of our two theological schools; the report concerning the work of Paine College, our school for negroes; the change of charter of the Board in compliance with the suggestion and request of the Commission on Charters; and various other matters relating to the general educational interests of the Church.

In the report of Dr. R. H. Bennett, Superintendent of the Department of Ministerial Supply and Training, it was stated that in the Correpondence School 929 students had enrolled during the year and that the number on the rolls April 1 was 1695, an increase of more than 200 over the number reported April 1, 1915. This school has done lts work on an appropriation of $4000 from the Board, in addition to its tuition lncome. The entire work of instruction in the school is done by the faculty of Candler School of Theology. The Board decided that funds were not sufficient at present to transfer to the Southern Methodist Unlversity, Dallas, a part of the work of the Correspondence Scheol.

To the Committee on Religious Education was referred the matter of religious training of Methodist students in State schools, and this committee was requested to formulate a definite plan to report to the Board at its next annual meetlng. It is stated in the report of this committee, presented to the Board last week, that in the State schools of our country twenty-three per cent of the students are Methodists and that in the State colleges of fifteen Southern States there are 5805 Methodist students as compared with 7000 in our own schools.

The appropriations to the various schools, white and colored, are as follows: Colored schools: Lane College, $2000; Paine College, $10,000 ($2400 of the $10,000 to Paine College to be used for scholarships for young ministers). Total, $12,000. Whlte schools: Cherokee Junior College, $750; Columbia Junior College, $1000; Downing Industrial School, $500; Ferrum Training School, $1000; Flat Rock High School, $1000; Hlwassee College, $1000; Mansfield College, $1000; Morris-Harvey College, $1500; Reinhardt College, $1000; Rutherford College, $500; Seashore Campground School, $250; Sloan-Hendrix Academy, $1000; Southern College, $1000; South Georgla College, $500; Sparks Collegiate Institute, $500; Weatherford College, $1000; Young Harris College, $1000; Textile Industrial Institute, $1500; Stamford College, $1000; Weaver College, $1500; Sandy Valley Seminary, $500 (on condition (1) that the Board of Missions appropriate an equal amount and (2) that title to property be perfected). Total, $15,000.

The Board made provision for deferring completion of the work of classifying all the schools of the Church for 1916 under the new law tlll September 15. The classification will not be made public till after the work is completed.

The Board by formal action commended the work of the Educational Commlssion and congratulated that Commission, our two new unlversities, and the entire Church on the progress that has been made at Dallas and at Atlanta during the past two years.—Methodist News Bureau.

LOSS OF APPETITE

Most Successfully Treated by Taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Loss of appetite is accompanied by loss of vitality, whlch ls serious.

It is common in the spring because at this time the blood is impure and impoverished and fails to give the digestive organs what is absolutely necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the old reliable all-the-year-round medicine, is especially useful in the spring. Get it from your druggist today. By purifying and enriching the blood and giving vitality, vigor and tone, it ls wonderfully successful in the treatment of loss of appetite and the other ailments prevalent at this time. It is not simply a spring medicine—it is much more than that—but it is the best spring medicine.

Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the rich red blood the digestive organs need.

IN THE MORNING

If You Awake Feeling "All Gone" It Is Likely Due to Chronic Bowel Disorder, Constipation.

Physicians everywhere are recommending JACOBS' LIVER SALT as a safe and effective means of securing regular movements of the bowels when the patient is inclined to costiveness.

The treatment is successful because JACOBS' LIVER SALT is a liver stimulant, and contains Nature's sulphates and phosphates required in the digestive juices to digest food and regulate the stomach.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is a pure, sparkling salt made after the formula of the waters from the famous springs of Europe. Price 25c and 50c at druggists, or direct from the makers, JACOBS' PHARMACY, Atlanta, Ga.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

Rev. W. S. Henry is in his third year at De Ridder. They have been busy years. A beautiful parsonage and an elegant brick church have been built, and there has been quite an increase in the membership. Brother Henry is highly esteemed by all and is regarded by all as an excellent preacher. Rev. R. W. Tucker was with this church in a ten days' meeting, which resulted in much good. Hon. J. H. Cain is the efficient superintendent of the live Sunday school. De Ridder is a city of 5000 or 6000 people and is a fine commercial center. The public school is a most excellent one, of which Prof. L. H. Denman is the principal.

Rev. T. I. Beck is serving for a second year the Bon Ami and Carson charge. These are fine mill towns which support their pastor liberally and pay well on the general collections, especially for the Orphanage at Ruston. Brother Beck is in fine favor with his people and is doing much good. Hon. J. H. Morrison, the mill superintendent at Carson, is a fine man, and has an excellent set of men associated with him. Prof. J. T. Holland is the principal of the public school.

Rev. J. W. Booth is in the third year of his pastorate at Merryville. The church would be glad to have him for another year. Several spoke of him in the highest terms. Merryville is a prosperous town near the Texas border. It has a large mill plant and a splendid school, of which Prof. J. H. McCollester is the principal, having associated with him an excellent faculty.

Elizabeth and Fullerton make an important charge. Both of these towns have unusually large mill plants and contain several thousand people. Rev. W. B. Perritt is the intelligent pastor. He is an A. B. graduate of Millsaps College, and also attended Vanderbilt University. Brother Perritt has the gifts and graces which are necessary for a successful ministry. His people speak of him with the highest praise. He has some very fine members at both churches. Brother W. W. Williams superintends the large Sunday school at Elizabeth. These towns have good public schools with faculties composed of cultured teachers. It was a pleasure to hold a service in each of them.

STIRRING REVIVAL AT PURVIS.

Dear Brother Meek: We are having a great revival of religion here at Purvis, Miss., in which Rev. J. H. Bell of Columbus, Miss., is doing the preaching. His style differs somewhat from that of most evangelists. He starts in feeling his way along until he finds what the Church and town need—perhaps not what they want, but what they ought to have—and then proceeds to give it to them. He reveals sin in all its horror—he opens the floodgates of memory, and the people are forced to see themselves as God sees them. He preaches with power in his quiet way and stands squarely up for the fundamental doctrines of the Bible as they are taught by Methodism. He is a safe man for any preacher in our Church to use.

The following appeared in a late issue of The Booster, a paper published in Purvis, every word of which I endorse:

"The revival at the Methodist Church conducted by Rev. J. H. Bell, assisted by our local pastor, Mr. Mellard, is producing a profound effect upon the community for good. Mr. Bell has the happy faculty of presenting his subjects to the audience in a plain, practical way that is at once reasonable and convincing. His style of preaching will do a twentieth century audience more good in a week than a year's hard work along the old style lines. Preaching, to be effective, has to keep abreast of the times, and keep pace with advanced learning along other lines. Mr. Bell's sermon Wednesday morning touching the all-important subject of sanitation and personal cleanliness was timely, and it is to be greatly regretted that all of us could not hear it. 'Certainly, this is a duty, not a sin—cleanliness is, indeed, next to godliness.' Let every one that can possibly do so regardless of creed attend these services and profit thereby."

Brother Mellard is doing a great work here and is much loved by the people. J. M. LEWIS.

Purvis, Miss., May 5, 1916.

IF YOU SUFFER FROM BACKACHE, LUMBAGO, KIDNEYS OR RHEMATISM, TAKE HOT WATER AND "ANURIC."

American men and women must guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, when you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your druggist—"ANURIC." Because of uric acid in over-abundance in the system, backache, pains here and there, rheumatism, gout, gravel, neuralgia and sciatica result. It was Dr. Pearce who discovered a new agent, called "Anuric," which will throw out and eradicate this uric acid from the system. Dr. Pierce believes "Anuric" to be 37 times more potent than lithia, and consequently you need no longer fear muscular or articular rheumatism or gout, or many other diseases which are dependent on an accumulation of uric acid within the body. Send Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c. for trial package or $1.00 for full treatment "Anuric."

Dr. Pierce's reputation is back of this medicine and you know that his "Pleasant Pellets" for the liver and his "Favorite Prescription" for the ills of women have had a splendid reputation for the past 50 years.—Adv.

BLESSED TO BE A BLESSING.

God blesses you that you may be a blessing to others. Then he blesses you a second time in being a blessing to others. It is the talent that is used that multiplies. Receiving, unless one gives in turn, makes one full and proud and selfish. Give out the best of your life in the Master's name for the good of others. Lend a hand to every one who needs. Be ready to serve at any cost those who require your service. Seek to be a blessing to every one who comes for but a moment under your influence. This is to be angel-like. It is to be God-like. It is to be Christ-like. We are in this world to be useful. God wants to pass his gifts and blessings through us to others. When we fail as his messengers we fail of our mission.—J. R. Miller, D. D.

GENUINE RELIGION.

John Wesley advised against going to extremes. Stay in the middle of the road would be a good definition for his meaning. The Church of God has been hurt greatly by extremes. One class have produced fanatics and the other class have been so afraid they would seem to be akin to fanaticism that they have produced skeptics, infidels, higher critics, etc.

The first question is, Do we know that we have salvation? and the second question is like unto this one, Do other people know we have it?

It is not enough to profess; we must possess. What the world wants to know to-day is, are we living up to our profession?—The Evangel.

A RELIGION TO BEWARE OF.

The world likes best a religion that has its claws cut and its teeth drawn; that is simply ornamental, and offends nobody. But if my religion is one that gets the praise of completely unsanctified men, because, as they say, it is so reasonable and sane and moderate, always "kept in its proper place," never making any protest against iniquity and wrong, I may surely ask myself, with serious concern, whether that is the kind of religion under the power of which my Master lived and died, or the kind of religion that should satisfy me as His disciple.—Rev. G. H. Knight.

DISHONEST MERCHANDISING
FRAUDULENT ADVERTISING
UNFAIR COMPETITION
"What Fools these Mortals Be"
An honest business family, consisting of manufacturers, jobbers and retailers, is driving through the forest of distribution to the market place. The woods are beset with hungry wolves, and the only safe route is along the well-marked road of intelligent advertising. The driver is a safe and experienced Advertising director and the members of the party are armed with cash resources, ability and experience, with which they may fight their common enemy, the wolves. They are all anxious to obtain the profits awaiting them at the market place and they show some impatience at the time the journey requires. Finally there is a dispute as to a shorter course to be followed. The manufacturer, the jobber, the retailer and the consumer, each insists on dictating the way. Suddenly they seize the reins and the frightened horses plunge off the established road. Then the men attack each other, each striving to control. Their weapons are turned against each other and immediately their common enemies, Fraudulent Advertising, Dishonest Merchandising, and Unfair Competition come closer to the sleigh. The wolves realize that their victims are being prepared for them. Their jaws snap eagerly in anticipation of the feast. It is evident that the entire party is doomed if the family conflict continues. One by one the members will be dragged down by the wolves. Their fate is inevitable—but harken! Hear those shouts at a distance! Another party is approaching at top speed! There is yet hope, for it is the Vigilance Patrol maintained by The Associated Advertising Clubs of the World. Business will be rescued! The guns of the truth-in-advertising forces will be turned on the marauders and the family will be conducted to the safety of public confidence.

OUR NEW FOREIGN MISSIONARIES.

Miss Mabel Head sends the following sketches of the lives of the missionaries recently appointed for service in the foreign field, and asks that we give space to same:

Within the next few months these consecrated women will sail for their respective fields, and we ask our women to remember them constantly in prayer. May these missionaries feel that a new and deeper power has come into their lives through the earnest supplication of those who are holding the ropes!

Miss Mary Agnes Blackford, St. Louis, Mo. She was born of Christian parents and reared in a Christian atmosphere. Miss Blackford joined the Church when she was nine years of age. After going through public schools, the Wendell Phillips High School in Chicago, the University of Arkansas, and a special course in the University of Chicago, she was brought to Scarritt Bible and Training School for further equipment. She was appointed to work in China.

Miss Lela M. Putnam, Lockhart, Texas. She was born in a Christian home and, being environed by such influences, it was but natural that she joined the Methodist Church at ten years of age. She has always been interested in the work of the Church. She has diplomas from Lockhart High School and the Southwest Texas Normal School. She graduates in the class of 1916 at Scarritt Bible and Training School. Miss Putnam was appointed to work in Brazil.

Miss Etta Lee Woolsey, Bay City, Texas. Miss Woolsey was trained from early childhood in the Church, her father being a Methodist minister in the Texas Conference. When she was nineteen she began active service, but did not answer the call to definite work until 1912. She completed the course in the Gonzales High School in Texas and had one term in the University of Texas at Austin. Miss Woolsey finished the course in Foreign Missions at the Scarritt Bible and Training School in 1915, and will go out to our new work in Africa this year.

Miss Nancy Rebecca Holt, Norfolk, Va. Miss Holt became greatly interested in Christian service in the college through the influence of the Y. W. C. A. Later she entered the Scarritt Bible and Training School to prepare herself for foreign missionary work. She will complete her Bible training at the Bible Teachers' College, New York, this year. Miss Holt was reared by Christian parents and gave her life to God at fourteen years of age. She will sail for Brazil during the summer to take up the work to which she was appointed.

Miss Kathron Wilson grew up in Dodd City, Texas, a small town. At an early age she lost the care of mother and father and she and her brother kept house together. The longing came to give herself to definite service for the Lord. Almost insurmountable difficulties were in the way, but through the providence of God she was able to have two years of training in Scarritt. Miss Wilson was accepted by the Woman's Board of Home Missions and appointed to Galveston, Texas. The need for a nurse to go out to Africa this year was so pressing that Miss Wilson was appealed to and gladly consented to go. A woman, strong, true, tender, faithful, she will enter work in the Belgium Congo in the fall.

Miss Etha Mills is from the Virginia Conference and a graduate of Blackstone Institute. She came to the Methodist Training School, where she took her first year of training. A very close friend of hers was under appointment to Africa, but on account of war conditions this friend went to Japan, and when the appeal was made for one to take the place in Africa, Miss Mills responded with joy. She has spent the past year in Peabody College, getting ready for this sacred work.

A MISSION STUDY SESSION OF THE NATCHITOCHES AUXILIARY.

The Woman's Missionary Society met in study session on Thursday afternoon at the Methodist Church, with a large attendance and several guests. After hymns and devotionals on "Bringing Men to Christ," the hearts of all present were thrilled with the mission message given them so earnestly, so simply and so forcefully by Miss Imogene Scarborough. She had been asked to tell what missions meant to her, but she told what they meant to Christ.

Miss Scarborough gave a vivid picture of the waiting millions in India, Japan, China, and Africa, waiting and starving for the Bread of Life. She lingered longest over Africa, telling of the dark superstition there and the general worship of the evil spirit.

She told the story of the little Indian girl who sold her life for 80 cents, that she might give that much to help carry the gospel to other Indian girls. Jesus meant so much to her that she was willing to live the rest of her life in slavery that other little girls might learn of him, too.

In shameful comparison, she told of many lives in America already offered for missionary service which could not be used because the mission boards could not raise the funds necessary to send them out. In still greater comparison she spoke of God's great love gift to the world. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

This splendid talk was closed with a reminder of the touching incident of Jesus asking Simon Peter three times if he loved him, and receiving each time an affirmative reply, commanded three times, "Feed my sheep." She said that looking down from heaven to-day, Jesus must still be asking those who profess to be his, "Lovest thou me?"

WEDDING BELLS.

That our Co-operative Home in Corinth is known not only for its spirit of "sisterly love," but that it is known for a certain amount of love of the masculine type which has crept in, was demonstrated on the afternoon of April 8th, when it celebrated its first wedding in the Home. The "Big Sister," Deaconess Mary Daniel, was determined that the heart of the little deaf mute bride should be made glad by having a wedding done up in all the usual frills. The local Home Board heartily entered into all the plans, so there were the decorations of ferns, palms, and cut flowers, with the big wedding bell and streamers of tulle; there was the music, wedding march and solo preceding the ceremony; there was the immense wedding cake in which was hidden the ring, the thimble, the coin; and, after the cutting of the cake, there were the refreshments served in the big dining-room to all the guests. Not even the smallest detail was overlooked, even to the bridal bouquet and the rice. Both bride and groom being deaf mutes, Miss Daniel not only gave the bride away, but also interpreted the ceremony. The wedding, as planned and carried out, was truly a sacrament, and each girl-heart was impressed, not as before, with the dignity and sanctity of the marriage tie.—North Mississippi Bulletin.

A NERVOUS BREAKDOWN,

no matter how trivial it appears, may be the beginning of the end of you. The heart and nerves are so closely connected that nothing can affect the nerves without affecting the heart. A shattered nervous system means a weak heart. If you are troubled with palpitation, short breathing, weak and irregular pulse, sleeplessness, swollen ankles, pains on either side of the chest, or the many other symptoms of a nervous breakdown, take "Renovine," the best of nerve tonic, and build up your nervous system. For sale by the best dealers everywhere. Price 50c. and $1.00. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

Calomel Makes You Sick, Ugh!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

THE REAL DEFINITION OF LIFE IS NERVE-FORCE

People often wonder what the difference really is between the living and dead body. Apparently nothing has been taken away, but still the complicated machinery of the body has stopped and cannot be started again. What is missing is "life" and the modern definition of life is "nerve-force."

This nerve-force must be distributed regularly all over the body. Directly it does not run smoothly ill-health will follow.

Dr. Miles' Nervine benefits the health by evening up the distribution of this vital force of life, and by taking all the "jars and jolts" out of the system.

In this conjunction the Rev. C. H. Cox, of Mason City, W. Va., has stated:

"I have found Dr. Miles' Nervine to be unexcelled in all nervous disorders and I have always recommended it to anyone whom I hear is suffering in this way. We also always keep Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills on hand as we feel they are invaluable. No words can truly express the real merit of Dr. Miles' Restorative Remedies."

Dr. Miles' Nervine can be used with advantage in all ailments which have a nervous origin or which have affected the nervous system. It is particularly beneficial in case of sleeplessness, nervousness, epilepsy, hysteria, chronic headache and neuralgia.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is on sale at all drug stores and is strictly guaranteed to benefit you or your money will be refunded by the druggist.

From the Field

Carpenter, Miss.

Dear Dr. Meek: It seems that we must have been a part of God's chosen people when he sent our beloved Brother and Sister Strait to live with us this year. Our Church has taken on new life. We have had services regularly and the attendance has been good every time. Our Sunday school is doing fine work. We will have a children's service next Sunday night. Our prayer-meeting and missionary society are both full of vital interest and inspiration. To convince the readers that our pastor, Brother Strait, is keeping "straight" over here, the Carpenter people are giving him "poundings" every few days.—Lena Price.

Fernwood, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: As chairman of the Publicity Committee, I respectfully request that you make mention of our coming revival meeting in the Christian Advocate. The revival will be a union one, to be participated in by Presbyterian, Methodist, and Baptist Churches. Rev. Ernest Thacker, a noted Presbyterian divine, will preach, and Brother Jeylks, a prominent soloist, will be in charge of the choir. The services, which will be held in our large tabernacle, will begin on Sunday, May 28, and will run two weeks or longer. Committees have been appointed and are at work arranging the preliminaries. Prayer meetings are being held regularly and an earnest effort is being put forth to make the revival a success. Fernwood has for its Methodist pastor Rev. W. H. Saunders, as you know. Brother Saunders has greatly endeared himself to the people of Fernwood by his earnest and faithful endeavors to lead sinners to Christ.

W. E. KELLNER.

Clinton, La.

We have been on the job for four months, but until now we have not burdened you or the readers of the Advocate with a note; so, for fear the brethren may think that Clinton is a non-entity, we are sending you these lines.

Clinton, at the last session of the Conference, was made a station again. It was such once before, but, owing to the bollweevil and crop failures, the work was not able to support a preacher, so it was made the head of a circuit. This fact alone was sufficient to cause spiritual laxity, for no church or congregation can maintain a high state of spiritual life and enthusiasm with only two sermons a month. Notwithstanding this fact, we found a very responsive people, and the work is progressing nicely, under the direction of the Holy Spirit. We have received 15 into the Church so far this year—5 by letter and 10 by vows or on profession of faith. Our Sunday school is growing in interest and in membership. The enrollment has increased from 70 to 100, which is about 10 more than the membership of the church. We have organized a Teacher-training Department, and are expecting great results from it. We hope in the near future to be able to bring the Sunday school up to the standard of efficiency.

We had a splendid Easter service, with a good program by the school, and at the close of this we took an offering for the Methodist Orphanage, realizing $25.71. But the climax came when we gave the children the opportunity of deciding for Christ, and 9 responded from the Sunday school, all were received into the Church. Thank God, for the Sunday school as an evangelistic force in the Church.

We are planning for a revival, to begin on May 30; so we ask the earnest prayers of the Editor and the readers of the Advocate for the success of this season of special effort.

The district conference of the Baton Rouge District will meet with us here in July, and we take this method of inviting the Editor to meet with us upon that occasion.

A. J. COBURN.

Cedar Grove and Longstreet, La. Conf.

Dear Dr. Meek: We are doing the work this year that two men had last year; so we have the opportunity of our life to work, and are hard at it.

Cedar Grove is the industrial addition to the City of Shreveport, and is six miles out, being connected with an electric railway which gives splendid service into the city. Six factories are located here and two more are being built.

This is perhaps the most difficult field in the Louisiana Conference. With a lot of factory workers that seem to be without interest in church affairs, and the attractions of the nearby city, it keeps our hearts and hands full.

We found a small hand of faithful workers here and have been constantly adding to them. We began by pledging almost the entire membership to spend at least five minutes a day in intercessory prayer for our Church; then we reorganized our young people, and organized a ladies' prayer circle, all with one end in view—our revival which began April 9 and closed April 30. Brother R. A. Bozeman came to assist us, and the power of God came to assist him, and, altogether, we had the most wonderful revival this place ever saw. Twenty-two were taken into the Church (and more are to come yet), including a number of the leading men of the town. Some were reached that it was thought impossible to get. They were converted in the home, at church, and Cedar Grove was shaken. There was scarcely a home that did not feel the influence. Eternity will only reveal the great work done. Where godless homes were once, there are now homes of prayer. Perhaps the best work was done among the young people, a number of whom were reclaimed and converted, and they will pray anywhere, and are ready to do anything that they are called on to do.

Brother Bozeman is a young man that has spent the last two years at our Theological schools and is one of the most Spirit-filled men I ever knew. He is a most efficient revivalist, and we pray that he may long be spared to preach the "old-time gospel." No "claptrap methods" are used by him, and when the penitents "pray through" it counts for something.

We had valuable assistance from two of the students, young preachers, from Centenary College—Brothers Henry Bowdon and Earl Moll, both of whom bid fair to do great things in the Master's name.

Our Sunday school has had a steady growth, from 23 the first Sunday in the year to 80 last Sunday, and the best is yet to come.

Longstreet has a choice people who are a working crowd, a good Sunday school, and a good prayer-meeting. We are planning to build Sunday school rooms at each church and a parsonage at Longstreet.

Bell Bower is a small country church, composed of very fine, loyal people. We are praying and planning for greater things at each point.

"We are pressing on the upward way,
New heights we are gaining every day,
Still praying as we onward bound:
Lord, plant our feet on higher ground."

TETTERINE CURES PILES.

Every sufferer from Piles ought to read these words from H. S. Hood, Bellaire, Mich.: "For 16 years I had been a sufferer from itching piles. I got a box of Tetterine and less than half the box made a complete cure." Tetterine gives instant relief in all skin diseases such as Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Ground Itch, etc., and constitutes a permanent remedy. 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

FROM THE UPPER END.

While the weary Elder takes his afternoon nap, I'll pen—no, typewrite—a few notes, Methodistic and otherwise. Grace, Rolling Fork, and the region round about is the whence of his coming. Farming he reports as under fine headway despite the high water disturbances. Of course, the "beloved" gave the people sermons up to the high-water mark—he's capable of doing that. Chapman's garden has emerged from the floods, and is now having a spirited contest between the vegetable and frog families as to supremacy. The Elder reports good congregations. Yesterday closed the Lenten season in our city; for the past week Bishop Bratton has been holding in the Episcopal churches of the city, a mission service. Intelligent, liberal, and fine spirited, he is a favorite in Vicksburg and drew large crowds, which doubtless will result in much good. While conservative, he does not compromise with sin in the least.

A very suggestive notice from Bishop Gunn, of the Natchez Diocese of the Romish Church, has appeared in our city papers. It is an urgent appeal in the interest of a collection to be taken on Easter for a fund to be used in the education of young men for their priesthood. The statement is made that, while the necessities called for $3000, the offering of 1915 amounted to less than $300. So it would seem that our Methodist people are not alone in their lack of appreciation of a better educated ministry. The Bishop states that out of 53 priests in the diocese there are only two native-born Mississippians. To fill these parishes, he says, the only place to go is to the seminary, either in our own country or in Europe, and that it is hard to get vocations among our American boys for Mississippi, and that, therefore, he has to go to the "missionary schools of Europe to help Mississippi." The Bishop further states that there is at present need of a dozen priests for the diocese, and that they have in this country "one student in theology and three in preparatory schools; and wisely does he say that the very existence of the Church depends upon a correction of these conditions. If I may be allowed an appearance of pedantry, I would say to the Methodists of Mississippi, "verbum sat sapienti." They should sit up and take notice.

Doctor, do you remember about that old oaken bucket that hung in the well, and the scenes of your childhood, and all that? Well, I enjoyed the fond recollections which brought them to view last week. A young fellow from the neighborhood of the "loved spots which my infancy knew" asked me to take a forty-mile ride in his Ford. The invitation was at once accepted. "Let me get my hat," I said, and away we go, up hill, down hill, and across the plains, and, bless your life, we have made a trip in two hours, actually rested and comfortable, which to make it used to require more than the daylight of one day, weary and helpless and ready for bed. Now, Meek (excuse me, Doctor), do you wonder that I forgot my years, and the thought that I was a boy again just for the time? The old home! What changes time has wrought there! The orchards are gone, the meadow is no more, the old oaken bucket has given place to a galvanized one, and only the long-handle gourd at the spring in the field has a familiar look. Nevertheless, the cordial welcome given us and the comfortable entertainment by the young folks in the "Big House" refreshed me much, and when, on Friday, I took the Ford again for Vicksburg, I left a great big piece of my heart hid away in those deep, tangled, wild woods. A short stop at the family cemetery brought visions of mother and father and other loved ones, that moistened the cheeks. It was the eve of Easter, and I registered a renewal of the vow to see them face to face when I have crossed the bar. A two hours' run brought us up at the house near by the church, and whatever may become of that peace fiasco of Henry's, I just had to say, "Hurrah for Ford!"

Our Easter, yesterday, was a big day—big congregations, a big Sunday school, big music, and—well, the preacher hasn't heard from the congregations yet, and it's Monday evening. (My, how much noise the Elder is making over that nap—sleep on, poor fellow!)

On my trip I passed through the center of Wells' parish, and, from what came to me from the little birds, he's started at a dangerous pace to keep for four years. He was in town last week, but was riding so high in an auto that he couldn't see such as I—like Dan Tucker, who couldn't see the town for the houses. Roberts has had the outing of his life with Adams, at Flora, where he (Roberts) went in and out for four long years. He turned up at the pastors' meeting this morning, all right—Ford and all. President O'Neil is making great preparation for the closing of Port Gibson Female College, May 5-9. Since the "mud line" is open again, we look for Foreman any day to inspect our habitation—all the mirrors, lights, and fixtures are as when he first (and last) took the inventory. Silver City leads the district as to the salary paid the pastor.

If a like experience fits one for true sympathy, then I can certainly sit up with Sam Steel. Sciatica! Why, my dear sir, it's more like the toothache as long as your leg than anything that ever came my way—visions, not of rapture, but of midnight, and often all-night, promenading burst on me now. Doctors? Medicines? Yes, everything, anything, but one prescription of opium pills, which I turned down, and no relief. From February till December! Electric batteries sending needles to the very bones, and then a fortnight's stay at Sour Lake, Texas, drinking vile water and plastering with mud just to wash it off after drying—no relief yet. I stood up in the vestibule of the car from Sour Lake to New Orleans from 8 p. m. till 7 a. m. I found a doctor of the old school who said, "I'll cure you." "Anything but opium," I said, I tried S. S. S.—no good; but this old gentleman with his "Trifolium compound three times a day in water, with a lithia tablet as needed," did the work in three weeks, and, while having an occasional twinge, I have gone for 15 years like a four-year-old.

Steel, don't get discouraged at this report, but stick to the willows.

It is now 4 p. m., and that Elder still sleeps. Excuse brevity.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 63—No. 20. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3143

WHAT OF YOUR WORK?

Not all that passes among men for genuine and commendable Christian work is so appraised by God. Tho Master in his wonderful Sermon on the Mount tells of fasting, praying, and almsgiving which, because it lacked the right motive, was valueless in the sight of the Heavenly Father. Wonderfully significant are the warning words that fell from the lips of the God-man on that memorable occasion: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied (preached) in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name have done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me ye workers of iniquity."

Scarcely less suggestive is the searching utterance of St. Paul, Christianity's greatest interpreter and expounder: "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Christ Jesus. Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble, every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is."

The only true success for any Christian worker is that which will bring the Master's approval in the great day when every hidden purpose shall be laid bare. The wise man, whether minister or layman, should live and labor in constant recognition of this tremendous truth. If one does this, he will not count it an affliction if it be his part to toil quietly in some unobserved sphere which does not bring him into the limelight.

Is not much of what the world, and even the Church, accounts success for the minister or lay worker superficial or meretricious? Evidently this is true. Yet there are some men who feel that they must have the attention and applause of the multitude, at any price, resorting to secure it, if necessary, to almost any kind of catchy expedient.

Jesus had his day of popularity, but when the people began to see the deeper meaning of his extraordinary teachings and commenced to fall away from him, it did not disconcert him or cause him to speak the truth in tones less definite or to try new methods to win them back. He knew that he was doing what the Father wanted him to do, and that, though his efforts might temporarily seem to be a failure, real success was to be had in no other way, and that his sweet reward would come in the future, when he should ascend to heaven and be given "a name that is above every name."

Happy the disciple who has the spirit of his Lord in this respect!

"Go, labor on; 'tis not for naught;
Thine earthly loss is heavenly gain;
Men heed thee, love thee, praise the not;
The Master praises—what are men?"

A SPLENDID GIFT TO THE LAMAR SCHOOL OF LAW.

Bishop W. A. Candler.

A charming and consecrated daughter of Mississippi has made a beautiful gift to the Law Department of Emory University.

Mrs. S. H. C. Burgin, nee Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, formerly of Corinth, Miss., has given to "The Lamar School of Law" the large and valuable law library of her distinguished father, the late Judge William Hobson Kilpatrick. Thus the library of our School of Law grows daily.

The school will open next September in the most beautiful and imposing law building in the United States, and with the best library of any law school in the South. The method of instruction will be what is known as "The Case Method," and the course of study will extend over three years. An able faculty, consisting of men who have won with distinction their law degrees in the greatest law schools of the world, has been engaged. In Atlanta every court known to the American judicial system, except the United States Supreme Court, holds regular sessions. "The Lamar School of Law," therefore offers unequaled advantages for the study of the law. It takes its place at once among the leading law schools of the United States. This is as it should be. When Emory University opens any department it makes it strong from the start.

"The Lamar School of Law" will be a most appropriate and enduring monument to that noble man and illustrious statesman, Justice Lucius Q. C. Lamar. It will stand in the capital of his native State, Georgia, and will be erected by the gifts of his fellow-citizens of Mississippi, his adopted State, which he loved so well and served so long. It will be a part of Emory University, of which Judge Lamar was an alumnus, being a member of the Class of 1845.

TWO MATTERS OF INTEREST.

By a vote of 113 to 43, the Committee on the Spiritual State of the Church at the Northern Methodist General Conference has recommended that the Book of Discipline be allowed to stand as it is at present concerning the worldly amusements. This is an excellent beginning, but the fight is not yet won. It is stated that there will be a minority report, which doubtless means that there will be a great battle over the question on the floor of the General Conference.

The Committee of Sixty on Methodist Union has made its report to the Conference, but the press dispatches have been too meager to form a definite idea of its nature, and at this writing our Daily Advocate containing it has not come to hand. Apparently, however, the plan of union that will be favored will be quite different from the unification scheme endorsed by our last General Conference. The Committee on Federation that had served for the past four years, of which Bishop Cranston was chairman, in its report to the General Conference stated that the rejection of the basic principle contained in the plan of unification proposed by the Joint Commission would likely result in the defeat of the union movement. In a few days it will be definitely known what the mind of the Northern Church is concerning this important matter.

WHAT MAY FOLLOW THE EUROPEAN WAR.

There are many who think that Lord Rosebery, the distinguished statesman and author, is the most brilliant living Englishman, and what he says is well worth attention. The following utterance as to what may be the after-effect of the present colossal war in the Old World, which he has lately made, is quite interesting:

"One thing is absolutely certain: Tho war will leave all the combatants, whether victorious or otherwise, financially exhausted. It will mean general impoverishment all over Europe, both of the individual and of the State, and that impoverishment must immediately produce new social conditions. That is a grave outlook.

"No one knows whether the condition of affairs after the war will be a real and permanent peace or a constantly armed anticipation of war. It depends on the policy of the States of Europe—whether they will come to realize the hideous curse inherent in war, both to the victors and losers.

"There is a third condition: Our millions of men will return with a new spirit and new view of the world. They will be supermen, and they must inevitably control the future of this country. They will bring back self-respect and the respect of others. Character is another inestimable asset that they will bring.

"What is this war but a conflict of character, a conflict between the gallant, reckless, confident Briton and the cold, calculating nation of assassins who, through a whole generation, have devoted all their resources of science and knowledge to the preparation of a hideous conspiracy against their neighbors and the liberties of all men?

"If the Prussians win, it will enclose Europe in a coffin with a Prussian sentinel to guard it."

QUITE CORRECT.

The Presbyterian Journal, our worthy New Orleans contemporary, of May 3, says: "Emory University, in Atlanta, the earliest thought of the establishment of which was in May, 1914, has already in endowment, buildings, etc., property amounting to $2,676,951. It is now entering upon a great campaign to raise two millions more. With this great institution, and its lively and growing sister in Dallas, the Methodist Church does not feel that it has lost much in the alienation from it of its interests in Vanderbilt."

The Journal is quite correct in this observation. The only concern of our Church now with respect to Vanderbilt University is to get entirely disentangled from it.

THE GREAT COMPANION.

Are you a disciple of the Lord Jesus? If so, he says to you, "I am with you always." That overflows all the regrets of the past and all the possibilities of the future, and most certainly includes the present. Therefore, at this very moment, as surely as our eyes rest on this page, so surely is the Lord Jesus with you. "I am" is neither "I was," nor "I will be." It is always abreast of our lives, always encompassing us with salvation. It is a splendid, perpetual "now."—Frances Ridley Havergal.

THE PREACHER.

He who enters the office and work of a preacher occupies the most serious and responsible position that can come to a human creature. The message he bears is the "Gospel of God." He must represent the holiness and the righteousness of God. He must at the same time be a prophet of hope. The high claims of God must be maintained and sinners won to accept life. It is easy, at least in a perfunctory way, to make much of the wrath of God. It may be even pleasing to the flesh, under some conditions, to know that Nineveh will perish in forty days for its sins. On the other hand, the tender nature may find it easy to open wide the door of hope to all who are in danger, and leave none out in the night and storm.

The following little poem, written of Rev. Dr. Elmslie of Aberdeen, Scotland, seems to me, to give a perfect picture of what a preacher should be:

"He held the lamp of truth that day
So low that none could miss the way;
And yet so high, to bring in sight
That picture fair—the world's great Light;
That gazing up—the lamp between—
The hand that held it scaree was seen.

"He held the pitcher, stooping low,
To lips of little ones below;
Then raised it to the weary saint,
And bade him drink, when sick and faint.
They drank—the pitcher thus between—
The hand that held it scaree was seen.

"He blew the trumpet soft and clear,
That trembling sinners need not fear;
And then with louder note and bold,
To raze the walls of Satan's hold;
The trumpet coming thus between—
The hand that held it scarce was seen.

"But when the captain says, 'Well done,
Thou good and faithful servant—come!
Lay down the pitcher and the lamp,
Lay down the trumpet—leave the camp,'
The weary hands will then be seen,
Clasped in those pierced ones—naught between."

New Orleans, La. P. A. SOWELL.

THREE QUESTIONS ASKED BY A MODERN METHODIST WOMAN.

By Rev. E. G. B. Mann, D.D.

We think it well at times to get the ideas of persons who do not think exactly as we do. A good opportunity of that kind came recently. A lady from Chicago, whose husband is a preacher in the Rock River Conference, Methodist Episcopal Church, attended services in a revival meeting we were holding in a Kentucky town.

Afterward, on a railway train, she asked us three questions. Perhaps others might be interested in her questions. The answers to be given here are more elaborate than we had time to give when the questions were asked.

First Question.

"Do you not think the Church should advocate censorship over the motion pictures, and let the people get the educative influence of them, rather than to oppose the picture show altogether?"

Answer: "Yes, if censorship could be made a success, but no censorship yet inaugurated has been very successful." Those who receive the largest gains from the picture show business seem to have learned the art of manipulating the selection of boards to censor pictures, and if they can get the men they want on the boards, then the public has no protection at last. The theory of censorship is a nice theory, but its good effects on the motion picture business seem so far to have been only negligible.

The motion picture machine is one of the greatest inventions of modern times, and should have proven a blessing to this generation, but alas! it has been prostituted to the almost exclusive use of money-making, and not only trivial things abound on the screen, but things base and vile are presented, to such an extent that the lessons and impressions received are, for the most part, hurtful.

If the picture show should be brought under strict censorship in the United States, the institution would disappear in a few weeks as a business enterprise, because it would be unprofitable, and would leave the use of that wonderful machine for safe and sane purposes.

The picture show habit, the picture show manners, the picture show crowds, have become a menace to public health and public morals; and while a great many good people go to see just such pictures as they know are clean and profitable, yet the time will soon come when school teachers, preachers, reformers, and all people who stand strongly for high morality, will have to make united and determined warfare against the motion picture show.

Second Question.

"Do you think it well for the ministers and churches to still protest against dancing among the young people, since young people must have some amusements and recreations?" "The churches of my denomination, in fact none of the churches," she said, "manifest any interest in opposing such things, as far as I know."

Answer: Our denomination opposes dancing and makes it unlawful to teach lessons in modern dancing or practice it. We, as ministers, feel compelled to advise strongly against the practice of dancing because we believe it is injurious to the spiritual life, and more, it has led thousands of young people to sure destruction.

Not every young person who dances does so through evil intention, as we have known many young persons who seemed pure and good to engage in it, but we believe many fall under the subtle and dangerous influences which belong to the different features of modern dancing, and that its influence, on the whole, is worldly, and, to an alarming degree, sinful!

Through the questions of our sister from the North we could better understand this clamor throughout the bounds of the Methodist Episcopal Church to have the General Conference of that Church remove from the Discipline all specific prohibitions of different forms of worldliness.

We hope the General Conference will not heed this clamor of the worldly element in the Church, led by a like element outside the Church, which the secular press stands ready to serve for the sake of sensation and press filling. If the Church should withdraw its opposition to the dance, the theater, and saloon, it would not be long until the racing business and prize fighting would ask the Church to get broad (?) enough to not oppose them.

Third Question.

The lady for the third question asked if we held many of the old-fashioned Methodist revivals, remarking that the one she had just attended was the first she had seen of the kind for a long time.

Answer: We told her that for several years we had personally conducted ten or twelve such revival meetings every year, in which many hundreds of souls had been converted, and that the only reason we had not held more was because of other important duties which demanded a portion of our time and attention.

We told her that such meetings were still held in many places throughout the bounds of the M. E. Church, South, at which information she seemed surprised.

She remarked that the Methodist Churches in her part of the world were pretty much as the churches of all other denominations, so that "a stranger dropping into any church in Chicago would not be able to tell by the congregation or the preaching what particular denomination it belonged to." She also expressed gratification that it is that way, and referred to the old-time Methodist revival meetings with an air of pity and a look of commiseration for those who would conduct or participate in them.

Food for Reflection.

There is food for reflection in this interview which we have only partially reported. Some things said have not been recalled here, while others have been enlarged upon. But the matters raised for reflection are quite interesting.

Are we as Methodists in America to cease in our insistence against worldly practices by our Church members? Are the times of revival, when souls are positively converted and baptized with the Holy Spirit at the altars of the Church, to be ignored and abandoned? Shall we not longer be distinguished for piety and holy enthusiasm? Is it enough for our congregations at worship to be coldly formal and lacking in former Methodist characteristics, so much so that a stranger could not detect what kind of a church he were worshiping in if he should chance to fall into one of ours? Have we no longer the call felt for us by John Wesley when he asserted that "God had raised up Methodism to spread Scriptural holiness over these lands?"

If the Methodist Episcopal Church has become careless on any of these points, as it is represented to be by the prominent Chicago lady mentioned, a union of American Methodism might not prove the great blessing that has been enthusiastically argued by some.

We have enough problems of worldliness and departure from old-time revivals, and neglect of the higher spiritual life, in our own beloved Methodist Episcopal Church, South, now. We do not need help in that direction. We need encouragement to cling to the "old paths," and to walk in the good way. Our Church stands mainly for a personal experience of salvation and service and devotion to the work of God, and opposition to sin and worldliness. As far as we know, our pulpits are not tainted to any great extent with the teachings of Higher Criticism, or so-called modern thought. We still believe and preach the Bible as the inspired Word of God, and shun the hell it warns us against, and hope for the heaven it promises to all the good and faithful.

If the Methodists of the North still stand for old-time Methodism, that is, for "Christianity in earnest," we should not fear Methodist union, but if they compromise with the godless element on the question of worldly amusements, and have largely given up revivals of religion, and intend to tolerate teachers of Higher Criticism in their schools and pulpits, then our Church would do well to hold back on the union question.—The Central Methodist.

A GREAT OCCASION.

Dear Dr. Meek: I came to Louisville, Ky., last Friday morning, May 5, and, after breakfast, went to our new Church Extension building at 1115 Fourth Avenue, where I found our Secretary, Rev. W. F. McMurry, D. D., and a large company of representatives of Conference Boards of Church Extension busily engaged in discussing the problems of their work. Their conference was a most interesting one. Our own Rev. W. S. Lagrone was a vital factor in the discussions, as he always is, in whatever matter he undertakes.

On Saturday morning the President of the General Board of Church Extension, Mr. T. L. Jefferson, called us to order, when Bishop E. R. Hendrix conducted the devotional exercises, which being finished, and other preliminaries disposed of, several prominent gentlemen of other Churches and business men were presented and made interesting talks relative to our new and imposing building, our uusurpassed General Secretary, Dr. McMurry, and our successful work in church building. In some of these speeches utterances great in spiritual meaning were made. I wish all our people might have heard them.

At night, several hundred were entertained at a banquet given by the City Board of Trade in honor of our Church Extension Board, the first time such recognition had been given a denominational body. On the platform were speakers of various churches, all men of leadership and rare ability, all commending the Church of God and the brotherhood of man. One most impressive deliverance was that of a Jewish Rabbi on Brotherly Love. Every genuinely warm Christian heart was responsive to his sentiments.

Of course, there were many fine sermons delivered in all parts of the city and round about, but our Fourth Avenue Church, of which Dr. Frank M. Thomas is the popular and efficient pastor, was the center to me, for there at 11 a. m. our great Bishop Denny preached a sermou which, for clearness of thought, moral conception, and spiritual value, could rarely be equaled. He did not make that sermon—it grew in the heart and soul. Then in the afternoon came the dedicatory exercises, after an extended program participated in by several. The chief feature was the ringing address of Rev. S. A. Steel, D. D., in his own imimitable style and power. He spoke on "The Challenge of the Church," showing that church building in a way to extend and preserve the interests of God's Kingdom was our present great work. At night Bishops Hoss and Candler spoke on Asbury, and these masters of speech used well their subject and greatly edified their hearers.

Monday and Tuesday were days of hard discriminating work for our Board. There were 402 claims presented, all needy and worthy. Many were cases of distress. To these were added some emergency cases. But how could the Board meet these real needs when it did not have the real cash? Well, we went into all of them and did our best to place the money where it should go. But for Dr. McMurry's almost unapproachable skill, tact, and capacity for work, this work could not be handled so well. How many men could hold every feature of these more than 400 claims in his mind and give them out on a moment's notice? The Church can never repay him for his work in this cause.

I am constrained to ask, when will our elders, pastors, and church officials learn to build churches in a business way, observing the basic principles of business? Unwise plans, mismanagement, and crazy financing create more pathetic cases than nearly anything else. Let us all observe the law of our Church, be careful, and not create by error a condition that tears can not remedy.

Three most interesting persons in attendance at this meeting of the Board were Rev. E. J. Stanley, Mrs. David Morton, and dear Bishop Wilson, who have been from the first intimately associated with the work.

There are so many things I could say about this great meeting that I shall have to leave off lest i embarrass the Editor, and the readers, too.

BEN P. JACO.

Louisville, Ky., May 9.

COMMENCEMENT AT PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D. D.

On Tuesday, May 9, this old and honored institution closed a very suceessful session, which was the seventy-third in its history. Not having all the data before me, I will not say the most successful session; and, yet who has ever known of a Bishop elected that was not a Bishop horn, or a school Commencement that was not its very best? However, if dormitories taxed to their capacity, full classes, and a splendidly arranged program means success, then President O'Neil has concluded a very successful session indeed. The technical standing of the college we leave to those better informed, but in the more essential matter of training there is abundance of evidence that O'Neil and his co-workers are making good, and, after all, this is the crucial test in every effort. Had the weather bureau been consulted in the arrangement of the closing season, more delightful conditions could not have been furnished—"ideal" expresses all.

Speaking of the past six sessions, I was more than ever agreeably impressed with the increased attendance upon the exercises by the people of the community as well as by the number of preachers of the Conference.

Dr. Featherstun's address to the graduating class was full of helpful suggestions and presented visions that doubtless will prove of inspiration, to those especially in mind, for years to come. A class of thirteen in regular courses received diplomas, and several special certificates were awarded.

The President's report to the Board of Trustees was approved—not by a paper resolution, but by an assured co-operation in the fuller usefulness of the institution. Among the 106 students enrolled there was not a serious case of sickness during the entire session. For healthfulness and educational advantages, Port Gibson possesses features that would suggest a letter to President O'Neil before parents decide where to send their daughters.

SEVENTIETH ANNUAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

By R. B. Eleazer.

The Board of Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, held its seventieth annual session in Nashville May 2-5, and enters upon its seventy-first year stronger and with more encouraging prospects than ever before in its history. The meeting was a very busy one, a great many important questions being carefully considered, involving a vast amount of detail. Reports were heard from the officials of the Board, from the Bishops in charge of mission fields, and from a number of missionaries present. From every quarter signs of progress were reported, and opportunities limited only by the response of the home Church to the appeal of the world's great need. So voluminous was the business of the meeting that only a brief outline of the more salient features can here be attempted.

Financial Status.

The Church will perhaps be most interested to know that the financial status of the Board shows decided improvement. The report of the commission on finance, presented by Bishop John C. Kilgo, indicated that $48,000 of the Board's standing debt had been retired during the year 1915 in addition to a payment of $17,000 which wiped out the Brazil debt, making really a net reduction of more than $60,000. It was shown that by careful administration in the Foreign Department $16,000 had been saved on the appropriations for 1915, and $8000 in the Home Department. The receipts for the year were $76,419 in excess of those for 1914, and were as follows: Foreign Department—general work, $627,282.38; woman's work, $292,341.20. Total foreign work, $919,623.58. Home Department: general work, $115,487.99; woman's work, $273,816.76. Total home work, $389,303.75. Grand total, $1,308,928.33.

The expense of administration, which was under close scrutiny of the committee and the Board, figured a fraction over seven per cent. Adding perhaps three per cent for interest, made necessary by the Board's debt and by late remittances, would make a total of about ten per cent, leaving ninety per cent of every missionary dollar to go directly into the work itself. This percentage of expense, it was shown, compares quite favorably with that of other Boards of our own and other Churches.

Readjustment in Mexico.

The proposed readjustment of the work in Mexico, by which nine Boards are seeking to eliminate competition and to substitute co-operation as far as possible in the interest of economy, efficiency, and a more adequate occupation of the field, came up again for attention because of a request from certain of the missionaries who do not favor the plan that their representatives should be heard by the Board in regard to the matter. Almost a whole day was devoted to a thorough discussion of the question. Six missionaries from Mexico were present and spoke on the matter: Rev. J. F. Corbin, D. W. Carter, and J. B. Cox, opposing the plan, and Rev. F. S. Onderdonk, Miss Esther Case and Mary E. Massey favoring it. Bishop Candler introduced a resolution reaffirming the action taken by the Board last year by which the question of boundary lines in Mexico was referred to the General Conference. Bishop Candler's resolution provided in addition that all the other questions of co-operation involved should be deferred and held inoperative pending action by the General Conference. The Board having twice acted on the question, declined by a vote of thirty-one to twelve to take further action, and the resolution was lost, after full discussion.

Later, in order to allay any anxiety that might possibly exist with regard to the attitude of the administration to this matter, the General Secretary read the following statement signed by himself and the foreign secretaries, Dr. Ed F. Cook and Miss Mabel Head: "Inasmuch as rumors have reached our ears and certain published statements have appeared in the press to the effect that the affairs of the Board in Mexico were being administered in the interest and furtherance of the proposed readjustment of boundary lines, we wish expressly to declare that there is not the shadow of a basis in fact for such statements, and it is our purpose to administer our affairs in Mexico, directly and indirectly, in the letter and spirit of the Board's action, without reference to one view or the other concerning this boundary matter until the General Conference has acted on the same."

Appropriations.

The recommendation of the Estimate Committee's appropriations for the year 1917 were made, aggregating the following for the several departments: Foreign Department: general work, $399,650; woman's work, $235,011. Home Department: general work, $117,550; woman's work, $149,213.16.

Space does not permit an itemized statement of the appropriations in the several departments, but these will be given the Church through the connectional organs.

New Members.

The resignations of Mr. W. R. Cole, of Nashville, Tenn., and Mr. R. H. Johnson, of Bradentown, Fla., were presented and accepted with regret. To succeed them the Board elected to membership Mr. P. D. Maddin, of Nashville, and Mr. W. C. Ivey, of Lynchburg, Va.

Missionaries Present.

In addition to the missionaries to Mexico mentioned above, there were present and addressed the Board, Rev. J. A. G. Shipley and Prof. N. Gist Gee, of China; and Rev. H. B. Bardwell, of Cuba.

The following, under appointment for the Congo, who expect to sail next summer, were presented to the Board and spoke briefly, expressing their sense of joy and privilege in being permitted to go to Africa: Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Anker, Dr. Hugh D. White, and Miss Etha Mills.

THE BOARD OF MISSIONS AND OUR MEXICAN WORK.

(By the Editor)

We are printing in this issue of the Advocate a report of the late meeting of the General Board of Missions, from the pen of Rev. R. B. Eleazer, many features of which are quite interesting. As will be noted, the "Protest" made by a considerable number of our Mexican missionaries against the Cincinnati scheme of uprooting and rearranging our work in that country was discussed and rejected. In this connection, after the resolution introduced by Bishop Candler (which is explained by Brother Eleazer) had been voted down, the following statement, signed by Dr. W. W. Pinson, Dr. Ed. F. Cook, and Miss Mabel Head, the chief administrative officers of our foreign missionary work, was read to the Board:

"Inasmuch as rumors have reached our ears and certain statements have appeared in the press to the effect that the affairs of the Board in Mexico were being administered in the interest and furtherance of the proposed readjustment of boundary lines, we wish expressly to declare that there is not the shadow of a basis in fact for such statement, and that it is our purpose to continue to administer the Board's affairs in Mexico, both directly and indirectly, in the letter and spirit of the Board's action, without reference to one view or the other concerning this boundary matter, until the General Conference has acted on the same."

Being a regular and pretty careful reader of all the Church papers of Southern Methodism, we have seen in none of them any statement bearing upon this matter of administration except one which was contained in the New Orleans Christian Advocate of April 6, 1916, and which was in part copied by the Raleigh Christian Advocate. As some of our readers may remember that we had something to say relative to this subject, and as they may not have our utterance before them, it may appear to them that we made a representation to the public which was of a kind to justify the aforementioned Secretaries in affirming it not to have "the shadow of a basis in fact." To be sure, we do not know, for a certainty, that these officials had reference to us, but we are not willing to risk the possibility of having ourself placed, even by implication or inference, in such a light before our readers and the general Methodist public; so we will proceed to show precisely what we did say and exactly upon what our utterance was based.

What We said.

The only statement bearing upon this matter that we have made, appeared, as we have said, in the Advocate of April 6, and was as follows: "At the meeting of the Board of Missions in the spring of 1915 the matter was again taken up and discussed, the final outcome being that a resolution was adopted leaving the question of rearranging the territory of our missions already established to the next General Conference, which body alone has authority to change Conference boundaries; but it is our understanding that the majority of the Board of Missions, though opposed by most of our Bishops, are proceeding to administer, so far as they can, in harmony with the Cincinnati plan of readjustment."

Let it be noted that we distinctly stated that "the rearranging of territory WAS LEFT to the General Conference," which "alone could change Conference boundaries." This feature was thus clearly eliminated, and the administering to which we referred related to the management or operation of our missionary work in Mexico, in so far as it was in the hands of the Board. And let it also be observed that we did not state that the Secretaries, but "a majority of the Board," were doing this.

Our Statement Fully Justified.

Such was the statement that we really made, and we respectfully submit that it was fully warranted by the facts in the case. Let us see if this is not true.

In his first article in the New Orleans Advocate in which he opened the discussion of this subject in the fall of 1914, Bishop Hoss made the following statement: "'Of course,' say the Secretaries, 'we cannot change Conference lines; but we can withdraw men and money, and leave the congregations to sink or swim. We can go further than that, and turn over the territory to the Campbellites and Baptists as we design doing, as their special responsibility."

We have been acquainted with some pretty considerable men in our time in both the State and Church, but we have not known one upon the fullness and accuracy of whose information we would more readily rely than we would upon that of Bishop Hoss. Was the Bishop in error in this statement? Was this another instance of "Homer nodding?" Nay, not so; for, after a special session, called in September, 1914, to consider specifically this question, the Board of Missions itself had printed and scattered over the Church an 8-page pamphlet, from which we take the following extract:

"Accepting the proposed readjustment of territory as interpreted by the Cincinnati meeting as meaning the agreement to assume 'primary responsibility' for a given territory and also the agreement not to enter new territory where some other denomination is made primarily responsible, we give our hearty endorsement to the principle of readjustment.

"We recommend the fullest co-operation that this Board and its representatives can give within the limits of the law of the Church and with due regard to Conference lines fixed by the General Conference in working toward the realization of this end. We recommend that in the location of mission stations, of institutions, and in other matters not transgressing either the Discipline or the rights of missionaries or members we do so ADMINISTER our mission in Mexico as to promote the proposed readjustment and co-operation until such time as General Conference action can be secured." (Italics ours.)

This statement of the Board of Missions, was, furthermore, quoted and strongly emphasized in justification of the course of the Secretaries by Dr. W. W. Pinson, the Senior Secretary, in an extended article published in the New Orleans Christian Advocate of December 24, 1914.

But some one may say, another meeting of the Board of Missions was held in May, 1915, to which you referred in your recent statement in the Advocate—possibly some action was taken then which has placed the matter in a different light. To show that this is not true, we will give the record as to what took place touching this question at that session of the Board:

Action in May, 1915.

The printed report of the Board of Missions for 1915 (page 250) shows that on Tuesday, May 11, Bishop Hoss presented the following resolution:

"Whereas the Bishops of our Church have definitely declined to participate in the plan proposed by the Conference held at Cincinnati, Ohio, June 30 to July 1, 1914, and substantially adopted at a called session of this Board on September 29, 1914, looking to the radical readjustment of Conference lines in the Republic of Mexico, holding as they do, that it is not competent for this Board to take any steps affecting Conference boundaries either in home or foreign fields without express direction from the General Conference; and whereas none of the other Boards concerned have ratified the plan proposed by the said Cincinnati Conference, and several of them have directly declined to do so; and whereas a number of our workers in that field are unalterably opposed to many features of the plan in question and have expressed their objection to it in a strong written document; and whereas existing conditions in Mexico are such as to make it impossible at the present time wisely to attempt any radical alteration in our policies for that field; therefore be it Resolved, That this Board does hereby cancel and rescind the action taken by it in September last and leaves the whole matter to be determined and settled by our next General Conference."

Signed: E. E. Hoss, Collins Denny, J. H. McCoy, H. C. Morrison, James Atkins, W. B. Murrah, A. W. Wilson, Joseph S. Key, E. D. Mouzon, R. G. Waterhouse.

Dr. Cook moved that this resolution be set for consideration at 10:30 a. m. Wednesday (the next day). At that time Bishop Hoss (page 253) withdrew his resolution, and submitted in lieu thereof the following, which was adopted by an almost unanimous standing vote:

"Be it resolved, That this Board does hereby suspend the action taken in September last, in so far as it concerns territorial distribution, and leaves that whole matter to be settled and determined by our next General Conference." (Italics ours.)

So it will be seen that the action of the Board of Missions in September, 1915, so far as it related to its work of administration in matters other than boundaries, was left absolutely in tact.

Now we ask the reader to note carefully in the parallel columns below what the Board of Missions said, by formal action, in 1914, and what we said in the Advocate shortly before the late meeting of the Board:

Board of Missions:

"We recommend that in the location of mission stations, of institutions, and in other matters not transgressing the Discipline or the rights of missionaries or members, we do so administer our mission in Mexico as to promote the proposed readjustment and co-operation until such time as the General Conference action can be secured."—(Italics ours.)

Editor of Advocate:

"At the meeting of the Board of Missions in the spring of 1915 the matter was again taken up and discussed, the final outcome being that a resolution was adopted leaving the question of rearranging the territory to the next General Conference which body alone has authority to change Conference boundaries; but it is our understanding that the majority of the Board of Missions, though opposed by most of the Bishops, are proceeding to administer, so far as they can, in harmony with the Cincinnati plan of readjustment."

We challenge any official of the Board of Missions to show wherein in this statement we misrepresented to the slightest extent the Board's own declared attitude. If, then, these Secretaries had reference to us, what ought to be said of the manner in which they have set up and knocked down a straw man of their own making, with the possibility of doing us the injustice of leading the public to believe that we had given out a statement for which "there is not the shadow of a basis in fact?" Of if they had reference to a statement made by somebody else, we submit that the fair and brave thing for them to do is to come from under cover and name the person or persons in question. Let them tell where the utterances at which they were striking appeared and who was their author.

Another Queer Statement.

Unfortunately some of our Missionary Secretaries are not noted for expressing themselves definitely and clearly in their utterances to the public—especially when they discuss these interdenominational doings. Take as an illustration the following paragraph from Dr. Pinson's recent reply to the "Protest" of the Mexican Missionaries, which was issued for general circulation:

"Episcopal Leadership. The Bishops in charge of the work in Mexico, during the three years in which these plans for co-operation have been developed, have initiated or co-operated in every plan and every movement, in which the Board and its Secretaries have taken part. No step has at any time been taken without their knowledge and complete approbation. It must be admitted that our Bishops, by reason of brief and infrequent visits to the field and the frequent changes in their appointments, have not the same opportunity for intimate and detailed knowledge that the missionaries have,, but it would be rash and ungenerous to attribute to them any but the highest motives in administering the responsibilities put upon them by the appointment of their colleagues. Their wider view and their responsibility in relation to the entire work gives them a compensating advantage. Bishop Lambuth, who presided at the Cincinnati Conference and had a large and influential part in shaping its conclusions, had the advantage of sixteen years training as a Missionary Secretary and brought to bear all his experience and unquestioned devotion in this effort at readjustment. One should think twice, especially if he is a missionary, before he assails in violent and unkind terms the administration of our chief pastors as destructive, reckless, or inconsiderate."

We would not for one moment attribute to Dr. Pinson any intention to mislead the public by this statement, but, in all candor, we submit that it is calculated to make the impression upon the public that our Bishops in charge of the Mexican work for the past three years—Morrison, Lambuth, and Candler—are in accord with the Secretaries and the majority of the Board of Missions as to the wisdom and expediency of executing the Cincinnati program. Certainly this is not true of Bishop Candler, who has presided over the Mexican Conferences seven times, and who perhaps knows more about the work in that country than any other Bishop in the Church; for it is well known that he regards the Cincinnati scheme as calculated to injure seriously not only our own interests, but also the cause of Protestant Christianity in general in Mexico. And we doubt if it is true as to Bishop Morrison, for he signed the resolution read by Bishop Hoss at the meeting of the Board of Missions in May, 1915, which was an effort to block, temporarily at least, the whole movement. In fact, the names of all the Bishops were appended to that paper except four: Hendrix, Lambuth, Candler, and Kilgo, and the attitude of Bishop Candler has been stated above and that of Bishop Kilgo is substantially the same as that of the majority of his colleagues.

The effort of Dr. Pinson to strengthen his scheme by appealing to Bishop Lambuth's prestige as a missionary leader is, we think, somewhat unfortunate. We have no disposition to detract from any good service that Bishop Lambuth may have rendered in that or any other capacity, nor would we call in question his conscientiousness in any views that he may hold concerning Church matters. But Bishop Lambuth's later course in the regrettable Vanderbilt controversy has not, in our opinion, been such as to inspire confidence in his judgment or to incline the Church to follow his leadership. It is known that, notwithstanding the outrageous manner in which the Vanderbilt authorities had treated the Church and our College of Bishops had been insulted on the campus of that institution, he attended the alumni banquet soon after the General Conference at Oklahoma City and delivered an encouraging address; and, whether correctly so or not, he is currently reported to be largely in accord with Bishop Hendrix' convictions concerning that renegade school (as well as Church matters in general) and to be keeping in touch with its present administration, which has given us considerable trouble concerning the matter of training our missionaries. If such has been his leadership in perhaps the greatest crisis that has ever confronted our Church, why should he now be held up to us in connection with another liberalistic and un-Methodistic movement as one whose opinion should carry more weight than that of nearly the whole of our College of Bishops, including Bishop W. A. Candler who, as we have said, has visited Mexico officially seven times and who been the father of our Cuban Mission, where the work is much like that in Mexico, and Bishop Wilson, who more than any other one man may be said to have been the creator of our missionary work in general?

Dr. Pinson's remarks about the lack of first-hand knowledge upon the part of our Bishops as compared with that of the missionaries do not strike us as being specially applicable in this case, as the recent "Protest" that we printed was made by missionaries on the ground, and was answered by absentee Secretaries, who probably have seen less of Mexico than some of our Bishops. So much, for this remarkable sample statement by our Senior Secretary, which, like the one that appears to have been aimed at the Editor of the Advocate, seems to have been rather loosely strung together.

Not Surprised.

But were we not surprised that the Board of Missions stood against the view of the protesting Mexican missionaries, as voiced in Bishop Candler's resolution, by so large a majority? By no means. This was exactly what we expected would take place. Why we looked for this result the space is not at our disposal to tell now, but we may do so in the next issue of the Advocate.

REV. R. A. ELLIS DEAD.

Dear Doctor Meek: At five o'clock yesterday (Saturday) morning, May 13, Rev. R. A. Ellis, of the North Mississippi Conference, who made his home here with his son, Mr. J. B. Ellis, unexpectedly passed to the great beyond. Brother Ellis, though feeble, was supposed to be in his usual health on retiring Friday night. He was on the streets Friday. Members of the family were aroused by him at about three o'clock a. m. Saturday. He was not, even then, thought to be seriously ill, but at five o'clock he passed away without a struggle.

He was buried this morning from the Methodist Church, the funeral services being conducted by Rev. W. M. Sullivan, pastor of the church, assisted by all the Protestant ministers of the city. Rev. J. A. Bowen, of the North Mississippi Conference, who is here conducting a meeting, made the principal address. Certainly, a good man has gone to his reward. Peace to his ashes!

Brother Ellis was greatly beloved and honored here. Notwithstanding the early hour at which the funeral service was held—9:30 a. m.—the church was full of sorrowing friends.

Yours sincerely,

THOS. J. NORSWORTHY.

REV. W. L. C. WAILES.

William Leonard Covington Wailes, son of Edmund W. Wailes and Mrs. Abbie Gorton Wailes, was born in Waterproof, Tensas Parish, La., on March 22, 1880, and died in Augusta, Ga., on Nov. 24, 1915.

The death of his father when he was only three months old, left Leonard, together with an older sister and brother, to the care of a cultured Christian mother, who bravely faced the future, and with the assistance of her godly father, successfully accomplished the noblest task assigned to woman—that of training childhood. The constant, beautiful unfolding of his life in a social atmosphere then, at least, rather unfavorable to piety, is a glorious testimony to what Divine grace can accomplish through a Christian home and the supplemental influence of a few faithful Sunday school workers.

In the boy's early years he developed a very studious bent of mind, was a great lover of books, as well as of all beautiful things, and when, having completed his secondary education at the age of fifteen, he left home to enter college he was well prepared. He entered Centenary College of Louisiana in September, 1895, and was graduated with the first honor in 1899, having completed the full classical course and receiving the A. B. degree.

Leonard early surrendered his life to Jesus, uniting with the Church at the age of ten years, and though naturally of a timid temperament, he took a public stand as a Christian on the very first day of his absence from home to attend college, and in matters moral and religious he was always as brave as a lion. Indeed, he was as conscientious and pure as any boy I have ever known. During his college days in Jackson he boarded in the home of his aunt, Mrs. Alice Gorton Drake, a truly great Christian character, who exerted an immeasurable influence for good upon the lives of many college students, and who was recently called to her heavenly reward.

From the beginning this bright young student seems to have intepreted his education in terms of preparation for service, and very early he yielded to a Divine call to enter the ministry. He had an unselfish passion for doing good that was always finding expression, and the influence of his beautiful life was constantly felt. For two years after graduation he taught in the public schools of Louisiana in order to defray his expenses in the Theological School, and during this time we find him earnestly working in the religious interest of young people. When in Nashville he spent much of his spare time in visiting the homes of the very poorest and doing what he could to brighten their lives, and also devoted much time to promoting and developing Epworth Leagues. During the interval of his absence from Nashville, when engaged in clerical work in a mining town in Alabama, it is related that he regularly met the trains in the hope of discovering some one in the crowd to whom he could speak on the subject of religion.

In 1901 Mr. Wailes entered Vanderbilt University, but, his work being interrupted by illness, he was unable to complete the course until 1906, at which time he received the B.D. degree and was awarded the Founder's Medal for scholarship.

The story of his special choice of life-work makes a thrilling narrative. During his college days his call to the ministry seems to have taken the form of a call to some definite mission work, the place where God would have him labor not being clear to his mind, though he thought much of China. Parallel with this call and in accord with the tender sympathy of his soul, was a profound interest in the welfare of the Negro race. In the language of President Atkins, "He saw them as those without a shepherd; he saw them as a race, impotent from birth, lying at the Beautiful Gate of the temple of civilization, waiting for some followers of the Christ to extend, not silver and gold, but the hand of confidence and help; he saw them with the open Bible in their hands but with none to instruct." While his friends were dreaming of a brilliant career for him, his missionary call was rapidly crystallizing into a choice of a ministry to these people as his life-work. The peculiarly Christlike nature of this choice may be seen in that he knew it to be entirely counter to the sentiment of many of his Southern relatives and would be a distinct disappointment to them; nor did he know what effect the choice would have upon the fair Southern girl whom he hoped to marry.

Mr. Wailes, after his first session in Vanderbilt, developed typhoid fever, and was so extremely low that his recovery was evidently in answer to prayer, whereupon he felt more than ever that he was needed for the special service. So in 1905, while at Wesley Hall, he definitely offered himself, and in 1906 began work in the Theological Department of Paine College, Augusta, Ga., where he spent the remainder of his life in training those who were in turn to be the shepherds of their own people. During the last two years of his life he had charge of the Physical Science Department.

In 1907 he was married to Miss Maude Henry, of Birmingham, Ala., who joyously interested herself in the chosen work of her consecrated husband.

Prof. Wailes was very highly regarded by Dr. Walker, the President, in whose home he first boarded, as well as by the succeeding Presidents, Dr. Hammond and Dr. Atkins, and by all his associates in labor. He endeared himself greatly to the students, being always sympathetic and patient, while uniformly commanding their respect. His quiet work in Paine College, while not in the limelight of the public eye, was of untold value in the sight of our Father in Heaven and sent forth a stream of holy influence that has blessed the Negro race in the very best way that Southern white men can give their help.

His Christian service was not confined to the sphere of the school—preaching when his services were needed and doing constant personal work. He was the organizer of a Men's Bible Class in the Woodlawn Church, of which he was a member, which grew from a membership of 6 to 125, and which was a great medium of Christian fellowship and service. The men of the class loved him devotedly and honored his memory by holding an impressive memorial service, and by hanging a large portrait on the wall of the classroom.

Fond friends had prayed that the health of his body might prosper as his great soul prospered (see III John: 3), but it was otherwise. As a child he was not robust, and his physical development did not keep pace with the progress of his mind. In the course of his work at Augusta he developed a malady which was finally fatal. On account of his decline in health, the North Georgia Conference deemed it best not to admit him into full connection, though he had successfully passed the period of probation in the North Alabama Conference and had been ordained a deacon. This proved a keen disappointment to him in view of his years of eager preparation and his long-cherished hope of Conference fellowship; but this, as well as all other trials and disappointments, he cheerfuly accepted.

For several years he pursued his work when suffering from disease and fatigue, but he would not give up, when many a man would have faltered.

During his last week on earth, when told that he could not live, he uttered only words of cheerful resignation, patiently awaiting his release. His gentle and heroic soul has now found a higher sphere for the fulfillment of his spiritual ambition. May some one be found to worthily fill his place on earth!

Prof. Wailes is survived by his mother, wife, two sons, and a brother, who will cherish his memory as a priceless treasure.

"The first step towards convincing others of the reality of holiness is to have it yourself."

A PASSION FOR SOULS.

Such was the power of John Hall and Charles H. Spurgeon and Albert Barnes and Edward Kirk and Bishop Simpson; and such has been the power of thousands of humble, unlearned preachers who, filled with a passion for souls, have spoken very commonplace truths but have done it with such a tenderness of heart and such a desire to see men saved, that their words have been marvelously effective. When a man prepares his sermon with this thought uppermost in his mind: "How can I so prepare and preach this sermon as to reach souls?" he will always be interesting; but when his main object is to interest, then he will lose spiritual unction; or when his main object is to instruct, he will generally be dull. It is when he prepares and preaches his sermon so as to reach the heart of the sinner that there will be in it the intensity, passion, and power which all men like in a preacher and in preaching.

We hear many sermons that are bright and interesting but that are without spiritual tenderness and power because there is no passion for souls in them. Said a lawyer recently: "My pastor is a bright man, but you would never think that there were any sinners from anything he says." We hear sermons which display culture and thought, which discuss ethical, moral and religious questions, but which meve no one's heart; for although they are instructive, they are as cold as the dictionary. There is no passion for souls in them. They are religious but not spiritual.

What a passion for souls Wesley and Whitefield and Edwards had! All the great evangelists of the past and present have had it. The great Methodist Church in the first half of its history had but few educated ministers, but it did have a great army of preachers who sought souls and preached "as dying men to dying men," and that was the secret of its wonderful growth.—Zion's Advocate.

The administration of Mayor Mitchel, of New York City, is being highly praised by the best press of the nation for the businesslike manner in which it is conducted. The city which has a conscientious and able mayor with untied hands is very fortunate indeed.

TWO SEEDS.

"I hid a selfish little thought,
To think and think about;
I did not know it would be caught,
Or ever be found out;
But it was like a little seed,
And it began to sprout;
It grew into a little weed,
And blossomed in a pout!

"I hid another little thought,
'Twas pleasant, sweet and kind;
So, if this time it should be caught,
I knew I shouldn't mind.
I thought about it, hour by hour,
'Twas growing all the while;
It blossomed in a lovely flower,
A happy little smile!"

THE FRIENDS.

Betty and Kate were on their way to the church, where all the children were to meet to decorate the church for Children's Day exercises. Betty had her arms full of bright red blossoms, while Kate carried jonquils.

"Oh," said Betty, "I do love the bright flowers! They are so cheerful!"

"Yes," said Kate; "but I like the yellow flowers best because they look like sunshine."

Mr. Jones separated the children into bands. One band was to decorate the right windows and side of the church, while another band was to decorate the other side. In this way Betty and Kate were parted. However, they happened to meet at the back of the church, where Betty was placing a bank of red geraniums.

"Oh," said Kate, "I saved these jonquils for this window, because it is where the sun shines in. My yellow flowers would look better there."

"You can't put them here, because my red ones are here," said Betty.

"Well," said Kate, "I guess you don't own this window." And with a sweep of her hand she brushed the red flowers away and placed the jonquils carefully along the sill. When she looked up, she looked into Mr. Jones' kindly eyes, and she hung her head; and although he had not said a word to her, she defended herself by saying: "The yellow ones are like sunshine, and they had to be in the east window."

However, Mr. Jones began taking them carefully off of the sill and handed them to Kate. He then picked up the geraniums and handed them to Betty; but all he said was: "I think the Father would not want His house decorated like that. This window will be the one bare spot in the church to-morrow."

Kate and Betty did not walk home together. They had intended to march together on the morrow, but there was no thought of that now. Yet neither of them was happy. Each thought about the one bare, unlovely spot in the Father's house.

Early the next morning Kate ran over to Mr. Jones' house and was ushered into his study, where he sat behind his desk. "Good morning, Mr. Jones," said Kate; and for a moment she did not see that there was another little girl in the room; but, sure enough, there stood Betty. If it had been anybody in the world but Betty! She found it hard to tell her errand with Betty standing there looking at her, but Mr. Jones was waiting for her to speak. Finally, in a shamed little voice she said: "That bare east window bothered me, and I thought I would tell you that I would decorate half of it with my flowers and Betty could decorate half of it with her flowers."

But, to her surprise, Mr. Jones said: "No; that won't do. Betty came to me to propose the same thing, but it won't do at all. If there are to be decorations in that window to-day, the red and yellow flowers will have to intermingle."

Two little girls looked at each other. A little smile crept out. Then the dimples came out boldly, and Kate said: "Let's go and pick some fresh flowers."

And Betty said: "All right."

Away they went, forgetting all about saying good-bye to Mr. Jones.

At the exercises that afternoon everybody said: "What a lovely flame of color that east window is!"

Two little girls who sat next to each other were very happy when Mr. Jones said in his address: "The east window is a very bright and beautiful spot in the Father's house to-day. The rich yellow is like gold and represents wealth; while the red is for love, intense and warm. So in this window our Father sees his children's wealth of love, and He hath said: 'If ye love Me, ye must love one another.'"—E. M. Roff, in Christian Observer.

LILLIE AND MAUD.

By Robbie Woods.

One bright summer day, when the sun was setting fast, little Lillie Miller came running into the room where her mother was sitting. "Oh, mother," she said, "Miss Rosa is going to take us to the park, and Maud Anderson, my little playmate, is so poor she can't buy her ticket. Won't father buy her ticket for her, so that she will be my guest?" "She would then be father's guest," said mother. "Why don't you buy it with your own money?" "Oh, mother, I have just enough to buy my ring with, and father is going to bring it Friday eve." "Can't your ring wait, Lillie?" said mother. Lillie left the room hurriedly. She was thinking very fast. Finally, however, she decided to secure the ticket for Maud herself.

Next evening at sunset, when little Lillie got back from the park, she said, "Oh mother, we had a lovely time. It was fun watching the boys ride the little ponies. We girls played dollie and exchanged them, so Maud could hold the nicest one. Hers wasn't so pretty, but it was nice and clean." "I don't think you would have had such a good time if you hadn't been trying to make Maud happy," said her mother.

Holly Springs, Miss.

HIS LIKENESS.

There is a story told of a great sculptor who longed to carve a statue of Christ. He worked upon a block of marble for three years, and then, calling a little child, asked whether she knew who it was.

"No," said the child, "I don't know. It may be some big man; I don't know."

The sculptor knew that he had failed, and falling on his knees in sorrow, he asked the Lord to help him try again.

Years longer he worked and prayed, and prayed, and at last again called a child of the household. "Do you know who it is?" he asked her.

She looked upon the marble face for a moment, and, with tears streaming down her own, cried out: "It is the One who said, 'Come unto me.'"

Then the sculptor knew that he had caught in his marble something of the divine likeness he sought for.

If we are Christians, it ought to be possible for all to see in us some resemblance to Christ. They should be able to point to our patience, our lovingness, our ready forgiveness, our faithfulness, and say, "That is Christ in him."

We could never bring out the likeness alone; but if we will let Jesus work in us and with us, He will develop it surely, so that, though we see it not, our friends cannot fail to recognize His likeness.—Michigan Christian Advocate.

A GREAT DAY AT BOONEVILLE, MISS.

Dear Brother Meek: Yesterday, May 7, observed as Mothers' Day in our Church here, was a red letter day for Booneville. Definite, well organized plans, formulated weeks ago by the pastor, Sunday school superintendent, and Teachers' Council, were carried out in detail, and resulted in what all agree in pronouncing one of the most tender, appropriate and impressive services ever held in our church.

Artistic hands, inspired by love, had converted the building into an exquisite scene of beauty, using for decorations evergreen vines, palms, ferns, and a profusion of glorious white roses. The latter, both by their perfection of form and fragrance, reminded one of Sidney Lanier's immortal lines:

"Perfect roses, each a Holy Grail,
Wherefrom the blood of Beauty doth exhale
Grave raptures round."

Surely, nothing could be more fitting as a decorative sceme for Mothers' Day than white roses, suggesting the purity and unselfish devotion of mother love; and evergreen, symbolic of its undying nature.

The Business Men's Class—which I am happy to have the privilege of teaching—through its auto committee, looked up and brought out to Church every "shut-in," infirm, and aged mother who otherwise could not have attended. Radiant with smiles, the sweet, pale faces of these mothers in Israel shed a softened halo over the whole scene, and their presence seemed to invite the benedictions of heaven upon the occasion, while the solemn hush brooding over the large congregation bespoke its sense of the unseen, but none the less real, presence of a vast concourse of spirit mothers, now numbered with the sainted dead.

The Rosebud Class of young girls greeted the gathering crowd in the vestibule, pinning on each a white or a red rose in memory of a departed or a living mother. The church was packed when the pastor announced as his text, commemorating Mothers' Day, the tender words of the world's one divinely perfect Son: "Behold thy mother!" Profound and appreciative attention was given the discourse throughout.

Our superb choir won new laurels for itself by the wonderfully appropriate music so beautifully rendered, each number perfection of its kind, whether solo, quartet, or chorus by the full-voiced choir.

A touching incident marked the close of the sermon, when an aged gentleman sprang to his feet, came to the chancel and asked permission to pay a public tribute of love to his departed mother. In a few tender, melting words he did honor to her who had watched over his infancy and safely guided his childish feet into the fold of the Good Shepherd.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered to a large number of communicants, amidst a Pentecostal shower of sacred and ecstatic emotions.

We also commemorated the day in a substantial way—the general congregation making a contribution for Church Extension, while the Sunday school pledged the support of a native teacher in China.

We will follow Mothers' Day with Children's Day in the Sunday school next Sunday, at which time—God blessing us—we hope to supplement the promising class of ten bright children already brought into church membership through the Sunday school this spring.

Affairs generally are moving harmoniously, and we are happy in the work.

The Advocate continues to maintain its high standard, and its vital hold upon our hearts.

Cordially,

Booneville, Miss. MARY G. WYATT.

"OUR HELPING FUND."

A brother, a few days since, wrote us as follows: "I am very sorry to tell you that you will have to stop my Advocate. I have not walked a step in 18 months; I am 83 years old and cannot now see to read; but my wife reads to me. I have been a subscriber to our Church paper for many long years, and I do hate to give it up, but I am not able to pay for it any longer." Of course, we couldn't let the Advocate cease to visit that home. We have not a few such calls, and we should be glad to have any of our readers who may feel disposed to do so to contribute to this "Helping Fund." We have received less for it lately than in several years. The Publisher keeps a careful account of all money sent us for this purpose and it is faithfully used in sending the paper to needy and deserving persons who othewise would be without it.

A TIMELY RESOLUTION.

The principal speaker at the anniversary of the Sunday School Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held recently at Saratoga Springs, New York, where the General Conference of that denomination is in session, was delivered by Dr. Lyman Abbott, the scholarly Editor-in-Chief of The Outlook. In the course of his address, which was a notable one, Dr. Abbott, said:

"If our young men had known thoroughly the Bible in other days when Ingersoll was criticising it, they would have met his words with jeers instead of cheers. There is no objection to our studying in our schools a religion founded on fear, but not, as it seems, a religion founded on love. We are allowed to study in our schools every other religion in the world, save our own. We are allowed to study the life and history of other great men, but not of Moses, Paul, Jesus, or Joshua. Our Bible is studied in the State schools of China, but it cannot be studied in those of America."

So profound was the impression made by this utterance of Dr. Abbott, that the following resolution was subsequently introduced in the Methodist General Conference, and at once adopted:

"Whereas the Bible contains the most sublime literature ever written; and whereas in many States it cannot so much as be read in the public schools—we can read, to quote from Dr. Lyman Abbott, about Greek and Roman civilization, but not about Hebrew; we can study about Aristotle, Socrates and Plato, Caesar, Brutus and Cato, but not about Abraham, Moses and Paul—therefore be it

"Resolved, by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now assembled, that we do strongly recommend in such States as where the Bible is now banished by the law, that the laws be changed so that it may be read in all our schools."

This, in our opinion, is a movement in the right direction. We have never looked with much favor upon any scheme, like the Gary plan, which proposed to acquiesce in a method of Bible instruction which would permit the great Book of books to be shut out of our public school buildings. All such programs that we have seen were too much in the nature of a retreat from the historic position of Christianity in this mighty Republic to appeal to us. Surely the time has come for us to assert boldly the rights of our holy religion, which has been declared by our highest courts to be the common law of this Nation, instead of accepting for it a position of mere sufferance alongside imported alien and heathen faiths.

CALLED TO THE HEAVENLY HOME.

Under date of May 13, Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Yazoo City, Miss., writes us as follows: Rev. R. A. Ellis, who was for 37 years an itinerant preacher in the North Mississippi and Northwest Texas Conferences, died suddenly this morning at 5 o'clock in the home of his son here in Yazoo City. He had held the superannuate relation in his Conference since 1909. His last days were bright and his death was triumphant. He was nearly 74 years of age."

Elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate may be found an account of Brother Ellis' obsequies, written by Rev. T. J. Norsworthy.

It is with sincere sorrow that we chronicle the death of this highly esteemed Christian minister. Brother Ellis joined the North Mississippi in 1872 and it was chiefly within its bounds that he wrought for the extension of the Master's kingdom. Possessing an excellent physique, sprightly in intellect, and remarkably fluent in speech, he was attractive in the pulpit and enjoyed a large degree of popularity as a preacher. He was also a faithful and sympathetic pastor who looked well after his flock and who won his way into the hearts of those among whom he labored. He was an occasional contributor to the Church press and issued some of his writings in pamphlet form. He had in a large measure the mind that was in Christ Jesus and he lived and thought upon a high plane. There was never a whisper against the purity and probity of his character. The light that was in him shone with a steady radiance, and was the means of showing many the way to the Cross.

After his retirement from active service in the itinerancy, Brother Ellis had made his home with a son in Yazoo City, where Brother Norsworthy states he bore himself most worthily and was respected and honored by all who knew him. It was there that the Master's summons reached him and bade him ascend to his eternal home in the skies.

We extend sympathy to the sorrowing loved ones, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them in their bereavement.

CENTENNIAL OF THE AMERICAN BIBLE SOCIETY.

By appointment of our College of Bishops, next Sunday, May 21, has been named as the day for celebrating the Centennial of the American Bible Society in our churches. There has been no greater missionary and evangelistic agency at work in the world within the past hundred years than this splendid organization, and it is quite fitting than the rounding out of its century of far-reaching service should be commemorated by the Protestant religious bodies of the United States, all of which are greatly indebted to it, and no one of which could well carry on its work without it. It is to be hoped that all our pastors and congregations will join in this celebration next Sunday and take an offering for this noble Society, as has been suggested.

A WORD OF EXHORTATION.

To the Class of the Second Year, North Mississippi Conference.

Dear Brethren: Tasks titanic will confront the American ministry now in training. Opportunities outmeasuring those of any period of the last hundred years open to-day before the young minister. The world is to be "made over" within the probable period of your service. Preparedness is the pressing need for such a time.

The summer school has never been appreciated as it should be as a factor in the training of men for the work of the ministry. I would call your attention to the following opportunities for study:

1. The Grenada Efficiency Conference planned by Bishop Atkins and the presiding elders.
2. The Seashore Divinity School which convenes at the Seashore Campground.
3. The Summer School at the Candler School of Theology, which offers five or ten weeks' of work, which you may finish in three half-term or three whole-term courses.

If you can spare only a few days and a few dollars, go to Grenada. If you can find ten days and thirty dollars, go to the Seashore. If you can get thirty days and buy a round-trip ticket to Atlanta and pay for board, or if you can secure a scholarship, go to the Candler School of Theology.

Sardis, Miss. JOHN PARK,
Chairman Class of 2nd Year.

NOTICE.

Dear Brother Meek: Please permit me to extend to every Church congregation in Louisiana an invitation to send one or more delegates to the Annual Convention of the Anti-Saloon League of America to be held in Indianapolis, Indiana, June 26-29. The usual reduction of railroad rates will be given. Some congregations ought to send their pastors. A. W. TURNER, Superintendent.

Shreveport, La.

REV. H. S. SPRAGINS COMMENDED.

"Whereas, this is the last year of our presiding elder's quadrennium, and,

"Whereas, Brother H. S. Spragins has gone in and out among us in the spirit of a fellow friend and brother, and has looked with jealous care after the manifold interests of Methodism; be it

"Resolved, That we, the members of this district conference, express our high appreciation of his administration and effective leadership, and extend to him our love, good-will, and best wishes, and pray that the blessings of heaven may continue in abundance upon his ministry."

The above resolution was adopted by a rising vote by the Greenville (Miss.) District Conference at its recent session at Benoit, Miss.

A. T. McILWAIN, Secretary.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. M. Brown, pastor of the Algiers Church, this city, has lately assisted in a successful revival at Burton, La.

Rev. C. A. Battle, pastor of our First Church at Baton Rouge, made the invocation when Hon. R. G. Pleasant was inaugurated Governor of Louisiana last Monday.

Read Dr. Cannon's discussion of the work of the Northern Methodists in Atlanta, which appears on page 13 of this issue of the Advocate.

Rev. S. D. Roberts, of Bernice, La., reports that his work is progressing in an encouraging manner. His letter brought us a club of 5 subscriptions, for which we extend to him our thanks.

Rev. N. B. Harmon, of Magnolia, Miss., who as a pastor ranks with the best, remembered our office with a club of 5 subscribers a few days since. He is having a delightful pastorate in his present field.

The Commencement sermon of the High School at Belzoni, Miss., will be preached next Sunday by Rev. W. M. Sullivan, of Yazoo City. The annual address will be delivered by the Hon. Oscar Johnston, of Clarksdale.

Rev. W. D. Wendel, of Como, Miss., has our hearty thanks for a club of 9 subscriptions. It is Brother Wendel's habit to take care of all the interests of the Church where he labors. The work of his charge is progressing favorably.

Dr. W. W. Pinson and Dr. J. M. Moore, of Nashville, Tenn., the Foreign and Home Missionary Secretaries of our Church, looked in on the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at Saratoga Springs, New York, last week.

As has been announced in the Advocate, Bishop E. E. Hoss will preach the Commencement sermon of Millsaps College on Sunday, June 4. The Baccalaureate Address will be delivered on Tuesday, June 6, by Dr. S. H. Werlein, of New Orleans.

Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner for Emory University in Mississippi, is meeting with gratifying success in raising funds for the Lamar Law School building at Emory University. Let all our preachers and people in that State lend a helping hand in this important work.

Dr. J. W. Beeson, President of Meridian College, states that there are in attendance upon his school a few fine young preachers and some song evangelists who would like to engage in revival work in churches or at camp meetings this summer. Persons desiring such assistance may write Dr. Beeson.

As a result of a late evangelistic campaign, Grace Church, Dallas, Texas, of which Rev. W. J. Johnson is the popular pastor, has had 200 additions to its membership. On a recent evening the church gave a reception to these new members, at which it was estimated a thousand persons were present.

We acknowledge with appreciation the receeption of a club of 10 subscriptions to the Advocate from Rev. W. Winans Drake, our pastor at Minden, La. All the reports that reach us from Minden are to the effect that the work of the Church there is prospering to an unusual degree under Brother Drake's efficient leadership.

Rev. G. W. McLain, of the North Mississippi Conference, writes: "Bishop Murrah has moved us from Sunflower to Lambert, Miss. The latter place will hereafter be my address. Mrs. McLain has recovered sufficiently from her recent operation to return home. We have greatly appreciated the sympathy of the brethren, and their prayers in her behalf."

Through the courtesy of Miss Mamie Frances Sweeney, a member of the graduating class, we have received an invitation to the Commencement exercises of Silliman College, at Clinton, La., which will take place in the chapel of that institution on Tuesday, May 23. Twenty-three young ladies will be awarded diplomas and one a certificate on this interesting occasion.

At the annual meeting of the Mississippi State Medical Association, held at Greenville, Miss., last week, Dr. T. M. Dye, of Clarksdale, was elected president. Dr. Dye is a son of Rev. T. W. Dye, an esteemed North Mississippi Methodist minister, and is an active official in our church at Clarksdale. Dr. Dye will wear worthily the new honors which have come to him.

We have in hand a copy of the program that was prepared for Laymen's Day at the late session of the Meridian District Conference, which was held in the East End Church of Meridian. It was arranged by Dr. Beeson, the District Lay Leader, and embraced a number of live and pertinent topics. Obviously the Meridian District has in it a large number of capable lay workers.

We are indebted to Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of the Louisiana Avenue Church of this city, for the following information: "At the late session of the New Orleans District Conference at Bogalusa, Dr. George S. Brown, Dr. Maurice Do Pass, Mr. C. H. Wasson, Mr. E. D. Elliott, and Mr. A. H. Ahten were named as trustees of the district parsonage property that was ordered to be secured."

The following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions to the Advocate sent in within the past few days: Mrs. J. H. Downey, Bailey, Miss., 4; Rev. J. W. Booth, Merryville, La., 5; Rev. G. A. Baker, Pope, Miss., 3; Rev. W. S. Shipman, Itta Bena, Miss., 3; Rev. Algie S. Oliver, Eden, Miss., 2; Rev. W. W. Murray, Pelahatchie, Miss, 5; Rev. W. W. Perry, Boyce, La., 4.

Rev. R. W. Tucker, the pastor of the Noel Memorial Church of Shreveport, sends us an appreciation of Mrs. Charles Galloway, of Gulfport, Miss., whose death occurred in that city on May 11, 1916. We are unable to publish this tribute in this issue of the Advocate, but it will appear next week. We regretted to learn of the demise of this choice servant of the Master, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Last Sunday was observed as Mothers' Day by our congregation at Starkville, Miss., the service being an interesting and impressive one. After a brief sermon by Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, the highly esteemed pastor, on "Whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life," the roll of church members was called, each being expected to answer to his name. This occasion was one which will not be soon forgotten by those in attendance.

Rev. Thomas J. Norsworthy, the well known evangelist, under date of May 13, writes: "Please allow me to say to the brethren through the Advocate that, as a result of an unexpected cancellation of a meeting date, I have some open time in June, which I should be pleased to give to some brother who may need assistance in a meeting. A letter or telegram addressed to me at Yazoo City, Miss., would receive immediate attention."

Bishop W. B. Murrah, of Memphis, Tenn., who has been suffering with rheumatism for some time, had cancelled all his engagements up to the Millsaps Commencement and has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., to take a course of baths. We trust that this honored servant of the Church will be greatly benefited by his stay at that famous health resort. Bishop Murrah will preach the Commencement sermon of Washington and Lee University (Lexington, Va.) on Sunday, June 10.

Brooksville, Miss., has recently been blessed with a season of spiritual quickening, resulting from a series of special revival services in which the capable pastor, Rev. J. J. Baird, had the assistance of Evangelist J. A. Bowen, of Tupelo, Miss. The singing was led by Rev. John Robertson, of Cochrane, Ala., who showed himself to be skilled in that line of work. There were 13 additions to our Church, and it was stated that a number would join other denominations.

Rev. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, writing from West Springfield, Mass., renews his subscription to the Advocate and takes time to add a few kindly words commendatory of our paper, which are much appreciated. Brother Van Valkenburgh has within recent months had brought out by the Pentecostal Publishing Company, Louisville, Ky., two brief publications which have been highly commended: "Why we have Four Gospels (Price 50 cents), and "Hebrews: What and Who By" (paper, price 10 cents).

The Commencement exercises of Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss., will begin next Sunday, when Bishop James Atkins, of Waynesville, N. C., will deliver the annual sermon at 11 o'clock a. m., and preach again before the College Y. W. C. A. at the evening hour. The Baccalaureate Address will be delivered Monday evening, May 22, by Hon. J. S. Sexton, of Hazlehurst, Miss. The finishing class of this excellent institution this year numbers 18, and 9 other young ladies will be awarded department diplomas.

Just as we are about to begin closing our last forms (Tuesday), the following telegram from Rev. A. H. Williams, our pastor at Strongs, Miss., comes to our desk: "Mrs. Alice Watson, of Strongs, Miss., died at Memphis, Tenn., last night. The funeral service will be held at Strongs to-day at 4 o'clock p. m., conducted by Cunningham and myself." We regret to be informed of the decease of this worthy disciple of the Master, and our heart goes out in sympathy to those who have been stricken by this great sorrow.

Mr. H. H. Ahrens, the well known representative of heThe New Orleans Times-Picayune went to Orlando, Fla., last week to report for the great daily with which he is connected the proceedings of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church, which was due to open its session in that city last Thursday. He was also expected to handle the work of the Associated Press at that great gathering. The Southern Presbyterian Assembly was opened with Dr. W. McF. Alexander, of New Orleans, the retiring Moderator, in the chair.

Writing from New Albany, Miss., some days ago, about the great revival that was then in progress there, Rev. W. M. McIntosh, of Iuka, Miss., who was conducting the services, made the following reference to our pastor and his wife at that place: "Brother Pope has a big hold on the people here and he is doing a great work. If there is any preacher here who is more popular than he is, it is Sister Pope." An account of this gracious spiritual awakening from the pen of Rev. Thomas Cameron appears on another page of this number of the Advocate.

A Memphis (Tenn.) correspondent sends us the following note: "Rev. J. W. Hall and Mrs. Mary Louise Schaefer were married on May 5 at the parsonage of the First Methodist Church of Memphis, Dr. T. E. Sharp officiating. Brother Hall had been a widower for 23 years. He is now the pastor of the Pine Bluff Circuit, in the Little Rock Conference. Mrs. Hall is an accomplished musician, who plays well the piano and pipe organ. She will be a great help to him in his work and home." Brother Hall is well and favorably known in North Mississippi. We extend to him and his helpmeet our hearty congratulations.

Rev. P. H. Griee, our pastor at Mentorum, Miss., was in New Orleans a couple of days last week to secure medical advice. His leg was fractured some time ago when a horse ran away with him, and, after being set, was thought at the expiration of the usual time for a cure in such cases to be all right, but it has lately been giving him considerable trouble again; so an examination was made by means of an X-ray machine, and it was discovered that there is a splinter of bone that will have to be removed. This, we regret to state, will require such an operation as may keep Brother Grice away from his charge for several weeks, but we are happy to know that his final recovery is regarded as a certainty. He returned home last Friday to get things in readiness for coming back to the city and undergoing the surgical treatment that is adjudged to be necessary to give him relief. He is a choice young minister, and we deeply sympathize with him in his affliction.

The service at the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city last Sunday evening was under the direction of the Woman's Missionary Society of that congregation. There was a fair audience present and the exercises were in every respect of a high order. Mrs. Anderson told impressively of "What Carrollton Is Doing for City, Home, and Foreign Missions;" and Rev. N. E. Joyner, the pastor, who took the place of Mrs. I. N. Niebergall, who was unavoidably kept away, made a stirring talk on "The Call from across the Sea to the Women of the Church." Miss Iles, of St. Mark's Hall, then spoke appealingly on "The Call of the Homeland to the Women of the Church," and Mrs. Herr, of the Mary Werlein Mission, discussed informingly "The Call of the City to the Women of the Church." The closing remarks were made by Brother Joyner, the pastor. The exercises were interspersed with specially prepared music, and the occasion was pronounced by all to be a most enjoyable and helpful one. Much regret was expressed that Mrs. Jacob Cohen, the devoted and capable President of the Carrollton Auxiliary, could not, because of illness, be present. She was greatly missed.

HATTIESBURG DISTRICT NOTES.

It is a girl at the Broad Street parsonage! Brother and Sister Terry are happy. May God bless the baby! This makes a net increase of five for the Hattiesburg District in itinerant impedimenta—four of these being girls. Hurrah for the girls!

Our presiding elder is a big man, but is not big enough to down a Children's Day service. He amiably retired from the Main Street conflict, and got the sermon out of his system by preaching to the Court Street congregation. If any presiding elder can escape the watchful attention of the Court Street pastor, he is good at dodging. He knows (for he has been there) that the best way to keep a presiding elder out of mischief is to keep him busy.

The Confederate Veterans' Memorial service was held at the Main Street Methodist Church at 3 o'clock p. m., Sunday, April 30. Rev. G. H. Thompson was the orator of the day. He did well. It was a tender service. Almost all of the grand old heroes have passed away. Only about 20 attended. Captain J. P. Carter, a steward of the Court Street Church, presided over the meeting. A truer and nobler man would be hard to find.

Adams has been running around lively of late. He has attended four district conferences—held at Prentiss, Summit, Biloxi, and Raymond. Some inquisitive brethren are wondering what he is up to. He says that he has visited his people so much that they are tired, and that he is giving them a much needed rest.

Rev. P. H. Howse has lately held a good meeting at McLain. Rev. J. C. Chambers did some fine preaching. T. W. A.

It was on April 10, 1916, that the death angel came into the home of Brother Bob Parker and summoned his wife, Mrs. ELLA PARKER, to her home in the Great Beyond.

Mrs. Parker, a daughter of William and Mary Carter, was born in Jackson County, Mississippi, on October 26, 1875. In 1899 she was married to Bob Parker. To this union four children were added, all of which, with the husband, her father, two sisters, and one brother, are left to mourn her departure. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, when a child. She retained her faith in God, and lived a Christian life until God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to unite her with the Church Triumphant. We regret so much to lose her. She is missed in the home, in the church, and in the community. But we are sure that she felt with St. Paul, "For me to live is Christ, and for me to die is gain." We pray God's blessings upon the hereaved loved ones. Her pastor, J. L. CARTER.

Mrs. MARY A. BARKSDALE (nee White) was born in Jasper County, Miss., on October 28, 1840, and departed this life near Campti, La., on December 20, 1915. Sister Barksdale was married to E. S. Barksdale on January 18, 1860. Of this union were born four children, two of whom still survive—Mr. A. W. Barksdale and Mrs. W. C. Olliver, of Campti, La. Sister Barksdale was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, early in life and remained a faithful member until her death. She was more than a faithful member of the Church—she was a true Christian. She was long a sufferer, but complained very little. She was sympathetic, thoughtful, kind, and very attentive to the sick as long as she was able to go and minister unto them. This home has lost a dear wife and mother, and this church and community a most helpful member. She leaves, besides her loved ones, many friends to mourn their loss. Let me say to the bereaved ones, we know where to find her. Be true to God, and some day in God's own good time you will join the dear one now departed over on the other shore.

E. L. CARGILL.

W. L. CHAMBLIN was born on October 14, 1851, in South Carolina, and moved to Mississippi shortly before the Civil War, where he spent the remainder of his life. He united with the Church early in life and was a useful member, serving in the capacity of Sunday school superintendent a number of years and was a steward at the time of his death.

While on a visit at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Fancher of Crenshaw, Miss., he was taken violently ill. In a short time, realizing that the Reaper was possibly near hy, he gave instructions concerning his effects and said that he would rather have some things in a different shape, but if God willed differently he was resigned. On the night of April 27, 1916, he yielded up his spirit to the God who gave it, his last words heing, "I am rejoicing." Brother Chamhlin was a useful citizen. At the time of his death he was serving his second term on the Board of Supervisors of Panola County, in which office he was rendering splendid service. He was a good man, the esteem in which he was held being shown hy the vast concourse of people at his funeral in his home town—Pleasant Grove, Miss. His grave was a hed of the most beautiful flowers when we turned again to our homes.

As his pastor I feel a personal loss in his death. He was my warm personal friend, and always responded to our need in the Church work. May the Lord whom he loved and who sustained him in his dying hour be very near to his companion, who is so sorely bereft, and to the five children who, though grown and in homes of their own, will so much miss their father's counsel and presence.

A. M. BENNETT.

IN APPRECIATION OF DR. J. A. PARKER.

Dear Dr. Meek: At the suggestion of the pastor special services were held the first of May in memory of the late Dr. J. A. Parker. The pastor preached a suitable sermon for the occasion, after which brief talks in appreciation of Dr. Parker were made hy Dr. J. M. Middleton and Mr. J. H. Mitchel. The following resolution was then adopted by the entire congregation:

"Whereas it has pleased our blessed Heavenly Father to remove from earth Dr. J. A. Parker; and

"Whereas we remember with great pleasure how faithfully he served the Many M. E. Church, South, as pastor years ago; therefore he it

"Resolved, That in the death of Dr. J. A. Parker the Church has lost one of her hest and greatest preachers, hut that our loss is his eternal gain, as he has gone to he with Jesus.

"Resolved, further, That we how in humble suhmission to the will of our Heavenly Father, who doeth all things well." S. D. HOWARD, Pastor.

Many, La.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas God in his infinite wisdom has seen fit to make unto himself Mrs. Lena Brunefield Vetters, one of our most faithful Church memhers and Sunday school workers; and

Whereas, although the summons to her came unexpectedly, we know that she was ready and willing to answer the great roll-call; therefore he it

Resolved, hy the members of the Wesley Adult Bihle Class of the Kentwood (La.) Sunday school, that we herehy express our love and respect for this friend whose voice has heen stilled, and our appreciation of her life which was so loyal and consecrated to the Master and so useful to the Sunday school and the Church; and that we commend her devoted career as a shining example to all.

Resolved 2, That we extend to the memhers of the hereaved family our heartfelt sympathy in their great sorrow.

Resolved 3, That a copy of these resolutions he sent to these grief-stricken ones, and that copies he forwarded to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and the local papers for publication.

Signed: Mrs. Will H. Dillard and Mrs. N. Sears, Committee.

The lesson of all true living in every sphere is to learn our own limitations. It is the first lesson in art, to work within the essential limitations of the particular art. But in dealing with other lives it is perhaps the hardest of all lessons to learn, and submit to our limitations. It is the crowning grace of faith when we are willing to leave those we love in the hands of God, as we leave ourselves.—Hugh Black.

UGH! A Dose of Nasty Galomel

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

TWENTIETH ANNUAL MEETING, BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Other Matters of Moment.

Among the many other matters of vital interest and importance which were acted upon by the Board, the following may be mentioned:

A standing committee was appointed to study the question of self-support of mission churches at home and abroad, and to report to the Board at its next session the most advisable step looking to the development of this spirit.

A similar committee was appointed to suggest means for securing a more continuous and effective supervision of the work in mission lands, a thing to which the missionaries have for years been most earnestly calling attention.

A committee was appointed to cooperate with the Home Secretary, Dr. John M. Moore, in the preparation of a series of tracts on the fundamentals of the Christian faith and of Methodist doctrine.

Centenary of Methodist Missions.

Dr. Pinson called attention to the fact that the year 1919 will be the one hundreth anniversary of the organization of the first American Methodist Missionary Society, and on his suggestion steps were taken looking to a nation-wide observance of this centenary anniversary by the Methodists of North America. Bishop Hendrix was appointed to lay the matter in person before the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now in session in Saratoga, with Dr. Pinson as alternate.

Missions in the Sunday School.

China was again assigned to the Sunday schools for their special foreign missionary interest for the year 1917 and the Mexican work in Texas for their home mission interest. For 1918 the attention of the Sunday schools will be directed to Japan.

Fraternal Greetings.

The Board, through Bishops Wilson, Denny, and Hoss, sent fraternal greetings to the Methodist General Conference now in session, expressing the hope that God's blessings might abide upon all the deliberations of that great assembly.

Boat for the Congo.

The Epworth Leaguers of Texas were authorized at their request to raise as a special a sum sufficient to put a boat upon the upper Congo to operate in connection with the African mission.

The Methodist students of Texas were given authority to raise a special of $4000 to build a church at Passo Fundo, Brazil.

Week of Prayer.

The week preceding Easter was set apart to be observed as an annual Week of Prayer and Self-denial for missions.

The operation of the Soochow Law School for another year was authorized. This is located in Shanghai, and under the charge of Mr. Charles G. Rankin, formerly of Chattanooga.

Tributes were paid to the life and work of Dr Joseph H. Pritchett, one time secretary of the Board, and to Dr. C. F. Reid, the veteran missionary who passed away last summer.

The translation and publication in Portuguese of Wesley's sermons and of Dean Tillet's work on "Personal Salvation" were ordered for the use of the Church in Brazil.

A standing committee was appointed to consider and recommend a plan for harmonizing the various home mission agencies of the Church.

The meetings of the Board were presided over by the President, Mr. John R. Pepper, and the Vice-President, Bishop W. R. Lambuth. Very few of the members were absent. Altogether, the meeting was most satisfactory.

GREENVILLE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Greenville District Conference of the North Mississippi Conference convened at Benoit on Tuesday morning, May 2, with Rev. H. S. Spragins, the presiding elder, presiding.

The opening sermon was preached on Monday evening at 8 o'clock by Rev. D. R. Wasson, our pastor at Jonestown. As Benoit was the first work Brother Wasson served as a boy preacher, it was indeed a pleasure to the good people there, as well as to the members of the District Conference, to hear his able discourse on the old, but choice, text, John 3:16.

May 2, morning session: The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. R. O. Brown, after which Rev. H. S. Spragins called the Conference to order, and A. T. McIlwain was elected secretary. After roll call, the usual committees were appointed and the Conference got down to business. Brother Spragins made an encouraging report on the work of the district, showing that the work as a whole had made considerable progress. The call of charges was taken up and a number of the pastors made their reports. With preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, the Conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

Afternoon session: The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. R. W. Evans. After the introduction of a few visitors, the call of charges was resumed and a number of pastors reported from their charges.

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, our Sunday School Field Secretary, addressed the Conference on behalf of the Sunday school work. Brother Gladney is the right man in the right place, and never fails to make a good impression when he talks on Sunday school work. He urged upon the Conference the importance of adopting the late methods in Sunday school work, especially the importance of Teacher-training work.

Rev. W. M. Campbell and Rev. B. P. Jaco addressed the Conference on the Church Extension work. The evening sermon was preached by Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of Tunica.

May 3, morning session: The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. R. Bright. The call of charges was resumed and the pastors concluded their reports. All the reports were very gratifying, showing that all phases of the work are being looked after and that the Church is making progress along all lines. The improvement in the Sunday school work was very noticeable from the reports made by the pastors, which shows that our Church is not lagging in this great (if not the greatest of all) work.

Grenada and Millsaps Colleges were well represented before the Conference, Dr. Lyn representing Millsaps and Rev. B. P. Jaco, Grenada. One of the features of this session was an address by Prof. Donaldson on the Work and Place of the Layman in the Church.

Dr. L. L. Minor was elected District Lay Leader. The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: J. D. Barbee, J. H. Sherard, Dr. L. L. Minor, and J. T. Mathis.

At this point resolutions of endorsement and appreciation of the good work done by our beloved presiding elder were read and adopted by a rising vote. The Secretary was instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication. With preaching at 11 o'clock by Rev. B. P. Jaco, Conference adjourned until 2:30 p. m.

Afternoon session: The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. J. W. Ward. Brother J. H. Sherard read a report on the Orphanage and Hospital work, and made a brief but touching address in behalf of the Hospital movement. Rev. H. M. Ellis also addressed the Conference on behalf of this cause. The various committees made their reports, which, taken in connection with the pastors' reports, showed the work of the district to be in excellent condition.

Despite the inclemency of the weather, the Conference was in every way a success. Brother Wroten, the Conference host, and the good, hospitable people of Benoit had done everything possible to make the delegates enjoy their stay in their midst. They had planned an automobile ride for Tuesday afternoon, but the rain interfered with this pleasure. However, our stay was very pleasant indeed.

There was a degree of sadness connected with the Conference, as we all realized that this was the last Conference, for a while at least, to be presided over by our beloved presiding elder, as this year will complete his quadrennium on the Greenville District. Preachers and laymen alike are loath to give him up. To know Brother Spragins, means to love him.

A. T. McILWAIN, Secretary.

THE CREOLES OF LOUISIANA, the descendants of the original Spanish and French settlers, prided themselves upon their hair—and rightly they should—for it was they who first knew the secret of beautiful hair, the one great successful remedy for hair diseases and the greatest of all hair foods: La Creole Hair Dressing. The recipe was kept a profound secret by the race until about fifty years ago, but now you can reap the benefits of their early discoveries by using "La Creole" hair dressing, the very best dressing for keeping the hair fluffy, light and beautiful.

This wonderful preparation of the Creole race not only cleanses the scalp from all disease and filth, but also renews the life of the hair; makes it light and fluffy; restores to the hair its natural color and original lustre and supplies the hair with oil, food which it requires. No house should be without it. Ask your dealer for it. Price $1.00. Manufactured by VAN VLEET-MANSFIELD DRUG CO., Memphis, Tenn.

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH.

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gall stones, uric acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spent months at the Spas of Europe and were almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered, and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when my friends and physicians though my case was incurable and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If I win you become a life-friend of the Spring. If I lose I will be sorry for you, but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 17-C, Shelton, S. C.
Gentlemen:
I accept your guarantee offer and enclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send, and if it fails to benefit my case you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns which I agree to return promptly.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Good reports are coming in from Childrens' Day. Send the collection to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington, Miss. We need the money now.

Rev. E. Nash Broyles has observed Decision Day several times during the year in his Sunday school at Macon with the best of results. Twenty-three have been added to the Church, and the teachers have been trained to expect conversions constantly. This school, under the leadership of Brother W. E. Stokes, is developing the spirit of evangelism.

It is reported that a thousand and one attended the Sunday school at First Church, Corinth, on the first Sunday in May. The Corinth school is doing things on a big scale. Organization of all the forces had something to do with this fine showing. Let the country churches go at it, and keep at it until every man, woman and child is reached for God in our Conference.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb and Hon. W. W. Magruder are making definite plans to have every member of the church at Starkville present at Sunday school and the preaching service Sunday, May 14. The following is an extract from the letter sent out that gives an idea of the plan: "In order to unite our entire membership in worship and service, and impress more the privileges and responsibilities of Church membership, at the 11 o'clock hour, after a brief sermon on 'Whose names are written in the Lamb's Book of Life,' the roll of the Church will be called, and every member will be expected to answer to his or her name. We love to sing, 'When the roll is called up yonder, I'll be there.' Will you not answer to a roll call here, evidencing your desire to be found faithful and ready when the final summons comes?"

Rev. J. H. Felts, the leader of the forces in the Holly Springs District, is laying hold on all the work of the Church with vigor. He is giving emphasis to the work of the Sunday school in his quarterly meetings over the district. The reports of the preachers at the district conference held at Byhalia showed gains over last year.

The preachers of the Greenville district made excellent reports at their recent district conference held at Benoit. All the men, led by Brother Spragins, are stressing the spiritual life. Every man seemed to be hungering for a deeper work of grace in his own heart. When the preacher magnifies the life of Christ in word and deed, some other hungry soul will be sure to follow. The preacher is the key that unlocks or bars the door to the kingdom. God help us to let Him into His world to speak to it through us!

Rev. W. W. Woollard, of the Columbus district, is setting the pace for his preachers. He has some laymen that are doing work worthy of imitation. He is selecting some of the best work done by the men and sending a sample of it to all his leaders in the district. This kind of definite, practical work will tell on every church under his supervision. We are making progress. Let us thank God and go on to still better things.

The following is a sample of businesslike work done by the Sunday school at Brooksville:

A FAMOUS PHYSICIAN'S WONDERFUL DISCOVERY.

After a series of careful experiments and tests at the Invalids' Hotel and Surigcal Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., covering many years, Dr. Pearce, the medical director of that hospital, made announcement that he could prove that a medicine which he called "ANURIC" was the best uric acid solvent now to be had. As a remedy for those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation, as scalding urine, backache, and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gout, it is simply wonderful how quickly "Anuric" acts: causing the pains and stiffness rapidly to disappear.

Swollen hands, ankles, feet are due to a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally, when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous waste matter, which settles in the feet, ankles and wrists; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

It is just as necessary to keep the kidneys acting properly as to keep the bowels active.

The very best possible way to take care of yourself is to take a glass of hot water before meals and an "Anuric" tablet. In this way it is readily dissolved with the food, picked up by the blood and finally reaches the kidneys, where it has a tonic effect in rebuilding those organs.

Step into the drug store and ask for a 50 cent package of "Anuric," or send Dr. Pierce 10c. for trial pckg "Anuric"—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.—Adv.

DR. J. E. HENDERSON—AN APPRECIATION.

Dr. J. E. Henderson, son of the Rev. W. F. Henderson of the Louisiana Conference, was one of the noblest of men. From a child he had lived a clean life. As a boy and young man he was a respectful and obedient son, and, being studious and industrious, he soon completed his literary course and later graduated in medicine. From the very beginning of his practice he demonstrated unusual ability and met with almost phenomenal success.

In his home Dr. Henderson was a prince, revealing every noble characteristic of the true Christian gentleman—of gentleness, kindness, culture, and refinement.

As a citizen, he was most highly respected and esteemed by all his fellow citizens.

Though the demands of his profession were exceedingly heavy and exacting, Dr. Henderson was one of the most faithful and efficient stewards in the Church with whom it was ever the pleasure of the writer to be associated.

The final summons came to the beloved Doctor in the prime of manhood and in the midst of the busy affairs of life, but he met the issue calmly, with fortitude and faith. With his own medical knowledge and skill and with the best attention that his many friends of the profession could give, he heroically fought for life until he saw that death was inevitable. Then he called the members of his family about him and gave each one a parting message and blessing, and in this great and awful crisis, while he was planning for the future welfare of his family and saying good-by to his loved ones, he did not forget his Church, but spoke of the carrying out of certain plans in which he was interested with his pastor.

Dr. Henderson shall long be held sacredly enshrined in hallowed memory, not alone by his own loved ones, but also by his neighbors and many friends. Although he has gone from us, yet he still lives in the indelible stamp of manly Christian character that he left upon many. The world is richer by his having lived. May God give us more such men, and more such homes as the one in which he was trained; for his life is another tribute to such Christian training as he received at the hands of his godly parents. One who loved him,

WM. H. COLEMAN.

WHY NORTHERN METHODISM IN ATLANTA?

By Rev. James Cannon, D. D.

In view of the fact that one of the questions which is likely to receive considerable consideration at the approaching General Conference of the Northern Methodist Church is the unification of Methodism, the situation in Atlanta is more interesting than it would otherwise be.

Since the last Northern Methodist General Conference Bishop Leete has been in charge of the District of that church, which includes Atlanta. As there are between three and four thousand negro members of that Church, and no negro Bishops, if the negro Conferences are to have resident episcopal supervision, a white Bishop must furnish that supervision and live in the territory where the negroes reside. Hence, there is a good and sufficient reason for Bishop Leete's residence in Atlanta, or in any other Southern city, where there are so many negro members.

But Bishop Leete was not satisfied to he a Bishop to the negro members of his Church. He seems to have the idea that he has also a special mission to the "unchurched" white people of the South, and especially to such persons in the city of Atlanta. And so he has projected a costly church in the heart of Atlanta, within a stone's throw of our St. Mark's on the one side, not far from our First Church on the other side, and our Grace Church is comparatively near on the eastward.

This enterprise has been inaugurated, not by an irresponsible, accidental sojourner, or hy dissatisfied church members, but by the authority of a Bishop of their Church, and it has, as this editor understands, been approved by the Church Extension Board of the Northern Church, on the ground that it would minister to a great need, and give a place to worship to the unchurched masses. The implication is, of course, that our own Church is not meeting the needs of the white people who prefer the Methodist Church, and so Bishop Leete is preparing to fill the gap hy building a Northern Church in the center of Atlanta.

What Are the Facts?

Bishop Leete evidently did not look up the facts, for he cannot justify his position in the face of the facts. If he could prove that Southern Methodism in Georgia, or in Atlanta, is waning, or is even standing still and making no progress, then he could show some semhlance of reason for his course. But the following figures show that neither Georgia nor Atlanta Methodism has waned for many years, hut, on the contrary, hoth have shown great growth.

Georgia Methodism from 1901 to 1915.

Total membership North Georgia Conference, 1901	99,792
Total membership South Georgia Conferenoe, 1901.....	64,164
Grand total 163,856

Total membership in 1905.....172,471
	216,999
Increase since 1905.....	44,528

*St. Mark's Church in 1905, members	430
St. Mark's Church in 1915, members	1,052
Increase in ten years.....	622

*This church is within five short blocks of the Northern Methodist Church.

How absurd it is in the face of these figures to claim that there is any need for a white Northern Methodist Church in Atlanta, especially a white Methodist Church, which cannot be built by the people in Atlanta, who desire such a church, but which has such a weak local support that it is necessary to call in the aid of the Church Extension Board and of outside help to get money to build the house. Certainly there is no adequate local clamor for the church, and if it is built, it must be on the missionary basis, and the Church Extension Board of the Northern Church must take the position that there is such a decadent Methodism in Atlanta that the Board is justified in appropriating money for work there, even though there are cities in the North in which the foreign population has created a field for work which far exceeds the ability of the Northern Methodist Church to cover properly.

What is the meaning of this move by Bishop Leete? If the Northern Methodists want organic union as most of them declare that they do, what good will be accomplished by building this church? It will in the event of organic union be simply one more Methodist Church.

Do they want the unification of Methodism by the plan proposed by our General Conference? If so, then there is no reason to build this church. If they want either organic union, or unification by the plan agreed upon by us, then the Atlanta church will be of no value to them.

But if they simply refuse to agree on any plan proposed by us and continue to stand for the present relation, then the Atlanta church may he a future factor, as a stirrer up of strife, and as a center of a propaganda of discord, confusion and disintegration.

The activity of official Northern Methodism in Atlanta presents an exceedingly difficult problem to solve, and causes a man to wonder what will be the attitude of their General Conference toward the question of Methodist union.—Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate.

RHEUMATISM CONQUERED.

R. L. Eastman, Sec. Nashville Board of Trade, Nashville, Tenn., writes: "My attention was called to your remedy, 'Renwar,' for rheumatic troubles. I gave it a trial and have been permanently relieved. It is with pleasure I endorse the merits of 'Renwar' for rheumatism."

"RENWAR," the new, scientific remedy, relieves quickly and permanently rheumatism, by removing from the blood the cause of the trouble, uric acid. Many wonderful cures of cases of long standing are being reported. If you suffer from rheumatism you cannot afford to miss this opportunity to be well again. "Renwar" is sold by all druggists, price 50c per bottle, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price. WARNER DRUG CO., Nashville, Tenn.—Adv.

THE FIRST METHODIST CHURCH OF HATTIESBURG, MISS.

It rejoices me much to note the progress that the First Methodist Church at Hattiesburg has made in its thirty-two years of existence, for it did not exist at all until 1884, in which year Brother B. S. Rayner, the presiding elder, and I organized it. After the presiding elder had preached at eleven o'clock on that Sunday, we organized and announced that we all would reassemble the following afternoon and discuss and decide whether or not we should organize a union Sunday school. Since all were worshiping and preaching in a school building, he favored a union Sunday school; hut after we had returned in the afternoon and singing and prayer had been had, our presiding elder asked me if I wished to say anything. I answered with a speech pertinent to the occasion and endeavored to show the wisdom of each Church having its own school, and, too, after calling attention to the fact that our Discipline required me to organize a Methodist Sunday school if I could get ten persons to join, I asked every one in the audience that would join a Methodist Sunday school to stand up; and fourteen stood up. I then appointed a temporary superintendent, under the direction of our presiding elder, and we went forward with that great work with increasing numbers and interest, giving First Church, Hattiesburg, the commendable record of having a Sunday school the very day of its beginning, and all along its existence.

Of course, the next matter that engaged us, after defeating the whiskey business and incorporating Hattiesburg, was that of building a house of worship and service. I applied to our quarterly conference for a building committee and was not only denied one, but my presiding elder and quarterly conference laughed at me for asking for such a committee at such a time. I replied to all of it hy saying: "I shall build, anyhow." They said: "We shall not object." The first step towards the said church building, was that of a suitable lot. I was anxious to secure an acre lot for I was impressed that the time would come when it would be needed for a magnificent brick structure and an up-to-date parsonage. I wanted it where the old church now stands and constrained the owner of the said acre lot to sell it to me if he sold it at all (for he said he wanted three-fourths of it for his own residence), and hence I secured one-fourth of it, anyhow, before leaving for another appointment thirty miles away. To my great disappointment when I returned I learned that the three-fourths were sold to another party for a residence, although I had assured the owner that I preferred, and therefore did pledge, to give him more than he was asking for it if necessary, in order to get it. Knowing that what I had secured was of sufficient dimensions for a building necessary for our needs for a few years, I began felling the growths on it and burning them and the brush and wastes that had been thrown on it from adjoining lots. Being in favor with the colored people, two or three colored men dug up the stumps as their donation to our building. Brother Fairly, who owned a sawmill near, hauled from the lot all the sawable logs, allowing me quite a hargain for them in lumber. With that as a beginning, and after collecting the remaining amount necessary for the frame, when all the materials for same were on the lot, I invited brethren who could give work easier than money to come on a fixed day and help a carpenter and me to construct the frame. Before the frame was completed, every one began not only to realize the possibility of building a church, and, too, that I was determined to build one, but even the most indifferent ones began to become enthused, and the presiding elder enlisted with a whole heart that counted for much, and soon we had the first church building ever erected in Hattiesburg ready for use. Other denominations awoke to the possibility of building churches in a beginning town, and hence in about twelve months after ours another church was built, and on the zeal for church buildings has burned, and, thanks to God, it seems to grow more intense in Hattiesburg as the years come and pass.

In 1896 I was reappointed to Hattieshurg as a station, and during my second year as pastor we entertained the first Annual Conference ever held there. Its sessions were held in the public school building, which was a spacious modern building. We would have been reappointed to Hattiesburg the third year, had it not been for my wife's ill health and her earnest request that we should he moved. Bishop Galloway said he thought it was a mistake to move us. I am sorry that the dedication of the magnificent building erected hy other untiring brethren since my day there is at a time that forfends my attendance. It would delight me to he with Brother Crisler and his brethren and hear Bishop McCoy.

May God bless Brother Crisler and his brethren in their great work and help them to be faithful to the end of their earthly career!

THE YOUNG PEOLE'S WORK IN THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

As did Isaiah of old, I want to "make mention that His name is exalted" and to declare his doings among the people. Who doubts that the interests of the world are to-day, nnder God, in the hands of the young people? When we make clear to the minds and to the conscience of the young people the needs of God's children, and that he has need of them all, how quickly they respond.

We are so glad to report ten new Y. P. M. S. gained the first quarter, namely: Long Beach, Hattiesburg (Main Street), Hickory, Canton (2nd division), Philadelphia, Fernwood, Purvis, Lumberton, Bolton, and Laurel. The Newton District leads in the number of new anilliaries. As ever, onr greatest need is more enlightened leaders. "An enlightened woman is a transformed woman." Remember, dear co-workers, we did not choose this work, bnt Christ himself laid it upon us, and we must bear it gladiy until his dear hands remove it. We do not want a single life to fali of its true intent, or mar the plan that its Master meant, through our negligence.

Those of you who have read the Annual note that the Young People reported last year $717.29 for foreign missions, and $443.96 for the work at home. We can and will do even better this year. Young people, deny yourselves and experience real joy. Remember those who have never heard of God and who are waiting for the message from you. Do not forget the work in your own community, for "the light that shines at home shines farthest." May we all toll to the end, that the name of the King of kings may be glorified.

Mrs. H. O. MIDDLETON.

In connection with Mrs. Middleton's report we take a few extracts from the report of the Council First Vice President. There are now 1359 Young People's auxiliaries, 496 new ones having heen added during 1915—7807 new members were enrolled. Roll of Honor auxiliaries, 110. There were 35 volunteers for service, and to missions the young people gave $24,859.30.

Last year ten Conferences gained honorable mention hecause they had made a clear gain of five or more auxiliiaries. This year there are twenty-one on that list, and both Mississippi and North Mississippi are among the number. Seven Conferences have more than douhied their auxiliaries. Of these, the Mississippi leads with a gain of 74 per cent.

The offering for missions showed an increase of $2362.39 over the previous year. Eighteen Conferences gave an average of $1 or more per capita, Los Angeles giving as high as $2.36 per member.

WINNING CAMPTI AUXILIARY A PLEASANT TASK.

On Sunday afternoon, Jan. 9, 1916, Mrs. R. W. Winstead, of the Natchitoches auxiliary, took a number of officers of this same auxiliary and motored to Campti, ten miles distant, on a very important mission. The weather was coid and threatening without, but the hearts within were warm and burning with the message about to be delivered, for the occasion was the organization of the Camptt Missionary Society.

The devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. G. Hyams included a Scripture lesson—John 11:28—"The Master is come and calleth for thee." There was a picture given of a grief-stricken woman seated in a chair with her head buried in her hands in pitiful despair. Bending over her, dimly outlined in robes of white, was Jesus Christ with outstretched arms gently pleading, "Come unto me." Underneath this picture, so typical of many hearts today, was written, "She cannot see him as her vision is dimmed by the sights of the world; she cannot hear him as his voice is drowned by worldly sounds. He was not only there, hut he was calling for her." He calleth, she explained, wherever there is human need. He was calling to the need of the mining and factory children bound down by toil, to his little ones and big ones across the sea. He was in Campti calling to the work of the Missionary Society. Verily, he hath need of thee.

Mrs. Winstead then very clearly and deftly explained all the official work of the Missionary Society. All workers, she explained, had their tools and the Missionary Society also had them. She forthwith presented them with leaflets defining the duties of each officer, the Bulletin, the Missionary Voice, the Young Christian Worker, the year books for the young people and adults, monthly leaflets for each, pennants and mission study hooks—explaining fully how each was to he used.

After this instruction, Mrs. L. C. McVoy gave an interesting summary of the work heing carried on by the Woman's Missionary Society in both the home and foreign fields. She told briefly but enthusiastically of the work in Cuba, Mexico, China, Japan, Korea, Brazil, and Africa. She told of the great home institutions, educational, spiritual, and especiaiiy redemptive. And this one fact she strove to impress indelibiy, that each memher of each auxiliary by her dues, pledge offerings, and prayers, though they might seem small, was realiy helping in all this great world-wide work.

Right then and there the District Secretary asked if the Campti ladies would not organize, and, presiding over their election, was made very happy by seeing all officers of the new organization duly elected and very willing to assume their respective offices.

Shortiy after returning to Natchitoches, realizing that all their strength was in God, the members of this auxiliary entered into a prayer circle at a definite hour each day for the young Campti Society. Added to this, they followed up the work of organization with the stimulating help of intercourse at every available opportunity. Preparing a program that was especiaiiy helpful and inspirational, because brought from the Annual Conference at Ruston, the Natchitoches auxiliary again visited Campti and gave this young Society the benefit of hearing the many splendid things that were given at Ruston.

Organization is only the first step in the creation of a Missionary Society. If you would have it live, nourish it and stimulate it with frequent intercourse. Keep it on your hearts and in your prayers.

WORDS OF LOVE AND COMMENDATION FOR MRS. VIC THOMPSON HOYLE.

We are in receipt of a letter from Mrs. T. W. Woodward, Second Vice President of the North Mississippi Conference, in which she asks that we publish a copy of the resolutions adopted in Clarksdaie after it was found that Mrs. Hoyle's health would not permit her re-election as president.

We take pleasure in complying with this request, for we agree with Mrs. Woodward that "some things should be proclaimed from the housetop." Mrs. Hoyle wrought a splendid work in her Conference, and her love and untiring zeal for the cause was an incentive to her friends far and near. The resolution follows:

"We, the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference, desire to express to Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, our retiring President, heartfelt appreciation of her efficient service. Our thanks for the same are also hereby extended. Her work has been painstaking and faithful. Her zeal has been untiring and her interest has never flagged. Her grasp of the various lines of work was marvelous—even phenomenal.

"We lovingly commit her to the care of our Heavenly Father, praying that at all times and under all circumstances she may realize the touch of the Everlasting arms.' That her health may soon be restored. and that her usefulness may continue unabated, pray her loving comrades in the Master' service."

The following extract from a letter written to Mrs. Hoyle we also publish:

"Three years ago you were called upon, all unepectedly, to take up this work. You assumed the burden unflinchingly, and spared no pains to acquaint yourself with its workings even down to the slightest detail. that you might successfully carry it on. You caught a large vision of its possibilities, and hy your zeal and enthusiasm, as well as hy your hard work and self-sacrifice, you have infused new life into the organization, and for years to come we shall be reaping the harvest of this new life that has come from your revivifying, rejuvenating touch.

"I know it must be hard for a general to fali out of ranks just as his army is raising the shouts of victory, hut we are not going to forget your work and labor of love. Since you have been connected with this work, you have added many names to your already long roll of friendships."

It will be a source of great joy to Mrs. Hoyle's friends to know that her health has greatly improved. in fact, Mrs. Woodward writes: "Mrs. Hoyle looks better than I have seen her for years, and is really well."

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine —Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills; and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it lef' me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—Mrs. MAYME ASBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—Mrs. A. L. MCCASLAND, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—Mrs. B. M. OSGOOD, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

From the Field

Campti Charge (La. Conf.)

Dear Dr. Meek: I would like to say a few words concerning my present field of labor. This is my second year on this charge. The people received us kindly, and have continued to show their appreciation of our return to the work in various ways. We are making progress along some lines. Since Conferenee we have organized a Woman's Missionary Soelety, a Young People's Missionary Society, and a Junior Missionary Soeiety, all of whieh are doing good work. Our regular services are very well attended. Our aim is the salvation of souls, and the eonsecration and sanctification of believers; hence the need of a better organization and more efficient eolaborers with God. We expeet to eontinue to press the battle against sin and to trust God for results.—E. L. Cargill, P. C.

Fiora, Miss.

Dear Brother Editor: For a whole month I have been too busy to supply the Advocate with any news from my little kingdom, which lies along the banks of Big Blaek River. For ten days we were busy about the Master's work in a meeting at Fiora, and, through the splendid efforts of Brother Roberts, of Vieksburg, and by reason of the leadership of the Holy Spirit, a revival was brought about. There was one aecession on profession of faith. Within the church a great amount of good was accomplished. Then I went several days later to my next largest church, and, with the assistance of Brother Bennett, of Monticello, we began the revival there. For eleven days we labored and the Lord greatly blessed His work. Three were added to the Church by letter. Many pledged themselves to attend and work in the Snnday school, and several family altars were erected. The town was wonderfully stirred and the church was mightily revived. These two brethren are strong and interesting preachers, and the Lord is with them and using them. There was no sensationalism attendant upon either of these meetings, but the deep, silent movings of the hand of God was manifest.

In the midst of the last meeting, Brother Hardin came in for a couple of days and held our second quarterly conference, and he said it was a good one; so it must have been such. A considerable advance over this time last year was noted. The Advoeate campaign has been carried forward with the result that sixteen new names have gone on your files from this work. We have a ratio of about 1 to every 8 aetive members living on the work.

I wish I had space to tell you how fine the fishing is in Big Black River, and I herewith invite you to come up and try your hand some time.—M. F. Adams, P. C.

Raceland, La.

Dear Brother Meek: I am very fond of reading the Advoeate, and would like for you to spare me spaee in its columns to speak of the Lafourche Mission. When I first eame to this Bayou Lafourche country to preach two years ago I did not know where I should find a house of worship, because all the people along the bayou were Roman Catholics and knew nothing at all about Methodism. Now I am glad to say that, with my efforts and prayers, I can look back and see how the hand of the dear Lord was with me and how he put life into my work. I now have six preaehing places with a large eongregation at eaeh. I want every one to understand me. This bayou is about 125 miles long and throughout its entire length it is like a solid street. I want to say for the benefit of this people that they are all French and that they need a Frenchman for their pastor. About three months ago I had the honor to have with me our dear Brother E. V. Duplainte, a colporter, and when we started to sing a hymn in English some old women left the house and gave as their reason the fact that they thought we would sing in French. And two weeks ago I held a meeting and had a preacher who speaks English to help me, but he could not preach a single sermon because the people could not understand him. I am glad to say that our dear presiding elder will be with me in May and will hold a quarterly conference for these French people. I am sure that he will see that they ueed a French preacher here. I have had ten accessions from the Roman Catholics this year, and I expect more in a few days. Many old men and women do not know the way to save their souls, and if the fathers do not know the way of salvation, what will become of the children? We must make these people know what it means to be a Christian, and the first step to take is to put into their hands a Bible written in French so that the Holy Book will be wide open to them. But the Bible is not enough—they need also a man who understands them and whom they can understand, properly supported and sustained.—A. D. Martin.

WATCH YOUR HEART IF YOU WISH HEALTH.

Weak hearts are more common than weak stomachs, lungs, eyes, backs, or kidneys. Every time your heart misses a beat your life is being shortened. Heart disease, taken in its early stages, is quite easy to relieve; but every day that treatment is delayed the relief becomes more difficult.

Dr. Miles' Heart Remedy taken in conjunction with the Nervine, or alone, has proven very efficient in relieving heart disorders.

The Rev. Geo. W. Kiracofe, of Keller, Va., in this connection stated as follows:

"It has been many years since I was cured of heart trouble by Dr Miles' Heart Remedy and Nervine. I am just as sound as a dollar in that organ to-day. Before I took these remedies my breathing had been short and at times difficult; there were sharp pains about my heart, accompanied by fluttering which would make me feel faint and languid. The least excitement or worry would unnerve me. The trouble grew steadily worse. Doctors' prescriptions did me no good. But since using Dr. Miles' Remedies all symptoms were removed and have never returned since."

If you suspect that you have heart trouble avoid all dangerous delays.

It costs you nothing to try these remedies if you are not benefited. All you have to do is to return the empty bottle to the druggist and he will refund your money.

SUMMER SCHOOL AT EMORY UNIVERSITY.

Dr. P. T. Durham, Dean of the Candler School of Theology at Emory University, has sent out a letter, from which we make the following extracts:

"Desiring to be of the largest service to the ministry of our Church, we have decided to offer work in the Candler School of Theology through the entire year, adding a fourth, or summer term, to the three terms which now constitute the academic year. This is done for the convenience of those students who wish to make such use of the time ordinarly spent in vacations, and of those active pastors of the Church who wish to take courses during the summer months.

"Credit will be given for work done to those who are prepared to enter for the degree. There will be courses of special value for active pastors.

"The summer term will begin this year on June 21, and continue ten weeks. It will be divided into two half-terms, five weeks each, and courses will be so arranged that those who can be present only during half the term will be able to finish three half courses. Those who can be present during the whole term will be able to finish three full courses. The courses offered cover a wide range of subjects.

"There will be no charge for room or tuition, and a limited number of scholarships are available for students who are unable to pursue their theological work without financial assistance."

GREAT REVIVAL AT NEW ALBANY.

Dear Brother Meek: I am called upon by Brother Pope, our beloved pastor, to write for the Advocate a report of the great revival in New Albany, Miss., which call I gladly respond to. On the last Sunday of April the meeting began at 11 o'clock, the preaching being done for two days by the pastors of the several churches here, the evangelist, Brother W. M. McIntosh, being delayed that length of time.

I want to say, first of all, that it was the greatest meeting I have ever been in, and that its fruits will abide. Brother McIntosh and his consecrated wife won the hearts of all the good people of New Albany. The exact number of conversions I have not yet obtained. Some estimate them at 125. It is reported that 53 will join the Methodist Church. One of the delightful features of the meeting was the zeal with which all the pastors and churches united in the work. Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians seemed to be one. Three services a day were held—11 o'clock a. m., 3:30 p. m., and 7:30 p. m. The Men's afternoon meeting was held in the merchants' stores, and the ladies' in the churches, and they were well attended. The leader in song, a Brother Anderson, did fine work in his line. His heart was in the work. There was with us part of the time a Mr. Bob Lewis, a man who, according to his own testimony, had been a great sinner until his conversion a few years ago. His talks made a profound impression.

The schools of the city were closed every day to permit the children to attend the 11 o'clock service. They were given the front seats, and it was remarkable to see them and hear them join in the singing, and that so many of them came to the Savior. To the constant and faithful work of our much loved Pope and the other loved pastors, the success of the meeting is largely attributable.

The big-hearted New Albany people gave Brother McIntosh, as an expression of their appreciation, $575, and $100 for incidentals.

I have never seen such throngs of people attend a meeting in New Albany—at the night services especially. Many could not get in, and I saw them stand outside by open windows through the whole service.

Brother McIntosh and his godly wife will continue to live in the hearts of these New Albany people. THOMAS CAMERON.

New Albany, Miss., May 11, 1916.

P. S.—The meeting continued for eighteen days.

TO OUR FRIENDS.

We take great pleasure in announcing that the collections from the churches and Sunday schools for the Orphanage on Easter Sunday are now well over $4000, and we are hopeful they will reach $5000 by the time we have heard from all the places. Many of the Sunday schools have done better than ever before; quite a number that had never given to the Orphanage before have sent in good contributions. While some of our larger churches and Sunday schools have not reported at all, we are confident that they will do so, and add considerably to the sum total.

We can but express our deep sense of appreciation and gratitude to all our friends who have so generously helped us, and thank God for His unfailing goodness to us. We take courage, and shall endeavor to merit this loyal confidence and support by doing a more faithful work for the many children under our care, and the many more that need the care and protection of a home.

Gratefully,

ROBT. W. VAUGHAN,

Superintendent, Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

THE PURVIS REVIVAL.

Dear Dr. Meck: We have just closed a series of revival services at this place, which began in our Church on April 30, and the entire town is rejoicing over the success that was achieved. Evangelist J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Miss., greatly endeared himself to this people. I could not speak too highly of his work. He has both gifts and graces. His preaching 'finds you' and draws you to Christ, the gracious Savior of men. The messages that he gives are clear and to the point. We kept no account of the conversions, but there must have been many. It was remarked by a citizen of the town that the meeting excelled all others ever held in Purvis. There were 20 accessions to our Church. The singing was led by Rev. J. M. Lewis, of Prentiss, who was instrumental in bringing the choir to a high state of efficiency, and who also contributed largely to the success of the services by his faithful personal work and prayers. I commend Brother Lewis to any one who may need a Gospel singer and a helper in a revival meeting. H. MELLARD, Pastor.

THE STATUS OF THE UNION QUESTION.

Feeling that the Methodists of Louisiana and Mississippi will desire to know exactly what action has been taken by the Northern Methodist General Conference concerning the question of union with the other Methodist bodies of the United States, we are printing in this issue of the Advocate the full text of the paper that was adopted by that body last week; and in order that every reader may see for himself precisely what the situation is, we are also reproducing the statement that embodied the action of our General Conference, at Oklahoma City, in May, 1914.

As will be seen by a careful comparison of these two pronouncements, the two Churches yet lack a great deal of being in accord. The Southern Church has declared for having "the governing power of the reorganized Church vested in one General Conference and three or four Quadrennial Conferences," both to "exercise their powers under constitutional provisions and restrictions, the General Conference to have full LEGISLATIVE power over all matters distinctly connectional, and the Quadrennial Conferences to have full legislative power over distinctively local affairs." It was also recommended that each quadrennial Conference elect its own Bishops, subject to confirmation by one of the two houses composing the General Conference. These were the recommendations of the Joint Commission on Federation—our General Conference did not originate them, but endorsed them.

Over against this, the Northern General Conference has placed itself on record as desiring that "the General Conference be made the SUPREME legislative, executive, and judicial body of the Church, under constitutional provisions and restrictions." They also declared for a larger number of Quadrennial Conferences.

As we see it, the differences here disclosed are of vital importance. As is well known, the Church, South, desired through these Quadrennial Conferences, to reserve to the Methodism of this section such a measure of autonomy as would safeguard it from alien influences in the handling of its perplexing local problems. The action of the Church, North, apparently sweeps away the predicate that our Church had laid for this. It is utterly silent as to the powers that it would vest in these Quadrennial Conferences. The fact that it would have "the General Conference to be the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial body" does not seem to make it possible, under its scheme, for another Conference to hold and exercise any indestructible powers of government. The proposition to multiply the number of these Quadrennial Conferences and gather the colored Methodists into one or MORE of them indicates a conception of the nature and importance of these bodies very different from that held by the Joint Commission and the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The plan of the Joint Commission, endorsed by the Southern Church, said: "We suggest that neither the General Conference nor any of the Quadrennial Conferences be invested with the final authority to interpret the constitutionality of its own actions." The answer of the Northern brethren to this is the statement that we have already quoted: "We recommend that the General Conference be made the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial body, subject to constitutional provisions and restrictions." In view of the fact that the Northern Methodist Church has lately had voted down in its Annual Conferences a proposition to give its College of Bishops a veto power in cases of violations of its constitution, this language is quite significant. Nor do we think that any great importance should be attached to the qualification, "subject to constitutional provisions and restrictions, since our Northern brethren would doubtless claim that their General Conference has these (and has always had them), as it is now constituted. So it will be seen that concerning this fundamental question as to the "SUPREMACY" of the General Conference, which was the one that disrupted the Church in 1844 (and with reference to which the position of the Church, South, was endorsed by the great Joshua Soule), the Northern Church is holding to its old position and has not yielded a single inch.

Nor are the two bodies at all together on the issue as to what to do with our colored brethren. Our General Conference said: "We recommend that the colored membership of the various Methodist Churches be formed into an independent organization, holding fraternal relations with the reorganized and united Church." The following is the pronouncement of the Saratoga General Conference on this subject: "We recommend that the colored membership be constituted into one or more Quadrennial or Jurisdictional Conferences." At the first blush, it may seem that the Northerners are in this particular standing with the Joint Commission, but it should be kept in mind that apparently their conception as to what these Quadrennial Conferences are to be is quite different from that which the Commission had in view. According to their scheme, the Negro Methodists would participate in the General Conference, the supreme legislative assembly, and help to shape all the policies of the Church with reference to themselves and all other matters, thus insuring the more complete dominance of that great body by those holding Northern views and sentiments. The proposal to group them in one or more Quadrennial Conferences of the kind that seems to be in contemplation in the plan evolved at Saratoga Springs might mean very little. They are already together in separate Annual Conferences, and merely to group a number of these together in quadrennial bodies exercising only a few limited governmental functions, leaving their more vital relations to the Church substantially as they are at present, would be a mere makeshift in the handling of this grave question, in the settlement of which there should be no sort of evasion or trifling.

But what of the future with respect to this movement? Of that we would not presume to speak with certainty. In our opinion, what is to follow will depend very largely upon how the action of the Northern General Conference is to be construed. The paper which it adopted is strikingly vague and indefinite. Dr. John F. Goucher, of Baltimore, who presented it, remarked upon this fact and ventured to claim this as one of its excellencies.

In our judgment, if the Church, North, means to stand firmly for the principles of reorganization unfolded in the Saratoga plan, the union of American Methodism is in the far-distant future. We hold this conviction because we think that when it is carefully analyzed this plan is substantially the same old organic union, with a somewhat modified nomenclature and a few unimportant frills, that our brethren across the Ohio have been advocating nearly ever since the Civil War. With a "supreme" General Conference, and with the colored people still securely within the fold, what concession of consequence has the Methodist Episcopal Church offered to make? As we have pointed out, they have not declared for vesting any sort of autonomy in the three or four Quadrennial Conferences proposed by the Joint Commission and the Southern Church. What protection, then, would the white Methodists of the South have? As a matter of fact, if the propositions contained in the paper adopted by the Northern General Conference are to be taken at their face value, that body, while claiming to endorse the plan of the Joint Commission, in reality repudiated its most essential feature—that of a dual government exercised by three or four Quadrennial Conferences and a General Conference, neither of which could invade the rights of the other—and left of it but little that is of any value.

But it may be asked, Was it not declared by that body that all of its recommendations were "tentative?" To be sure, this is true, and if the view be taken that the Northern Church does not mean to contend for any of the principles enunciated by its General Conference, then the whole question has again been left in the air, as it was four years ago, and there is ahead of us more conferring and dickering, with the possibility of marching around again in the same circle that we have just trodden.

For our part, we regret that the Northern General Conference did not meet this issue more openly and explicitly. The plan adopted by the Joint Commission on Federation in 1911 (the same plan now under consideration) was before the Methodist Episcopal General Conference of 1912 and was passed over without any specific action being taken concerning it. Later, it was said by some of the leaders of that denomination that the reason for this strange course was that the plan was regarded as "tentative," and that their General Conference did not feel at liberty to legislate concerning a scheme of that kind. We wonder what would have become of this plan, if the Methodist Protestant and Southern Methodist Churches had THOUGHTS.

Annette Morrison Stubbs.

The thought is father of the deed; then keep thy heart with faithful care;
Temptations lurk on every hand; thy source of power is earnest prayer;
For though the world may prove a reed, a tower of refuge is our Lord;
His promise stands for every need, and God abideth by His word.

Whatever helps to build the life, and make it noble, grand, and free,
Will be the product of the heart, for as man thinketh, so is he.
Then, hour by hour, think noble thoughts, and to thy words give careful heed;
The world is carrying weight of sin, and of thy help hath greatest need.

What things are pure, of good report, make these companions day by day.
Oh, bring forth love and righteousness to bless sad souls on life's brief way!
And thou thyself shall blessing find; for love brings sweet and sure reward;
The pure in heart, the great in soul, have promise they shall see the Lord.

MORE RELIGION.

The greatest need of America at the present hour is more of the religion of Jesus Christ. It is not enough that we have better sanitation, or more knowledge, or committees on the rural problem, or on housing in congested quarters. Man shall not live by bread alone, and there has been a famine of the Word of God. There are cheering signs of an awakening to a perception of this great need. There is heart-hunger in many of our churches for a more deeply spiritual presentation of the Gospel. There are men, and many of them, who have been seeking to fill themselves with philanthropy and with social reform, who are finding more and more fully every day that these things concern the outside of the cup and the platter. God has made the soul of man for Himself, and it is homeless till it finds Him. Let us have sociology and hygiene, but let us put farther to the front and higher in the lead the saving Gospel of the Son of God.—Advance.

WHEN IT INTERFERES.

The Gospel does not interfere with business unless the business is wrong. When it is right, it is as much a part of Christian living as is attendance at prayer-meetings. We may serve God as acceptably on Monday at our common work as we do on Sunday in our religious worship. But there are kinds of business which do not harmonize with Christian living. If the business be sinful, we cannot be diligent in it and at the same time be serving the Lord. The Gospel made no small stir in Ephesus, it is said, because it was in conflict not merely with the worship of Diana, but with a profitable business which the worship of the goddess had built up. Wherever the Gospel goes it makes a great deal of stir. Wicked men do not like it because it interferes with their life or with their methods of business.—Zion's Herald.

REGENERATION.

Regeneration is the purifying, life bestowing entrance of the Spirit of God into the heart of man; whereby the affections are changed, the dominion of sin is broken, and a new life is entered upon, directed and sustained by divine grace through faith.

It is not the result of educational processes, or environment, or human effort of will or mind. It is God doing in and for a man that which no human agency whatever can accomplish; and that which is necessitated by the fact of sin, as having polluted the very fountains of life, and misdirected its affections and aims.

But though regeneration is a work of the Holy Spirit beyond all human accomplisment, man has a part therein and his part is:

1. To recognize the need of such new life from God.

2. To seek the promised life in humble prayer, crying, "Create in me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me."

3. To trust for the grace offered, and live thenceforth by faith a life of fellowship with God, conformed to his will and more and more transformed into his likeness.

But does some one, perplexed or doubting, ask with Nicodemus, "How can these things be?" With as much accuracy and fulness as science can explain how the spotless flower comes forth in fragrance and beauty from the dark, dead soil, Christianity answers: As the power of life in the plant descends into the soil and works the transformation, so the Spirit of the living God comes down from above into the soul and a new man in Christ appears. The proof in the one case is the flower; the proof in the other is the regenerate life of a Christian. T. H. L.

THE NORTHERN GENERAL CONFERENCE SPEAKS.

(The following is the full text of the paper on Methodist union that was adopted by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., last week.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Preamble.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, in General Conference assembled, hails with joy the prospect of an early reunion with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

We believe that the united Church will have greatly increased power in its conflict with evil in all lands, that it will be able to lay a more effective emphasis on the fundamentals of Christianity, and that it will be more potent in developing the higher loyalty to the supremacy of our common Lord and Master, Jesus Christ.

We believe that such a union will hasten the development of a truly world-church, which will make for the rapid advancement and final triumph of the Kingdom of God in the world.

Reply to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

Your Committee on Unification, therefore, recommends that the General Conference make the following declarations:

1. The Methodist Episcopal Church considers the plan outlined in the suggestions that were adopted by the Joint Commission representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and approved by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with one modifying recommendation, as tentative, but nevertheless as containing the basic principles of a genuine unification of the Methodist bodies in the United States, and especially of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the method of reorganization.

2. The Methodist Episcopal Church regards the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, by the plan proposed by the Joint Commission on Federation, as feasible and desirable, and hereby declares itself in favor of unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, in accordance with this general plan of reorganization, with the following recommendations:

(a) That the General Conference be made the supreme legislative, executive and judicial body of the Church under constitutional provisions and restrictions.

(b) That the number of Quadrennial Conferences as stated in the proposed plan be so increased as to provide more adequately for the needs of the reorganized Church, both at home and abroad.

(c) That the General Conference consist of a single house, made up of delegates elected by the Quadrennial or Annual Conferences, or both.

We also favor the unification of all or any Methodist bodies who accept this proposed plan after it has been accepted and perfected by both the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church.

(d) That, conforming to the suggestion of the Joint Commission, the colored membership of the reorganized Church be constituted into one or more Quadrennial or Judicial Conferences.

3. The Board of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church is hereby authorized and instructed to appoint a Commission of twenty-five members—five Bishops, ten preachers, and ten laymen—to confer with the Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Protestant Church, and other Methodist bodies in the United States, in elaborating and perfecting the tentative plan that has been proposed, and in carrying forward such negotiations as have for their purpose, and shall result in, the consummation of the proposed unification in accordance with the basic principles enumerated in the suggestions which were adopted by the Joint Commission and approved by the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church. So sincerely do we believe that the union of the two Episcopal Methodisms is the will of God, and so earnestly and devoutly do we desire that these two Churches may be one, that we hereby authorize and instruct the Commissioners in the Methodist Episcopal Church to conduct the negotiations in a generous and brotherly spirit.

This Commission shall report to the next General Conference the full details of the plan of unification which may be agreed upon by the Joint Commission on Unification for its consideration and final determination.

EARL CRANSTON, Chairman.
JOHN J. WALLACE, Secretary.

ACTION OF THE CHURCH, SOUTH.

(In order that our readers may see exactly what the present status of this union movement is, we give below the full text of the paper bearing on this matter that was presented to the General Conference of our Church at Oklahoma City in May, 1911, and which was adopted by that body.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Unification of Methodism.

We indorse the action of our Commissioners during the last quadrennium in entering upon the responsibility of conducting negotiations with the Commissions of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Protestant Church looking toward the unification of the Methodist bodies in the United States, and especially since they were charged to further, as far as was consistent and practicable, closer relations between ourselves and these two and other Methodist bodies.

In December, 1910, negotiations concerning unification by reorganization were entered upon by the Joint Commission, the Commissioners of the Methodist Protestant Church participating, when the Commission of the Methodist Episcopal Church presented a communication in which they gave reasons by which they were moved and said: "We hereby tender a brotherly invitation to the Commission of the respective Churches to consider with us at this time the desirability and practicability of organic union." After declaring, "We are mutually agreed that the Churches represented by us are equally apostolic in faith and purpose and have a common origin (the Methodist Episcopal Church, organized in 1784), that they are joint heirs of the traditions and doctrinal standards of the fathers," and "that our fathers settled the issues of the past conscientiously for themselves, respectively, and separated regretfully," the Joint Commission representing the three Churches appointed a joint committee of nine, three from each Commission, to bring to the Joint Commission, if found practicable, a plan for submission to the General Conferences and people of the respective Churches, which provides "for such unification, through reorganization of the Methodist Churches concerned, as shall insure unity of purpose, administration, evangelistic effort, and all other functions for which our Methodism has stood from the beginning." This special committee of nine met in Cincinnati on January 18, 1911. The Joint Commission met May 10, 1911, in Chattanooga, Tenn., and after giving three days to the consideration of the report of the committee of nine adopted the following:

"Report as Revised by the Full Commission.

"1. We suggest, as a plan of reorganization, the merging of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, into one Church, to be known as the Methodist Episcopal Church in America, or the Methodist Church in America.

"2. We suggest that this Church shall have throughout common Articles of Faith, common conditions of membership, a common hymnal, a common catechism, and a common ritual.

"3. We suggest that the governing power of the reorganized Church shall be vested in one General Conference and three or four Quadrennial Conferences, both General and Quadrennial Conferences to exercise their powers under constitutional provisions and restrictions, the General Conference to have full legislative power over all matters distinctly connectional, and the Quadrennial Conferences to have full legislative power over distinctively local affairs. We suggest that the colored membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and such organizations of colored Methodists as may enter into agreement with them may be constituted and reorganized as one of the Quadrennial or Jurisdictional Conferences of the proposed reorganization.

"4. We suggest that the General Conference shall consist of two houses, each house to be composed of equal numbers of ministerial and lay delegates. The delegates in the first house shall be apportioned equally among the Quadrennial Conferences and elected under equitable rules to be provided therefor. The ministerial delegates in the second house shall be elected by the ministerial members in the Annual Conferences, and the lay delegates by the laity within the Annual Conferences, under equitable rules to be provided therefor. Each Annual Conference shall have at least one ministerial and one lay delegate. The larger Conferences shall have one additional ministerial and one additional lay delegate for every —— ministerial members of the Conference, also an additional ministerial and lay delegate where there is an excess of two-thirds of the fixed rate of representation. All legislation of the General Conference shall require the concurrent action of the two houses.

"5. We suggest that the Quadrennial Conferences shall be composed of an equal number of ministerial and lay delegates to be chosen by the Annual Conferences within their several jurisdictions according to an equitable plan to be provided for.

"6. We suggest that the Quadrennial Conferences shall fix the boundaries of the Annual Conferences within their respective jurisdictions, and that the Annual Conferences shall be composed of all traveling preachers in full connection therewith and one lay representative from each pastoral charge.

"7. We suggest that the Quadrennial Conferences shall name the Bishops from their several jurisdictions, the same to be confirmed by the first house of the General Conference.

"8. We suggest that neither the General Conference nor any of the Quadrennial Conferences be invested with final authority to interpret the constitutionality of its own actions."

The executive officers of the respective Commissions were then authorized to report to their several General Conferences the results of the deliberations of the Joint Commission, to be the basis of such specific action and authorization as may to these General Conferences appear desirable. The General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church in May, 1912, approved the work of its Commission in agreeing to the tentative plan of unification of the Methodist bodies in the United States by reorganization, but took no definite action on the suggestions looking to reorganization. The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church received the report of their Commissioners, but because of the resolution which was adopted by the Commission to the effect "that at the close of our deliberations we emphasize the statement that the suggestions here outlined are only tentative, that in no sense are these suggestions a plan, but merely the result of our explorations in search of a basis of union," they seemed to have felt that they were not at liberty to take any action on the tentative plan of unification which the Joint Commission had adopted, but the General Conference declared: "We heartily approve the action of our Commission on Federation in proposing the question of organic union to the Commissioners in joint session at Baltimore, believing that the membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church would welcome a corporate reunion of the Methodisms of America." A Commission on Federation was appointed "with full power and authority to continue negotiations and to meet with similar Commissions from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Methodist Protestant Church, and any and all other duly appointed Commissions from other Churches and branches of Methodism, or with each separately, concerning the commendable purposes of advancing organic union, or closer federation, said Commission to report to the next General Conference." The Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, at the meeting in Washington, D. C., April 8, 1913, declared: "We cannot under the circumstances interpret the action of the General Conference as unfaverable either to the method followed by the Joint Commission or to any of the results obtained."

Our Commissioners in their reports have said to the General Conference, "In view of the foregoing deliberations and suggestions concerning the unification of American Methodism through reorganization, your Commission desires your approval or disapproval concerning further negotiations along the lines of these suggestions." The Bishops in their Address have said: "It is for you to determine, therefore, whether you will indorse what your Commissioners have done, or modify it, or ignore it, or completely reject it."

Recommendations.

Your Committee on Church Relations recommends that the General Conference make the following declaration:

1. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, considers the plan outlined in the suggestions that were adopted by the Joint Commission representing the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and reported to the General Conference of their respective Churches as tentative, but nevertheless as containing the basic principles of a genuine unification of the Methodist bodies in the United States, and especially of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the method of reorganization.

2. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, regards the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the method of reorganization, approved by the Commission on Federation, as feasible and desirable, and hereby declares itself in favor of the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in accordance with this general plan of reorganization, and in favor of the unification of all or any Methodist bodies who accept this proposed plan after it has been accepted by the Methodist Episcopal Church. However, we recommend that the colored membership of the various Methodist bodies be formed into an independent organization holding fraternal relations with the reorganized and united Church.

3. The representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the Federal Council of Methodism are hereby instructed and empowered to act as Commissioners with like Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, or with Commissioners of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Protestant Church, and other Methodist bodies in the United States in elaborating and perfecting the tentative plan that has been proposed and in carrying forward such negotiations as have for their purpose, and may result in, the consummation of the proposed unification in accordance with the basic principles enunciated in the suggestions which were adopted by the Joint Commission and reported to the General Conferences. Should the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1916 declare itself in favor of unification through the proposed plan of reorganization and should appoint a Commission on Unification, separate from the Federal Council of Methodism, the representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, are hereby instructed and empowered to appoint a similar Commission that shall serve until the meeting of the next General Conference. The representatives of this Church in the Federal Council of Methodism or such Commission on Unification as may be appointed shall report to the next General Conference the full details of the plan of unification which may be agreed upon by the Federal Council of Methodism or the Joint Commission on Unification for its consideration and final determination. The representatives of this Church are hereby instructed to say to the Joint Commission on Unification that the name preferred for the reorganization and united Church is the Methodist Church in America. F. M. THOMAS, Chairman.

R. H. WYNN, Secretary.

METHODISTS, BEWARE!

Dear Dr. Meek: The Midland Methodist, the organ of Tennessee Methodism, recently contained an editorial on the "Galloway Hospital" in which it exhorted the Church, and Mississippi in particular, to contribute to the funds to be used for that institution, which "is being erected on the South Campus of Vanderbilt University, by the side of the Medical Department," to quote the Southern Methodist Handbook. And the honored name of Bishop Galloway is used for the purpose of emphasizing this appeal to Mississippians, by whom he is universally revered. This appeal, mark you, is to Methodists!

Will Southern Methodists never learn anything from the experiences of the past? Will they be continually hoodwinked by the crafty use of the Methodist label by those who would thrust their hands into their pockets and give "a scrap of paper" in return? This Galloway Hospital scheme looks like it.

What seem to be the facts in the case? The Southern Methodist Handbook is authority for this statement: "The charter of the hospital provides that it is to be conducted under the auspices and patronage of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and that at least two-thirds of the members of the Board of Directors shall be members of our Church." Auspices! The word has a sinister look about it. It is the joker of the tricksters. What of the provision that two-thirds of the Board of Directors shall be members of our Church? We learn from other sources that the Board is self-perpetuating. Now we begin to see the cloven hoof. All that is now necessary is to look at the list of those Directors as printed in the Southern Methodist Handbook. Several most excellent gentlemen are among the number, men who have always stood unflinchingly for the rights and honor of the Methodist Church, but a glance is all that is necessary to discover the adherents of the spollators who have most recently figured in our history.

Methodist authorities at Nashville affirm that it is pretty well understood thereabout that the Galloway Hospital is not Methodist in the sense of ownership; that it is regarded as being merely a Protestant institution. It has been likened to the Barnes Hospital, which has been trumpeted abroad as a Methodist institution, in its relation to the Church. A dispatch from Nashville, published in the Commercial Appeal a few weeks ago, concerning the campaign for funds for the hospital, speaks of it as "Galloway Memorial Hospital here as a part of the Medical Department of the Vanderbilt University." Whatever this may lack in legal accuracy, it doubtiess correctly describes the consciousness of the community where the institution is located. Thus the Methodist Church, despite her expressed wish, is linked up with the most objectionable department of the renegade institution of which she was so ruthlessly despoiled.

Now, this is the sort of thing Methodists are sought to be beguiled into giving their money to, in the name of the Church and in memory of one of her most gifted sons. If one only pauses for a moment to reflect one will note that the Galloway Hospital is to be in close alliance with the very Department of Vanderbilt University that Andrew Carnegie endowed and concerning which the Church unanimously condemned the action of the Vanderbilt Board of Trust, and endorsed the course of the College of Bishops with reference thereto. Yet this alliance has episcopal favor and co-operation!

One cannot profess any surprise at seeing the Midland Methodist lend itself to such a scheme. Consistency is not a virtue that seems to commend itself to that journal. But it does surprise one that Church papers supposed to be loyal to the interests of Southern Methodism, in view of the circumstances, should take a hand in the boosting of this institution.

The Methodists of Mississippi loved Bishop Galloway living, and honor him dead; but it is to be hoped that none of them will allow their money to be conjured out of their pockets by the use of his great name under the impression that they are giving to an enterprise that is in any real sense under the control of the Church that he so adorned by his life and labors.

THE STATUS OF THE UNION QUESTION.

taken this same view concerning it. This time, though the plan is still avowedly "tentative," the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has presumed to act, but has done so in a very guarded and non-committal manner.

We earnestly deprecate this seeming inclination to keep the great body of our Methodist people in the dark concerning this momentous question—by far the most important that has been under consideration since 1844—the method apparently being to let a small Joint Commission work it out in executive session, and then to spring it on the General Conferences suddenly after they are in session. This is precisely what was done in the development of the present plan, our General Organ at Nashville even taking the position that the conclusions of the Joint Commission should not be published until after our representatives on it had submitted their report to the General Conference at Oklahoma City; so, when that body dealt with the matter, the membership of the Church at large had had no opportunity to know what was being done or to give expression to their views concerning the matter.

It was the PEOPLE, the rank and file of Methodism, North and South, who really divided Methodism in 1844, and they alone have the moral right to unite it. Is the proof of the first of these affirmations called for? We cheerfully give it. In McTyeire's History of Methodism, pages 624 to 630, ample evidence that this was true may be found. We give briefly some of these quotations:

"Mr. Coleman (of Troy): 'Give them a slaveholding Bishop, and you make the whole of the North a magazine of gunpowder and the Bishop a firebrand in the midst.'"

"Mr. Cass (New Hampshire): 'If Bishop Andrew holds his office, there will be large secessions, or whole Conferences will leave. If this Conference does anything less than declare slavery a moral evil, we will stand on a volcano in the North.'"

"Dr. Green (Tennessee): 'Suppose Bishop Andrew be deposed, and we from the South tamely submit—how could I return to my work and put my head out of the top of a pulpit and attempt to preach? * * * It would disable the preachers in such a manner that we could not serve our people.'"

No, no; this proposal to wipe out the identity of a great Church, with a noble and heroic history, with its own peculiar ideals, born of its providential surroundings, and vitally connected with a great section of the American union, which perhaps has the gravest and most delicate problems to solve that ever confronted any people in the annals of the human race, is not one for a few preachers' meetings, or a small commission, or a General Conference of 300 or 400 men to settle. The important question for us is, what do the two million Methodists of the South think of this proposed amalgamation? Where is the evidence that they desire it? How would they receive it?

Our leaders would, in our judgment, do well to ascertain what the sentiment of the plain people who constitute the bone and sinew of our Church is before they undertake to consummate any such procedure as that which now seems to be pending. Surely, they should learn a lesson from what resulted from the effort to force with undue haste a union of the Cumberland and Northern Presbyterian Churches. The outcome was bitterness and wrangling and lawsuits, and, though aggrieved and weakened, the Cumberland Presbyterian Church still exists with nearly half as many members as it had before the merger was undertaken.

If these negotiations with the Northern Methodist Church are to continue, it seems to us that the time has about come for our congregations throughout the country to be heard from concerning them. They have not the legal right to vote on the issue, as we think they ought to have concerning a matter of such fundamental importance; but they do have the right of petition and protest, and through these they may make their feelings and wishes known.

It is our profound conviction that as Southern Methodists we are face to face with the most serious crisis that our denomination has ever been called upon to meet. Let us pray that the Heavenly Father who has so wonderfully blessed our Church in the past may guard and guide her in this perilous and fateful hour.

THE SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

Dear Doctor Meek: Will you kindly announce through the Advocate that Dr. H. M. DuBose, Dr. W. W. Pinson, and Dr. Frank Seay of the Southern Methodist University will have a part on the program of the Seashore Divinity School. As has been publicly stated, the opening session will be on the evening of June 27 at 8 o'clock, and the closing session at noon on July 6.

I am in correspondence with the Bishops in charge of the patronizing Conferences and hope to have them with us. The presiding elders of these Conference are urged to be present.

May 20, 1916. ROBERT SELBY.

(It is to be hoped that there will be a large attendance at this session of the Seashore Divinity School. Let all the pastors who can, arrange to be present, and we think it would be well for the laymen in the various charges to see that they are supplied with the means to go. The Methodists of this section are not making their splendid property at the Seashore Campground count for as much as they ought. There is no finer place to do institute work in the South.—Editor of the Advocate.)

A GREAT YEAR AT MILLSAPS.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, Professor of Geology and Chemistry at Millsaps College, writes as follows: "We are closing at Millsaps College what seems to us a splendid year. We have a record attendance in four college classes, the most enthusiastic and co-operative spirit in the student body, and will send out a large class of fine young men and women. It has been my pleasure to attend five of our district conferences during the past few weeks, and the way was gladly opened for a hearing from the representative of Millsaps College. I confidently believe that if all of our brethren, preachers and laymen, who are satisfied that the College is doing a great work for the young people of the State, and for the Church, would bestir themselves enthusiastically during the next few months, we would easily have 300 students, and more; next session. One of our great needs right now is a half dozen scholarships for some worthy young men, some of them with license to preach, who are appealing to us for help to get into college next fall. Our new catalogue will soon be out, from which it will be seen that we now offer a course for the education of teachers, which may be carried in the regular course for a degree, and which, by recent legislation, entitles a Millsaps graduate to a teacher's license, as in the case of State institutions."

CALLED TO HER REWARD.

It is with much regret that we chronicle the death of Mrs. S. B. Jones, of Baton Rouge, La., which occurred suddenly at her home in that city on May 5, 1916, the obsequies being conducted the next day by Rev. C. A. Battle. Mrs. Jones was the mother of Mrs. F. N. Parker, and she and Dr. Parker came from Atlanta to be present at the funeral. Dr. McGregor Jones, of New Orleans, was also in attendance, as were the other members of the family, Mr. B. A. Jones, Mr. S. B. Jones, Mrs. C. A. Holcombe, and Miss Margaret Jones, all of whom are residents of Baton Rouge.

Mrs. Jones was Miss Margaret Kent, a well known Baton Rouge young lady. Her husband, who was a son of the Rev. Benjamin Jones of Mississippi, was a great worker in the Methodist Church at Baton Rouge. After a notably successful business career, he died there some ten years ago.

A correspondent, in a note to the editor, thus refers to the beautiful Christian character and life of the deceased: "She was one of the most devout, consecrated, and spiritually minded women I have ever met. She was for twenty years the treasurer of our local Missionary Society and was known for her liberality."

We extend sympathy to the bereaved, and pray that they may have the sustaining power of Divine grace in their great sorrow.

REVIVAL AT WEBB, MISS.

Rev. W. L. Graves, of Montpelier, Miss., came to us on the first Sunday in May and preached for us 10 days. We had 31 additions to the Methodist Church, 25 of them on profession of faith and 6 by letter. I have received 31 members to date this Conference year. The Holy Spirit was manifest in each service. Our church had a great spiritual uplift. Brother Graves won the hearts of our people. His sermons were strong and to the point. O. L. SAVAGE, P. C.

A GREAT RESPONSIBILITY.

As our representatives on the Federal Council of Methodism will have in hand the duty of acting for our Church in any future negotiations that may follow concerning the question of Methodist union, or will name the commission that will do so, it is a matter of some interest to know who these gentlemen are; so we give their names: Bishop A. W. Wilson, Bishop E. E. Hoss, Bishop Collins Denny, Rev. Frank M. Thomas, D. D., Rev. W. J. Young, D.D., Rev. John M. Moore, D.D., Mr. M. L. Walton, Dr. H. N. Snyder, and Mr. Percy Maddin.

It is a tremendous responsibility which now rests upon these brethren, who should remember that they are under obligations to act not for themselves alone, but as the representatives of the more than two million Methodists of the South. Would it not be well for us to bear them up daily to the throne of grace in our prayers?

CHURCH EXTENSION AND ELSE.

By Rev. J. A. Burrow, D.D.

That was a notable gathering of preachers and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Louisville, Ky., last week, on the occasion of the dedication of our new building for Church Extension. I am not a member of my Conference Board, nor of the General Board, but I elected to accept an invitation to attend, with a point on my pencil, and my eyes open for observation. Through the kindness of Dr. McMurry, the "driving-wheel" Secretary of Church Extension, I was hospitably domiciled at the Seelbach Hotel, where accommodations were good enough for the Kaiser. Oil paintings on lobby walls represent "Daniel Boone Telling Stories by the Campfire," "Capture of Daniel Boone," "General Clark Signing a Treaty With the Indians," etc. From my room on the seventh floor I look over at Hotel Henry Watterson, at the clock in a church spire, and at other parts of the spreading Kentucky metropolis on the broad Ohio.

Our new building for Church Extension headquarters is a "beauty," and no mistake. Built of stone, after perfect Greek architectural design and proportions, with solid white columns in front, and stately stone steps, it is most pleasing to the eye. For modest but substantial and elegant equipment and convenience of arrangement, I have not seen its equal. Our efficient General Secretary had planned it in his mind's eye a hundred times, built it in his dreams on Pullman sleepers, and elsewhere, and worked out its details of conveniences while wrestling with the cramped and wholly inadequate quarters of the old place. So the competent architect had only to put the Secretary's ideas into steel and stone, into concrete and fumed oak, into the complete fire-proof, roomy structure which elicits only admiration from those who see and believe. In the basement is a gem of a chapel that seats 140 persons. The third floor is a temporary apartment, used by the Secretary and his family, but so constructed as to be easily converted into business rooms, when the increased volume shall demand it. The money to put up this admirably arranged structure did not come out of Church Extension funds, but was raised on the outside by Dr. McMurry, not a dollar having been solicited publicly, or by congregational appeal. The building cost $67,167.42, and stands as a monument to the energy and ability of our General Secretary. How did he do it?

Thursday morning, May 4, the representatives of the Annual Conference Boards of Church Extension met, about fifty of them, and deliberated for two days on how to improve the efficiency of their work. Rev. E. G. Stanley, a pioneer of Church Extension organizations in Montana (antedating any general organization), led the opening devotional services, by special request, and made a talk on the beginning of things out there. The discussions which followed were informal and intensely practical, embracing such subjects as loans, donations, mortgages, debts, efficiency of presiding elders and pastors, etc.

Judge M. E. Lawson, of Liberty, Mo., read an important paper at the first night's session on "Some Legal Phases of Church Extension Property." He cited numerous court decisions on wills, deeds, mortgages, etc., and concluded with the following practical suggestions, in substance: 1. Secure a good lawyer to prepare a deed or will. 2. Do not expect him to write it in a hurry. 3. In every business venture consult a good lawyer to prevent complications. 4. Put all custodians of funds under bond, and every year or so re-examine securities. 5. Do not use the form of will or deed of gift set out in our Discipline without careful investigation as to its legality in each particular State. 6. Insure all property against loss or damage by fire. 7. If property is sold, see that all of the provisions of our Church are followed. 8. Be careful to see that all taxes are paid, especially taxes for benefit assessments. All of this I call vitally important. Thus the representatives sent by Annual Conference Boards went to the heart of matters. Among other conclusions of moment were these: Encourage persons to give to the Loan Fund—they to receive interest annually while they live; the money thus given can be used in their own home territory, and will be handled by the General Board. The fact was brought out that every dollar thus left to the General Board is now held intact, a record to encourage every would-be giver and everybody else. Each treasurer should be bonded, to which all the rest of us say "amen." A department of architecture was recommended to the General Board, and will, no doubt, be established. An exhibit of a Conference record book, keeping an alphabetical list of each district and each charge in the district having received donations or loans from Church Extension funds, elicited such hearty approval that the General Secretary agreed to furnish each Annual Conference Board with such a book to be especially made for the purpose. Brother Foard, of the St. Louis Conference, was the originator of this invaluable plan to "keep tab" on all charges that may again want help. Dr. McMurry was requested to bring before the General Board the importance of preparing a manual setting forth the requirements of different States in cases of deeds, bequests, etc. The meeting of Annual Conference representatives was so satisfactory that they decided to hold such a meeting soon after the next General Conference, and thereafter twice in each quadrennium.

Saturday morning, May 6, the General Board of Church Extension convened in the new chapel, with Bishop Hendrix presiding. It was a notable hour. Talks were made by Bishop A. W. Wilson, our honored superannuate Bishop; Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of the Baptist Theological Seminary; Dr. Landrum, President of the Louisville Pastors' Association; Captain Davis, the architect; Dr. Irvin, of the Presbyterian Church; Dr. Eason, of the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church. Appropriate words of tribute to the memory of Miss Lucinda B. Helm was spoken by Dr. W. F. McMurry. When Dr. Landrum, of the Baptist Church, had finished talking, he said he would show his love for all the Methodists by hugging Bishop Warren A Candler, his old-time friend, which he proceeded to do with great warmth.

Our department of Church Extension has received, since its organization in 1882, from all sources, a grand total of $5,859,657.07. Three millions of this came through assessments on Annual Conferences, $274,000 from special donations, $644,000 from contributions to loan funds, $231,000 from interest on loan funds, over a million from principal repaid on loans, nearly $39,000 from donations refunded, a little over $38,000 from miscellaneous sources, and nearly $300,000 from parsonage aid. During that time the General Board has aided 9488 churches and 2532 parsonages to the amount of nearly $5,000,000. The past year, in spite of the world wars and financial flurries, has been the best in our history, showing total receipts of over $571,000, a gain over the preceding year of over $175,000. Let us take a breathing spell from figures and sing the doxology—not to conclude consideration of the subject, but as an expression of rejoicing at all this. The goal of half a million of dollars which was fixed by our fathers in the beginning was passed in 1913; the next one-half million should be secured in 1916.

Of the automobile ride over the city, the banquet, the Sabbath, and the business of the Board, I shall have to write in another letter. Church Extension has made a distinct impression on Louisville. The city is taking notice that something is doing. Dr. McMurry is in high repute among business circles, and could easily command a lucrative place there. He has wrought well, and is making his department one of the most efficient in any Church in the land.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

We have in hand a neatly printed invitation to the closing exercises of Mansfield Female College, May 26-30. The invited speakers for the occasion are Rev. C. A. Battle, who will preach the Commencement sermon next Sunday, and Rev. A. G. Shankle, who will deliver the Annual Address on Tuesday evening, May 30. The Class Roll contains the names of 32 young ladies.

Rev. T. J. O'Neil, President of Port Gibson Female College, preached the Commencement sermon for the Woodville (Miss.) High School on Sunday, May 18, and he will deliver the Annual Address for the Shubuta High School on Friday night, May 26. President O'Neil states that the last session of Port Gibson College was in every respect a most satisfactory one.

Writing from Pioneer, La., under date of May 19, Rev. W. T. Woodward says: "We have just closed a fine meeting here, in which the preaching was done by Rev. I. L. Peebles, of Wesson. Those asqualnted with Brother Peebles scarcely need to be told that it was well done. We had 34 additions to the Church on profession of faith; this makes 99 accessions for the entire charge. We have finished our church at Forest. I am serving one of the best works in the Conference."

Mrs. W. H. Hartwell, of Water Valley, Miss., sends us the following note of interest: "A very instructive and enjoyable Sunday school institute was conducted in the First Methodist Church here on May 16, by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary of the North Mississippi Conference. The teachers were out in force, with eyes, ears, and hearts ready to receive. Brother Gladney's mind is full of the great Sunday school movement, and he cannot fail to accomplish much good in his work."

Principal H. E. Townsend, of Simsboro, La., under date May 20, writes as follows: "The Commencement sermon of the Simsboro High School will be preached next Sunday by Rev. R. H. Wynn, D. D., and the Baccalaureate Address is to be delivered Monday evening, May 22, at 8 o'clock by President J. E. Keeney. This school furnishes each of the Sunday schools in town with a superintendent and a number of teachers. We have not had this year in the High School a boy who smokes cigarettes, a fact which is very gratifying to the Principal."

We are informed that Rev. D. W. Babb, our pastor at Crawford, Miss., subscribed at the recent session of the Columbus District Conference $250 to Emory University. A few months ago Brother Babb made a subscription of $500 to the fund now being raised for Grenada College. His salary is a very moderate one and the liberality he has shown is certainly much to be commended. We have never known a choicer spirit than this veteran itinerant, whose name is as ointment poured forth all over North Mississippi.

We acknowledge the reception from Bishop W. P. Thirkield of a copy of the Episcopal Address to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, now in session at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., which is neatly bound in pamphlet form. This address was written and read to that distinguished body by Bishop John W. Hamiliton. It is a comprehensive and very interesting utterance. We had already seen it in the Daily Advocate, but are pleased to have it in this form also, as it is much more handy.

The Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference, is enjoying a gratifying degree of prosperity under the aggressive leadership of the present presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Woollard. A dispatch from Columbus to the Memphis Commercial Appeal a few days ago, while the District Conference was in session, contained, among other things, the following statement: "There has been a pleasing increase in the membership of the Church, according to the detailed reports submitted last night. The finances of the district are in the best shape ever known. A large number of the charges have paid the pastors in full to date, and about 30 per cent of the benevolences are in hand."

In a note to our office, Mrs. R. F. Harrell who, along with her husband, Rev. R. F. Harrell, has been living and working among the people of the Centerville (Miss.) charge for three and a half years, says: "How attached one becomes to a people! Their joys and sorrows become yours, do they not? We shall hate to sever the ties which bind us here. This being our first charge in the work of the itinerancy, we shall always have a peculiarly tender feeling for these people. Rich blessings come to those in the Master's service. I would not take anything for the experiences of love, joy and sorrow which have been mine since coming here." These are fine sentiments, and how true they are! It is in a life spent for others that the largest earthly happiness is found.

There are few Congressmen as well known over the entire country as this veteran Statesman, who, in spite of his four score years of age, carries himself as straight as an Indian, still takes an active part in dehate, and smokes as many cigars as ever; and there seems to be something ahout him which commands admiration.

REV. H. R. SINGLETON.

Hampton Richardson Singleton was horn in Covington, La., on January 24, 1873, and died in St. Louis, Mo., on Wednesday, March 22, 1916.

His father, Rev. Hiram R. Singleton, was an honored and gifted member of the Mississippi Conference, and his mother was Miss Amelia Smith, of Covington, La. The son of cultured and pious parents, Hampton was pure in his hoyhood and never at any time wandered far from the Father's house. At the early age of nine he assumed the vows of Church membership under his father's ministry in Canton.

The writer first knew him as a bright and wholesome boy of sixteen, when, for a short while, he was a student in Centenary College, at Jackson, La. The transfer of his father to California at this time interrupted his school work and he was forced to become a hread-winner for several years, after which, at the age of twenty, he was able to resume his college work for a period of two years.

In the year 1895, at the age of twenty-two, he heeded the call to enter the ministry and joined the St. Louis Conference on trial, being stationed at Washington, Mo. In 1897 he was stationed at Malden, and during this year was most happily married to Miss Hattie Theus, of Arcadia, La., whose life was ever an inspiration and help. After this, he hegan work in the city of St. Louis as pastor of Mt. Auhurn Church.

In 1900 he was transferred to Louisiana and hegan a noteworthy pastorate of four years in Ruston, during which the Church made rapid progress and the present building and parsonage were erected.

In the fall of 1903 he was transferred back to St. Louis and was successively pastor of the Cabanne Church and presiding elder of the Farmington District. After this we find him again in Louisiana, serving a successful quadrennium in Alexandria and again leading his congregation in the erection of a new and modern house of worship. He was then appointed presiding elder of the Shreveport District, which office he filled with conspicuous ahility for one year, and then followed a pastorate of two years at Parker Memorial, New Orleans. For the third time he went to the city of St. Louis; here, as tho successful pastor of the Scruggs Memorial Church, he was faithfully serving when the death summons came. The time of his ministry was thus quite evenly divided between the States of Missouri and Louisiana. By his own preference, he was laid to rest in Arcadia, La., the home of his wife and a place very dear to his heart.

Brother Singleton has been taken away in what seemed to be the meridian of his usefulness, and he will be very greatly missed; hut we know that death to him means simply a transfer to another sphere of service where the Master will continue to employ his talents. He was a man of strikingly varied gifts and qualities of character. He had a well-developed esthetic sense, being an ardent lover of music and all that was beautiful. He had a very sunny temperament and charming manner in the social circle, making many friends and never forgetting them. Mrs. Singleton writes of him: "His heart never changed toward a friend. After years of separation, I have seen the love-light flash into his eyes at an unexpected meeting with an old friend."

Brother Singleton was a born gentleman—loving in spirit, patient, generous, and sympathetic. Speaking of this phase of his character, his wife writes again: "At times I have been inclined to think him too credulous. He believed no evil of anybody, and his patience never seemed to be exhausted even when he had helped a human derelict time and time again. He would say, 'The miracle may be wrought this time!' Now, the very fact that he was easily imposed upon is a blessed memory to me."

He was a very pleasing public speaker, having a choice English style and a fluent, musical delivery. He was an exceedingly popular platform lecturer, having special talent in the field of clean humor. This was always, however, rather in the nature of pleasant diversion, his main purpose being that of presenting a simple gospel messago from the pulpit. His faith in the fundamentals of our blessed religion and the authority of Holy Scriptures was never in the slightest degree affected by critical speculations, and his radiant optimism made his preaching always stimulating and helpful. He was successful in evangelistic appeal and also in organization. Both in the pastorate and presiding eldership he always expected results, planned definitely for them, often in advance of the faith of others, and always accomplished them. He was, as we have seen, the successful leader of several notable church building enterprises.

Like his father, Brother Singleton was of frail physique, though he seemed to have an average degree of health, and many of his friends were greatly surprised at the news of his death. On entering a St. Louis sanitarium for a critical operation, he thought very seriously on the probability of his death, and he left in writing heautiful and sacred words of comfort and admonition for his family, and also expressed his perfect willingness that God's will be done.

His last pastorate was marked by an advance in his own spiritual experience, and during his closing days he was conscious, in a special manner, of the nearness of his Lord.

Besides the bereaved wife, three fine boys—James Rivers, Hampton Richardson, and William Brice—live to comfort their mother and perpetuato the noble name of their father.

IN THE KING'S GARDEN.

An Allegory.

Mrs. Lily Meekins, who died in January as the result of a street car accident, was one of the most noted charity workers in the City of New Orleans. Seventeen years ago she began working for the Methodist Mission on Tchoupitoulas Street, now known as the Mary Werlein Mission. At that time the neighborhood was lawless and it was difficult indeed to hold religious meetings. Mrs. Meekins moved down to that locality and devoted her life to the work. She was known as "The Angel of the Slums" and all in trouble and distress of any kind went to her. She was always to be found at the bedside of the sick and dying, and through her many were reformed from intemperance and vices of all kinds.

Gladly she gave up her own church, associations, etc., to become one of the poor and lowly of the Mission. Her meager pocket-book was always open to share with them her last cent; had she but one loaf, it was divided. She made no boast, she coveted no praise, but in the spirit of the Master whom she served she went about doing good.

She had but one child, a dwarfed, invalid daughter, whom she loved as only a mother can love.

She belonged to the In-as-much Senior Circle of King's Daughters, and each month she attended the meetings of the Circle and found there a welcome most hearty and many things to take back to her Mission people.

The In-as-much Circle has furnished a memorial room to her in the new Sophie Wright cottage at Rest Awhile, where they hope many of the people Mrs. Meekins loved will find rest and recreation during the years to come.

At a recent meeting of the Circle, the following tribute was paid to Mrs. Meekins by Mrs. George S. Brown.

Once there was a beautiful garden where grew all manner of lovely flowers. There the rose shed its sweet fragrance on the air; there clambered the honeysuckle in all its wild luxuriance; pansies in royal purple and gold sparkled in the sunlight; crimson poppies, white frilled daisies, daffodils, carnations, blossoms of white, pink, purple, red and gold vied with each other in fragrance and beauty.

Over near the wall of the garden a stately lily proudly reared its head, and though simply clad in a garment of glistening white, Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like this pure lily.

Every day the Gardener walked through the garden, pruning the flowers, watering, and tending them with care. On the stalk of the lily grew a little bud which one day was cut by the Gardener's sickle. The lily cried out to the Gardener to spare her bud, and he, always kind and tender, tied the bud to the stalk and tended it with care. The bud did not flourish, but began to wither and droop. The Gardener said it must go, but again the lily plead for its life. "It is all I have," she tremblingly cried. Leave me my bud."

In vain the Gardener reasoned with her, saying, "It will sap your own strength; the bud will never mature; let me cut it away."

The lily wept: "I can not live without my bud. It may be all misshapen and twisted and dwarfed, but it is mine and I would give my life for it." The Gardener, ever indulgent, yielded, and the lily day by day watched over her bud and kept it close to her mother heart.

The Lord of the vineyard walked through the garden and viewed the flowers, for he delighted in them. He loved all of the flowers, but he was especially fond of the lily. He noted how she drew her bud to her side and patiently tended it, and his heart went out to her. One day, noting a dewdrop glistening on one of her petals, he asked, "Why are you sad my beautiful lily? Is the little bud drooping?

"No, my Lord," replied the lily. "It is not for my little bud I weep to-day, but it is for what I see through the crevices of the wall over on the other side."

"And what see you there?"

"I see," replied the lily, "a garden that should be as beautiful as ours, for there are trees and grasses and flowers, but they riot over one another, and the weeds are crowding out the blossoms, and the thorns are choking the flowers, and the briars are hurting the petals. Why is that, my Lord?"

And the Lord of the garden looked sad as he made reply: "These have gone astray and there is no one to bring them back."

The next time he walked in the garden the lily had climbed way up on a Jacob's ladder and was looking over the wall. The Master stood, and when the lily turned and saw him, she said: "O Master, can you not make that garden like ours? There is much that is beautiful there."

The Master drooped his head as he said, "There is no one to go. I would that there were, for these also belong to me. I am not willing that any should perish."

Tremblingly the lily said, "O Master send me. I would gladly go."

"You are not able," the Master said: "You are too fragile and you have the dwarfed bud to care for."

"O but I am stronger than you think," plead the lily. "Loose me from the earth and let me go. I will give my life for those who live over there."

"Ah, but it is a wicked place—far different from this—and you may wither and pine there."

Then the lily smiled trustingly and said, "Will you come in that garden, too?"

"Yes," replied the Lord of the garden, "I walk through there as often as here."

"Then I shall have no fear if you are with me, Master. I see there pale little violets struggling for the light; I see daisies that are losing the freshness of youth and childhood because of the briars that oppress; I see wheat there that would be of great good but for the tares that are choking; I see flowers that are perishing because the light is denied them by the weeds. Let me go and do what I can."

The Lord of the garden bent reverently over the lily and blessed her, and her face shone with a radiance not of earth.

The next day the Gardener reluctantly loosed the lily from her stalk, and all the flowers were sad, for they also wanted the lily with her clean, pure life to live among them.

The lily went over to dwell in the garden that was a riot of weeds, and, although the bud was always there to be tended, she never faltered nor failed. Day by day she walked among the thorns and briars as did her Master, and her hands bore many scars, but little by little the tares were removed, the weeds were uprooted, the briars and thorns were pulled aside, and the pale little wild blossoms began to bloom and to shed their fragrance on the air. In a few short years the garden was transformed.

The lily worked untiringly, and not many joys came into her life, save the all-abounding joy of walking with her Master and the happiness of seeing the good triumph over the bad. However, there was one recreation the lily allowed herself. Every month she spent one day in the flower garden that was her home. Quietly, unobtrusively, she slipped in, never speaking until she was called on, but the flowers always waited for her, and they welcomed her as they would a queen. The best was reserved for her, and little surprises were planned each time that would bring a look of heaven into the tired face.

They would always ask, "And what can we do for you?" and she would smile and tell how they were her inspiration, and how she depended on them, but never for herself did she make a request. Rather, she would tell of the needs of those over in the other garden.

"My children need shoes," she would say, and the lady's slipper would reply, "Help yourself." If the children's hands were bare, she would carry some something from the foxglove. Capo Jessamine would send wraps when they were cold, the crepe myrtle would provide for those in mourning, and sometimes, when there was to be a wedding over in the other garden, the lily would go home with bridal wreath and orange blossom to make the affair as bright and happy as could be. Oftimes she would return gayly with a princess feather to deck the hat of some young blossom. Sometimes the lily pleaded for more messengers and Jack in the pulpit would offer his services as well as tulip's. Heart's ease was sent to those in distress and carnation of youth to those growing old before their time. The rose sent her petals to cover those who were bare; the golden rod went to be a stay to the crippled and deformed; the buttercup sent of her possessions to the hungry. The blue bell went along to ring merrily good news. When four o'clock came the lily would go laden with gifts for those in the other garden, and she was glad because they were made happy, for they were her children, she said.

There came a day when the Gardener was forced to cut from the stalk the twisted, dwarfed bud, and for awhile it seemed as if the lily would go, too, but she summoned all her strength, leaned hard upon her Master, and went about doing good in the garden.

At last there came one day in the garden a new reaper, and he ruthlessly cut the lily from her stem. The other flowers could not realize that their beautiful lily was dead. They mourned for her by day and night. The tears (dewdrops) of the two gardens flowed together. The flowers in the garden where the lily was born told of their love for the lily, and they reared over her grave a bed of forget-me-nots. The flowers in the garden where the lily had voluntarily transplanted herself at first could find no comfort, and they showed the garments she had given them as did the poor of old, when Dorcas died. They told of the briars that had beset their path, and how she had crushed the thorns and transplanted them, and uprooted the evil tares and made them to know joy and gladness. By and by, others took up the work she had taught them how to do, and the lily, her task on earth finished, went to meet her Heavenly King, and he held out his right hand to her and said, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was an hungered and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger and ye took me in; naked and ye clothed me; I was sick and ye visited me; I was in prison and ye came unto me."

Then answered the lily modestly and in surprise, "Lord, when saw I thee an hungered and fed thee, or thirsty and gave thee drink? When saw I thee a stranger and took thee in, or naked and clothed thee? or when saw I thee sick or in prison, and came unto thee?"

And the King answered and said, "Verily I say unto you, inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these my human flowers ye have done it unto me. Enter thou, O Lily Meekins, into the joy of thy Lord."

Mrs. GEORGE S. BROWN.

We are haunted by an ideal life, and it is because we have within us the beginning and possibilities of it.

THE POWER THAT MUST SAVE.

When a preacher stands before the bar of an Annual Conference to be admitted into full connection, the first question propounded to him is, "Have you faith in Christ?" This is an interrogation of profound significance. It does not simply mean do you believe in the Christ of history and the work that he wrought, according to the Gospels, in the past; it also means, do you believe in the Christ who arose from the dead, and who now lives to save human beings from their sins and to co-operate with his disciples in building up the Divine Kingdom on earth?

No man is prepared to do effective service in the winning of souls who does not realize that he has the living Lord as his unceasing co-worker in this most delicate and difficult of all earthly tasks. Through the Holy Spirit, He may be counted upon to guide the disciples who seek to have Him do so in all such endeavors, making impressions upon them as to how to proceed in their efforts and opening the way for them to approach successfully those whom He would have them reach and bring into the light. This leadership of the Holy Spirit is the most outstanding thing in that marvelous record of the early Church, known as "The Acts of the Apostles," and the lack of this leadership, in a conscious manner, is doubtless the greatest weakness of modern Christianity.

The Holy Ghost has ever been both the wisdom of strength of the true Church of God. It makes comparatively little difference what outward methods are used if this Power from on high is present and at work—the blast of a ram's horn can then shiver to pieces the walls of a great city—but if this power be absent, the most cunning human contrivances and the mightiest of human exertions will fail to accomplish the spiritual results that are needed. The lesson of Pentecost is still the lesson that the followers of Jesus need to learn.

He who uses human agencies alone in his efforts to make Christians of men, no matter how splendid and attractive they may be, will find at last that he has toiled and achieved nothing. But he who works in unison with the great Spirit, who is the executor of the wonderful scheme of human redemption, will never labor in vain.

The implantation and development of spiritual life in a human soul, with its fruitage in a holy and Christlike character, is a work that only Divine Power can do. Man, to be sure, has a part in it, but it is to permit himself to be the agent through whom God can act and effect his glorious purposes. Thus Paul declared to the Corinthians, "My speech and my preaching was not with the enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."

"Come, Holy Ghost! in us arise;
Be this, thy mighty hour!
And make thy willing people wise
To know thy day of power!
"Pour down thy fire in us to glow,
Thy might in us to dwell!
Again thy works of wonder show,
Thy blessed secrets tell!"

WHENCE HIS AUTHORITY?

The action of Bishop E. R. Hendrix, of Kansas, Mo., in attending for a week the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., including the period of time that the question of union was principally under consideration, and his course in connection with the handling of that issue, was, in our opinion, such a breach of propriety as to call for public condemnation. Let it be remembered that the Joint Commission on Federation, composed of the representatives of three Churches, had matured a plan of union, which our General Conference, with one alteration, had endorsed and passed up to the General Assembly of our Sister Church. Bishop Hendrix had not been on the Joint Commission, is not now on the Federal Council of Methodism, and had received no authority from any official body of our Church to act as her representative and spokesman in connection with that enactment; yet when the paper framed by the Committee of Sixty was brought forward and adopted, he took the platform, and, after proclaiming himself to be the Senior Bishop of both the Southern Church and American Methodism, presumed, in effect, to pronounce it substantially acceptable to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Nor was this all. In addition to this, over his own signature, with the title of "Senior Bishop" attached, he published in the Daily Advocate of the Northern General Conference a deliverance on this subject, from which we take the following:

"The stage of discussion and approach with reference to the matter of unification between the two Episcopal Methodisms has now reached a point of virtual agreement. The two General Conferences have each passed the measure of concord, and what remains is to throw the question into a joint conference of the two bodies, who will adjust any differences and report their concurrent action through the Joint Commission."

Furthermore, the secular papers have announced that a resolution to empower the Northern Bishops to call a meeting of their General Conference two years hence, at the same time that ours will convene, in the interest of the unification of the two Churches has been introduced in the Conference, and that Bishop Hendrix, our Senior Bishop, has endorsed this plan.

In view of the fact that our last General Conference saw fit to prescribe specifically the course to be followed by our representatives on the Federal Council of Methodism relative to this matter, as will be seen by reading the paper which it adopted (see page 3), is it not amazing that Bishop Hendrix would presume to take this matter out of the hands of these gentlemen and all by himself undertake to speak for our Church and determine its course of procedure in the handling of an issue of such vast moment? He has done some very strange things since he got to be our "Senior Bishop," affixing his name singly to addresses to the Church, with that title appended—a thing that we do not remember to have noted as having ever been done by Wishop Wilson, Bishop Keener, or any other Senior Bishop that we have ever had—but this latest performance has gone quite beyond what we thought even Bishop Hendrix would ever venture to do. Has he come actually to think that he is the whole Southern Methodist Church? His behavior at Saratoga Springs looks somewhat like it.

It would likely be a sad day for the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, if she should enter into a plan of union largely formulated by this would-be leader who betrayed her interests in the Vanderbilt controversy in a manner which not even he has ever had the temerity to undertake to defend publicly, and who perhaps more than any other man, except Chancellor Kirkland, was responsible for the loss of her millions of dollars' worth of property in that institution.

We do not think that the Northern Methodists will brighten the prospect of union by ignoring our men whom we have duly commissioned to act for us in the handling of that movement, and following instead the directions of this volunteer generalissimo in the cause.

And we would also warn the unionists against setting too much store by Bishop Hendrix' prediction that the day of a consolidated Methodism is at hand. This is not the first time that he has essayed the role of a prophet. Just prior to the meeting of our General Conference of 1910, in a public address at Nashville, Tenn., he emphatically assured the pro-Vanderbilters that the Church would stand by Dr. Kirkland in the contest that was then on, but when the General Conference voted, one lone, shrill voice was heard on the Chancellor's side. Whether his prophetic powers have improved since that time, remains to be seen.

NEW NORTHERN METHODIST BISHOPS.

The Northern Methodist General Conference decided some days ago to elect seven Bishops of the usual order and two Missionary Bishops. All of the former have been chosen at this writing, and are as follows: Dr. Thomas Nicholson, of New York; Dr. Herbert Welch, of Deleware, Ohio; Dr. Adna W. Leonard, of Seattle, Wash.; Dr. Matt S. Hughes, of Pasadena, Cal.; Dr. William P. Oldham, of New York; Dr. Franklin Hamilton, of Washington, and Dr. Charles B. Mitchell, of Chicago. Of these new general superintendents of our Sister Church, Drs. Hughes, Leonard, and Mitchell were among the most prominent and effective pastors of their denomination. Dr. Hughes, as will be remembered, was the brilliant fraternal messenger from his Church to our last General Conference. His election places in the Episcopal College of the Northern Methodist Church two brothers, the other being Bishop E. H. Hughes. This, so far as our knowledge extends, is an unprecedented occurrence.

HAS NOT ENDORSED IT.

When the Northern union scheme was adopted, some delegate (a friend) wired Bishop A. W. Wilson, who sent a courteous telegram in response, which was paraded before the General Conference as if Bishop Wilson had committed himself to the Northern plan. The wording of the Bishop's message, however, by no means warranted any such construction. It has been our observation that Bishop Wilson has a habit of looking carefully into any measure of importance before he sanctions it. Moreover, he is on the Federal Council of Methodism and he would not, in our judgment, be apt to express himself, in a committal manner, before counseling with his colleagues on that great tribunal, to which the Northern enactment must now go. That would not be like the modest, splendidly poised, considerate Alpheus Waters Wilson.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The next session of the Southern Baptist Convention will be held in New Orleans.

Rev. W. J. Porter, of Sicily Island, La., gave us last week a fine club of 9 subscriptions. As an all-round pastor, Brother Porter takes high rank.

An attractive invitation to the Commencement of Millsaps College is on our desk. There are 16 young men and young ladies in the class that will be graduated from the Literary Department of this excellent institution this year. June 6 will be Commencement Day.

Through the courtesy of Miss Lucile Cooper, a member of the graduating class, we have received an invitation to the Commencement exercises of the Florida State College for Women, at Talahassee, to be held on June 7, 1916. Forty-eight young ladies will on that occasion be awarded diplomas, and three will receive departmental certificates.

Rev. R. I. Collins, of Courtland, Miss., reports hopefully of the situation in his charge. Children's day has been observed at all his churches. He speaks in terms of high appreciation of the work of his presiding elder, Rev. J. H. Holder. We are grateful to Brother Collins for a continuation of his successful efforts in behalf of the Advocate.

The Commencement sermon of the Agricultural High School at Mashulaville, Miss., was preached last Sunday, May 21, by Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, Miss.

Rev. W. S. Lagrone, of Drew, Miss., is making things boom in his field. He preaches three times or more every Sunday. He finds his "Ford" quite a convenience in looking after the Master's work.

Read the statement concerning the Grenada Conference on Christian Work, which appears on Page 15. The speakers announced for that occasion are well worth going some distance to hear.

Rev. J. H. Brooks, our accomplished young pastor at Senatobia, Miss., favored us with a club of 11 subscriptions to the Advocate on the 16th inst. Referring to his charge, he said: "We are about to begin work on a $3000 addition to our church."

Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Douglas, of Meridian, Miss., announce the birth on May 7, 1916, of a baby boy, who has been named Gilbert Franklin. We extend congratulations to these worthy parents, and all good wishes for the new-comer into their home.

Sunday, June 25, is the date fixed upon by the Methodists of New Orleans for a united celebration of the one-hundredth anniversary of the death of Francis Asbury, the Father of American Methodism. The principal speaker engaged for the occasion is Dr. S. A. Steel, of Columbia, S. C.

We are pleased to state that Mrs. Barbee, the wife of Mr. J. F. H. Barbee, of Memphis, Tenn., who has recently been seriously ill, is much better, and that her recovery is now confidently predicted. Brother J. F. H. Barbee is the youngest son of the late Dr. J. D. Barbee, of the Tennessee Conference.

Rev. T. D. Lipscomb, of Zwolle, La., says: "My work is moving along very well and we feel confident of a great year in this charge." Brother Lipscomb has our thanks for a club of 5 subscriptions to the Advocate, forwarded on May 11. The Conference organ is now reaching all but one of his official members.

Rev. H. W. May, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, writes: "The pastors of the Alexandria District will please send the names of all the delegates who expect to attend the district conferences to Rev. W. H. Coleman, 1769 Jackson Street, Alexandria, La. This matter should be attended to without delay."

Rev. W. D. McCullough, of Iuka, Miss., writes: "President J. R. Countiss, of Grenada College, preached the Commencement sermon for the Iuka High School here yesterday, May 14, at 11 o'clock a. m., and preached again at the Methodist Church at the evening hour, delivering a masterful sermon. He won all hearts."

Miss Mollie Higginbotham, of Mer Rouge, La., one of the Advocate's highly esteemed friends, cheered the heart of the Publisher with a fine club of subscriptions, and a check to correspond, a few days since. She has been doing the like of this for a number of years. We shall not soon forget her interest and kindness.

Are you getting ready to take in the Seashore Divinity School? It will help you to spend ten days at the Seashore Campground, the finest spot on the Mississippi Gulf Coast, and brighten up. We ought to make this school the best thing of the kind in the entire Church. See Chancellor Selby's statement elsewhere in this issue of the Advocate.

Rev. H. K. McKee, of the Scotland (Miss.) charge, sends us a postal card which reads as follows: "Born to us Sunday morning, May 14, a ten-pound boy, James Thomas. He came on his mother's birthday. Both she and the child are doing well." May God bless these happy parents, and make the little one whom he has given them a great blessing to their lives!

Rev. Paul H. Grice, of Mentorum, Miss., of whose affliction mention was made last week, underwent an operation at the Touro Infirmary of this city last Wednesday, standing it well. His condition is satisfactory at this time, and it is thought that he will be able to return to his parsonage home in about two weeks, though it will likely be some months before he can take up his work again.

A correspondent states that in the recent oratorical contest in the Waldo Moore Literary Society of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, the prize was awarded Rev. Bertram H. Williams, who is serving a charge in the Mississippi Conference as a supply, with much acceptability. The judges in the contest were Dr. I. W. Cooper, Rev. W. L. Linfield, and Dr. W. H. Sukers, of Chicago, Ill.

Sister A. L. Monroe, of Sycamore, La., states that Brother Monroe has had a stroke of paralysis, and that she desires the prayers of the Christian readers of the Advocate for his recovery, and for herself, that her strength may be eual to her needs at this time. We sympathize with these friends in this hour of affliction and anxiety, and pray that they may have with them consciously the presence of the Master.

We acknowledge the reception of an invitation to the Commencement exercises of Trinity College, Durham, N. C. The Baccalaureate Address will be delivered by Bishop John C. Kilgo on Sunday evening, June 4; the Commencement sermon will be preached by Dr. John Herman Randall, of New York City at 11 a. m., Tuesday, June 6, and the Annual Address will be given by Hon. J. W. Folk, of Missouri, on Wednesday, June 7.

Rev. W. D. Bennett, of the Sardis (Miss.) Circuit, sends us several names for our subscription files, and reports as follows concerning the status of his work: "Things are moving along fairly well with us. We now have a Sunday school at each of our four churches. We observed Children's Day at Wesley's Chapel on the first Sunday in May, and will observe it at Davis' Chapel and Cold Springs on the third and fourth Sundays."

Brother L. M. Myers, who, with his wife, left their home at Raymond, Miss., last July and went to the mountains of North Carolina in search of health, sends us from Hendersonville, in that State, his renewal subscription to the Advocate and informs us that the object that they had in view in seeking a higher climate has been largely realized. We feel sure that this will be gratifying news to the many friends of Brother and Sister Myers in Mississippi.

The following friends, whoso kindly service has not been mentioned elsewhere, have our thanks for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Rev. S. L. Pope, New Albany, Miss., 2; Rev. W. N. Duncan, Winona, Miss., 2; Rev. J. D. Simpson, Louisville, Miss., 6; Rev. R. H. Kleiser, Satartia, Miss., 8; Rev. R. H. Bamburg, Eros, La., 3; Rev. W. J. Newsom, Calhoun, La., 3; Rev. J. H. Grice, Glancy, Miss., 3; Rev. B. F. Bullard, Duck Hill, Miss., 6.

We desire to state again that we are always pleased to make brief announcements concerning meetings, institutes, conferences, etc., but that it is not practicable for us to print full programs of gatherings of any kind. We cannot be partial, and since there are now so many assemblies of various sorts, if we were to undertake to render them such a service, we would be literally overwhelmed. The rule here announced has been in force ever since we have been connected with the Advocate.

We are informed that Rev. W. H. Coleman, who was appointed to succeed Rev. O. J. Chandler as pastor at Alexandria, La., when his health failed, is having a large measure of success in that choice appointment. A correspondent writes us that he has already won his way into the hearts of the people, that his congregations are large, that his Sunday school is growing rapidly, and that new members are being received into the Church nearly every Sabbath. This will not be surprising information to those who have observed Brother Coleman's work in the past.

We have in hand an announcement of the Commencement program of Grenada College, May 26-30. As has been before stated in the Advocate, Dr. A. F. Watkins, of Millsaps College, will preach the Commencement sermon and the sermon before the Y. W. C. A., next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8 p. m., and Mr. L. G. Fant, of Holly Springs, will make the anual address on Tuesday, May 30. On Monday evening, May 29, Miss Katie Lou Countiss, A. B., who will be graduated from the Music Department, will give a public recital. This institution is stated to have had a notably successful year.

It is with sorrow that we have learned of the death of Brother W. J. Burney, of Holmes County, Miss., which occurred at his home near Ebenezer in the early morn of March 13, after a lingering illness of several years. He was 77 years old and had been a member of the M. E. Church, South, for nearly sixty years. He leaves to mourn for him two daughters, Miss Fannie Burney and Mrs. E. J. Forbus. We extend sympathy to these bereaved ones, and pray that the Heavenly Father may vouchsafe to them his comforting and sustaining grace. A brief tribute to this good man from the pen of Rev. W. M. Langley, of Pickens, Miss., is in hand and will be published next week.

Mr. D. N. Foose, of Tchula, Miss., announces the approaching marriage of his daughter, Miss Fannie Blanche Foose, to Rev. Jas. T. McCafferty, of Eupora, Miss. The wedding will take place on June 17, 1916. No cards. Miss Foose is a most superior and accomplished young lady, who has a wide circle of friends in Central Mississippi. Mr. McCafferty is one of the choice young ministers of the North Mississippi Conference, who was reared in that State, and who was educated at the University of Mississippi, Millsaps College, and Vanderbilt University. The Advocate extends in advance to these worthy young friends congratulations and best wishes.

We acknowledge with appreciation the reception from Miss Kathleen Mallory Wyatt of a beautifully printed invitation to attend the closing exercises of the Mississippi Industrial Institute and College at Columbus, Miss., May 25-29. The Commencement sermon will be preached by Bishop James Atkins next Sunday, and on the day following Mr. P. P. Claxton will deliver the Baccalaureate Address. Miss Wyatt, who is a daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, of Booneville, Miss., and a niece of United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma, will receive the A. B. degree on this interesting occasion. The graduating class of this widely known college includes this year 125 young ladies.

Rev. H. W. Bowman, of the Baton Rouge District, in sending in his quarterly conference appointments for the third round, gives us the following notes: "Rev. H. W. Cudd, pastor of Keener Church of Baton Rouge is now in the midst of a revival meeting, in which he is being assisted by Rev. H. T. Young, of Amite City. The prospects for a successful revival are good. Brother Cudd is about to complete a nice parsonage, and his work generally is prospering. Brother Andrews is alse building a parsonage at Gonzales. Many of the preachers are getting ready for their annual revival campaigns. The only revival meetings so far have been at Kentwood, First Church, Baton Rouge, and Amite."

Through the kindness of the accomplished pastor, Rev. T. M. Bradley, we have received a copy of the program of the exercises arranged for the formal opening of our handsome new church at Durant, Miss., which will take place on Sunday, June 4. Sunday school will be held at the usual hour; at 10 a. m. there will be a love feast conducted by Rev. W. S. Shipman, of Itta Bena, and at 11 a. m. Rev. E. N. Broyles will preach. In the afternoon there will be a "Recognition Service" under the auspices of the Missionary Societies and the Epworth League, and at 4 p. m. Mrs. J. W. Conger, of Vaiden, will deliver an address. The preacher at the evening hour will be Rev. E. S. Lewis, of Oxford. All former pastors and presiding elders and all non-resident members of the church are cordially invited to be present.

The Orphans' Home for Destitute Boys on St. Charles Street, this city, of which Rev. J. L. Sutton is manager, caught fire in the cupola on the third floor last Monday afternoon and for an hour was threatened with destruction. The inmates of the Home were quickly gathered together and were marched in order to a safe place on the spacious grounds in the rear of the structure, thus attesting the good training which had been given them. Though the wings of the buildings constituting the dormitories were not injured by the fire, they were flooded with water, so that they could not be immediately used; but the Jewish Orphans' Home near by offered temporary quarters for the boys, and the invitation was gladly accepted by Brother Sutton. The building of this institution which was imperiled by the flames is valued at $100,000, and the damage is estimated at $5000.

THE LOUISIANA EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Sixteenth Annual Conference of the Epworth Leagues of Louisiana will be held at Alexandria, June 15 to 18, inclusive. The program has been prepared with a view of bringing to the Leaguers the most vital help in their endeavors. Dr. H. M. DuBose will be present and deliver two sermons. Rev. Paul B. Kern, of Texas, and Rev. P. S. Powell, of Cloverport, Ky., will also attend and make addresses. Both of these workers are highly commended by the Central Office at Nashville. The best musical talent of the L. S. U. will lend assistance to the musical features of the program, which are being carefully arranged. About 300 delegates and visitors are expected. One presiding elder's district has already chartered a car and hopes to send 150 representatives. This promises to be the most inspirational Leaguo meeting ever held in this State, the efforts of the past year having wrought a great change in Louisiana Leaguedom. The outlook for this important arm of service in the Louisiana Conference is now most encouraging.

If your League is not contemplating sending a delegate, arrange for one without delay. This Conference will furnish the key to next year's progress. We are advocates of "Preparedness"—of getting ready to advance the Master's kingdom. Let our gathering in Alexandria equal in enthusiasm, if not in numbers, the recent great "preparedness" parade in New York City. Keep in mind the date, June 15-18. Our pastors are requested to announce this gathering from their pulpits and to see that delegates come from their churches. Let the names of all who will attend he sent promptly to Miss Frances Brasher, 1725 White Street, Alexandria, La. JNO. D. SAINT,
New Orleans, La. State President.

On January 31, 1916, death relieved a body of its pain and set free a spirit to return to its Creator, when it claimed as its victim Mrs. MARTHA (SMITH) COOPER. She was born in 1839, and twenty years later was married to William Cooper. At the tender age of thirteen she sought Jesus and found Him as a precious Savior. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and for 63 years she worshiped at its altar as one of its most faithful members, contented to live beneath the shadow of its outstretched wings of love. She wrought well in the living of a pure and godly life and in the rearing of a Christian family. In old Yocany Cemetery, on a bleak winter day, we laid her by the side of her husband to await the coming of the Lord, whom she so faithfully served for 63 years, when she will receive a crown of righteousness and that reward that awaits those who live such a life. R. G. LORD.

Taylor, Miss.

Mrs. R. E. HOLSTEIN (nee Hopkins) was born in Natchez, Miss., on Sept. 23, 1841, and died on Sicily Island, La., on Jan. 7, 1916. She was the daughter of Mr. J. W. Hopkins, and was married to Mr. R. E. Holstein in 1857. Of this union thirteen children were born, of whom only five survive her—two sons and two daughters. Mr. A. L. Hopkins is the only one of her father's family now living. Soon after her marriage Sister Holstein and her husband joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Pine Hill, on Sicily Island, La., where she served as organist, librarian, and teacher of the infant class in the Sunday school for many years; while her husband served as steward, Sunday school superintendent, and teacher of the Bible class. She leaves many relatives and friends to mourn her departure, while she goes to share the rewards of the faithful, and the reunion of loved ones. May the Lord comfort the sorrowing ones! W. J. PORTER, P. C.

Sicily Island, La.

On April 8, 1916, the soul of Mrs. MARY THWEATT took its flight from this world of care to the deathless mansions above. She was permitted to bless her loved ones for 92 years; but her earthly ministry was well done, for the rose does its work as grandly by blossom as does the vine with its fruit. After having helped to sanctify and lift heavenward the very hearts that break at her farewell, she went from this troublesome sphere, leaving the world she blessed and the skies through which she passed still sweet with lingering fragrance to her glory as an ever unfolding flower in the blessed garden of God. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. A. F. Moore at the Greenleaf Church. She leaves four daughters, one son, and a host of other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. May God's presence comfort the bereaved ones and may they remember that the Savior said: "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted."

DEATH CLAIMS A GOOD MAN.

On the morning of May 12, at 4 o'clock, the death angel came to the home of Mr. Ode Fusell and claimed his spirit to follow those of a brother, a niece, and a little friend. During the last fifty days these have fled from the neighborhood of Bland, La., one by one, and their deaths have been caused by a malady, the nature of which is unknown to the physicians. It was pronounced pneumonia, but was found to be so uncontrollable that an investigation was made after the last mentioned person was taken sick with it. A specialist came and analyzed the patient's blood, but failed to find anything the matter with it. So when death made its appearance the coroner came out to the home and, like Joseph of Arimathea, begged for the body. When the writer came to conduct the burial service he found the body embalmed and awaiting the arrival of the President of the Board of Health, who came, with a number of other physicians, and thoroughly dissected the body, taking away some of every vital part of it where death could have lodged for further investigation. Brother Ode Fusell was fully prepared to go. He was a member of the Holiness organization, but was also a co-laborer with the members of our church. He gave a most excellent talk just two weeks before his death, his subject being "Love To Our Neighbors." May God bless the bereaved ones! J. S. RUTLEDGE.

Bush, La.

DEATH CLAIMS A PROMINENT WOMAN.

On May 11, 1916, in Gulfport, Miss., the spirit of Mrs. Chas. Galloway passed to its final reward.

Mrs. Galloway was the daughter of Judge Joseph W. and Mrs. Eleanor Jane Atkins, of Mississippi. Miss Atkins was married on Dec. 24, 1884, to Dr. Charles Galloway, a member of one of Mississippi's most prominent families, being a close kinsman of the late Bishop Chas. B. Galloway of world-wide fame as a statesman, pulpit orator, and philanthropist.

Mrs. Galloway's brothers are J. B., J. W., W. S. and Dr. H. E. Atkins of Shreveport. Her sisters are Mrs. Stevens of Atkins, La., and Mrs. W. J. Baker of Pocahontas, Miss. She leaves to mourn her departure, her husband, four sons and two daughters, with a large circle of relatives and friends; but their loss is her eternal gain. "She hath done what she could." Early in life she gave her heart to God and joined the Methodist Church, ever after living a consistent Christian life. A gentle, faithful wife; a patient, devoted mother, a true friend, she doubtless heard the, "Well done, good and faithful servant," and has entered into "that rest which remains for the people of God." To her grief-stricken family I would offer the comfort of these lines:

Farewell, mother, precious darling,
Now thy form lies neath the sod,
Tho' thy spirit went at parting,
Back again to be with God.

O, 'twas hard to see thee leaving,
O, so hard to say good-bye,
With our hearts all torn and bleeding,
Shedding tears we could not dry.

But we give thee back to Heaven.
A rarer gift we could not give,
To Him who taketh all His children,
Forever with Himself to live.

For a while we must be parted,
And will try to think 'tis best,
And although so broken-hearted,
We'll ever go to God for rest.

And when at last our life is ended,
We'll greet thee in that realm on high,
Where broken hearts are mended
And none ever say good-bye.

Her one-time pastor,
R. W. TUCKER.

Stop! Calomel Is Quicksilver.

It's mercury! Attacks the bones, salivates and makes you sick.

There is no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when 50 cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Colomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE NOTICE.

To the Pastors of the Corinth District (North Miss. Conf.):

Dear Brethren: The Corinth District Conference has been appointed to meet in Iuka on June 20-22, 1916. The pastors are earnestly requested to send to me at once the names of all the persons from their charges who expect to attend, so that entertainment may be provided for them. Brethren, let us work and make this the best conference in the history of the district.

W. D. McCULLOUGH, Pastor.

AWAITING US.

The sorrow that comes into the soul, when we are separated from those who have crossed over the river of death before us, is often intensified by our thinking of them as in the past. Jesus Christ taught us to think of them also as in the future. Those who are with Jesus Christ in glory have already entered upon a more glorious state than we enjoy here, and we should think of them as rejoicing in the presence of him who loved them and gave himself for them. That is a very suggestive truth that is presented in the Epistle to the Hebrews concerning those who have gone on before, that we shall join them in the eternal joy, and "that apart from us they should not be made perfect."—Christian Observer.

Never Neglect Colds; Treat Them Promptly

Often they lead to those pulmonary troubles which are responsible for more than one-tenth of all lives lost through illness.

Heavy colds which develop deep-seated coughs or cause inflammation of the air-passages and persist in spite of medication, weaken the system to a point where resistance easily is overcome—and asthma, bronchial and pulmonary troubles are the result. To renew normal resistance, Eckman's Alterative has been found highly beneficial in many instances.

Its lime content is so combined with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person—and it contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs of any sort. So it's safe to try. LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Field Sec'y.

First Church, Alexandria, observed Children's Day with very fitting exercises and a splendid offering.

Opelousas, Church Point, Oberlin and Reeves are planning for Children's Day now. At Opelousas they have ordered ten Teacher-training Books for a class there, and there are four Teacher-training students at Church Point. Some students are taking the Reading Course at Oberlin. The Oberlin school has also ordered literature for a Home Department and Cradle Roll and is planning to organize a Junior Wesley Bible Class.

The following officers were elected at the Sunday School City Union for the City of New Orleans: W. W. Holmes, presiding elder, chairman; Rev. A. J. Gearheard, active chairman; Mrs. R. H. Harper, Superintendent of Elementary Division; Mrs. Z. A. Morrison, Superintendent Home Department; Miss Eddie Bentley, Superintendent Teacher-training; Mr. H. H. Gibson, Superintendent Wesley Bible Class; Mr. O. J. Dunn, Secretary-Treasurer. This force of splendid workers will most surely figure in the advance movement of the Sunday schools of our denomination in New Orleans.

A new Sunday school has been organized at the Louisiana Sawmill, near Glenmora, La., known as the Bolton school, by Rev. J. W. Faulk, with Mr. R. T. Colquitt as superintendent. Mr. Colquitt is the new efficient superintendent of the school at Glenmora, holding both places for the present, and is well equipped for the work in hand. A Teacher-training Class for both places is to be organized immediately. Brother Faulk also reports that the school at McNary is increasing in efficiency and numbers.

Brother W. F. Roberts, who preaches at Longleaf, reports that a Home Department has been organized there.

I am informed that Brother Berry, of Boyce, expects to build an addition of eight rooms to the church there for Sunday school purposes. A school has been organized at Eden on his charge, with Mr. Roberts as superintendent. One has also been organized at Hemphill, and a Sunday school rally is being planned by some of the local workers at Hemphill within the next 30 or 60 days.

Messrs. W. W. Williams of Alexandria and J. A. Ingram of Boyce will go to Gardner, on Brother A. A. Phillips' charge, and make talks on the Sunday school work on the first Sunday in June. A new church has just been completed at that place.

If you have Sunday school news of interest to other schools of our State, don't keep it a secret. Send it to your Conference Secretary, who will compile the information reaching his office and send it to Dr. Meek, who has put at our disposal space to be used every two weeks.

At each of the District Conferences to be held, there will be subjects of interest discussed which will be of advantage to all superintendents who can attend.

Alexandria, La.

APRIL TEACHER-TRAINING ENROLLMENT.

Rev. John W. Shackford, superintendent of the Teacher-training Department of our Church, reports the enrollment of teacher-training classes from the Gulf Division for the month of April as follows:

Alabama Conference—One class, at Dayton, with 5 members; North Alabama Conference—sixteen classes, at Johns, Hargrove, Milltown, Five Points, Chapel Hill (Buffalo), Lafayette, Crestline, Chandler Springs, Millerville, Piedmont, Ashland (2), Lowell (Roanoke), Woodstock, Holt, and Cordo, with 243 members; Mississippi Conference, three classes, at Hermanville, Bogue Chitto, and Pleasant Hill (Basin), with 37 members; North Mississippi Conference—six classes, at Oxford, Mt. Pleasant, Batesville, Horn Lake, Senatobia, and Starkville, with 61 members; Louisiana Conference—three classes, at Houma, Kentwood, and Bayou Sele (Noble), with 37 members; Little Rock Conference—two classes, at Stuttgart, and Stephens, with 20 members; North Arkansas Conference—four classes, at Bigelow, Central (Rogers), Lake Village, and Huntington, with 43 members. The total enrollment for the Division was 35 classes, and 451 students—the last figures including five individual students. The aggregate enrollment for the entire Church was 91 classes and 1227 students, which includes 59 individual students, the largest single month's enrollment yet, I believe. The North Alabama Conference leads the Church in number of classes and students enrolled—due to the faithful work of Brother Wolford, the Conference Sunday School Field Secretary.

HOW TO LIVE.

God never reveals facts without implying moral consequences. He reveals the second coming of Christ that we may be prepared for that event. He reveals eternity that we may be prepared for eternity. In the cathedral at Milan at the right-hand entrance is engraved a cluster of roses, and beneath are the words: "All that pleases is but for a moment." At the left-hand entrance is engraved a cross, with the inscription: "All that pains is but for a moment." On the central arch are the words: "Nothing is important but that which is eternal." A sister-missionary in India some time ago sent this sweet message to another: "Live as though Christ died yesterday, rose again this morning, and is coming back to-morrow." Then what is our prayer-life? It has been said that "the closet is an excellent place to practice meeting Christ in the air."—D. M. Panton.

THE WAY TO WIN OTHERS.

To win others to Christ we must be like Christ, and the indispensable accompaniment of prayer and effort for the salvation of others must be consistency of Christian character. We are witnesses, and witnesses who are unlike Christ are giving false testimony. One of our missionaries in India used to tell a very interesting story of the steps which led the residents of a certain heathen village to renounce heathenism and accept Christianity. They sent two successive deputations of their own number, the first to follow the English missionary on one of his evangelical tours, and the second to dwell among native Christians, and bring back the story of Christian life. They did not look for perfect people, but for people whose life and conduct reflected and explicated the teachings they received. They found this, and they accepted Christianity.—Christian Endeavor World.

BOILS AND PIMPLES DANGEROUS

Modern science has proven that boils and carbuncles, pimples and unsightly skin blotches are danger signals of diseased blood. It's the infected blood that's dangerous. Don't wait for the boils. If you have pimples and blotches, take instant action. Pimples tell you that your blood contains impurities. You must wash out your blood, and stimulate it to healthy action with Nature's own blood tonic, S. S. S. It is purely vegetable. You can get it at any druggist's. YOUNG WOMEN MAY AVOID PAIN

Need Only Trust to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, says Mrs. Kurtzweg.

Buffalo, N.Y.—"My daughter, whose picture is herewith, was much troubled with pains in her back and sides every month and they would sometimes be so bad that it would seem like acute inflammation of some organ. She read your advertisement in the newspapers and tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She praises it highly as she has been relieved of all these pains by its use. All mothers should know of this remedy, and all young girls who suffer should try it."—Mrs. MATILDA KURTZWEG, 529 High St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion, should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

If you know of any young woman who is sick and needs helpful advice, ask her to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Only women will receive her letter, and it will be held in strictest confidence.

HOLLY SPRINGS (MISS.) DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Holly Springs District Conference convened in the Methodist Church at Byhalia, Miss., on Thursday morning, April 27, at 9 o'clock, and adjourned at noon on Saturday, April 29.

The presiding elder, J. H. Felts, presided over the Conference, and under his wise and skillful direction every session was interesting and every interest of the Church was carefully considered. There was not a dull or tedious hour during the entire sitting of the Conference.

There was an average attendance of preachers and laymen. Four pastors were unavoidably absent.

The entertainment by the people of Byhalia was whole-hearted and generous. The pastor, L. A. McKeown, and the Committee on Entertainment had beforehand made every provision for the comfort and enjoyment of the Conference.

Reports from the pastors revealed a growing state of affairs throughout the District. Progress along all lines seemed to be the rule everywhere. While still early in the year and there had been few revivals yet held, a gratifying increase in membership was reported. Collections on salaries and the benevolences were well up to, and perhaps in advance of, former years to date. A refreshing spirit of optismism and expectancy was manifest in all the reports and discussions. The team spirit is also growing in the district. An air of mutual confidence and a disposition toward closer cooperation were very noticeable.

One young man, Wallace W. Redish, of First Church, Water Valley, was granted license to preach. He is a young man of promise. He expects to attend Millsaps College and prepare himself for the itinerancy. B. S. Eliot, of Holcomb, was elected District Lay Leader and enters upon his work with enthusiasm. The lay members of the Conference elected a strong delegation to the Annual Conference. They are, J. G. McGowen, W. H. French, D. H. Bishop and F. P. Boatner. The alternates are: L. G. Fant and M. G. Dubard.

All of the traveling notables, the connectional brethren, were with us to our pleasure and benefit. All had fresh, new speeches and added much to the inspiration and profit of the Conference. Rev. J. T. Lewis, Conference Secretary of Missions, preached a helpful missionary sermon on Thursday. Rev. J. B. Randolph came to us in a new role as Manager of the Orphanage. He gave a good acount of his work. His brethren believe that the Orphanage was never in safer hands. A Round Table discussion of Sunday school interests, conducted by Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Conference Sunday School Field Secretary, was a feature of the Conference. The work of no man among us is counting for more in this district than that of this capable and zealous Sunday school secretary. Rev. H. M. Ellis, representing the Memphis Hospital, reached the Conference on the last day. His splendid address was worthy of a larger hearing.

The key note of the Conference was "Christian Education," the interest most prominently considered, and that which aroused the largest enthusiasm. While the entire church is considering the important matter of building and maintaining colleges and universities as never before perhaps, it is to be observed that the North Mississippi Conference and the Holly Springs District do not propose to be behind in this great work.

Dr. A. F. Watkins preached on Thursday evening, and on Friday morning discussed the Denominational College and the part it has played in making the makers of history. He also brought us a report of Millsaps College, that splendid institution which is the pride of Mississippi Methodism. He didn't ask for much money, but received what he asked for.

President Countiss, of Grenada College, preached on Friday evening and gave an encouraging report of present conditions of the College and plans for its future. Commissioner Jaco reported progress made in collecting the proposed $50,000 for the College and urged the importance of the early completion of this undertaking. The success of this movement to date is a challenge for its immediate completion. The College is doing first-class work in every respect, and has a splendid faculty and a fine student body. The prospects for patronage for next session are more than bright. With the $50,000, we can go on to a greater Grenada College. It behooves every friend of Christian Education among us to assist Commissioner Jaco in every way possible toward the collection of this money, which means so much in the education of our girls in North Mississippi.

The address of Rev. Robert Selby on Friday morning made a great impression on the Conference and audience. He has confidence in the cause he represents and faith in the ultimate success of the movement to raise $50,000 in Mississippi for the Lamar School of Law at Emory University. When he had finished his message, perhaps not a person present doubted that he would succeed. Every Methodist should want a part, however humble, in the establishment of this University, which is just entering a field of the largest usefulness and service.

The concluding service of the Conference on Saturday morning, when Rev. J. W. Dorman preached, was a season of spiritual refreshing from the presence of the Lord.

The Conference will meet next year in Coffeeville.

R. A. TUCKER, Secretary.
Grenada, Miss.

YOUR HEART

is closely connected with your nerves, so close in fact that anything which effects your nerves must necessarily effect your heart and vice versa.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, symtoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. REVIVAL AT COURTLAND, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: We have had a very gracious meeting here at Courtland. Rev. J. L. Morril, of Hawkinsville, Ga., did the preaching. He is a very strong preacher, and by his earnest messages the church was awakened and much good accomplished. It had been quite awhile since we had heard the old fundamental truths of our Church so strongly presented as was done by this good man of God. The old-time gospel has not lost any of its power. As a result of this meeting family altars were erected, the Sunday school built up, and a prayer meeting established with a growing interest. We think we can truthfully say that the Courtland Church is religiously on the up-grade, and we are trying our best to keep up the spiritual warmth and have a church of spiritual power and glory. There were souls saved at the altar in this meeting. They repented of their sins, and wept their way to Calvary and found Jesus as their Savior. There were seven additions to our Church. We recommend Brother Morril to the brethren as a safe expounder of the truths of the Gospel.

SPRING MEDICINE

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Great Blood Purifier, is the Best.

Spring sickness comes in some degree to every man, woman and child in our climate.

It is that run-down condition of the system that results from impure, impoverished, devitalized blood.

It is marked by loss of appetite and that tired feeling, and in many cases by some form of eruption.

The best way to treat spring sickness is to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old reliable family medicine purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood. It is an all-the-year-round alterative and tonic, and is absolutely the best Spring medicine.

Get your blood in good condition at once—now. Delay may be dangerous. Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla, and insist on having it, for nothing else can take its place.

IN GREAT SORROW.

Dear Dr. Meek: Brother J. V. Bennett, our pastor at Monticello, Miss., and family are in great distress. On last Sunday morning, May 14, Miriam Ora, their nineteen months' old baby daughter, died in this city where she had been brought for medical treatment. She was sick only a few days and her death is a great shock to her parents. The two boys, Milton and Mouzon, are critically ill with the same disease, colitis, but at this writing seem some better. The body of the baby girl was carried to the mother's girlhood home in Leake County, accompanied by Rev. W. H. Lewis, who conducted the funeral on Monday, May 15. Let the brethren remember Brother and Sister Bennett at the throne of divine grace and comfort.

HOT WATER AND "ANURIC" BEFORE MEALS—AND HEALTH.

All people in America and especially those who are past middle age are prone to eat too much meat and in consequence deposit lime-salts in their arteries, veins and joints. They often suffer from twinges of rheumatism or lumbago, sometimes from gout, swollen hands or feet. Such people are not always able to exercise sufficiently in the outdoor air or drink enough pure water in order to sweat freely and excrete impurities thru the skin. Dr. Pierce has conducted experiments and thoroughly tested a uric acid solvent at his Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute which he is convinced is many times more potent than lithia—this he named "Anuric." It can be had at almost all drug stores by simply asking for Dr. Pierce's Anuric for kidneys or backache. It will overcome such conditions as rheumatism, dropsical swellings, cold extremities, scalding and burning urine and sleeplessness due to constant need of getting out of bed at night.

Our grandmothers have told our mothers and our mothers have in turn instructed us that in case of sickness, resort to Dr. Pierce's dependable household prescriptions. These medicines as put up for sale by druggists have never been recommended as "cure-alls," but only as superior remedies for certain common and easily-recognized diseases. Had these medicines been adopted to all classes and forms of chronic diseases there would have been no necessity for organizing a competent staff of expert physicians and surgeons, to act in the treatment of difficult, obscure and complicated cases of chronic diseases, as Dr. Pierce maintains in his invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute. Of his home remedies the most widely known are his "Favorite Prescription" for womanly troubles and run-down conditions peculiar to the womanly sex; his "Golden Medical Discovery," the greatest of all herbal system tonics and vitalizers, for stomach, liver and blood disorders, as well as his "Pleasant Pellets," the tiny, tonic laxatives, overcoming constipation and cleansing the system of poisons and accumulations in the bowels.—Adv.

MISSISSIPPI WHIRLWIND CAMPAIGN POSTPONED.

The Whirlwind Campaign for the Mississippi Conference which was to have been held this month has been postponed to October, when Mrs. S. S. Harris will be within our bounds, and much good and inspiration are hoped for from her presence among the women. The months intervening can be well spent in earnest, prayerful preparation. Seed can be sown all over the Conference, and a greater harvest will be the result. We are so desirous to reach a large number of women, young people, and children, enthuse them with the missionary work, and so gain faithful, efficient laborers for the Master's vineyard.

LIZZIE JOHNSON, THE SUFFERING SAINT.

A beautiful leaflet recently found its way to our desk. It bears the above title and is written by Bishop Warne of the Northern Church. It is the story of a woman who never gave up her life purpose, although afflicted in a manner which rendered her almost helpless. It runs thus:

"When she was about thirteen, she heard that apostolic missionary, William Taylor, tell that $50 would redeem an African slave girl, and Lizzie Johnson formed a purpose to earn $50 and redeem an African slave girl. Shortly afterwards she was afflicted with a softening of the bones around the spinal cord, until about one inch of the spinal cord was without support, and Lizzie was laid on the bed with instructions that her back should not be bent, lest it should mean sudden death. She lay there without having her head once lifted from the pillow more than three inches for twenty-eight years—years of constant and intense suffering.

As Lizzie lay there and realized that she was a life-long invalid, the thought was still in her mind, "I must redeem an African slave girl." And with prayer and meditation she devised the plan of having her father make for her a working table which would rest on either side of her on the bed, arranged so that she could put her arms on it and work. Then she conceived the idea of making a 'crazy quilt.' On this quilt she worked for four years, and made what I think is a very beautiful and wonderful product."

When Bishop Warne visited Lizzie the quilt had been finished for thirteen years, and during that time no one who visited that sufferer's room had ever sufficiently entered into her heart burden to purchase the quilt. Bishop Warne says: "When I looked into that suffering face and thought of that quilt lying in that room unused for thirteen years, it broke my heart, and I fear that I wept like a child, and I said, 'Lizzie, I will sell your quilt.'"

It was just a few weeks prior to Bishop Warne's sailing for India, but wherever he went he displayed the quilt and said, "Now, to the extent of your sympathy with Lizzie Johnson, put something on this quilt." Before sailing for India, he mailed Lizzie her quilt and $600.

"During those thirteen years, when it seemed to Lizzie that her quilt project had failed, she did not give up or surrender, but devised another method of raising money, by which she is widely known. She had printed beautiful ribbon bookmarks with choice quotations of Scripture verses, and sent these out to be sold by friends, and only to be paid for when sold. Before she died she sent to the foreign mission fields of the Church $24,000, and supported workers who represented a century and a half of service."

After Lizzie and her mother had died and the estate was settled, $4000 remained. This amount was sent to Bishop Warne, who took it to the Indian pastor of a self-supporting congregation at Cawnpore and said: "If you will raise $2000 in addition to this, I will give you the $4000 and you can build a new church." They raised the amount and a nice brick church seating 700 people stands as a memorial to Lizzie Johnson. Bishop Warne writes that he is still using this story "as an inspiration to other people in letting those who have health and strength and opportunity compare what they are making out of their lives with what was accomplished by Lizzie Johnson, the suffering saint, who had in her life a great purpose."

FORTUNATE FOR THE SOUTH.

Skin diseases seem most prevalent in the warmer climates, which makes it fortunate for the South that it has such an exceptionally fine remedy in Tetterine for Eczema, Tetter, Itch, Acne, Salt Rheum, etc. Every skin trouble from a simple chafe or insect bite to the worst case of Tetter is quickly relieved by Tetterine. Iron the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous Rundown [People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Week's Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by the lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray while many another has gone down into inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

CHURCH NEWS.

It is stated that Bishop Matthew Simpson was baptized by Bishop Asbury.

Evangelist Billy Sunday began a tabernacle meeting at Kansas City, Mo., on April 30.

There are said to be 40,000 Methodists in the Philippine Islands, the increase last year amounting to 4000.

Bishop Collins Denny will preach the Annual Sermon at the approaching Commencement of the Randolph-Macon Woman's College, at Lynchburg, Va.

Dr. Theo. Copeland, pastor of the Central M. E. Church, South, of Hot Springs, Ark., has received 111 members since the Annual Conference, 24 of whom joined on a recent Sabbath.

Dr. B. Fay Mills, the once noted evangelist who took up with the so-called "new thought," but who some months ago proclaimed publicly his return to orthodox Christian teaching, died at Grand Rapids, Michigan, a few days since.

Dr. John M. Moore, of Nashville, Tenn., will soon have a volume to come from the press, entitled "The South To-day." It will be one of the series of books that is being brought out by the Missionary Educational Movement.

According to the figures given out at the Southern Baptist Convention last week, the Southern Baptist Church claims a membership of 2,685,552, and a gain during the past year of 168,235. The total Baptist population of the world was stated to be 7,141,413.

Hon. Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the United States Navy, attended the Southern Methodist luncheon given at the Powhatan Hotel in Washington City while the National Missionary Congress was in session there, and made a very happy brief address.

According to his son, Mr. Carl H. Fowler, a prominent New York lawyer, the late Bishop C. H. Fowler's famous lecture on Lincoln was an evolvement of his funeral sermon following the assassination of the War President. It is said that this lecture was delivered about 150 times.

There is talk in South Carolina of erecting on the campus of Wofford College a life-size statue of the late Dr. James H. Carlisle, who for so many years was the distinguished official head of that institution. We do not think that a statue is the best memorial to a great Christian man, such as Dr. Carlisle was.

The Memphis correspondent of the Midland Methodist says: "We note with pleasure that Bishop Murrah has been assigned to preside over the Memphis Conference, which will convene in Union City, Tenn., on November 15." Bishop Murrah seems to have won his way into the hearts of the West Tennesseeans.

The question of priority between Robert Strawbridge and the Sam's Creek log meeting-house and Philip Embury and the old John Street Church of New York City has been referred by the Northern Methodist General Conference to a special committee of fifteen, with instructions to report at this session of the Conference. This was done upon the motion of Dr. J. F. Goucher, of Baltimore.

Bishop T. D. Bratton, of Mississippi, has put the ban on love songs and popular airs as a part of wedding ceremonies in his diocese, declaring that hereafter the music at Episcopal church weddings must be restricted to the suggestions of the Prayer Book. Bishop Bratton is quoted as having said: "However pleasing and innocent in the social circle the little love songs and popular airs may be, they certainly have no place in a solemn and sacred office of the Church." We think that this action is to be commended.

THE CORINTH DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Corinth District Conference will convene at Iuka, Miss., on Tuesday, June 20, at 8 o'clock p. m. Rev. W. C. Carlisle will preach the opening sermon. Let all who expect to attend send their names to the pastor, Rev. W. D. McCullough, in order that entertainment may be provided for them. All persons representing interests of the Church are cordially invited to attend the Conference.

The following Committees have been announced: License to Preach and Recommendation for Admission on Trial—J. E. Cunningham, W. W. Hartsfield, and J. M. Wyatt. On Recommendation for Orders and Readmission—S. L. Pope, R. P. Neblett, J. A. Goad. T. H. DORSEY, P. E.

THE GRENADA CONFERENCE.

The Conference on Christian work at Grenada, Miss., will be held in the Chapel of Grenada College, May 30 to June 2. The exercises will open Tuesday evening, May 2, with Rev. J. M. Bradley, of Aberdeen, Miss., presiding, the speaker of the hour being Rev. George R. Stuart, D. D., of Knoxville, Tenn., who will deliver his lecture on "Lop-Sided Preachers."

On Wednesday morning, Rev. J. W. Dorman will preside; Rev. T. M. Bradley, of Durant, will conduct the devotions, and the principal addresses will be made by Dr. W. W. Pinson, of Nashville, Tenn., Dr. W. F. McMurry, of Louisville, Ky., and Dr. W. J. Young, of Atlanta, Ga.

On Wednesday afternoon, Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Starkville, will be in the chair; Rev. W. M. Young, of Pontotoc, will lead the devotional exercises, and Dr. George R. Stuart and Dr. E. B. Chappell will be the chief speakers. At 8 p. m., Rev. J. E. Cunningham will preside and Bishop James Atkins will discuss "The Chief of the Chistologic Prophecies."

Thursday morning, Rev. J. T. McCafferty, of Enpora, will be the presiding officer; Rev. V. C. Curtis, of Lexington, will lead the opening exercises, and the speakers will be Dr. George R. Stuart, Dr. W. F. McMurry, and Bishop Atkins.

Thursday afternoon, Rev. W. W. Mitchell, of Durant, will be in the chair, and Dr. W. J. Young and Dr. W. F. McMurry will deliver addresses.

Thursday night, Prof. Dabney Lipscomb will preside, and Dr. E. B. Chappell will discuss the theme, "An Educational Policy."

Friday morning, Rev. H. S. Spragins, of Greenville, will be in the chair; Rev. T. H. Dorsey, of Corinth will conduct the devotions, and the speakers will be Drs. Pinson, Young, and Stuart.

Friday afternoon, the presiding officer will be Rev. W. S. Lagrone, of Drew; Rev. W. N. Duncan, of Winona, will lead the devotions, and Dr. Chappell and Dr. Pinson will lecture. At night, the closing session, Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, of Sardis, will preside, and Dr. W. J. Young will give the message.

In the morning and afternoon sessions there will be "open forums," led by the following gentlemen: Mr. L. G. Fant, Rev. J. T. Felts, Rev. E. M. Shaw, Rev. J. C. Park, Mr. J. H. Ledyard, and Rev. L. P. Wasson. The Wisdom sisters, of Macon, Mo., will sing each morning and afternoon.

Board and lodging, including linen, for the whole Conference will cost $2.25. For less than the whole Conference $1 per day. Visitors will be lodged and fed in the Grenada College dormitories.

TETTERINE WHEN OTHERS FAIL

That's the great thing about Tetterine skin remedy. It does insist upon relieving the severest cases of Tetter, Ringworm, Eczema, Itch, Acne, Pimples, etc., when others fall down. Mrs. S. E. Hart, Cross Trails, Ala., says: "I used Tetterine for tetter which has been running for 5 years. Nothing gave relief until I used your remedy and one box made a final cure." 50c at druggist's or by mail from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

JACKSON DISTIRICT CONFERENCE.

It opened at Raymond on the evening of May 8 with a sermon by Rev. T. H. King, and continued in sessiou till noon of the 11th. There was not a dull moment during the entire session.

The Conference was organized for business Tuesday morning with the election of Rev. G. P. McKeown as secretary, and the aunouncement of the several committees. The chairmen of these various committees were on the alert, when the pastors made reports of their charges, to enquire if they were diligent in attending to the many branches of service required of them by the Church. As a result, some showed remarkable diligence along some lines, and some along others; while most every one made promise to return to his charge and do better.

This scribe, as chairman of the Committee on Religious Literature, found about 413 copies of the Conference organ taken in the district, with 72 new subscribers obtained; and about 60 copies of the General organ. We feel confident that the Advocate campaign will be pushed thoroughly during the year, and that the Jackson District will continue to lead the Conference in the number of new subscribers obtained.

Three young men were licensed to preach, namely, G. H. Butler and J. G. Byrd from the Capitol Street Church, and A. M. West from Galloway Memorial. They are young men of unusual promise and ability and the Church is enriched by the dedication of their lives to the ministry. Since most of the applicants for the ministry come from the country, the fact that these young men are from Jackson impressed us that the spiritual life of our city churches is growing stronger and bearing fruit for the ministry. Rev. E. L. Hillman was elected to local deacon's orders.

Reports revealed new life being infused into the Epworth Leagues. Under the active leadership of Miss Corinne Avery, the district organizer, several new Leagues have been organized and old ones have become more active. The three young men licensed to preach have made their impress upon the local churches of which they are members by their efficiency developed through the League.

The work of the Women's Missionary Society throughout the district is constantly growing under the efficient leadership of Mrs. Sam Ewing, who graced and delighted the Conference with her presence and report of the work she represents.

No complaint of hard times or of low spiritual conditions was heard from any part of the district. Spiritual conditions are improving. Several accessions on profession of faith were reported. Many charges reported the finances as in an excellent condition. Some of the country charges reported the pastor's salary paid in full to date, and the Conference collections well in hand. Many improvements on church and parsonage properties have been and are being made throughout the district.

The various interests and institutions of the church were well represented. Rev. "Bob" Selby preached a strong sermon on Christian Education and presented the claims of Emory University, securing about $600 in subscriptions, mostly from the preachers. Dr. H. W. Featherstun spoke in the interest of Port Gibson Female College; Rev. J. M. Morse represented Whitworth and the interests of the Joint Board of Finance; Dr. J. M. Sullivan gave a stirring address on Millsaps; Rev. J. B. Randolph brought the cause of the orphans nearer to our hearts by the report of his work; and Rev. J. L. Neill brought visions and enthusiasm to our minds and hearts concerning the Sunday school work and missions.

The laymen of the church showed a live interest in all the deliberations of the Conference. They backed up the pastors with additional words of encouragement about conditions in the charges. Some of the best speeches made on the floor of the Conference were delivered by them. We all keep wide awake when Sullivan speaks on lay activities. The addresses on Sunday school work by V. R. Howie, Wm. Hemmingway, J. C. Cavett and others impress us that our Church is not one whit behind in the number and quality of consecrated laymen in this branch of church work. But we need more of them.

The following laymen were elected as delegates to the Annual Conference: Major R. W. Millsaps, S. A. Childress, W. E. Harris, and M. S. Enochs. I. N. McLendon and J. M. Sullivan were chosen alternates.

The licensing committee appointed to serve till Conference consists of W. G. Henry, W. J. Dawson, R. P. Fikes, and H. P. Lewis, Jr.

Madison Station was chosen as the place of meeting for 1917.

This was one of the best attended Conferences in the history of the district. The minutes showed the presence of 28 preachers, 10 local preachers, 46 laymen, all members of the Conference, and six or eight visiting brethren from other districts. Besides those mentioned above, we were honored with the presence of Revs. T. W. Adams, B. W. Lewis, and Ira B. Robertson from other districts.

The members of the Conference couldn't refrain from expressing their appreciation of the faithful, energetic leadership of the presiding elder, Rev. P. D. Hardin, who for the past four years has done so much to make the work of the district so successful and delightful. His consecration, faithfulness to duty, and impartial administration of the affairs of the Church has endeared him to preachers and laymen alike.

The pastor, W. J. Dawson, proved an ideal host. He looked carefully and diligently after the comforts of all delegates. The people of Raymond also made each delegate feel that he had the best and most hospitable home to be had in the town as his place to stay. Many of them attended the business sessions of the Conference, and at the hours for preaching they practically filled the church.

Besides those mentioned, the preached Word was brought to us by Revs. G. P. McKeown, M. M. Black, and W. G. Henry.

Rev. J. S. Duke acted as choir leader and rendered special service in song to the delight of all. In the absence of the local organist, Rev. M. F. Adams served capably in that capacity.

The Conference was pronounced by some to be the best, most harmonious and spiritual they had ever attended. This scribe heard one preacher over 80 years old make such a remark. The Lord met with us and blessed us.

Editorial

MORE SABBATHS NEEDED.

Dr. John R. Deering, one of the editors of the Central Methodist (Lexington, Ky.), writes as follows:

"This editor sympathizes with all pastors concerned in these "later days" for Special Days. They are so numerous and serious, and require such—oh, such constant observation! And they are being doubled up. We have just had an instance of trebling up, viz.: Go-to-Sunday-School-Day, Church Extension Day and Bible Society Day, all on one day. And Mother's Day, is the next, and warnings are in hand of a Children's Day, Citizen's Day, and a Memorial Day, and a Labor Day—not to mention 'The Judgment Day!'

"One of these days was declared important and imperative by our new Governor, Stanley, and was so proclaimed under the great seal of this Commonwealth, and another was endorsed and urged by our devout President Wilson, whilst the whole College of Bishops commends the other; so a man is afraid to nod lest he forgets the day—or to say a word, lest he should 'speak evil of dignities!' But how to 'observe' and not get mixed, is the question. We suppose that sooner or later we must add some more Sundays to the Church calendar."

(Our confrere has here touched upon one the marked tendencies of the times. We are very decidedly of the opinion that it ought to be a most extraordinary condition of things to lead a pastor to substitute at the regular preaching hours anything else for a warm and searching gospel message that exalts Christ as a present and seeking Savior. This is what humanity most needs.—Editor of the Advocate.)

AN HONOR WORTHILY BESTOWED.

At the session of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church at Orlando, Fla., last week, Dr. C. W. Grafton of Union Church, Mississippi, was named as moderator. This is the highest honor within the gift of this virile and growing denomination, and it is doubtful if it was ever more worthily bestowed than it was in this instance. Dr. Grafton is an alumnus of the University of Mississippi, having been the first honor man in the class of which the late Bishop Charles B. Galloway was a member. We have often heard Bishop Galloway speak in terms of enthusiastic appreciation of his capacity as a student and of his high character. In 1873 Dr. Grafton was graduated in theology from the Presbyterian Seminary in Columbia, S. C., and for forty-three years he has served Union Church in Southwest Mississippi, a country congregation, which will celebrate its hundredth anniversary in 1917. Of late years Bensalem Church, another country appointment, has been connected with Union Church, the two forming a single pastorate. At times Dr. Grafton has also maintained a school in the community in which he has resided.

During his long incumbency as pastor in this modest and comparatively unremunerative charge, Dr. Grafton has had many tempting offers to go to larger and better paying fields of service, but he has invariably rejected them, preferring to remain with the people among whom he first began his work as a minister. It scarcely needs to be said that he has exerted an uplifting and far-reaching influence in Southwest Mississippi, where he is loved and honored as perhaps no other man has ever been in that section. This is not strange, for such unselfishness and fidelity are unusual, and, when coupled with large ability, could hardly fail to evoke the gratitude and affection of any people.

In honoring such a man, the Southern Presbyterian General Assembly has reflected much credit upon itself. It will be upon the heads of men with such a spirit that the Master will place the brightest crowns in the great day when he shall come to reckon with and reward his servants.

NORTHERN METHODIST NEGOTIATORS.

The following ministers and laymen of the Methodist Episcopal Church have been appointed to act for that denomination in any future negotiations that may take place concerning the matter of unifying the Methodist Churches of the United States:

"Bishops—Earl Cranston, John W. Hamilton, William F. McDowell, Frederick D. Leete, R. J. Cooke.

"Ministers—Edgar Blake, Chicago; James R. Day, Syracuse, N. Y.; David G. Downey, New York; J. F. Goucher, Baltimore; Robert E. Jones, New Orleans; A. J. Nast, Cincinnati; Frank Neff, Tulsa, Okla.; E. M. Randall, Seattle, Wash.; Claudius B. Spencer, Kansas City, Mo.; Joseph W. Vancleave, Decatur, Ill.

"Laymen—George Warren Brown, St. Louis; Charles Warren Fairbanks, Indianapolis; Abram W. Harris, New York; C. W. Kinne, Jacksonville; J. G. Garland Penn, Cincinnati; I. E. Robinson, Charleston, W. Va.; Henry Wade Rogers, New Haven; William Rule, Knoxville, Tenn.; Alexander Simpson, Philadelphia; Rolla V. Watt, San Francisco."

Of these negotiators, Bishop Leete and Bishop Cooke especially have been closely identified with the work of the Northern Methodist Church in the South. Dr. R. E. Jones, who is the Editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate of New Orleans and a Negro, was doubtless placed on the commission as a representative of the colored Methodists. We are not acquainted with all the members of this body, most of the laymen especially being unknown to us; so we cannot state whether or not it includes other colored men. It is noticeable that, though women sit as delegates in the Northern Methodist General Conference, they have been entirely ignored in naming these commissioners.

SOME UNION ECHOES.

The Outlook (New York).

"A plan for union between the different branches of Methodism in America has been submitted in a report by a committee and accepted by the Conference with great enthusiasm. This, of course, is but the first step. The union cannot be consummated until the plan is drawn up in detail and adopted by the several Church bodies involved."

Church News Association (New York).

"As far as can be learned since action was taken at Saratoga by Methodists of the North in the matter of union with Methodists of the South, small expectation obtains that such union can be brought about. The South asks that negroes have a wholly distinct Methodist Church, the North that they have a separate Conference, but that they remain a part of the one great Methodist body. It seems to be held by Methodist leaders both North and South that these differences will block all unity plans. Yet Methodist North men say their body could take no other position. Reasons given are not entirely a supposed sympathy for the negro, but disinclination to agree to two Methodist Churches in the same territory, divided on race. * * *

"Methodists who favor union mention a breaker ahead that they say compares with the difficulty over the status of the negro. It is the union of the missionary and other official societies. Were they to come together, not only would the largest missionary societies in the world be the result, it is said, but also the largest publishing, ministerial pension, and almost all other funds. It is pointed out that unity plans are oftenest blocked by financial considerations, and so Methodists are warning their people not to be over-sanguine at the unity outlook."

Central Methodist (Lexington, Ky).

"It (the Northern General Conference) did not declare itself on any specific issue, but confined its deliverance to general terms. There has hardly been a year in the past fifty that the two great Methodist bodies could not have met and agreed on a theoretical union, but they have not been able to agree on a practical, workable union.

"The General Conference now in session did not adopt a plan of union, or pass on the essential features of the plan suggested by the Joint Commission and approved by our General Conference. It simply came forth with a set of beautiful, fraternal, and enthusiastic suggestions, big with optimism, and more significant on account of what was left out than of what was expressed.

"'Their definition of the powers to be given to the General Conference is quite different from the plan proposed by the Joint Commission and approved by our General Conference. Their idea of quadrennial conferences seems altogether different from the one proposed by the Joint Commission and approved by our General Conference. They now speak of a 'world wide church' instead of the 'reorganization of American Methodism.' * * *

"The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church seemed to have the settlement of the question put squarely up to it, and it looked like it was bound to decide the matter this time, but it has graciously and gracefully thrown the burden on another Joint Commission, and that action will come first to our General Conference for consideration, then wind around to theirs four years hence."

THE VICTORIOUS MINORITY.

Robert Lloyd Piatt.

It's easy enough to fall in with the crowd,
As it beckons and hurries along,
It's easy enough to be shouting aloud
In the midst of a clamoring throng;

But it takes a bold courage to turn from the horde,
With the pleasures that lure and compel;
Far better to journey alone with the Lord
Than to slide with the mob into hell.

It costs little effort to wander and drift,
No conflict of soul or of will,
But it takes a brave spirit to struggle and lift
As it climbs toward the top of the hill.

It's easy to follow the smile and the nod
Of the world with iniquity sown,
But the heart that's in tune with the infinite God—
How often it travels alone!

The Christ of the ages—how lonely was He
As He sought to win men for His own!
How little they knew, as He hung on the tree,
Of the burden He carried—alone!

And Paul, how he thrills us again and again,
What a harvest his labors have shown!
Though he walked the dense streets of the cities of men,
Yet he fought his great battles—alone.

Thus the heroes of heaven had ever to stand
With their faces steadfast toward the throne,
And while helping humanity, hand touching hand,
They have dwelt in the spirit—alone.

The path that the men of the kingdom have trod
Has seemed lonely, with nothing to guide;
But the way became glorious, just because God
Was walking unseen by their side.

In the rattle and din of our turbulent life,
As we rush to eternity's goal,
Thrice blest is the man, in the midst of the strife,
Who can rise on the wings of his soul.

For he can withstand while the fierce breakers roll,
Undismayed by the tempest or sword,
Though ten thousand assail him, the light of his soul
Is triumphant through Jesus, the Lord.

—Zion's Herald.

THE WAGES OF SIN.

A brittle thing is our earthly happiness—brittle as some thin vase of Venetian glass; and yet neither anxiety, nor sorrow, nor the dart of death, which is mightier than the oak-cleaving thunderbolt, can shatter a thing even so brittle as the earthly happiness of our poor little homes, if we place that happiness under the care of God. But though neither anguish nor death can break it with all their violence, sin can break it at a touch, and selfishness can shatter it, just as there are acids which will shiver the Venetian glass. Sin and selfishness—God's balm does not heal in this world the ravages which they cause.— Canon Farrar.

PRAYING FOR OTHERS.

There is nothing that makes us love a man so much as praying for him; and when you can do this sincerely for any man, you have fitted your soul for the performance of everything that is kind and civil toward him. . . Be daily on your knees in a solemn, deliberate performance of this devotion, praying for others in such form, with such length, importunity and earnestness as you use for yourself; and you will see all little ill-natured passions die away and your heart grow great and generous, delighting in the common happiness of others as you used only to delight in your own.—William Law, in The Serious Call.

SEE THE LIGHT THAT IS IN THE CLOUD.

I do not say that you can make yourself merry and happy when you are in a physical condition which is contrary to such mental condition; but by practice and effort you can learn to withdraw from it, refusing to allow your judgments and actions to be ruled by it. "What does that matter?" you will learn to say. "It is enough for me to know that the sun does shine and that this is only a weary fog that is round about me for a moment. I shall come out into the light beyond presently." This is faith—faith in God, who is Light.—George Macdonald.

MESSAGE FROM OUR BISHOPS.

The College of Bishops of our Church has sent out a message to the ministers and members of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, calling the attention of the Church to the condition aud outlook of our two leading educational institutions —Emory University, at Atlanta, and Southern Methodist University, at Dallas. Concerning Emory University the message says in part:

"By incorporating the Literary Department of Emory College and also the Atlanta Medical College into its general plans the Commission has increased its resources nearly a million more. Numerous gifts, almost unsolicited, have come from other parts of the Church. We make special mention of $25,000 from Mr. Tipton T. Fishburne, of Roanoke, Va., and a like sum from Mr. John J. Gray, of Rockdale, Tenn. Commissioners are now at work in the States of Alabama and Mississippi seeking to raise funds with which to assist in the erection of buildings and for other necessary uses.

"A wonderful campus of one hundred acres in the suburbs of Atlanta, Ga., has been secured and laid out by the best landscape artists in the country. Four beautiful buildings are in process of erection and will soon be ready for occupancy.

"The Theological Department is now entering the second year of its work with more than a hundred students. Resting solidly on a special endowment of $500,000, its permanent success is already assured. The same may be said of the Medical Department, which starts with a plant and equipment worth at least $250,000, besides a cash endowment of $270,000, and the very valuable buildings and endowments of Wesley Hospital. During the current year it has had nearly two hundred and fifty students. The Literary Department, which is still carried on in the ample buildings of Emory College, has also had a year of great prosperity. The number of its students, added to those in theology and in medicine, makes a total enrollment in the University of over six hundred."

The statement of the Bishops concerning Southern Methodist University, at Dallas, is as follows:

"Equally inspiring are the prospects of Southern Methodist University. Its aggregate resources, though not all immediately available, are not less than two and a quarter million dollars. The whole of this large sum of money, except two hundred thousand dollars given by the General Board of Education, is the generous contribution of the Methodists of Texas and the citizens of the city of Dallas. It is an open question whether Dallas or Atlanta is to have the lead in the long run in the matter of projecting, building, and maintaining such worthy homes for the dissemination of Christian Instruction. Nothing could be more beautiful than the great campus of one hundred and thirty acres overlooking the city, nor more pleasing to the cultivated taste than the two great buildings that have already been erected upon it. In the course of time it will be one of the show places of Texas. With that Empire State from which to draw and the large measure of patronage which in the course of time it is sure to get from other quarters, it is entering upon a history of almost unbounded usefulness. During the first year of its active operations it has had an enrollment of over 600 students, taxing even in the outset the space which it has been able to provide for housing them. Before a great while, unless some unanticipated calamity or disaster should befall it, there is scarcely any limit to the scope and range of its influence.

"We desire to say here that neither it nor Emory University means to compete with our other institutions of learning, but only to supplement them. It would be a piece of inexcusable folly if we should now neglect the older schools and colleges that have wrought so vigorously and so efficiently in the past for the education of our people. The chapter of history which they have made under great difficulties is one of the most glorious in the history of our Church, and we shall never forget it.

"Just now we would call special attention to the fact that Southern Methodist University is our only theological school for the Southwest, and we urge all true Methodists in that region to give it their heartiest and most liberal approval and support. At the present time in particular, while some of its prospective endowments are not yet in shape for current needs, it ought to have the most liberal assistance in the maintenance of its theological faculty and generous provision for its sustentation funds. There is no appeal, we are sure, that will reach the hearts of Methodists with more effectiveness than the appeal to provide for the fullest equipment of our young preachers, nor is there any investment of money that is sure to bring a larger return for the spread of the kingdom than the investment which looks to the intellectual and spiritual training of those who are to be the prophets and pastors of the coming generations."

Calling attention to the necessity of unity of action on the part of the Church, the Bishops conclude their address to the Church with the following appeal:

"Unless we mean to invite failure and court disaster, we must pull together. There never was a period in the history of our Church when there was a more strenuous demand for unity of purpose and effort. The solidarity of Southern Methodism has been one of the chief sources of its strength in the days that have gone. Let us now once more, forgetting all minor differences of opinion and casting to the winds all factional feelings of every sort, rally as one man to the support of our universities."

WOULD "CHRISTIANIZE" THE BIBLE.

Apply the blue pencil liberally to the Bible and we shall have not only a "Christianized" version, but also one that will more effectually show "the power of Jesus to affect human society." This is the prescription of a writer in The Biblical World (University of Chicago Press), who asserts that precious as are "those echoes of God's voice in the souls of men who lived long ago," nevertheless the "truth of development requires that we cherish only a measured regard for the past, that we study its messages and weigh its standards by the accumulating light of a God who is never done with the revelation of his wisdom and grace, and that we hold truly sacred from yesterday only that which can promote the life of to-day." But at the same time, we are advised, while the law of development demands that we eliminate from the Bible all that has clearly become obsolete, we are also summoned to the task in a no less impressive manner by that which is central in our religion, namely, "loyalty to its Founder." This personal allegiance releases us from all standards lower than the Gospel and imposes the solemn obligation that every writing of the Old Testament and the New be "brought to the standard in Jesus" and appraised as regards religious value according to their agreement with that standard. The first notable characteristic of such a Christian revision of the Scriptures, the writer tells us, will be homogeneity. It will not be "a national library, but a book of religion; not, as now, a book of religions." Moreover, after such a revision,

"It can not be consulted as a source of information on the secular history of the Hebrew people or their antiquities, their religious laws and sacrifices, or their social and domestic life. It will not yield two or more essentially different conceptions of religion. It will thus lose in variety, but gain immensely in clearness, intensity, and force. Then, in the second place, the new canon will be authoritative. Whatever authority can inhere in a written document will inhere in this for the disciples of Jesus, since it consists only of his revelation and that which is truly akin to it. The quality of authoritativeness will belong to the entire canon—we can not say to all parts alike, for the degree of kinship between the revelation in Jesus and other parts of the Bible where kinship is rightly recognized is not always the same. If the highest spiritual authority belongs to the largest, most enfranchising, and most spiritual conceptions, then obviously we can not claim identical authority for conceptions that differ widely in their measures of truth. It will remain true, however, that the new canon, by virtue of its formative principle, may claim a religious authority above that which belongs to our present Bible as a whole."

What is more, the new canon will be relatively brief, for the oldest collection of the Master's words, we are reminded, would fill about seven pages in the Standard American Revision, and all his authentic teaching about twenty-six pages. The historical material of his life, as distinct from his teaching, would fill about eighteen pages, which would make some forty-four pages of teaching and life-record combined. From the New Testament, "exclusive of the first three Gospels," the writer goes on to say, we have matter "akin to the revelation in Jesus" to make approximately ten pages, and from the Old Testament that which would make approximately about thirty-eight pages. Consequently, the new Christian canon of Scripture would consist of about ninety-two pages of the size of the American Revision. Therefore it would be about "one-twelfth the size of our Bible," and "it may not be unreasonable to believe that the new canon would gain in power in the same proportion in which it would lose in bulk." The writer claims among the benefits of the Christianized Bible that young people graduating from the Sunday school will no longer come forth with "only the meagerest and most hazy notions of the first principles of the Gospel," because their thought has been directed to so wide and diverse a field that it has "nowhere penetrated beneath the surface." Furthermore, when we think of God as Jesus did, we shall no longer speak of him as a "'man of war' who marches at the head of his chosen hosts in campaigns for the enslavement or extermination of other tribes and peoples," nor shall we speak of him as "a jealous God" or a local and partizan God." In a word, we are told, "conceptions of God that are not found in the Christian standard and are not akin to it will be unhesitatingly rejected." Then we come to a passage that will no doubt provoke dissent:

"Again, with the emergence of the Christian standard from the rest of the Scriptures there will come a different view of the Master. We shall no longer see him through the medium of Greek philosophy or of the popular Messianism of his own time; no longer speak of him as having pre-existed, as having been the active agent in the creation of the world, and as having revealed himself in a measure to the phophets of the former age; no longer regard him as having lived a dual life, or as standing over against God with a consciousness essentially unlike that of other men; no longer think of him as wielding any extraordinary power save such as flowed naturally and inevitably from the pure fountain of his inner life of faith and love; no longer think of him as the object of worship, but only as the unique pattern and the inspirer of the acceptable worship of God; no longer see in him and his work a special law of redemption, but rather a perfect and unique illustration of an eternal law, operative from the beginning of human history, operative at present, and to be operative to the end of the history of sinful man; no longer think of him as standing outside the Kingdom of God in the world to come, but rather as a member of that kingdom, its glory, and its crown."

Another point of significance about the Christianized Bible, the writer goes on to say, is that by its standard "we shall no longer think of the Church as contemplated by Jesus, much less as founded by him," and that we shall "no longer strive with one another for the predominance of this or that form of church government and worship, recognizing that all alike are of purely human origin, and desirable or undesirable according as they promote the spirit of the gospel."—Literary Digest.

UNITED METHODISM.

My newspaper of yesterday reported that the General Conference of the M. E. Church had, with unanimous rejoicing and enthusiasm, passed the requisite committee report for reunion with the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. I heartily concur with Dr. Werlein and some other sensible men in favor of this movement, and I most devoutly and sincerely hope that the current will so strongly set against the "non-concurrents" as to sweep all opposition away to the sea of oblivion and forgetfulness.

That grievous errors have been made and injustice done, no student of American Methodism for the last half-century can truthfully deny. But why continue to strive concerning things irrelevant to the future welfare and enlargement of a great cause in the world? The rolling years have settled a great many issues men could not settle. A grass-grown grave is a wonderful place for peace. Whoever saw a fight in a graveyard?

The advantages of this union in the light of our present vision are many—in the light of the future welfare and progress of our Church, untold and splendid.

Do we have to go back to the little schoolhouse and our copybooks to know and have it confirmed by experience and observation that "in unity is strength?"

To hear some talk one might think that the terms, "organic union," "federation," etc., meant loss of liberty or sacrifice of principle. "Requiescat in pace." Nobody is going to hurt Southern Methodism by giving the added strength, purpose and means of our Northern brethren thereto. Now is our time to be both just and generous, as well as wise and merciful. The people of the South have this country. They have all the State's rights they ever contended for, and a few more, since the Civil War. They are leaders in the house of our fathers at Washington to-day. They have wealth, prestige, influence, brains and power, and yet a good part of them have never learned that the arts of peace are mightier than the guns of war, for these are apparently yet afraid of the Yankees.

Other advantages of this union in the way of wise, efficient and economical administration of all the interests of a great Church are manifold. Enlargement on broader and more substantial bases would be in order. Unholy rivalry in home mission work would become a thing of the past and greater vigor given to this because of its permanence. Greater success in all efforts would as a matter of course ensue, since one Methodism in a given field would have more strength. One preacher would do the work where now two are employed, and thus the working force of the ministry would be increased by one hundred per cent, not to mention the unnecessary waste in church buildings.

Last, but greatest—not least—it would solidify the bonds of union of our great commonwealth, the United States of America. In these perilous times we need to rivet anew every tie that binds our country together. If America is in the vanguard of the great movement for peace and for all the nobler and higher purposes of life and civilization, then in the name of all that is good, pure, and holy, let her greatest and most powerful Church be one in purpose and labor.

TO SOUTHERN METHODIST PREACHERS.

An Open Letter.

My Dear Brethren: I wish to call your special attention to a book which has just been issued from the press and to commend it to you, for more than one reason.

The book to which I refer is entitled "The Fraters," by Rev. John R. Stewart of the Tennessee Conference, whom you will readily recall as the representative of the Superannuate Endowment Fund. In commending this book to you I am very certain that I invite you to a feast which you will enjoy. It is full of human interest and forms a captivating romance which will hold you to the end if you begin to read it. This opinion grows out of my own experience in reading the manuscript before publication had been decided on.

It is well conceived, charmingly written, and as a story will give pleasure to the reader.

Underneath and intertwined with the narrative is an attractive presentation of the claim of the Superannuate preacher upon the Church to which he has devoted his life, but, unlike most fiction written with a moral purpose, this does not detract from its merits as a story.

Dr. Stewart has given his work to the Superannuate Endowment Fund without money and without price, the Publishing Agents have made no profit in the manufacture of the book. No one will profit by its sale except the superannuate preacher.

But, laying this aside, you will give yourself a treat by purchasing and reading "The Fraters," and will do a good work by commending it to your people and inducing them to buy it. The price is 50 cents, postpaid, and should be ordered of Rev J. R. Stewart, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., who handles the sales for the custodians of the Fund. Sincerely your brother,

A. J. LAMAR.

MEETING OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE BOARD.

The annual meeting of the Epworth League Board was held in Nashville, May 17. The report of the General Secretary, Dr. F. S. Parker, showed that during the past year there had been chartered 301 Senior Leagues and 68 Junior Leagues, these new Leagues having a total membership of 10,295. The net gain in League membership for the year, as shown by the General Minutes, was 9013, the total number of League members now being 133,044. The present circulation of the Epworth Era is 21,000, and this publication makes a better showing for the fiscal year just closed than for 1914-1915.

The Epworth Leagues of the Church paid last year for missions, on assessments and specials, a little more than $30,000, and the total paid for all purposes was $100,592.77. The Board of Missions requests the Epworth Leagues to continue to raise the amounts needed for the support of our mission in Africa.

MONTROSE TRAINING SCHOOL COMMENDED.

Recognizing the important service that has been rendered the Church and the cause of Christian education in the past by the Montrose Training School and realizing the enlarging possibilities before it if properly fostered by the Church, therefore, be it resolved,

First—That we commend Montrose Training School most heartily to parents seeking a safe and inspirational institution for their children;

Second—That we commend the institution to those who are seeking to place their means where the Kingdom of God will be advanced;

Third—That we express our appreciation of the service being rendered by the President, Rev. J. S. Purcell, and his colaborers;

Fourth—That those of us who are pastors invite Brother Purcell to come into our charges and explain the work, resources, plans and possibilities of this school and to solicit aid for the enlargement of the institution's usefulness.

Signed: W. A. Hays, Rolfe Hunt, Committee.

The above resolutions were duly authorized by the Newton District Conference in session at Rose Hill, Miss., May 18, 1916.

AN OPEN LETTER TO DR. PARKHURST.

Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D.,
Editor of Zion's Herald, Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir: In the issue of your paper of May 17, in an editorial, entitled "The General Conference Declares for Unification," you make the following statement: "We rejoice that the Church (meaning the M. E. Church) did not hesitate to speak out plainly concerning the position of the Negro. The Methodist Episcopal Church desires him to be a part of the reorganized Church. As we have said several times, so does the Church, South, as the sentiment of that Church is interpreted by its leaders."

As you are doubtless aware, the General Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at Oklahoma City two years ago, upon the recommendation of its Committee on Church Relations, declined to endorse the suggestion of the Joint Commission on Federation, that the Negro Methodists be placed in one of the Quadrennial Conferences, and instead unanimously adopted the following declaration: "We recommend that the colored membership of the various Methodist bodies be formed into an independent organization, holding fraternal relations with the reorganized and united Church."

In view of the fact that in effect you have in the above-mentioned utterance proclaimed to the Methodist public of the United States that our General Conference in its action did not express the real sentiment of our people, I most respectfully request that you state, for the enlightenment of Southern Methodists, upon whose authority you have repudiated their great law-making assembly as the rightful interpreter and organ of their convictions.

As a member of the distinguished body which you have thus discredited in your paper, I feel that I am entitled to this information at your hands.

Thanking you in advance for a prompt reply,

I am yours fraternally,
R. A. MEEK.

New Orleans, La., May 23, 1916.

WILL BE A GREAT GATHERING.

Many interesting plans have been worked out for the League Conference which will convene in Alexandria, June 15 to 18. For many years it has been a question with the individual chapters whether or not it is worth while to send a delegate—this year the question is, "Can a chapter afford not to have a delegate?" Free entertainment has been provided for 300 or more, and it is expected that this conference will be more largely attended than any in the past. The Social Hour on Thursday night has been well provided for, and before we go into the regular business session on Friday every one will be well acquainted. The music alone is worth the railroad fare, and the devotional meetings have been so arranged by Brother W. H. Coleman that they will bring you just such spiritual blessings as will make you more capable to do your home work in the coming year with results. Every thought has been given to League development, and we will meet not to say what we have done, but to discuss how much there is that we can do, and bow best to do it.

Each of the department superintendents will conduct institutes under trained helpers, and will instruct you in lines of highest efficiency. Rev. Paul S. Powell, the central office representative, comes highly recommended as an "expert"; so bring along your problems and let's overcome them and then have a clear field of operation for the coming year. The question box, arranged so that you can write whatever you want to know and drop therein, will be opened at a big gathering Saturday night, when every question will receive careful consideration. This is calculated to do really more good in a general way than anything on the program, as it is a means whereby all are drawn into one common interest—city and rural Leagues alike. If you would have this session successful, come prepared to learn and to ask what you don't know. We need this spirit in our work and it is the only means whereby our work can prosper.

Rev. Paul B. Kern's lecture on "The Epworth League Brand of Religion" on Friday night is expected to be both informing and truly inspirational. No Leaguer can afford to miss this lecture, as it will show us what we really are and what great work our organization is doing in building up the Church. Seats will be reserved for delegates and visiting members.

Let everybody come prepared for the mission rally on Sunday evening at 3:30 o'clock. This meeting will bring out the very spirit of our Christian work and will indicate more clearly our real mission in this life as well as our life to come. The League stands for missions. We are pledged to missions, and any leaguer who would have his home chapter worth 100 per cent in service should by all means hear the consecrated talks at this rally.

The sermons by Dr. H. M. Du Bose on Sunday will bring the convention to a close. Nothing hardly need be said of the wonderful opportunities and soul refreshment that awaits us in these two sermons. Outsiders have already stated they were coming on this day just to hear this gifted minister.

Where Leagues are not now organized, pastors are urged to send one delegate. The delegate will be given every consideration and allowed all the rights of the Conference except voting.

Next year will see wonderful achievements in this work. Great activity is expected; so come, be "prepared," and let's make this State fairly quake with our development.

I hope to meet you in Alexandria June 15 to 18, when and where the above statements will be made good. JNO. D. SAINT,

New Orleans, La. State President.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

Dear Dr. Meek: Just after the adjournment of the last session of the Mississippi Conference I received from Brother Crisler the enclosed report of the Treasurer of the Mississippi Conference Board of Missions. He intended it for publication in the Conference Journal, but through an oversight on my part it was omitted. I know that Brother Crisler would like for this report to be published, so I am sending it to you, asking that at your earliest convenience you let it appear in the Advocate. A. F. WATKINS.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT NOTES.

The Sreveport District Conference has just closed a very profitable and a very pleasant session at the Noel Memorial Church, embracing Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Every preacher was present, and a number of the laymen. There were also a number of visitors, Brothers Carter, Lutz, and Vaughan being present. The Ladies of Noel, Texas Avenue, and Queensborough Churches served lunch the first day, and those of First Church and Cedar Grove served the second day. Brother W. S. Holmes, the Conference Lay Leader, gave us a fine and impressive address the second day of the District Conference.

Cedar Grove and Ilosston have been blessed with great revivals: the former having some 40 conversions and reclamations, with 26 additions, while the latter counted about 40 conversions, with some less accessions. These meetings were held by Rev. R. A. Bozeman, a recent theological student at our Dallas school, who is now at my church, doing some great preaching, and we are hoping to have a gracious revival.

TO THE EPWORTH LEAGUES OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Fellow Leaguers: Our Conference at Biloxi is drawing near. A most excellent program has been prepared, one that will cost quite an outlay of funds. Very little has been sent in this year from the Chapters on the expense fund. The modest sum of $2.50 is asked of each league. It is imperative that this be sent to me at once if we are to meet our obligations at the Conference. Let me hear from each Chapter.

SECOND CALL FOR SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

I am to-day writing to all the presiding elders of the four patronizing Conferences, urging them to come. The presiding elders of the Louisiana and Mississippi Conferences have resolved to be present this summer, and I hope those of the Alabama and North Mississippi Conferences will be there, too.

With fairly good conditions, I am looking for the best attendance this summer we have had. I hope this may bo realized. Inquiries are coming from various sections, and the preachers are realizing the important work we are doing there.

The undergradnates can do themselves a great deal of good by going there for the efficient work given by the instructors, and in addition to this they will have the lectures at the popular hours. Let all the undergradnates desiring information about their work address Rev. H. H. McNeill, D. D., Dothan, Ala.

Cordially,

ROBT. SELBY, President.

P. S.—Let all the College Presidents as well as presiding elders meet with us for the session, beginning on the evening of June 27 and closing at noon on July 6. I call attention to the letter from my good fried, Dr. A. F. Watkins, relative to his appreciation of the work we are doing, which is given below.

Dr. Watkin's Letter.

"Rev. Robert Selby,

Brookhaven, Miss.

"My Dear Friend: Your letter of April 20 I find quietly awaiting attention at my hands upon my return. Personally, I have a very high regard for the work done by the Seashore Divinity School and believe that it ought to be encouraged by the patronizing Conferences and attended by our ministers and especially by our undergraduates. I believe that if our College Presidents will attend the Divinity School they will, if not already convinced, he made to appreciate the importance of this institution. Hence, I think it would be well to encourage them to come in personal contact with the work done by the Divinity School. I hope it will be possible for me to spend some days there this summer.

"Yours fraternally,

"A. F. WATKINS."

COLUMBUS DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The forty-sixth annual session of the Columbus District Conference convened in First Church, Columbus, Wednesday morning, May 10, 1916, following the opening sermon on Tuesday evening by Rev. E. Nash Broyles, of Macon Station.

Rev. W. W. Woollard, our well-beloved and most efficient presidlng elder, was chairman of the Conference, and presided throughout the entire session, while J. J. Baird acted as secretary, with T. J. Halfacre, as assistant.

The Conference was remarkable, in that every preacher in the district was present, as were also two of our honored superannuates, Dr. T. C. Wier, of Starkville, and Rev. A. P. Leech, of Columbus. A good number of laymen were present, bringing the attendance quite up to that of former years.

Brother Woollard opened the work of the Conference by a stirring appeal to the preachers and laymen for a thoroughly connectional spirit, emphasizing especially team work in the district. He also brought out the fact that the district is far ahead of last year in many phases of the work. Salaries of pastors were more than forty per cent paid to date; Conference claims some $400 in advance of last year; more than one hundred have been added to the Church, with but two meetings held thus far. From present indications this is going to be a great year in the district.

As the pastors made their reports it soon became apparent that every charge was moving along with fair progress. The Sunday school enrollment is growing, several charges reporting an enrollment greater than their church membership. Congregations are better, contributions larger, and a spirit of optimism is everywhere prevalent, despite rumors of wars and the boll weevil.

The Conference was fortunate in having as visitors Rev. H. M. Ellis, representing our Methodist Hospital, at Memphis; Rev. R. H. H. Gladney, Sunday School Field Secretary; Rev. Ben P. Jaco, Commissioner for Grenada College; Rev. J. B. Randolph, Manager of our Orphans' Home at Jackson, and Rev. Robert Selby, of Brookhaven, Commissioner in Mississippi for Emory University. All of these brethren were given time in which to present the claims of these various Church enterprises, and were heard with pleasure and profit. At the close of Brother Selby's sermon on Thursday morning several hundred dollars were subscribed to Emory University.

REV. H. R. McKEE,

Of Rose Hill, Miss., Host of the Newton District Conference.

In addition to Brother Broyles, the preaching was done by Revs. Ellis, Gladney and Selby, and the high standard set in the opening sermon was fully maintained by the visiting preachers.

One splendid young man, Rev. Jno. W. Robertson, now supplying the Cochrane charge, was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial. Brother Robertson is a thoroughly consecrated young man, a good preacher, a fine singer and choir director, and gives promise of a life of great usefulness to the Church.

Prof. Dabney Lipscomb, of the I. I. & C., at Columbus, was re-elected District Lay Leader, and a committee on Lay Activities, composed of a layman from each pastoral charge, was appointed to assist in the matter of a larger life and a more efficient service for the laymen.

Prof. Lipscomb, together with Dr. S. M. Rainey, of Mayhew; Hon. W. E. Stokes, of Macon, and Dr. N. D. Guerry, of Artesia, constitute the lay delegation to the next Annual Conference.

The Licensing Committee, as appointed by the chair, is composed of W. L. Duren, L. P. Wasson, T. J. Halfacre, and T. H. Lipscomb, with the presiding elder as chairman.

The Conference will meet next year at Mashulaville, the seat of the Noxubee County Agricultural High School.

We cannot close this report without reference to the work of the Woman's Missionary Society in the district, under the very capable leadership of the District Secretary, Mrs. W. L. Duren, of Columbus. Since she assumed this office, less than a year ago, the work of organization and enlistment has gone steadily on until now there are only two charges in the district without societies, and these are being looked after in a very diligent manner. So thorough has been the work of the District Secretary, and so enthusiastic is the entire membership, that the Columbus District took first place at the Annual Meeting at Clarksdale.

All honor to Mrs. Duren and the faithful women of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Columbus District!

J. J. BAIRD, Secretary.

Brooksville, Miss.

BROTHER SELBY AT MAGNOLIA.

The Magnolia (Miss.) Gazette of May 17 says: "Last Sunday morning Rev. Robert Selby, the Mississippi Commissioner for Emory University, occupied the pulpit of the Methodist Church here and made an eloquent and forcible appeal to the Magnolia Methodists for a contribution to the Lamar School of Law. Mr. Selby stated that he had been in the field a little over two weeks and had secured a little more than $7000 for that enterprise." This does not include some $4000 that Mississippians had given to Dr. Frazer and Bishop Candler before Brother Selby took up this work.

Many of the prohibited articles will affect scriously American and English manufacturers.

Distilled spirits are used in the "denaturing" process, which is one of the steps taken in the manufacture of powder and other explosives. In Terra Haute, Ind., three distilleries are engaged in manufacturing spirits for this purpose alone, using each day 28,000 bushels of corn, from which they produce 140,000 gallons of spirits.

It was stated in a dispatch from Copenhagen to the Exchange Telegraph Company that the police of Berlin recently searched the shops and dwellings of butchers for hidden supplies of meat, and that their efforts brought to light the fact that in a few days the residents of Germany's capital will be entirely without meat. All the shops where meat is sold have closed.

The comparison of large and small creatures often brings out many interesting facts. Small members of the animal kingdom are not only stronger than the larger ones in proportion to their size, but their appetite is greater. To eat as much as a young potato beetle a baby would have to consume from 50 to 100 pounds of food daily; and should the hunger of a horse equal that of a caterpillar, in proportion to its size, it would require a ton of hay a day to satisfy it.

When a uniform is discarded by a soldier in the trenches in Europe it is burned up and a new suit of clothes is given him. When one considers the number of men on both sides that must be supplied with new uniforms from time to time, it is easy for one to see that the world's supply of wool is likely to be very nearly, if not completely, exhausted. European scientists will doubtless seek to find some fabric which can be substituted for wool. Much scientific knowledge is being gained as a result of the war, which we hope will benefit man long after the bloody struggle has ceased.

It is stated that the United States Government has learned from a very dependable source that Francisco Villa, the Mexican bandit, is still alive and is operating under an assumed name. Villa is said to have had his right leg amputated on April 12 by a German surgeon, whom he had previously taken captive. At this writing the Mexicans are reported to be rising in large numbers and the American soldiers of the punitive expedition now in Mexico are represented as falling back and leaving the pursuit of Villa and his followers to the larger force under Gen. Trevino. One of our soldiers was recently murdered on Mexican soil by followers of Carranza. It is to be feared that serious trouble may arise between our troops and the Mexicans unless things are adjusted diplomatically.

In Florida a law has been passed which will prevent a white person from teaching in a school conducted for the instruction of Negro children, but its constitutionality has not yet been tested. The opponents of the law will go to the Supreme Court of the State and, if necessary, to the United States Supreme Court, in their effort to prove this act illegal. An effort was made to have the late Mississippi Legislature enact a similar law, but the movement was defeatcd. As far as the public schools are concerned, we think that this might be a good law in a State where white persons desire to teach the Negro, but in Mississippi public opinion has stopped this without any law prohibiting it. One objectionable feature of such a law is that it would seriously affect the schools of the various religious denominations where it is necessary for them to carry on their missionary activities among the colored people. If this law should ever be adjudged a necessity, it should by all means carry a provision that would keep it from being applicable to schools and colleges owned and operated by Churches for the instruction of the colored youth.

According to the American Advance, the liquor traffic in the United States is twenty-six times greater than the fisheries industry, fourteen times greater than the gold and silver production of the country, seven times greater than the cost of the United States Post Office, three and one-half times greater than the coal trust, six times greater than the tariff, four and one-half times greater than the cost of the Panama Canal, and every year alcoholic drinks cost the American people nearly enough to pay the National debt twice. The bulk of our National wealth is drunk up and the great mass of our people are none the better for the vast resources that make our country an Eldorado for the foreigner. So long as things remain as they are we are not a free people. In no country should there be an industry so great and so powerful as to endanger the Government under whose protecting arm it exists, and yet in the United States of America the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages have arrived at this point; but in the onward march of prohibition we use these words written by the finger of God concerning this traffic: "Thou art weighed in the balances and art found wanting." The judgment has been passed, and we now wait for its fulfillment, knowing that it will speedily come.

WILL MAINTAIN THE INTEGRITY OF THEIR CHURCH.

(As will be seen from the following statement sent out from the Southern Baptist Convention, in session at Asheville, N. C., last week, the Southern Baptist Church, numerically the strongest religious denomination in the Southern States, proposes to maintain its denominational integrity in the various mission fields, and is having a large degree of success in its missionary work.)

Southern Baptists decline to enter into a union with other denominations in foreign mission work for reasons summarized in a report made to-day to the Convention by the Foreign Mission Board, as follows:

Arbitrary territorial divisions for missionary operations proposed by federation are opposed.

Proposed agreement for an interchange of church letters are held to be contrary to recognized custom among Baptist churches of the South.

The Board considers it of primary importance that it control, or control jointly with other Baptist bodies, the religious instructions given to boys and girls entrusted to its care.

A policy abroad consistent with denominational policy at home is strongly favored.

The Foreign Mission Board points out that this question, which has caused some sharp discussions in the Convention for several sessions, is closely allied to the church union question.

"Southern Baptists are on record by repeated actions of the Convention in recognition of that spiritual union which exists among all believers of Christ," says the report, "and in favor of their organic union as soon as it can be perfected on New Testament lines. We reaffirm these sentiments. We would have all our people recognize the bonds of brotherhood which unite Christians of every name, cultivate a large spirit of fraternity and strive together with others to secure the closest possible impact of our modern Christianity upon the social order for the establishment of righteousness in the earth.

"We would, however, admonish our people at home and abroad to remain true to New Testament principles of faith and church polity, and by so doing seek to preserve the unity of the denomination, enlist all of our forces for the holy cause of missions and thus ensure the integrity and success of this work."

The Board expresses regret that its dissent is made necessary by a general program of union and co-operation which conflicts at the points mentioned with policies of the denomination. This program, the report says, "threatens to hinder, rather than help, Christian unity."

Explaining its objections, the Board says it cannot consent to have any limitations placed on it in locating its forces nor to be put in a position which would forbid its loyalty to "any company of Christian converts who may now or hereafter profess a like precious faith with us." With regard to the interchange of letters, the Board declares Baptist churches have a well known standard of qualification for Church membership, and it shall seek to foster this standard in every land where it sends its missionaries. The Board says further that it will not engage in any form of co-operation, hospital, publication, or educational, which is not fully reported to the Convention and which does not meet the approval of the Convention.

The Board reports the most successful year in the history of the Church's foreign missions. Converts baptized numbered 6471, and 77 new churches were organized. Missionaries number 315,133 and 182 women. A forcign membership of 42,630 is organized into 459 churches, 95 of which are self-sustaining. Native Christians contributed $129,561 to sustain the work last year. The missionaries have 691 native helpers.

The China Christian Advocate, in discussing the General Conference of the M. E. Church and the question of Methodist Union, among other things, says: "Some of the brethren of the South are prone to express the fear that the smaller branches of Methodism are to be absorbed, swallowed up, if you please—a union of the tiger and the lamb, with the lamb inside the tiger." A pretty good figure, but we once heard Dr. S. A. Steel get off one that was as good or better. He said, in substance, that "the union most to be feared is one that is NOT ORGANIC, as Jonah and the whale, for instance." We rather suspect that both parties found that union rather uncomfortable.

THE HEART OF THE HOME.

By Emma A. Lente.

Her face is all freckled this girl whom I know,
And her nose has a tilt in the air;
And not even her mother, with mother-love blind,
Can truthfully say she is fair;
Her hair is the color that may be called red,
And straight as a ruler hangs down;
Her eyes are pale blue, and her forehead is low —
Though it never is drawn in a frown.

Her sisters are graceful, bonny young things,
And her brother is handsome and bright,
And all of them think in their innermost hearts
That their sister is truly a sight.
But the soul of this girl is a beautiful thing,
And her voice is as sweet as a bird's,
And her goodness of heart and her wisdom of mind
Are seen in kind actions and words.

And the mother has ever a fond word and smile
For this child of her daily delight,
And the father's eyes glisten with tenderest love
As he kisses and bids her good night.
And oh! they would miss, and miss her full sore,
If out in the world she should roam,
For the girl with no beauty of face or of form
Is most truly the heart of the home.

THE BEST GIFT FOR MOTHER.

By Mabel E. Crews.

"What'll it be?" shouted all the children at once, and then came a volley of suggestions for mother's birthday present.

"Let's get her a new dress!"

"No, make it a nice purse!"

"But she wants a new set of dishes!"

"Now all of you keep quiet for a while," said brother Bob, coming to the rescue, "or I'll have to get up and read the Riot Act. It's no use deciding what we'll get until we know how much money we'll have to spend. But it's got to be something nice, so we might as well get busy now to make some money."

"I've got nine cents in my bank," chimed in little Toodles, who meant to have a share in mother's birthday present.

"And I can make a good deal if I take a paper route," suggested Dick, the energetic lad of fourteen, who was beginning to know the value of money.

"How much would we need to get a real nice present?" asked Lucy, the oldest girl.

Bob knitted his brow and looked thoughtful for a while.

"Well, I think we ought to be able to raise five dollars amongst the lot of us if we all turn in and work extra hard. I'm sure mother deserves it."

"She sure does!" echoed Dick, who was not much of a fellow to talk about his devotion to his mother, but who showed it in a good many other ways.

"Well, if we could count on that amount," went on Bob, "we'd be all right. What would you say to a nice silk dress?"

A chorus of remarks followed, but finally Lucy managed to get a hearing.

"I think that's the best, for it would be for her own very self, and, dear knows, she needs it real badly. We can get enough silk for five dollars, and I'll help her make it up."

"All in favor of a silk dress?" asked Bob, and the motion passed unanimously. Then began a mad scurry to raise the necessary funds, for the birthday was only a week distant, and five dollars was a big sum for the Ormsby children to amass among themselves. Toodles contributed her nine cents without any sense of sacrifice. Dick worked early and late at his paper route with very good results. Lucy spent most of her time doing fancy-work which she hoped to sell, as well as the eggs which she was allowed to dispose of every week; while Bob saved all he could from his week's pay, for he worked in a lawyer's office. Everyone did his or her best, but the end of the week came in sight before the five dollars was raised.

"We'll have to work harder or we won't make it," said Dick with a sigh when he came in tired out from his paper route. "I see where I'll have to get a job for all day Saturday if I'm going to contribute to scratch."

"And I'll have to peg away a good deal harder at my sewing if I'm going to finish that centerpiece to sell this week," said Lucy.

"Don't be discouraged, youngsters," encouraged Bob, "we'll make the grade if we all pull together."

Everything would have been well if Uncle John and his family had not chosen that particular week to pay them a visit. Not that the children did not welcome their coming, but it meant more work for mother, who had about all she could manage as it was. And, worst of all, they could not spare any time to help her.

"I'm very sorry I can't help you to-day," stammered Lucy, "but there's something that has to be done before I can do another thing," and away she flew upstairs to her fancy-work.

"It's hard luck I can't stick around and lend a hand, mother," said Dick reluctantly, "but I've got a job for the whole day."

Mother said nothing, but Father Ormsby sized up the situation and had something to say about it. He gathered the children around him that night.

"Seems to me you've all left mother in the lurch to-day," he began. "It's something unusual for you to do that; what's the trouble?"

"Well, you see," explained Lucy, "we all had to work to earn enough money to buy her birthday present. We want to get her something nice that she'll value."

"Yes," I understand," said father kindly, "but, after all, what do you think mother would value most? Have you forgotten what Mr. Mills said in his sermon last week when he spoke to the boys and girls about getting ready for Mothers' Day next Sunday?"

"He said quite a lot about 'loving service,'" said Dick, who always listened attentively to what the minister had to say.

"Yes, but what about it?"

"I think he said that loving service is the best gift a fellow can give to his mother."

"That's it, Dick," said father. "But have you and Lucy given the best gift, do you think?"

"I'm afraid not, father. We've been too busy thinking about our other gift."

"But it's not too late now to give her the best gift, is it, father?" questioned Lucy eagerly, for she was beginning to feel ashamed of having left her mother to do all the work and tire herself out.

"No, it is never too late while you have her here; but you know you won't always have her," said father, and he left them alone to talk it over.

It was too late then to repair the damage, but they knew what they meant to do in the future. When the beautiful silk dress was bought and presented to Mother Ormsby it did indeed please her, but not one quarter as much as the little note which was tucked into its soft folds. It read:

"Dearest Mother: This is only a part of our birthday gift to you. The best is yet to come, for doing to please Thee, my Savior.—The Children's Guardian.

A CHILD'S PRAYER.

Dear Lord, help me to obey all Thy commands, and fill me with a great desire to do all I can to bring happiness and comfort to others, and in so doing please Thee, my Savior.—The Children's Daily Service.

SEASHORE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Seashore District Conference met Wednesday morning, May 3, at the beautiful, historic little city of Biloxi, and adjourned Friday about noon. The opening sermon was preached Tuesday night by Rev. W. G. Forsyth, of Pascagoula; and it was well done. It had been just nine years since the Conference had met there. At that time the meeting was held in the Sunday school room of the church; this year it was held in the beautiful auditorium, an ideal place for the Conference—and it would be a fine place for the Annual Conference and would mean much to have it there. A cordial reception awaited us, nothing had been left undone which would add to the welcome and comfort of every one. Brother Tolle and his committee had done their work well, and all were delighted with Biloxi's hospitality.

The new presiding elder, Rev. J. R. Jones, was accorded a hearty welcome, and he showed a kind heart and trained hand in directing the affairs of the Conference, and all were ready to say at the close that we had a fine conference and a very pleasant time together. The attendance was good, every preacher in charge except one was on hand, the local preachers and laymen were there in numbers, and the total attendance was 77.

Rev. J. L. Neill, Field Secretary, was there, and held a very profitable Sunday school institute, and otherwise contributed much to the Conference. Rev. J. B. Randolph, Manager, was on hand, and worthily represented the work of the Orphans' Home, and he will always receive a welcome among us; Rev. Robert Selby, Commissioner of Emory University, was present, preached a strong sermon, presented the claims of Emory and raised the sum of $665; Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, paid us a visit, and was happy in his manner of showing us the work, the needs, and the fine qualities of our great college; Rev. H. W. Van Hook, the President of the Seashore Campground School, had many good things to say of this most excellent school, and the Conference pledged to raise $300 for equipment of a physical laboratory. Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor of Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, addressed the Conference in the interest of Whitworth College, and Mrs. W. H. La Prade delighted the Conference as she told of the work of the Woman's Missionary Society.

The reports of the preachers in charge showed a healthy condition in some respects, and others not quite so good. There have been received 257 members into the Church, 136 being by vows, 65 infants baptized. The financial condition is not so good in some charges, owing, doubtless, to the general conditions and to the fact that our pine timber is rapidly disappearing and will soon be gone; it is all in the hands of a few large mills.

In keeping with the wishes and directions of the General Sunday School Board, the Conference elected provisional officers and selected Wiggins as the place and September as the time for a District Sunday School Institute.

A committee was elected and instructed to secure funds and select a worthy young preacher and put him in school; and it is hoped that this can be done the next session.

James William Sells and Van Rensselaer Landrum were licensed to preach. James is the son of Rev. J. L. Sells, of Wiggins, and makes the second one of his sons to be licensed to preach. Look out for good things from them.

Dr. W. T. Bolton, of Biloxi, and R. W. Hinton, of Lumberton, were elected trustees of the Seashore Campground School. L. A. Parsey, W. H. La Prade, E. C. Gunn, and H. F. Tolle were elected the Licensing Committee. Dr. W. T. Bolton, W. L. Elkin, R. M. Spaulding, and Hon. C. H. Wood were elected delegates to the Annual Conference. Dr. J. C. Ballard, of Biloxi, was elected District Lay Leader. Gulfport, First Church, was selected as the place for the next meeting.

The evangelistic note was by no means forgotten or neglected. Twice a day there was preaching, and we heard in no uncertain sound the old-time gospel, and it showed that it still has power. In the opening of the Conference the presiding elder delivered a very helpful discourse, and Brothers Melgs, Sells, Selby, La Prade, and G. S. Harmon occupied the pulpit. It was good to be there.

Editorial

WORSE THAN WE HAD THOUGHT.

On page 358 of the Daily Advocate of the Northern Methodist General Conference occurs the following stenographically reported statement:

"J. B. Hingely: I have a matter for you that you will regard as a question of very high privilege, I think. Called to the room of Bishop Hendrix yesterday. I found that this man of wide vision had seen through this problem much further than had I, or, to my knowledge, any other delegate in the Conference. He saw the possibility, which he expressed in his address last night, of completing this union before the year 1920. I turned to the Book of Discipline with the Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, after his telling me there was nothing in the Discipline of his Church that would interfere with an early union. I submitted the proposition to one of the most distinguished of our lawyers and judges of this Conference, and he was unable to discover any difficulty in the way of the program," etc.

Dr. Hingely then proceeded to have the question of a possible joint session of the two General Conferences—that of the Northern Church and ours—referred to the Judiciary Committee, with a view to getting the matter in shape.

So, it will be seen that Bishop Hendrix's officious interference in this matter, when he had no authority to represent our Church in the union negotiations—that work having been committed to our representatives on the Federal Council of Methodism—was even more aggravated than we represented it to be last week. Indeed, it seems that this whole plan to try to rush the Southern Methodist Church into a precipitate union with the Church, North, was inspired by him.

MISSISSIPPI REPORTS WANTED.

In the "L. Q. C. Lamar School of Law," which is the law department of our new Emory University, all Mississippi Methodists feel a great interest. The name which it bears appeals to a sentiment of great tenderness and strength, and the fact that this school of law is a department of our new University intensifies this sentiment.

One of the great needs of the "Lamar School of Law" is a large library, in which may be found the Supreme Court Reports of all the States. These reports are necessary because "the case method" of instruction will prevail in the institution, as it does in all the great law schools of the United States now. Friends of the University in different States of the South are supplying the Reports from their several States. Major R. E. Steiner of Montgomery will give the Reports from Alabama, Hon. W. G. M. Thomas of Chattanooga will provide the Reports from Tennessee, and several Georgia lawyers have contributed the Georgia Reports. Hon. Wm. H. Trawick of Cedartown, Ga., has given the "American Decisions," and Mr. Harrison Jones, a Baptist lawyer in Atlanta, who is a native of Virginia, has donated the Virginia Reports.

Is there not some Mississippian who will supply the Mississippi Reports? We feel sure there is, and we would be glad to have a response to this appeal. If more than one set of the Reports were given, it would be well; for in the study of law by "the case method" several students will often be studying the same case.

What say the Mississippians in reply to this appeal?

SOME LIGHT FROM THE NORTH.

Perhaps the most virile editor in the Methodist Episcopal Church is Dr. Claudius B. Spencer, of the Central Christian Advocate (Kansas City), who has given special attention to the question of the union of American Methodism, and who prior to the meeting of the General Conference of his Church engaged freely in the discussion of this great issue. Anything, therefore, that Dr. Spencer has to say on this subject is well worth attention. In his paper of May 24, he devotes an entire page to what took place at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and from his utterance we take the following excerpts:

"What the Central has done has been to take a straight look at the proposed plan (that of the Joint Commission, which the Southern Church had adopted) to find what would be the precipitate, as it were, if that proposed plan exactly as it reads, unmodified and unaltered, were made the program of organic union.

"The Central showed beyond contradiction that this plan, if unaltered, meant a more drastic separation of American Methodism than exists even at the present time; that the union the plan would produce would be a union only in name, by iron-clad walls of division along unhappy frontiers, eternally perpetuating sectionalism; a polite Chesterfieldian exchange of formal bows and conventionalities, destitute of the vital power which should make American Methodism a most puissant force among the stars of idealism and the plodding fields of Christlike toil. In the interest of a unity that unites, in behalf of American Methodism, in behalf of the South, the North, and the whole American land and American Church, the Central made its argument and its appeal for a structure which would not fence off the old South as in '44, but provide some plan, like the Federal Union, which would not have three but several autonomous Jurisdictional, Synodical, or Quadrennial Conferences—call them what you please—which could but blend—as the seven colors of the spectrum blend to make the solar ray—all the sections into one common, mighty unity.

"Now the Central took the ground, first, that this sectional solidarity and its cleavage would be obviated if the number of Quadrennial Conferences were increased beyond the three provided in the proposed plan. It is illogical and untrue to say that the federal ideal would be achieved if the reorganized Church should have three divisions, the Old South, the North, the West, each with an independent legislature or Conference electing its own Bishops, etc. Rather, it would be equal to three independent sovereignties with three congresses, three presidents, a nullifying of the federal ideal of many States and one Congress and one head."

This statement from this astute Northern Methodist Editor makes pretty clear several things:

1. In Dr. Spencer's judgment, the plan adopted by the Northern Methodist General Conference lacks much of being the same as that proposed by the Joint Commission on Federation and adopted by our Church, notwithstanding the proclamations of the garrulous "liberals" from the Church, South, who, without authority, paraded themselves at Saratoga Springs.

2. As Dr. Spencer sees it, one of the objects of declaring for a larger number of Quadrennial Conferences was to make provision for chopping up the Methodism of the Southern States, along with that of the North—a plan that would make the latter the dominant power. So, it will be seen, that we did not miss it when we conjectured this to be true in our editorial last week.

3. As the brilliant Editor of the Central interprets the Northern mind, apparently there are to be no "independent legislatures electing Bishops, etc." Our readers will also douhtless remember that this was another modification that we suspected was implied in the Northern scheme. It is true that Dr. Spencer speaks of "autonomous" quadrennial Conferences, but to what extent he thinks they are to exercise indestructible powers of self-government (we mean, of course, indestructible by the SUPREME General Conference), he does not say. This is one of the points upon which the Methodist public of the South would like a little light. Possibly he, or Bishop Cranston, or Dr. Goucher can inform us concerning this very important matter; or Zion's Herald, at least, ought to be able to do so, since it has declared that the meaning of the enactment at Saratoga Springs is "as clear as crystal."

BISHOP KILGO'S POSITION.

In an editorial appearing in the Nashville Christian Advocate of May 12, Dr. T. N. Ivey says: "As we interpret Bishop Kilgo's article, which has been extensively noticed of late in the Church press, we do not take him as condemning our one-to-win-one campaigns, or other similar movements as emergency movements, but as cautioning the Methodist public against the policy of substituting mechanical paraphernalia for the equipment of the Holy Ghost."

In our opinion, this utterance is confusing and calculated to mislead those reading it. It seems to us to place Bishop Kilgo in the position of not regarding unfavorably the "one-to-win-one Lenten campaigns" that are being thrust upon our pastors and churches, but as merely desiring to warn our people against the possible mistake of relying upon mechanical means in conducting them rather than upon the Holy Spirit. We do not see how any one who read carefully the Bishop's first article on this subject which, we believe, was first published in the Raleigh Christian Advocate, and his subsequent utterance, entitled, "No Reservations in This Warfare," which appeared in the New Orleans Advocate of April 27, can accept Dr. Ivey's interpretation of his meaning as by any means being full and correct. On the contrary, it seems to us that Bishop Kilgo made it perfectly clear that he regards the plan of having these simultaneous campaigns conducted every year during the Lenten season, with the "one-to-win-one" feature emphasized, and the schedule as to the goal in numbers to be reached proclaimed and paraded, as wrong in principle, and hence unwise.

To say that Bishop Kilgo believes in special evangelistic services, such as Methodism has always had, is scarcely necessary, since he is known all over the connection as our revival chief pastor who can hardly be kept out of a protracted meeting. It is the Lenten aspect and other stereotyped and ostentatious characteristics of this so-called new evangelism to which the Bishop has objected—features which constitute so large a part of it that they could not be eliminated without destroying it. He holds to the view that the more Scriptural and effective method is to let each pastor and church start, conduct, and terminate their seasons of special effort to win souls as they may feel they are led of the Holy Spirit to do, every disciple exerting the full measure of his strength to bring all of the unsaved ones that he can into the Kingdom.

This much we have been led to say in the interest of the cause that Bishop Kilgo has so eloquently championed, which we regard as of no small importance.

We would respectfully suggest to Dr. Ivey that he reread (if he has read them) the two articles from the Bishop's pen to which we have referred, and if he then still thinks that he has correctly represented his attitude respecting this issue, that he address to him a note of inquiry concerning the matter and ask him to reply through the columns of the Nashville Christian Advocate. For our part, we are perfectly willing to submit the question as to Bishop Kilgo's position to the arbitrament of his own explanation.

THE MODERN TYPE OF INFIDELITY.

Our object in carrying the article, entitled "Would Christianize the Bible," which appears on page 2 of this issue of the Advocate, is to give our readers a conception of the extent to which infidelity is in this day masquerading in the guise of Christianity. The Biblical Department of the University of Chicago is attended by many ministerial students from the South, including some from our own Church. The infidelity which the Church formerly had to combat was on the outside—now the enemy is within its walls as well as without. The strange thing is that any one should think that the way to stimulate faith and acquire strength for the work of the ministry is to breathe an atmosphere of doubt and skepticism. The passion for breadth is causing many remarkable developments in this day.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. W. J. Wood, pastor of the Winona (Miss.) circuit, has our thanks for 5 subscriptions to the Advocate, forwarded on May 25. He reports that the work of his charge is progressing favorably.

Dr. Theo. Copeland has lately held a successful meeting at Pryor, Oklahoma. He has received into his own church (Central) at Hot Springs, Ark., since the Annual Conference 129 members.

Rev. R. H. Harper, pastor of the Parker Memorial Church of New Orleans, preached a strong and effective sermon last Sunday morning on "The Tragedy of an Empty Life." The congregation was a large and attentive one.

Rev. O. P. Armor, of Walnut, Miss., has brought us under obligations to him for 3 subscriptions from his charge. He writes encouragingly of the work of the Church in his field. May the Master continue to crown his labors with success!

Dr. S. H. Werlein, the evangelistic pastor of the First Methodist Church of this city, has lately been having a series of evening revival services. The Holy Spirit has been at work in the audiences attending and several persons have professed conversion.

The approaching session of the Alexandria District Conference will begin in the Methodist Church at Alexandria, La., on Wednesday, June 7, at 9 a.m. We dare say that it will be an occasion of much interest, under the guiding hand of the alert presiding elder, Rev. H. W. May.

Brother James Hand of Purvis, Miss., in renewing his subscription, adds $3.50 for our Advocate Helping Fund. Brother Hand is always ready to aid any meritorious cause. We shall not soon forget his kindness. This will send the Advocate into homes into which it would not otherwise go.

Rev. R. W. Vaughan, of Ruston, La., was mingling with his friends in New Orleans on both last Saturday and last Monday. On Sunday Brother Vaughan preached the Commencement sermon for the High School at Kentwood, La. He reports the work at the Orphanage as progressing nicely.

Rev. J. L. Carter, of Wade, Miss., who serves the Americus Circuit, writes: "Our work is doing nicely. The Lord is blessing us and giving us some success." Brother Carter has in mind the interests of the Advocate and proposes to press its claims upon the attention of his people in the near future.

Rev. Martin Hebert has been placed in charge of the Houma (La.) Mission, succeeding Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, who has been appointed Sunday School Field Secretary of the Louisiana Conference. We are indebted to Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir, presiding elder of the Lafayette District, for this information.

A note from Bishop W. B. Murrah, written from Memphis, Tenn., on May 26, contains the following personal reference: "I am at home again and seem to be in perfect health. Every trace of rheumatism is gone." This will be gratifying news to Bishop Murrah's many friends throughout the Church.

Rev. W. H. Coleman, pastor of the First M. E. Church, South, of Alexandria, La., says: "The outlook here is very encouraging. We are planning for aggressive work and are anticipating a substantial growth in every department of the church." Our Alexandria congregation is one of large possibilities.

Rev. C. C. Evans, of Scooba, Miss., reports a great revival at that place, in which the preaching was done by Evangelist D. E. Kelly. The community was profoundly stirred and 56 persons united with our Church. A fuller account of this gracious spiritual awakening from Brother Evans' pen will be published next week.

A union revival meeting is in progress at Fernwood, Miss., under the direction of Dr. J. E. Thacker, a Presbyterian evangelist, and his singer, Mr. James W. Elks. Brother Saunders, our pastor at Fernwood, states that Rev. W. B. Hogg, of Laurel Miss., has been engaged to assist him in his meetings at Knoxo and Kokomo, which will probably be held late in July.

Through the courtesy of Mr. Walter F. Johnson, a member of the finishing class, we have received an invitation to the graduating exercises of the Hardin School of Dallas, Texas. This promising young Texan is a son of Rev. W. J. Johnson, pastor of Grace Church in Dallas, who is well known in North Mississippi.

An attractive little folder on our desk, bearing the signature of Rev. and Mrs. T. D. Lipscomb, of Zwolle, La., reads as follows: "A little stranger arrived on May 21, 1916; weight 9 pounds; name, Mary June." We congratulate these friends upon this gift from the Heavenly Father, and pray that a favoring providence may shield and guide the little one.

In the reassignment of Bishops of the Northern Methodist Church to their places of residence, Bishop W. P. Thirkield was retained at New Orleans, Bishop F. D. Leete was kept at Atlanta, and Bishop W. F. Anderson was assigned to Chattanooga. Kansas City was discontinued as a place for stationing a Bishop, but Bishop W. A. Quayle will reside in St. Louis.

We are indebted to the following friends, to whom acknowledgment has not been made elsewhere, for two or more subscriptions sent in within the past few days: Brother E. C. Driskell, Sumner, Miss., 3; Rev. L. E. Alford, Lake, Miss., 3; Rev. J. A. Wells, Oak Ridge, Miss., 2; Rev. J. H. Foreman, Silver City, Miss., 6; Rev. W. L. Duren, Columbus, Miss., 2.

Rev. J. J. Garner, of Kilmichael, Miss., writes: "The work is progressing well in this charge. Everything is in good condition. My second quarterly conference was held on the second day of May, and the reports were good. We are very much pleased with our new presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Mitchell. I think that he is going to render fine service on our district."

We make grateful acknowledgment to Brother E. M. Wright, of Holly Springs, Miss., for a club of 5 subscriptions to the Advocate. It always delights us when a layman thus evinces interest in the circulation of the Conference organ. There is no more historic town in Mississippi than Holly Springs, and we are glad to have our paper find its way into the homes of its worthy citizens.

The Commencement sermon of the Seashore Campground School was preached last Sunday by Dr. I. W. Cooper, of Brookhaven, Whitworth's golden-hearted and silver-tongued President. This institution has had a very successful year under the guiding hand of Rev. H. W. Van Hook, who ranks high as an educator. At night Dr. Cooper preached for Dr. H. F. Tolle's congregation in Biloxi.

Brother S. Taylor Jackson, a prominent layman of the Pioneer (La.) charge, writes us enthusiastically of the fine work that his pastor, Rev. W. T. Woodward, is doing for the Master in the field under his supervision. Owing to the crowded condition of our columns, we are unable to publish his communication in this number of the Advocate, but we hope to give it a place in our next issue.

Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir, the diligent and efficient presiding elder of Lafayette District, requests us to state that his District Conference will be held at Lake Charles, La., May 30 to June 3. This announcement is rather late, having reached us after our paper was on the press last week. By the time this issue is in the hands of our readers, the Conference will largely have completed its labors.

A correspondent requests us to announce the death of Mrs. L. S. Forsythe, the widow of the Rev. J. L. Forsythe, which occurred on May 17, in Sharon, Wisconsin, where her only son, Dr. J. Steele Forsythe, resides. She was buried at Crystal Springs, Miss., beside her husband." We regret to learn of the demise of this faithful servant of the Master, and we extend sympathy to the bereaved.

Mr. H. H. Ahrens, the accomplished Religious Editor of the Times-Picayune, is again at home after a stay of several days in Orlando, Fla., where he reported for his paper the proceedings of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church. In that line of service Brother Ahrens has few equals, having had years of experience in it. He is popular with all religious denominations.

Rev. J. G. Sloan, a well known and useful member of the Louisiana Conference, who is our pastor at Gibbsland, La., and Miss Dora A. Jenkins, of Church Point, La., who for some time has been employed in French Mission work under the Baptist Home Mission Board, were united in marriage on Thursday, May 25, at the parsonage in Minden, La., Rev. W. Winans Drake officiating. The Advocate extends to Brother Sloane and his bride congratulations and all good wishes.

A friend at Port Gibson, Miss., sends us the following clipping from a local paper: "Miss Lou Moore, a daughter of Mrs. Sina Moore of Brandywine, and a well known school teacher, was married last Saturday morning to Mr. Wilmer Godbold, a prosperous farmer of the same neighborhood. The ceremony was performed at the district parsonage in Port Gibson by Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, a cousin of the bride. The bride formerly taught school in Port Gibson and at other places in this county, and has a large circle of friends."

We are informed that work will soon be begun on the construction of the new Methodist Church at Brookhaven, Miss. This house of worship is expected to be one of the handsomest and most complete in the State of Mississippi. Rev. J. M. Morse, our capable pastor at Brookhaven, has had extraordinary success in securing the erection of new houses of worship. The Capitol Street Church of Jackson, Miss., which is a most superior edifice, was built during his incumbency as the pastor of the choice congregation of which it is the home.

We are grateful to Rev. A. S. Lutz, the presiding elder of the Monroe (La.) District, for a cordial invitation to attend his District Conference, which will convene at Rayville, La., June 21-23. Brother Lutz adds the following note concerning the work in his territory: "Everything is moving along nicely in our district, and quite a number of fine revivals have been held, which resulted in large additions to the membership of the Church. One new church has been dedicated, and two more are ready for dedication. The preachers are all hard at work and are bringing things to pass."

Recently, when we stated that Rev. D. W. Babb, our worthy pastor at Crawford, Miss., had lately given $500 to the campaign fund of Grenada College, and $250 to Emory University, we did not do him and Sister Babb (for they save and give together) full justice. When the subscription of $500 was made to Grenada College, $200 was later added in Sister Babb's name, making the whole amount pledged to that institution $700, and of this sum $400 has already been paid. For a Methodist itinerant, whose salaries have always been moderate, we call $950 to the cause of education pretty generous giving.

Our gifted young pastor at Shubuta, Miss., Rev. O. S. Lewis, cheered the inmates of the Advocate office a few days ago with a fine club of 9 subscriptions to the Advocate, of which 7 were new. He expects to begin a revival meeting at Shubuta next Sunday, in which he will have with him Rev. D. E. Kelly. Brother Lewis wrote from Yazoo City, where he was assisting in the singing in a meeting that was being conducted by Rev. J. A. Bowen, of which he said: "The revival campaign here has been a great success. The pastor had the situation well in hand to begin with, and Brother Bowen has done some of the best preaching I have ever listened to. The whole congregation has been wonderfully revived and many have been saved and have come into the Church. Brother Sullivan has the love and esteem of his people and is making full proof of his ministry in his present charge."

Mrs. SARAH M. SISTRUNK, the daughter of Wm. and Eliza Barnes, was born in Smith County, Miss., on February 6, 1850, and was translated to be with Christ from her home in Jackson, Miss., on March 24, 1916. She was married to G. W. Sistrunk on October 12, 1869, and by her exemplary life she adorned and beautified that precious place called home. During the lifetime of her husband she lived near Crystal Springs, Miss., where many are the friends who feel the loss of her presence. Nearly twenty-seven years ago her husband went to the Father's house, and the care of three little children fell entirely to the mother. Soon after the founding of Millsaps College she moved near its campus and many have been the students who have received tender care and loving protection from her untiring hands.

She joined the Methodist Church when a child and gave a life of consistent service to the Church she loved. Her last three months with us were days of suffering. With patience and sweet resignation she awaited, and yet longed for, death to open the portal to eternal bliss, and, amid bodily pain, scintillations of the immortal, blood-bought spirit within her ever and again gleamed forth. Quietly and peacefully did that spirit slip away from us to strike hands with those who awaited her coming to dwell in peace. Over there she now awaits the coming of her daughter and two sons. An impressive funeral service was held at the home by Dr. A. F. Watkins, a former pastor. At Crystal Springs, her body was laid to rest beside that of her husband by her pastor, Rev. W. G. Henry, assisted by Revs. W. W. Holmes and R. M. Brown.

JOHN W. CHISHOLM,
MABEL C. CHISHOLM.

W. J. BURNEY was born in Simpson County, Miss., in 1838, and died at Ebenezer, Holmes County, on March 13, 1916. In the death of this good man Ebenezer lost one of its oldest, best known, and most useful citizens. After many months of weariness and patient suffering, the end came peacefully and quietly, in keeping with his simple and manly life. He was a quiet, unpretentious man, faithful and true to every trust. In 1859 he became a member of Shiloh Methodist Church, then near Pickens, Miss. He was a faithful and loyal member. It was his custom to occupy the same seat in church—it was a sacred place to him. In the early sixties he was married to Miss Martha Jane Brown, a modest, gentle lady of the old Southern type, who, though delicate, and at times a great sufferer, was happy and cheerful. They were home-loving souls. During fifty years of ideal companionship, she spent but three nights from home, and then in ministering to the sick and dying. She preceded him by six years to the Father's house. They moved to Holmes County more than forty years ago, and for more than thirty-five years were faithful and honored citizens of Ebenezer, standing for honesty and integrity. Brother Burney answered the call of his country and served in Company D, Warford's Battery, in the Civil War, and went battle-scarred to his grave.

Two daughters, of a family of several children, remain to mourn the loss of a noble, loving and Christian father, Miss Fannie Burney and Mrs. E. J. Forbus, both of Ebenezer, Miss. The former, at great sacrifice, lovingly and tenderly nursed and cared for her father during his declining years. The blessings of God abide with them, and sweet memories and joyful anticipation of a blessed family reunion safe in the Father's House, where the Master has gone to prepare a place!

Surrounded by his weeping daughters and a host of sorrowful friends, his weary body was tenderly laid to rest in the family lot in the Methodist Cemetery at Ebenezer, Miss., to await the resurrection morn.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas our loving and all-wise Father has called into his heavenly home our beloved and pure-souled friend, Mrs. Margaret Kent Jones; and

Whereas we do rejoice in the years of sweet association with one so faithful to her home, her friends, her Church, and her Savior—with one so steady in principle and so devoted to duty; therefore be it

Resolved 1. That we, the Woman's Missionary Society of the First Methodist Church of Baton Rouge, La., do offer this feeble expression of our love and gratitude that we have been blessed with the beautiful life of our deceased sister.

2. That we sympathize with her family in having been deprived of her presence and noble influence for "a while," and that we pray that the Holy Spirit may comfort their hearts.

3. That as a Missionary Society we will pray more earnestly for the salvation of the world—the cause which was nearest and dearest to this Christ-like woman's heart.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate with a request for their publication.

Signed: Mrs. May Golby Sanders, Mrs. A. F. Bacon, Mrs. W. H. Newsom.

IN APPRECIATION OF PROF. BOYD.

(The following resolutions were unanimously adopted by the Methodist Sunday school at Kosciusko, Miss., on April 16, 1916.)

Whereas the Methodist Sunday school here in common with the church and public at large learn with sorrow of the death of Professor G. F. Boyd, for so many years a devout Christian worker both in the Church and in our public school, therefore resolved:

1. That our sincere sympathy is extended to his loved ones in this their dark hour, with assurances that their sorrow is shared by a public who admired their lost one on account of his many noble virtues.

2. That in the death of Professor Boyd this church and all of its interests and auxiliaries have lost a devoted friend and worker, one who was ever ready and never tired laboring for its highest welfare.

3. That Christianity as a great and universal principle always found in him one full of enthusiasm and good works for its growth and elevating effect.

4. That as an educator he had few equals and scarcely any superiors, and that his work in this endeavor in our midst is a monument in the lives and character of our young people.

5. That even beyond our own school community his good works are bearing fruit to the sacrifice of his noble life for the cause he loved so well.

6. That we ask the superintendent of our school to suspend the session during the hour of his funeral and burial that the students may attend in a body.

7. That the superintendent of this Sunday school and pastor of the church be named as a committee to designate and properly drape a seat in this church to remain draped for thirty days.

8. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family and the papers for publication.

SOUND AND TIMELY ADVICE.

Dear Dr. Meek:

"Appreciation is not to be confined to funeral services."

Taking the above quotation as a basis for what follows, I wish to say that the Business Men's Bible Class of the Sunday school of our M. E. Church, South, highly appreciated a short visit made to their classroom by our Superintendent, Mr. W. E. Lampton, and, as the few remarks he made are applicable to all business men everywhere, I know that you will give me space to give them the publicity to which they are entitled.

Mr. Lampton, being an active business man, knows how to touch the human chord of attentiveness, and so he began by eulogizing the men he had before him. Then in a few sentences, as usual, he imparted a great deal of sound and timely advice.

He first told his attentive hearers that "if they were to put the same vigor and the same interest into Sunday school work that they put in their business they would boost the Sunday school, be regular attendants in the classroom, and would not dare to be absent a Sunday, no more than they would absent themselves a day from their daily business."

Speaking of securing new members and the regular attendance of men already enrolled, Mr. Lampton used an illustration from the business life:

"Go after the men lolling on the streets Sunday morning, and don't be discouraged and quit because you do not succeed with them the first time. Go after them in the same manner that you employ to secure new customers to your business. If the first letter written to your prospective customer does not bring him you don't quit, but continue to write to him until he is secured. Do the same with men to bring them to the Sunday school. Go after them the first second, third, fourth, fifth times and so on until you secure them. Be persistent."

And Mr. Lampton closed by saying: "You men who are coming to Sunday school if this coming has done you any good at all, do not let it rest there."

It was a good, impressive talk and greatly enjoyed. A MEMBER.

and those nagging pains of Rheumatism take hold on you again. For real Rheumatism no pain more than you can stand yourself for. You must remove the cause from the Blood. That's what "Santal" does. Get a bottle to-day from your druggist and begin taking it to-night. Remember it is guaranteed to give relief or your money back. BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

In the Publishing House in Nashville, Tenn., on May 9th, the Board of Trustees met, with Dr. A. J. Lamar in the chair. All were present except Mr. F. A. Jackson, of Birmingham, Ala., and Mr. Ed. F. Vaught, of Oklahoma City, Okla. The General Secretary, Dr. John R. Sharp, made an annual report, which showed the following figures for the Superannuate Endowment Fund for the year ending March 31, 1916: [illegible] decrease in amount of cash [illegible] the total increase in assets for the year is $37,[illegible]. Receipts from annual Conferences on assessments [illegible], an increase of approximately $1000 over the previous year. The cash on hand in the annuity fund for the year was $[illegible]. The amount disbursed to claimants last year was $9970; the amount to be distributed this year is $11,000. The cash assets at the end of the year amount to $[illegible]. In addition to these holdings, there are a number of bequests aggregating some $60,000. Subscriptions on hand amount to $40,000, but many of them are of long standing and uncertain value.

Many of the Annual Conferences have not changed the basis on which they were paying before the new enactment went into effect. It is to be hoped that these Conferences will remedy this deficiency and place the assessment as ordered by our last General Conference. The growth of this sacred fund is now sure and sure. The Board decided to increase its publicity work, and to that end appointed a special committee for this purpose. The General Secretary has written a little love story with a wholesome moral that centers in a better care of our worn-out preachers. This book, "The Preacher," is given to the Board for the actual cost of publication. Our preachers and progressive laymen should help to give it a wide circulation, as every dollar beyond cost goes into a publicity fund for our Superannuates. The price of the book is to be [illegible]. Brother Brewin was reelected Secretary. Every denomination is now putting stress upon the care of our dependent relatives worn out in the service of the Church. We must do so, too.

is Beautiful Hair—spoiled by all the dandruff. If you have allowed your hair to become harsh, dull, lifeless with gray or void of its original shade, the trouble lies in the absence of the natural hair oil. There can be no life without food to nourish the hair and keep it well fed with proper oil it cannot be expected to retain its lustre and beauty.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer, when applied to the scalp, will restore those ugly grayish hairs to their natural color and at the same time leave the hair light and fluffy.

The tremendous success of La Creole Hair Dressing has encouraged a large number of imitations. The merit of this preparation has been proven through fifty years unfortunate use and just as counterfeit money never receives the same high place of value as the genuine, so none of the imitations of "La Creole" Hair Dressing ever attain the popular value of the original. Calomel To-day, Sick To-morrow

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work!

Calomel salivates! It's mercury! Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel sluggish, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone. Which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful, and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and salivated tomorrow. Be wise. It may salivate you. While if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great. Full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless pleasant and safe to give to children. They like it.—Adv.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

Hear it, ye men in the lead and on the firing line, let us all pull together for 400 organized, enrolled Wesley Bible Classes by the first of next August, so that in the earlv fail we may have a Conference federation of classes.

We must organize our forces or faii to bring our Sunday school enrollment up to our church membership.

We must enroli these classes that we may teach men how to be used of God in winning souls to Christ.

We must organize that we may better conserve the results of our revival meetings.

We must organize if we mean to extend the Kingdom of God more effectively than we have done in the past.

We must organize if we mean to train the leaders we soreiy need in every church in the conference.

When this is accomplished, then we will have a trained force with which we can do the bigger tasks that we all so earnestly desire to see done. Many organize in a fashion, but faii to work the organization; others organize and fail to enroll, not knowing that we must have 250 such classes before we can can have a federation of these classes. The entire plan must be used to get the best results; we can do what others are doing.

Two classes in the Water Valley Church have agreed to go out in the country and help the circuit preachers organize. Two in Hernando, two in Oxford, and four in Batesville have agreed to undertake the same task. It would bring great results if schools would put on a contest of organized and enrolled classes. Other results would follow.

The District Superintendents of the Wesley Bible Classes of the Columbus and Sardis Districts are at work, trying to find out how many ciasses in these districts are enroiied, and are sending out literature to help others organize and enroll. These leaders are "held up" unless they get prompt and accurate replies from the superintendents. Let every District Superintendent of Wesley Bibie Classes push the work for the next sixty days and see what can be accomplished in every department of church activity.

Yes, by all means organize the boys and girls from 13 to 16 in Intermediate classes; the young people from 17 to 19 in Senior classes; those from 20 and older in the Adult classes. They all count in more ways than one. Some of our large schools could have as many classes as we now have in an entire district.

A Cough May Lead to Tuberculosis

Distressing and dangerous complications may follow if you neglect it. Even when so serious a stage is reached, Eckman's Alterative may bring relief. For more than twenty years it has been widely used in such cases with beneficial results.

As with any medication employed in this trouble, the best results are obtained when the patient pays strict attention to diet and gets plenty of rest and fresh air.

Because of its easily assimilable content of calcium chlorid, this preparation is effective where a tonic upbuilder is indicated. As a corrective of nightsweats it has proved most useful. It may be tried with absolute safety, since it contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

SHREVEPORT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Shreveport District Conference was held in the Noel Memorial Church, Shreveport, La., Tuesday and Wednesday, May 23-24, with a full attendance of pastors and quite a number of lay delegates.

Presiding Elder Atkinson, while new to the office, had details well in hand, and the session proceeded with an ease unusual to the novice. The program had been well prepared and thought out, and every speaker was present and had his or her task well in hand, so that the program moved on time.

The District Woman's Missionary Society was in session at the same time as the district conference, having quite a full representation present, and took part in the Conference, occupying an hour or more of the forenoon session of the first day.

Mrs. Ben Johnson, the District Secretary, and those taking part in the program deserve much credit and the presentation of the varied fields occupied by the Society were clearly and tersely handled. The sacramental service, presided over by Rev. R. H. Wynn, D.D., and participated in by both bodies, was impressive and very helpful.

The Sunday school work of the church was presented by Mrs. W. A. McKennon, C. V. Breithaupt, and others, occupying an hour of our Conference, as did the Laymen's work and Epworth League. L. H. Porter, the District Lay Leader, and W. S. Holmes, of Baton Rouge, Conference Lay Leader, packed their hour full of interesting and very important matters.

J. S. Gibson, President of the District Epworth League, and the local League workers, presented their phase of the work in a very pleasing manner, setting forth the importance of these departments of the Church.

The ladies of the various churches of Shreveport served delightful luncheons each day in the banquet hall and added to the interest of the Conference.

These social hours, with uplifting toasts, were quite a feature of the Conference.

Revs. Briscoe Carter, A. S. Lutz, R. W. Vaughan, W. D. Kleinschmidt, C. V. Breithaupt, W. E. Thomas, J. G. Snelling, W. W. Drake, Mrs. Abel Bliss, Mrs. W. S. Norwood, and Mrs. A. P. Holt were each introduced to the Conference, addressing the body in the interest of their varied works.

A District Sunday School Board, consisting of W. A. McKennon, C. O. Beauchamp, Judge W. C. Barnette, Miss Julie Elston, R. E. Bobbitt, and Mrs. Dr. Munday, was elected.

The following were elected members of the District Church Extension Board: J. C. Foster, J. M. Nabors, T. C. Clanton, Geo. Ferguson, Jr., Oscar Price, J. M. Robinson, and A. J. Scott.

The District Parsonage Board of Trustees were authorized to proceed with the building of a parsonage when in their judgment it was deemed advisable to begin said work.

The following were licensed to preach: D. L. Lennard, J. D. Livaggerty, E. B. Moel, C. E. McLean, J. H. Bowden. Three of these brethren are Centenary students.

F. B. Hill was recommended for Local Elder's orders, and J. G. Langer, Dean of Centenary College, for Local Deacon's order.

Rev. A. C. Holder, Ph.D., was recommended for re-admission.

Rev. Jno. F. Foster spoke upon the Divinity School at Biloxi and a collection was raised for the same.

Rev. W. W. Drake, Secretary of the Conference Board of Education, addressed the Conference on Tuesday night, presenting the claims of Christian education in a most masterful manner.

The delegates elected to the Annual Conference are L. H. Porter, A. J. Scott, J. M. Midleton, and J. C. Foster.

JNO. F. FOSTER.

PIONEER, LA.

My Dear Dr. Meek: I have returned from a revival at Pioneer, whose pastor is the diligent and faithful Brother W. T. Woodward, of Oak Grove, La. The people there said that our revival at Pioneer was the best ever held there before; and why not, for though they have had good revivals before, things should grow better spiritually as well as in other ways, and especially so since they have one of the best of pastors now, Brother W. T. Woodward, who looks after every interest of our Church. Any charge may consider itself fortunate in securing such a pastor. He has had 110 accessions to our church within his charge, although only six months of his Conference year have past. He has secured 40 or 45 subscribers to the New Orleans Christian Advocate. One of his prominent members said to me: "We all love Brother Woodward."

We had 34 accessions to our Church, 22 or more of whom were baptized Scripturally, which means by pouring or sprinkling, for the prophets said that the water would be poured or sprinkled when Christ should come, and when he came he called pouring baptizing. The Pioneer people are so attentive to preachers and especially to their pastor, and, therefore, no wonder we had a good revival. God will bless any people who are good to their pastor, for he is God's ambassador, and therefore love and respect for him is love and respect for God himself.

REPORT ON EDUCATION.

(This report on Education was prepared and presented by Rev. J. W. Ward, of Rosedale, Miss., at the recent session of the Greenville District Conference and was adopted by that body.)

The founder of Methodism, himself an educator of world renown, committed his followers for all time to come to the cause of Christian education. As long as Methodism is true to John Wesley, she can never desert the field of Christian education.

In early times the Church extended her efforts to all branches of education from the elemeutary school to the university. The primary object in this was to furnish trained leaders for the ministry and laity within the Church. As time progressed, the scope widened until at present the Church has in view a Christian citizenship for the whole world. Regardless alike of criticism from within and opposition from without, Southern Methodism will forever refuse to quit the field of Christian education.

In the early history of education in America, the Church, with the exception of a few private institutions, furnished the only schools. Later, the various States entered the field. At present the State-controlled institutions have far outstripped the denominational schools both in number and equipment; so that the Church must, under existiug conditions, hold her place either in opposition to, competition with, or co-operation with the State.

Southern Methodism is content to leave the field of elementary education entirely in the hands of the State-controlled schools; and to a very large extent tho secondary also; but she refuses to relinquish to any other agency whatever the right to own, control and operate Christian colleges and universities. In furtherance of this determination she is undertaking the building of two great universities: Southern Methodist University, at Dallas, Tex., and Emory University, at Atlanta, Ga. This Conference is more vitally interested in the latter. This institution has already far outstripped the expectations of its most ardent supporters, and challenges the educational spirit not only of Southern Methodism, but of the entire South and the whole nation. This Conference must have a share in the making of this great university. The opportunity is now ours to do this. Through the Commissioner for Mississippi, the Rev. Robert Selby of the Mississippi Conference, this Conference is asked to share in the contribution of $50,000 for the Lamar Law School. This Conference is ready with wide-open doors and every encouragement to Brother Selby in his effort to raise this sum.

Within her own borders this Conference is fortunate in the possession of a college of A grade for men, and co-educational. In addition to the new administration building, recently completed, this institution needs many other improvements and increased equipment. This Conference stands pledged and ready to meet any wise plan for the upbuilding of Millsaps College and invites her representatives to visit us and receive our contributions.

Grenada College attests our interest in the higher Christian culture of women. This institution is doing the full work of an A grade college, but because of a lack of equipment in some departments and an adequate endowment and income can not now be so classed by the Commission on Education. These deficiencies should be met at once. To this end our Commissioner, Rev. B. P. Jaco, is now in the field for the purpose of raising $50,000. With more than $30,000 already secured, it is hoped he may complete his task by the end of the year. The Greenville District is ready to aid him in every way in this undertaking.

THE BOY DESERVES THE BEST.

Will he look back from the vantage point of thirty and feel that you were a wise parent in the selection of a school for him, or will he think that if you had given his case more careful attention, you would have placed him in a school where he would have received better training?

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, of Fayetteville, Tenn., which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for 25 years. Graduating from the Webb School, Bellbuckle, Tenn., and Vanderbilt University, Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys. He is the man to train your boy. The close, personal instruction and association with clean, high-minded men will help him wonderfully. A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring you a catalog and full information about this school.—Adv.

Emory University

Offers Courses Leading to Degrees in the Following Departments:

1. THE SCHOOL OF LIBERAL ARTS (Emory College) Offers courses in English, Spanish, French, German, Latin, Greek, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Biology, Mental and Moral Science, History, Political Economy, and Biblical Literature, leading to the usual literary degrees. This department has a library of 50,000 volumes.

2. THE SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY (The Candler School of Theology) Offers full and varied courses leading to the degree of B. D. The library of the School of Theology is rich and grows richer daily. To it belongs the famous "Thursfield-Smith Collection of Wesleyana," which includes hundreds of the autograph letters of the Wesleys and other Methodist celebrities.

3. THE SCHOOL OF MEDICINE (The Atlanta Medical College). A medical college of the first grade, offers courses in medicine and surgery covering four years and leading to the degree of M.D. By arrangement with the Grady Hospital, the municipal hospital of Atlanta, and the Wesley Memorial Hospital, which is a part of the University system, the School of Medicine is able to offer clinical advantages of great value to students.

4. THE SCHOOL OF LAW (The L. Q. C. Lamar School of Law). Will open next September in the most beautiful and imposing law building in the United States, and with the best library of any law school in the South. The method of instruction will be what is known as the "Case Method," and the course of study will extend over three years, leading to the degree of LL.B. An able faculty, consisting of men who have won with distinction their law degrees in the greatest law schools of the world, have been engaged. In Atlanta every court known to the American judicial system, except the United States Supreme Court, holds regular sessions. "The Lamar School of Law," therefore, offers unsurpassed advantages for the study of law.

BUREAU OF SUPPLIES.

Yes, we have such a department in the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference, and your superintendent is:

Mrs. J. K. Dunn,
630 3rd Street,
McComb, Miss.

This department is very necessary and should mean much toward the advancement of our missionary cause, but if we are to judge by reports our women have not realized the importance of, nor measured up to their privilege in this work. I would be ashamed to announce, publicly, how many reports I received from auxiliary superintendents for the past quarter; and it would be embarrassing to give here the figures of the reports of my predecessor and of the Council Superintendent for last year. We realize figures cannot tell of all the good accomplished, the comfort given, nor the needs supplied, yet they do give some idea of the efforts put forth and I am sure had all the auxiliaries reported even the boxes sent and their values, the figures of our Conference and Council superintendents would not have been so low.

The purpose in this letter, however, is not to dwell upon the past, nor our failures; but to solicit the hearty cooperation of every auxiliary in the Mississippi Conference in this work, that the department may meet the great needs for which it was organized and count for much in the advancement of his kingdom.

So far I have been unable to get a complete list of auxiliary superintendents and addresses—may I ask each one to write me between now and the first of July, reporting all boxes sent during first and second quarters and giving values of the same? Where no boxes have been sent, write any way, that we may get in touch with each other and plan together how best to meet the needs of our department.

I have some plans and suggestions to offer, but being somewhat of a personal nature they would be out of place here.

Yours for service,
Mrs. J. K. DUNN,
Conf. Supt. of Supplies.

CITY MISSION WORK.

City mission work was prosecuted in 1915 by 39 city mission boards and three district boards. At Columbus, Ga., a new city board was organized in January, 1916. At Murfreesboro, Tenn., a new Wesley House has been built, with Miss Laura Summers as Head Resident. There are more than 1700 members on these forty-two boards. At no time in our history has the work been more vital to the communities they served. The Wesley Houses, Bethlehem Houses, and other institutions are constantly used for community entertainment, community group studies, discussions, and a center for local committee gatherings.

Eighty deaconesses and 35 missionaries conducted the work this year; 16 served as church deaconesses. The record of 1915 is as follows: Wesley houses and other settlements, 36; cooperative homes for young women, 7; young women in these homes in 1915, 761; mining centers served by deaconesses and missionaries, 5; trained workers engaged by city and district boards, 85; Day nurseries, 8; children in same, 1283; increase, 668. Kindergartens, 24; children enrolled, 1202; increase, 130. Industrial classes, 60; number enrolled, 3685; decrease, 251. Night schools, 18; number enrolled, 851; decrease, 133. Boys' clubs, 35; number enrolled, 1769; increase, 414. Girls' clubs, 23; number enrolled, 1036; inrease, 289. Young women's clubs, 14; number enrolled, 375; increase, 21. Mothers' clubs, 27; number enrolled 1129; decrease, 30. Story hours, 38; number attending, 999; increase, 72. Free baths, 10; number using same, 5707; increase, 1421. Social entertainments, 140. Patients treated at clinics, 20,414; increase 3449. Sabbath schools, 31; number enrolled, 6376. Meetings addressed by deaconesses and city missionaries, 1437. Visits made, 70,679; visits received, 62,301; increase, 18,580. Total cost of this work to the local boards, $76,-584.95.

A MESSAGE FROM PETROPOLIS.

Miss Helen Johnston writes: "My literary classroom work has been English and Bible. In the Home Economic Department I have had a sewing class and a cooking class. This latter is quite interesting and I have enjoyed it very much. Very great progress along this line at present is impossible for two reasons—lack of equipment and a more proficient teacher. However, we are going to keep doing the little we can and pray that the two essentials which we need to make it a success may soon be given us.

"In the Sabbath school, I have a very interesting class, composed of the older women and called 'Marthas and Marys.' These women deserve special mention because of their punctual attendance. Being mothers and home keepers and a number living at great distances from the church, it means sacrifice on their part to be in their places every Sunday. The church here seems alive and progressive. Nearly all branches of church work have been organized. In spite of hard times and crisis, the work here for the year has been satisfactory. I count it a privilege to be in Brazil again, and my great desire is to be able to do better work in the future than I have done in the past."

A HALF MILLION DOLLARS.

This is the aim for 1916 for the Conference collections.

It is $50,000, increase over 1915.

We have made a good start in the first quarter with $10,964.14 excess over the first quarter last year.

We must work for an excess of $14,-035.86 in the second quarter.

Collect dues and pledges in full this quarter in your society.

Bring into the treasury every dollar that is due.

Let us—

Pray as we have never prayed before,

Work as we have never worked before,

Give as we have never given before,

And we shall succeed!

Mrs. B. W. LIPSCOMB.

WESLEY HOUSE PLEDGE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

We call attention again to our Wesley House pledge of $300. Our offering for this work during the first quarter was a disgrace to the women of Methodism in our Conference. Do you recall the amount? It was $9.55. Sisters, what are we doing with our time and strength? Can we not employ both in such a way that they will yield some remuneration which can be converted to this work? It will take $140.45 to pay us to the close of second quarter. Let us put forth every effort to accomplish this purpose. If the task seems stupendous, remember that through Him we can accomplish seemingly impossible things. May we not gladden the hearts of our Conference officers by rallying to this cause and paying it in full to date?

BACKACHE? RUN DOWN? TIRED? CLEAN THE KIDNEYS WITH HOT WATER AND "ANURIC."

When run-down after a hard winter—when life indoors has brought about a stagnant condition in the circulation—most everyone is filled with uric acid—especially is this so of people past middle age. This uric acid in the blood often causes rheumatism, lumbago, swelling of hands or feet, or a bag-like condition under the eyes. Backache, frequent urination or the pains and stiffness of the joints are also often noticed. Dr. Pierce says that everyone should have a good sweat every day—should drink plenty of pure water and exercise in the open air as much as possible. This helps to throw out the poisonous uric acid through the skin and the "water." But for such persons as are past middle age it's often impossible to do this, and lime salts are deposited in the arteries, veins and joints, causing all kinds of distressing conditions. An antidote for this uric acid poison is to take hot water before meals and "Anuric." Ask your druggist for Doctor Pierce's Anuric, or send Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., a dollar bill for a full treatment, or ten cents for a trial package.

"Anuric" is a recent scientific discovery by Dr. Pierce. "Anuric" drives the uric acid out of your body. It is a uric acid solvent so effective that it eliminates these poisons, cleanses the system, allows your over-worked kidneys to resume their normal functions, and just a few days' treatment with "Anuric" will convince you because it brings lasting relief to your painful, aching rheumatic joints—no more backache or dizzy spells. Try it now and be convinced!—Adv.

Iron the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous Rundown People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Week's Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough Iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by the lack of Iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take Iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray while many another has gone down into inglorious defeat simply for the lack of Iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy; but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

THE NEWTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

An Experiment in the Country Conference.

When the proposition was first proposed by Rev. H. R. McKee that the Newton District Conference meet this year with the Rose Hill Church, there was some hesitancy as to the advisability of the course. The hospitality of the Rose Hill people was known and appreciated, but Rose Hill is a small village twelve miles from Pachuta, the nearest railroad station, and seven miles from Hickory, the station where most of the delegates would want to leave the train. Naturally it thought also of the inconvenience to the connectional officers who might desire to attend. But when Brother McKee told us how anxious his people were to have us at Rose Hill and how the neighboring churches would attend their brotherly offices, we all voted to go to Rose Hill.

On Tuesday May 16, the introductory sermon was to be preached at 8 p. m. The night before a heavy rain fell in the midst of a protracted meeting. Tuesday dawned with threatening clouds with every indication of more rain. Automobiles were put in commission for such roads. But some conveyances met the trains at the delegates' visitors and in behalf of the Conference a vote was taken of good cheer.

The serious circumstance of the weather was seen when people started who were of a mind to attend the preaching service. Every appointment during the conference was full. The people knew that the preaching services for Wednesday and Thursday were during school hours and therefore the conference could not be the occasion of a holiday. The sermon Tuesday night was preached by Rev. W. A. Bell in the Union Station. It was thought that a sermon and preacher for the first impression would be the best. The sermon was followed by a [illegible]

FROM THE COMMISSIONER.

"Into each life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary."

Such has been this one, but very acceptable to the farmers, two weeks having passed and all things being ready for another season. Reports from the hills and bottoms alike are very encouraging, and this slowly falling rain will "bring more joy to men than any prophet with his tongue or pen."

But mine is not the role of a weather reporter, and I must get down to business. The Elder dropped into my sanctum a few days ago and reminded me that I am getting behind (spring fever? tender toes? cold feet?). He was just in from Anguilla and full of praise for the long sycamore of the delta—fine prospects for a new church, at an early day at Delta City; a good quarterly conference, and the Elder concedes that Alford has the "socks on him" when it comes to a fine garden. Now that's some admission; for, for a good garden, good preaching and good humor, Sharbrough is hard to beat.

I was under the shadow of Chapman's fig tree shortly and heard things of him unlawful to repeat. My mission was to complete the happiness of two young people, at an hour when the schedule suited Vicksburg better than Rolling Fork. By the way, Doctor, I don't think the young folks love each other as much in these latter days as in the long ago. "Least while," the preachers in these parts are not very active in that branch of business.

Saw Wells in our city yesterday, and he reports evidence of new life at Oak Ridge. Since my last, things have been quite lively in the district. "John D.," our very efficient secretary, gave you a most excellent report of the proceedings of our district conference at Gloster—a delightfully harmonious session. Ten years ago that little city entertained comfortably our Annual Conference, but the boll weevil has made that impossible again, for a while; yet the Glosterites have made a record fight to maintain their former prestige. I shall not soon forget the cordial hospitality of the home of Mrs. Julia Ralford Love and her accomplished daughter, Mrs. Brown. With the exception of one pastor, the Upper End of the district was fully represented and did its share at the handspike. The programme began with Roberts and closed with Foreman—the Alpha and Omega. Will Hopper demonstrated that he can preach; and Chapman? well for speech-making he "beareth away the victory."

Of the Commencement at Port Gibson College I have already sent in the report. Both Crawford Street and Gibson Memorial observed Children's Day on May 14, with full houses and good collections. With more children than any other Protestant denomnation in the city, Methodism should grow by leaps and bounds in Vicksburg; yet not so, and here's the puzzle.

Commissioner Selby has been with us in the interest of Emory University; we were pleased to have him, and his splendid address should have secured a handsome sum. A previous engagement took us from the city on Monday morning; so I am not informed as to final results. With three special interests for the first Sunday in May, and a like number for the second, this preacher has had a job on his hands getting enough days for these numerous special occasions that have grown upon us. If the thing don't let up, we'll have to call a convention to revise the calendar so as to get in more Sundays.

In the Christian Advocate (Nashville) of May 12 (page 22) is a contribution from A. D. Betts which, alongside one from D. R. Barbee, of Mobile, in the New Orleans of the 4th inst (page 6), should give us pause. For some years I have feared that our Methodism was too far from the people in this democratic age, and that we were losing while others are gaining at our expense. The O'Kelly movement of 1792 might have been too previous, and evidently was not popular; but with a membership of 76,000, all told, scattered over large territory and served by few pastors, can we compare the conditions of 1916 when we represent a following of tens of millions, served by thousands of pastors, many of whom are among the foremost men in the States in which they live, as well as the communities in which they labor?

Every pastor among us has been impressed with the fact that our people have been educated to depend largely upon actions of conferences and boards without seeking to know further the merits of the matters in hand, and the numerous letters which pile upon the pastors' desk suggest a surfeiting almost to discouragement.

CHIEFLY PERSONAL.

In our issue of last week mention was made of the death of one of the children of Brother J. V. Bennett, of Monticello, Miss., and of the critical illness of two others. Now, Tuesday morning, we are in receipt of the following telegram from Rev. P. D. Hardin, of Jackson: "Bennett's children are better, but Sister Bennett is critically ill. Pray for them." Let the readers of the Advocate remember this stricken family at the throne of grace.

Rev. H. T. Young, of Amite City, La., gives us a club of 7 subscriptions to the Advocate, for which he has our thanks, and in his business letter appends the following note: "We have a very fine people at this place, and the Lord has been with us in the work all the year. The attendance at all the services of the Church has largely increased, and we have had a number of accessions to our membership. More later." The Amite Times of May 12 printed the sermon that Brother Young delivered in our church in that city on Mothers' Day, which was a strong and eloquent utterance.

In the death of Mrs. W. H. Riley, Sr., on May 26, at her residence, 237 Bermuda Street, Algiers, there was the passage from earth of a most useful, consecrated and beautiful Christian life. Loved by all who knew her, she was not only for years an active worker in our Church in Algiers, but was a woman of splendid character and potent for good in all that elevates and blesses others. Her son, Dr. R. L. Riley, has met a heavy loss in the taking from him of his devoted and noble mother, and the Church and community deeply mourn her departure. The funeral services, conducted by her long-time friend and brother, Dr. John T. Sawyer, were largely attended, and she rests well in the family plot in the Metairie Cemetery.

WHAT WAS DONE AT SARATOGA.

The action taken by the late General Conference of the Methodist Eipscopal Church concerning the union of the Methodist bodies of the United States is heing variously interpreted by the religious press of the country. This is not at all surprising, in view of the fact that the paper there adopted is very vague and eonfusing. Dr. John F. Goucher, of Baitlmore, who served on the Committee of Sixty that formulated it, and who was accorded the distinetion of presenting it to the General Conference, in his remarks on that occasion frankly admitted the indefiniteness of the measure in the following language: "The method of statement may not be quite satisfactory to some of the Conference because, as I have heard it remarked, it Is not definite enough; it is not specific enough; it is not detailed enough. But in the judgment of your Committee that is one of its chief excellencies."

History of Union Movement.

We cannot agree with this distinguished Northern educator that the Northern General Conference did a wise and commendahle thing when it met this great issue under the attending circumstances in a manner so lacking in explicitness. To realize the full force of this statement let us briefly review the antecedent history of this momentous movement. In December, 1910, at the instance of representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Joint Commission, composed of men acting for that denomination, for the Methodist Protestant Church, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, began the negotiations looking to the unification of Americau Methodism. The first step taken was to appoint a suh-committee of nine—three from each of the participating denominations—charged with the task of formulating a scheme of union to he suhmitted to the entire Commission. This sub-committee met in Cincinnatl on January 18, 1911, to perform the work committed to its hands, and, after the most careful deliberation, wrought out a unification plan which was submitted to the whole Commission in May of the same year at a meeting held in Chattanooga, Tenn. The latter body there gave three days to a careful and exhaustive examination of the scheme formulated by the sub-committee, modifying and endeavoring to make it more feasible and acceptable. It then adjourned, having made provision for the perfected plan to be presented to the General Conferences of the three denominations eoncerhed in the undertaking. Two of these General Conferences—those of the Methodist Protestant Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, met in May, 1912, and, in accordance with this understanding, the scheme of union that had been agreed upon went before hoth of these bodies. The Methodist Protestant General Conference adopted it, but that of the M. E. Church, though it was definitely in hand, passed it over without making the least specific reference to it, merely giving out some glittering generalities on the subject of union. Later, the statement was made by some of the Northern Methodist leaders that no action was taken by their General Conference because the plan in question was regarded as only "tentative," and hence as not properly calling for legislative enactment. How they expeeted the plan ever to eventuate in anything if this construction were accepted and adhered to hy all the Churches interested, has never been explained to this good day.

The Saratoga Procedure.

Such was the status of things when the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, convened in Oklahoma City In May, 1914. That body, upon the recommendation of its Committee on Church Relations, to which the report of the Joint Commission had been referred, unequivocally endorsed the plan that had been agreed upon at Chattanooga, with a single modification which pertained to the colored Methodists. So the plan again went back to the General Conference of the Church, North, eommended by the General Conferences of both of the other Churches that had been parties to the preceding negotiations. Thus it will he seen that every consideration of propriety and justice demanded that the Northern Methodist General Conference should meet in a straightforward and open manner the great issue which it had once completely ignored. Certainly, in view of the foregoing facts, it was no time for further shifting and evading and the handing out of Delphic utterances susceptible of various constructions. Having trailed one of the participants for a full quadrennium and the other for two years in facing and disposing of the project in contemplation, surely it was right to expect the Northern Church to speak its mind clearly and emphatically concerning the salient features which it embodied. Yet the only leader who opened his mouth concerning it, the man specially seleeted to hring it forward, presumed to state publicly that it was "INDEFINITE" and to claim that as one of its excellencies.

Was he wrong in this? Let us carefully examine this much heralded plan and see. We want the facts, whatever they may be, in this inquiry. After the "preamble," and a reference to the aetion of the Church, South, follows a declaration that the plan is regarded as "tentative, hut nevertheless as containing the basic principles of a genuine unification of the Methodist hodies of the United States, and especially of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, by the method of reorganization. Then comes a pronouncement that the Church, North, "regards the plan proposed by the Joint Commission on Federation as feasible and desirahle, and hereby declares itself in favor of the unification of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, in accordance with the general plan of reorganization, with the following recommendations."

Plan Both Endorsed and Repudiated.

So far so good. These general affirmations are in almost the exact language of that used by the Church, South; and if the general assembly of the Church, North, had stopped here, all would have been well. But the declaration in favor of unifieation hy a process of reorganization is not made without restrictions, but "with the following recommendations:

"(a) That the General Conference be made the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial hody of the Church under constitutional provisions and restrictions.

"(h) That the number of Quadrennial Conferences he so increased as to provide more adequately for the needs of the reorganized Church both ahroad and at home."

Now we submit that these two specifications, taken with their neeessary implications, are completely destructive of the most fundamental of the principles set forth in the plan of the Joint Commission on Federation. The underlying foundation of that scheme of reorganization, the one without which it could never have commanded the assent of the Church, South, is stated in the following words: "We suggest that the governing power of the reorganized Church shall be vested in one General Conference and three or four Quadrennial Conferences, both the General and Quadrennial Conferences to exercise their powers under constitutional provisions and restrictions, the General Conference to have full legislative power over all matters distinctively connectional, and the Quadrennial Conferences to have full legislative power over distinetively local affairs." It was also suggested that these Quadrennial Conferences should elect the Bishops, fix the boundaries of Annual Conferences, and that it should be made impossible for them to go beyond their prescribed bounds by having an outside hody to interpret the constitutionality of their acts. No one of these hodies under this scheme could ever invade the rights of another. Here was a plan for the protection of the Church, South, the smaller body, which has problems of a more delicate character than any other section of American Methodism, that was eonsidered ample, rockribbed and indestructible. The discussions that have taken place in the Church papers of both the North and South for the past two or three years show that the meaning of these provisions was clearly understood hy the leading men of hoth denominations.

Northern Scheme Inconsistent.

Now look at the action of the Northern General Conference in the light of these facts. What has it done? Instead of endorsing or refusing to endorse this eigar-cut proposal, it has sidestepped it, and while, claiming in general terms to favor the basal principles involved, it has submitted specific counter propositions which would utterly subvert and destroy the most vital and essential basic feature of the whole scheme.

If one body is elothed with SUPREME power, there eouid he no indestructible autonomy any-

"BE STILL AND KNOW THAT I AM GOD."

By Maud M. Kittrell

Oh, can you doubt him now,
Or question still his wondrous being—
The why, and when, and how?
When all seems dark and gloomy
And you're burdened down with care,
Just whisper soft and low these words—
They'll drive away despair.

THE SAME MESSAGE.

"I have the same message." Thus in substance Dr. John Clifford, the veteran English Baptist leader, prefaced a sermon recently preached at a little town in England where he was born and where sixty-four years ago he preached a trial sermon. The text then was. "Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh away the sin of the world," and he frankly said that after fifty-seven years as pastor of one church he had no other message than the one with which he began his ministry. In all these years Dr. Clifford has been a champion of progressive thought and of the most comprehensive type of Christian fellowship. Here is an instance certainly of the persistenee of underlying truth, despite inevitahle ehanges in emphasis. How many men who have preached fifty or even twenty-five years ean honestly say to-day, "I have the same message?"—Congregationalist.

THE HABIT OF PRAYER.

A minister of some experienee lately made the diseovery that out of every ten ehurch members as far as he has been able to find out, only three have a fixed habit of sincere prayer. It is to be hoped that his experience is misleading. Yet Christians, it is certain, neglect prayer in a manner most dangerous to their souls; and too many more merely "say their prayers" daily, and never really pray at all, except in times of crisis. The habit of earnest prayer is a habit of strength and peace.

"We kneel, how weak! we rise how full of power!
Why, therefore, should we do ourselves this wrong,
That we should ever weak or heartless be,
Anxious or troubled, when with us is prayer.
And joy and strength and eourage are with Thee?"

The young Christian needs prayer even more vitally than older disciples. Let us early form the habit of thus seeking God daily and neyer let it go.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

MORE CHRISTIAN HOMES.

Napoleon once said: "What Franee needs is mothers." What we need to-day is more Christian homes. It has well been said, "The hand that rocks the eradle rules the world." That hand so shapes the destiny of future men and women as to determine what they shall be to the world, whether a blessing or a curse. In the home impressions are made for eternity. Would that I might burn this truth into your mind. The plastic mind of the child is fashioned and fixed in the mold. If it is ever to be changed afterwards there must be a breaking-up proeess instead of the natural formation.

It was a Christian home that gave us the Wesleys. In that home was born an influenee that lives to-day in the hundreds of thousands of Methodists all over the world. In our own beloved Church it was the godly home of Bishop Dubs that furnished the first superintendent for our China Mission, now to be re-enforced by the produet of that home in the person of Homer Dubs, as well as with a medieal missionary in the person of Doetor Niebel, who comes from a family of three generations of preachers.

May your home be such as to inspire in those who go out from it a desire for the best things in life! The things of which Jesus spoke, when he said: "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness." May it be sueh to those who remain in it at the evening time of life that it may be only a step, only a moving to another similar, only better home, when the Master shall bid you move to the home above!—The Evangelical.

THE COUNTRY CHURCH.

By Rev. Paul Dwight Moody.

(This extract from a more extended article by Mr. Moody is printed by permission of the Biblieal Review, eopyrighted, publisbed in the Bible Teaehers' Training School, Lexington Avenue, New York.)

A great many lovers of agriculture and the eountry ehureh have eome forward and declared that here was a way out of Egypt, and that if only the chureh took the lead in the dissemination of a seientific knowledge of agrieulture she would win back her old place and again we would see the horse-shed full of a Sunday, and everything would be satisfactorily solved. Indeed, the very newspaper article, to which reference was made at first, said that a seientie knowledge of farming was to be given to all the men that this ehurch was preparing for eountry parishes. This statement eould come only from a rather reekless newspaper man on the one hand or a rather visionary and impractieal theologian on the other. There are many men who can absorb a knowledge of agronomy far better than they ean of apologeties. There are others whose knowledge of Hebrew roots will not be impaired by being mixed with a knowledge of other kinds of roots as well. A knowledge of the proper rotation of erops for some men and some parishes would be as useful as a knowledge of the eouneils of the church. But on the whole tbe wisdom of this is very far from obvious.

In the first place, a partial knowledge is always apt to be dangerous and to no one more so than to a minister, and of no subjeet, with the possible exeeption of those we assoeiate with the healing art, is an amateur's knowledge less useful, if not positively more dangerous, than of farming. The regular eourse that the man pursues who ean present a diploma in agrieulture is no easy one and ean hardly be carried on amid the studies necessary to beeome a eompetent leader in matters spiritual. The idea that anybody can be a farmer and that farming is simple and that a correspondenee eourse will equip the student for an advisership in matters agrieultural is so erroneous that it is not even worth stopping to disprove. The magazines that encourage the return to the eountry on the part of eity folk tell the exceptional, if not apoeryphal, yarns about the men who do suceeed, but they say nothing of the many who lose their all. The minister has not the time to devote to becoming the kind of expert he must be if he hopes to give advice on land drainage and cattle breeding to men who have spent tbeir lives at it.

And, in the seeond place, the day has nearly gone by when the minister ean do this. The old prejudiee against the seientifie farmer is fast disappearing, and there are many eounties where the farmers have an agricultural expert who gives his serviees free to all who belong to the local farmers' associations. It is all wrong to think that the old stoek figure of the eomie paper is in any way now a portrait of the man who, after all, is the main figure in American life, without whom the greatest city would starve in a week and for whom the railroads run and the factories operate. Where the old prejudiee does exist it is not going to be removed by advieе from the minister. If there is a problem of the eountry church, assuredly it is not going to be solved by putting the minister into overalls or eonfusing his mind with all the puzzling statisties of a mixed or balanced ration. The minister is in the community for the upraising of Christian eharaeter and not for the raising of improved or registered calves.

Moreover, it is very doubtful if his congregation will ever allow him to forget this. If the minister is a success it will be because he preaches the Gospel in a way that moves and helps men and becauso he is a good adviser with respect to the things that fall in his sphere, and, above all, because he is a good and trustworthy and lovable man. If he is a suceess he does not need any agrieultural activities or interests to fill his time or to eommend him to a congregation only too ready to open their doors and their hearts to him. But if, in the great task for whieh he comes among them, he fails, he cannot rehabilitate himself by telling them how to make their hens lay or what to do to cure rust in asparagus. We are apt to be doubtful of the lawyer who dabbles in medicine, as we conclude that his law studies must have suffered somewhat if he has had time to devote to medieine. At the same time we are not overconfident as to his knowledge of medieine.

There may be some injustice in the statement that the jack-of-all-trades is master of none, but the old statement is founded on long observation. So with the minister. If he can interpret Isaiah he will not need to know how to eure ensilage; but if he eannot, no amount of knowledge on the latter subject will atone for the former omission. If it is found that he thinks he knows something that he does not, then there is grave danger of his being suspected of not knowing other and more important things as well. A story has made the rounds of the papers of the Reverend Dry-as-dust who asks a drunken eountryman the way to a neighboring village. The reply is so overseasoned with profanity that the grieved gentleman points out that the rustic is on the way to extreme punishment. The reply was that as this stranger did not know the way to the next village even, what eould he possibly know about the way to hell. There is, of course, a great fallacy here, but since human nature never has been very logical we need not give it any more occasion to stumble than is unavoidable.

The whole fallacy of this movement to instruct the minister in farm economy and to try to make him an expert is well illustrated by the remark a friend in a neighboring town made to me. He is one of the most useful and efficient ministers in the State. Speaking one day of one of his parishioners, he made the remark that this man had reeently sold a cow at a figure, if I remember eorrectly, in excess of what he himself receives for his yearly salary. At this time a book had lately been published by two investigators in these fields who were entbusiastically certain that this was the way out, and that the only solution of the "country problem" was agricultural education. My friend dryly remarked as he spoke of the matter: "I suppose so-and-so would have me go and give that man a little advice on how to increase the supply of milk." We do not want to be spoken to with authority by the agricultural expert on matters in the Old Testament, on the ground that there is much that is agricultural and pastoral in that, and I doubt if we make any headway as ministers by attempting to invade a field that is becoming more highly specialized every year.

After all, the deepest problems of the country church are not economie but spiritual. And it is always harder to speak with positiveness in this field where only God knows and sees clearly. It is doubtful if in a great many matters there is much difference between the problems that the minister in a small country church and a small city church have to faee.

When I was a mere lad in my old home in Massachusetts I used to be sent every Sunday to carry a preacher to a small schoolhouse where were held the only religious services that community had. Later I was assigned the task of seeing that it had preachers and was made responsible for the services there. Desperate attempts used to be made to interest the community in these serviees. It took a speaker of almost national reputation to get an audience out, and that kind were not preaching there—often. As I used to worry over this problem it finally came to shape itself for mo in this way: The weaker the place the stronger the man needed. Kipling has put in the mouth of one of his keenest characters, Mrs. Hauksbee, the statement that any woman can manage a wise man, but that it takes a very wise woman to manage a fool. The same thing is true of churches. The average man can manage the average church, but it takes a spiritual genius and a saint of more than common caliber to manage the small church with its lack of workers and the loss which comes when the momentum of numbers is lacking. But it is not only the smaller the church the bigger the man, but the smaller the church the less money there is for a poor man, let alone a man that is really of value to his day and generation.

As I used to wonder at the problem as a boy, brought face to face with it in a concrete form, it seemed to me that there was no solution. After many years I am a minister myself, and though not in the strictest sense a country minister, since the church I have the honor to serve is in a town of over 8000 population, still it is a country community all about us, and I am privileged to know well many of the splendid men who for shamefully small sums are working at this problem or problems (instead of writing about them). But I see no more now than then any solution of the problem as a problem. But now I am not certain that a solution is needed. We are all apt to wish for some one word to open doors, as in the old fairy tales, and to solve for us all secrets. The word is lacking and always will be, save in realms of fancy. As I write, in a thousaud and one small country churches the problem is being solved for this and that church and field for this year. But the very methods that are being worked out so well in these churches are doing nothing in other churches. And where a difficulty is not being solved it is often because discontent has crept in and the minister is feeling dissatisfied and is lifting up his eyes to other fields and envying the laborers there the splendid stand of grain, forgetting that back of this was the planting and the watering and the silent growth and the faithful tending.

It is in the realm of the spiritual, but it is not the problem any more than any others have been, but it is a problem, and an important one, that so many are allowed to think slightingly of the work of the country church. The seminaries are the chief offenders in this, for too often the student, even there, comes to think of the country field as too small or too insignificant for his powers. And if by chance he finds himself at the close of his seminary course obliged to take a small field, because a blind world has not been awake to what he can do for it, too often he looks upon this as but a stepping stone to advancement.

England can teach us a lesson here, for she has found a way to keep some of her great men in places that needed them sorely. Who can forget that Kingsley, with all his gifts, remained to the end the vicar of the little church of Eversley? And the world is richer, as well as Bremerton, for the fact that in an earlier generation George Herbert found enough to do there and so stayed on and transformed this wickedest of little places into a paradise and incidentally found time to serve the world and more than his own day by the poems he wrote and the songs he sung.

All honor to the humble man who turns his back on all chances of fame and fortune and chooses to serve God where he feels he best can! But the church at large could help him in his loneliness and sense of isolation and separation from the larger world, which threatens his usefulness and self-respect sometimes, if it found ways to make him feel that in his remote corner he was not forgotten and that the work he was doing was noted and cared for by more than the few who hear his falthfully prepared sermons. Teach the student that it is not disgraceful to serve many years in the small field; but at the same time find a way to bring some sense of service to the larger world to the man who stays in the small place. Let the pulpits of the larger churches be open to him now and then, and let him feel that the fact that he is a servant of the King is of such dignity that it is a lesser importance where he serves.

CHURCH EXTENSION, PLUS.

By Rev. James A. Burrow, D. D.

It was a graceful thing for the Automobile Club of Louisville, Ky., to take the members of our General Board of Church Extension, with representatives of Annual Conference Boards, and visitors, on a Saturday afternoon's drive over the city and through the shaded parks. We passed the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, with three or four hundred students, the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, the churches of the city, the Ford automobile factory, the biggest tobacco factory in the world, the handsome residential districts, the shaded boulevards, and the beautiful parks. Hills and dells and groves and greenswards and green trees made passing panoramas of rare beauty.

Our General Church Extension Board has not always been known and felt in Louisville, but now it is there, "on the map," and to stay. The Board of Trade gave a complimentary banquet to Church Extension visitors in the city, which broke the record for that body, it being the first similar honor ever given to any part of a religious denomination. The big banquet hall on the teuth floor of the Seelbach Hotel was crowded, some seven hundred persons having seats at the festal board. Bishops and laymen, lawyers and doctors, Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and the rest were represented. Among those who responded felicitously to toasts were a Jewish rabbi, an Episcopal rector, a Baptist college dean, a Presbyterian instructor in elocution, an English physician and Methodist Bishops. Wit and wisdom abounded. Humor was in the air. Stilted dignity slipped out of the windows and flew away over the city housetops. The business toastmaster, Mr. Frank Cassell, an original Holston man and brother of Judge Cassell, of Radford, Va., led the way in discarding conventional proprieties, and in making the occasion free, felicitous and fine. The speeches were short—a dozen of them—so that the banquet was over by 11:00 o'clock.

The pulpits of Louisville listened to Methodist Bishops and dignitaries on the Sabbath following. In the afternoon our Fourth Avenue Church was packed to its capacious limit to hear the addresses of Dr. Sam Steel, of Columbia, S. C., who had been invited by the Board of Church Extension to deliver the same. All of our Bishops were present except Bishops Key and Waterhouse. Bishop Atkins presided. Possibly the exercises were a little too long before the speaker of the hour was called, but the great crowd stood the heat heroically, and was genuinely disappointed when the eloquent speaker stopped. Has our Church a more fluent orator than Dr. Steel? I doubt it. His word-painting ability is something wonderful, while his eloquence is thrilling. His theme—"The Challenge to the Church"—carried him through phases of Church Extension work, through fogyish opposition to progress, through the bloody cruelty of warring nations to the world's only hope of safety—a triumphant church, spreading the everlasting gospel of the Son of God. Following the address, our splendid stone building, standing in fine proportions and beauty, of perfect Greek architecture, was dedicated to the service of God through our General Board of Church Extension.

At night another capacity congregation crowded into the Fourth Avenue Church, two doors from the new Church Extension building, to hear two of our greatest pulpit and platform speakers, Bishops E. E. Hoss and Warren A. Candler. After other features of the evening programme, Bishop Hoss read his address on the life of Bishop Asbury—read it under difficulties, as the air was hot, and the acoustics not good. It is a scholarly and able address. Bishop Candler was called to the platform at a late hour, and did not attempt a full speech. He could hardly be dull if he should try. His reference to Bishop Coke's physique, and to his own "bungalow style of architecture," brought the broad smile, which, along with other apt witticisms, helped to electrify the atmosphere. He commented on certain phases of Bishop Asbury's character, and made pointed applications to present day conditions. I should very much like to hear Bishop Hoss and Bishop Candler, under the best conditions, with no time limit, and on separate hours, turn themselves loose on a great theme like the great Asbury.

Monday morning the General Board of Church Extension resumed its sittings. I was present, along with other visitors, by the grace of the courtesy. For the first time I got an inside view of the workings of that great dynamo of our Church. Practical problems confront it such as many of our Methodist folk do not think about. How to save church property here and there, how to make loans to the best advantage, how to place donations where they will do the most good, how to get co-operation from presiding elders and preachers, how to get their great cause before the people, were among the practical questions of the hour. The completion of our Washington City Church was discussed. Mt. Vernon Place has been agreed upon as the site. The Board recommended assessments upon the Annual Conferences, and urged the collection of all outstanding subscriptions, that the great church may be pushed to completion.

Mr. J. B. Duke, of North Carolina, was given a hearty vote of thanks for his generous provision for the distribution of $35,000 annually to missions, to Church Extension, and to the superannuates of North Carolina. The significant statement of that princely giver, in giving this money, is worthy of widespread repetition. He said, "I give to the Church because it does not pass away." Let others who are able to put money where it will go down the ages benefiting humanity bear this wise utterance in mind. The church is no transient institution.

Mrs. Hannah W. Morton, widow of Dr. David Morton, was given an enthusiastic but tender greeting when she came before the Board by special invitation. Five thousand copies of the life of Dr. Morton, by Bishop Hoss, will be taken by the Board for sale and distribution. It is Dr. McMurry's plan to put this volume in the hand of every young preacher coming into the Conferences of Southern Methodism.

Dr. R. S. Stout, General Church Extension Secretary of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church in America, made a short talk to the Board, and was recommended to our people for sympathetic assistance. Bishop Kilgo paid an earnest and eloquent tribute to the colored people of the South, and declared that we could not get along without them.

The increase in our general Loan Fund is the largest of any year in our history. The Board expressed its gratitude to Dr. McMurry, and voted to make him some sort of a gift as a testimonial of appreciation. One of the Bishops suggested to the writer that it should be a vacation and a trip of recreation somewhere.

A warning note was sounded to the effect that churches which rush ahead with building enterprises in violation of business principles, and of the rules of our Church, must quit calling upon the Board to save them. I could not tarry till the closing session, as an engagement in Nashville called me inexorably. All in all, it was a great week for Church Extension, one of the strong arms of our Methodism. I failed to say that a big Sunday school rally was held on Friday night in our Fourth Avenue Church, which was addressed by Drs. Bulla and Chappell and Bishop Atkins. The General Sunday School Board met in the new Church Extension Building during this gathering of Methodist clans from over our connectionalism. The Sunday school department of our Church knows no secondary force.

WHAT WAS DONE AT SARATOGA.

where else. Our Federal Government in the United States is not "supreme." It has only certain ceded powers—all others are reserved to the States. These the General Government cannot invade. The Supreme Court would interpose its strong arm and say, "Thus far shalt thou go, and no farther." But the Church, South, is asked to consent to make "supreme" in all the functions of government a single body, in which she would be in a helpless minority. This is the thing which the plan of the Joint Commission on Federation chiefly sought to guard against.

Apparently, to make the desired autonomy of the Church, South, or any large portion of it, still more impossible, it was, furthermore, recommended that there be a larger number of Quadrennial Conferences. Obviously the smaller such a body might be, the less of self-governing power it could be expected to exercise. And as we stated last week, Dr. Claudius B. Spencer, Editor of the Central Christian Advocate (Kansas City, Mo.), who is a member of the Northern Church Commission which has just been named to handle this matter, has stated in his paper since the Saratoga action was taken that the purpose of enlarging the number of these Quadrennial bodies is to split up the Methodism of the South, along with that of the North, and he also intimates that it is not desired that they shall elect their own Bishops.

But it may he asked if the paper adopted at Saratoga Springs does not refer, in the action taken, to "the Quadrennial Conferences as stated in the proposed plan?" Certainly it does, hut that is a very vague expression, when the whole of its enactment is considered. The truth is, the different parts of the Northern plan are in hopeless and irreconcilahle conflict with one another. When there is in existence a General Conference with SUPREME legislative, executive, and judicial powers, no other body with an adequately safeguarded autonomy can possihly exist in connection with it. Even if constitutional restrictions should he thrown around the "supreme" organization, would it not be the sole judge as to when those provisions were infracted? And could it not by judicial construction do anything that it might desire? Every informed man knows how the Supreme Court of the United States, though it possesses only supreme judicial power, has expanded the constitution of the United States in this manner. And with a hody. "supreme" in blended legislative, executive, and judicial functions, the danger would be vastly greater. Indeed, there is hardly any limit to which such a body might not easily go.

Peril in Such a System.

And, moreover, the constitutional restrictions established could not only be expanded hy construction—they could also be changed. If two-thirds of the General Conference and three-fourths of the Annual Conferences should be vested with this power, as is now the case, who can say that in a union of all the white and colored Methodists of the United States and of the related Conferences in foreign lands, the Southern (white) Church could always maintain the safeguards necessary to prevent a disturhance of the complicated social conditions that surround her?

We will not pause to discuss at any considerable length the inconsiderate manner in which the Northern General Conference has swept past the proposal of the Joint Commission to have the constitutionality of the acts of the General Conference and the Quadrennial Conferences under the supervision of some other tribunals. The value of such a provision has already heen indicated in the course of our discussion. The Church, North, is, as respects this proposition, clinging resolutely to the position it occupied when American Methodism was riven in twain, a positlon which was repudiated by the great Joshua Soule, who was a Northern man in every fiber of his heing. This may seem to be a small matter now, hut it was not a small matter in the decades of the last century, and the time may come when it will again be a matter of vast moment. The greatest, the most stable, and the safest democracy that the world has ever known is the American Republic, and it is builded upon the principle which the Joint Commission recommended in this connection. Who would want to be goverened by a single Congress supreme in all legislative, executive, and judicial functions? How would Louisiana, or Mississippl, or South Carolina, or Georgia, with their hundreds of thousands of black population, like to have all States' rights wiped out and pass under the domination of the Federal Legislature at Washington, thus clothed with supreme power? The Church, South, has prohlems in this respect scarcely less serious and vital than those of the political commonwealths of this section.

The Negro Question Involved.

In our judgment, the posltion that the Northern General Conference has taken on the Negro question, if adhered to, will make union with the Church, South, impossihle. We admit that ostensibly they are with the Jolnt Commission on Federation on this question, but, as we have before said, and as is clearly implied in the foregoing discussion, its conception of the Quadrennial Conference and that of the Jolnt Commisslon are two utterly dissimilar things. The latter hody expected these Conferences to be very large hodies, with a great measure of autonomy that no other agency could ever invade or take from them. The one General Conference that the Church, North, insists upon would leave no place for such Quadrennial Conferences as these. Their idea of such Conferences seems to be something altogether different. Dr. Goucher, in his address dealing with the Northern plan, compared these Conferences, among other things, to the consultation meetings that the Northern Bishops are now having in their residential areas.

Under the Saratoga plan, if it should be fully worked out, the Negroes in the Methodist Episcopal Church, in the C. M. E. Church, in the A. M. E. Church, and in the African Zion Church, would be grouped into Quadrennial Conferences, and thus numbering nearly a million and three-quarter communicants, would, if they are to he equitably dealt with, be given representation in the Supreme General Conference in proportion to their numhers. Thus their strength in that body would he nearly equal to that of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to say nothing of the much larger white representation from the North. Shall we, under the influence of mere sentiment, shut our eyes to these facts and place our Church which so largly represents the white citizenship of the Southern States in a position so fraught with peril as this?

We do not desire to make the impression that the white people of the South feel unkindly toward the Negroes. On the contrary, we helieve that they are really the best friends that the colored people have. The hetter element among them want the Negroes Christianized, and they desire them to have opportunities for moral, intellectual, and financial advancement. They believe in giving them security of life and property, but they desire to have them understand clearly that they need not hope to intermingle socially with the white people of the South. And they believe it is hest, both for them and the white people, for them to refrain from participation in politics. With this conception in view, they have framed their laws and builded their State constitutions.

Now, as we understand it, the convictions of the Methodists across the Ohio, like those of the Northern people in general, are not in harmony with this status of things. While not openly pressing the matter of social equality, they encourage the Negroes to believe that they should ride in the same coaches on the trains and in the same parts of the street cars that the white people do, and that they ought to have the privilege of exercising the ballot and of holding office in the same manner as men belonging to the white race. The administration of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in our judgment, whether so designed or not, tends to foster and encourage such aspirations among the colored citizens of this section. We have seen it stated in some of their publications that the reason why they could not abandon their work in the South was that they felt it to be their duty to change the "atmosphere" prevailing in the Southern States in this respect. Would they have less desire to do this in a united Church than they have now? We do not think it is likely that they would. We write this with no bitterness, nor with any desire to stir up unpleasantness. We would concede to our Northern brethren the same right to their views that we claim to our own. But this is a time when there should be no concealment between the Methodists of the North and South—when the plain, unvarnished truth should be told. The Southern Methodists dare not retreat from the position of the Southern people on this question. To do so would be to disqualify themselves for the largest service in the great territory in which a favoring Providence has placed them. However much their field might be widened in other lands by this proposed alliance, it is in these Southern parallels that they must do their chief work, and nothing could compensate them for the loss of the confidence and affection of the white people of the Southern States.

Southern Church Has Done Most.

To sum up the situation, we think it may be said that the Church, South, has shown more desire for the unification of American Methodism upon fair and generous terms than has the Church, North. She led in adopting the plan of the Joint Commission, though the Northern Church had hy two years the earlier opportunity to do so.

Except with reference to the Negroes, whom she expressed a desire to place in a separate organization, holding fraternal relations with the united white Church, she has stood squarely and openly for every recommendation of the Joint Commission on Federation, which the representatives of the Northern Church helped to work out. On the other hand, as we have shown, while commending the proposals of the Joint Commission in a general way, by its counter propositions, the Northern Church has brought forward a modified plan which would nullify all of the more vital features of the program that had been definitely agreed to by her commissioners.

The General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, declared that it desired union with our Northern brethren and it went as far as it felt that it could go with justice to the sacred interests in its hands in its efforts to secure it; but, however much union with the Methodism of the North may be longed for, it cannot be purchased at the cost of erecting a barrier between our beloved Church and the white people of the Southern States. It was to avoid this that our fathers reluctantly drew apart from them in 1844, and we dare not do otherwise than follow in their footsteps in this respect if the same two alternatives are presented to us, as they now seem to be. Our first and highest obligation is to our own people. Our main competition as a Church in the South is not with the Northern Methodists and probably never will be—it is with denominations that are thoroughly Southern in their sentiments and which have no notion of changing in that particular. Shall we place ourselves at such a disadvantage in this respect that they would be certain to outstrip us and take away our crown?

Where Responsibility Should Rest.

We think that the Church, North, first, by completely ignoring the plan of the Joint Commission on Federation in 1912, and by sidestepping it and injecting new issues utterly subversive of the basal principles of that scheme in its General Conference which has just adjourned, has pursued an improper and indefensible course: and if the present movement for Methodist union has been defeated, as may be the case, upon it the responsibility for this result should rest. And such we believe will be the verdict of the public when all the facts involved are made known and the true significance of the action taken at Saratoga Springs is clearly understood.

OUR GREAT EFFICIENCY CONFERENCE.

Be it known to all Methodists that the Efficiency Conference of Methodist preachers and Christian workers held at Grenada College, Grenada, Miss., May 30-June 2, 1916, was an unqualified success.

The attendance was beyond the most sanguine expectations of any one. The Grenada College dormitories, dining room, and chapel were full to their utmost capacity, and it seemed as though the whole North Mississippi Conference had come together. This was especially gratifying in view of the fact that the Conference had been planned only a few months before at an efficiency meeting of the Bishop and presiding elders and the advantage of an Annual Conference origin and announcement could not be had. All of the Conference Boards had, however, heartily endorsed and co-operated in the movement, and all publicity possible had been given it.

The explanation of the attendance and the success of the conference was evidently in the program offered, which Bishop Atkins affirmed to be the equal of any that he had ever seen, Ocean Grove, Winona Lake, Northfield, and all others not excepted. He congratulated Rev. W. W. Woollard and Rev. W. L. Duren, to whom the work of preparing the program had been chiefly committed; and the whole conference expressed high appreciation as well of the bountiful provision made by President Countiss and Commissioner Jaco of the College for physical comfort and well-being. The weather was ideal. Appetites were good. Food was palatable and plentiful. Surroundings were beautiful, and the good-fellowship was such as is rarely seen and as can only be remembered with genuine pleasure.

The serious responsibilities of examinations, reports, committee meetings, making and receiving appointments were absent from this gathering, and the joy of living and loving and ministering was felt in its inspiring and exhilarating power.

It was a gathering together of the prophets to enter into a larger appreciation of the glory and honor and power of their prophetic office in the world of men and events. The speakers measured up ably to the occasion. George R. Stuart was inimitable with his contagious humor, seasoned with common sense and genuine piety and Christian purpose to minister in love and hope to the souls of men. His addresses on "Lop-sided Folks," "How to Get an Audience," "The Use of Humor and Pathos in Preaching," and "The Value of Illustrative Preaching" were among the most attractive features of the Conference.

Very different in style but of the very highest order and impressive to an unusual degree were Dr. W. J. Young's four lectures on "The Prophet as Preacher, Priest, Pastor, and Man of Affairs." At the close of the first address a prominent member of the Conference said to me, "That was immense. I've got my money's worth in that one message." But each address that followed was equally thoughtful, fervent, forcible, perfectly wrought out; and behind the message was always the same quiet, earnest, devout man, the impress of whose life was felt, to the admiration of all. Emory University is fortunate in having such a man among its professors, and his presence among us has inspired the greater confidence in ministerial training under such prophetic leadership.

Bishop Atkins brought us two able addresses—the first an illuminating exposition of the first chapter of Ezekiel as "The Chief of the Christologic Prophecies," and the second a scholarly and thoughtful presentation of "Jesus, the Teacher."

Dr. Chappell, our Sunday School Editor, with his usual earnestness, fluency, familiarity with his subject, and virility of mind, delivered three addresses not only on Sunday School work, but on the larger and profounder question of religious education. His subjects were "The Edueational View-point," "An Educatlonal Policy," and "The Model Sunday School."

Dr. W. W. Pinson, our Secretary of Missions, evidently burdened and hampered in his work by the untoward world conditions to-day, yet recognizing that in Christianity and in Christian missions alone is the hope of the future, spoke earnestly on "Twentieth Century Neighborhood" (two addresses), and "The Big Brother among the Nations." The last named was commended as especially fine.

In the absence of Dr. McMurry, we were about to state that this concludes the list of distinguished speakers and addresses, but the recollection of the remarkably thoughtful and inspiring address by Mr. J. H. Ledyard of Tupelo, one of our own laymen, constrains me to mention his discussion of "The Efficient Pastor" as worthy to be named with these others as among the choice things of the Conference.

Our own brethren acquitted themselves admirably also, and their messages in the "Open Forum" and in general discussion gripped the attention and elicited unfeigned admiration and praise.

Such with the devotional hours and music was the program, rich in interest, information, and inspiration, and tending powerfully toward the greater "efficiency" in the work of the Kingdom for which the conference was planned.

A resolution favoring the holding of a similar conference a year hence was unanimously adopted; and the brethren departed for their respective fields of labor feeling, that "it was good to have been there," and strengthened and inspired for more effective service.

A GREAT DAY IN ALEXANDRIA METHODISM.

Sunday, May 28, was Home Visitation Day in the First Methodist Church, Alexandria. The Laymen's Missionary Committee, with T. W. Holoman chairman, had divided the city into thirty districts and made a correct list of our members residing in each district. Then a visitation committee of sixty members was selected and divided into groups of two each. This committee met at prayer meeting Wednesday evening for instruction and to pray for the movement.

A pastoral letter was sent to each member stating the purposes of the visitation and requesting all members not on the committee to remain at home during the hour of visitation to receive the visitors. Sunday morning the pastor preached on Christian Stewardship, and at the close of the service the committee of sixty came to the altar for special consecration and prayer. Promptly at 3 p. m., despite the heat, the committee assembled at the church for prayer, final instructions, literature and assignment of territory. Each team of two was assigned to one of the thirty districts and given a list of all our members therein with the request that they also visit any other Methodists whom they might find residing in that district.

At the evening hour for services a large congregation assembled. The choir rendered special music and the congregation joined heartily in singing familiar hymns. Then one member of each of the thirty teams, with the exception of two or three, made a report of the afternoon's experiences, and the services closed with a brief talk by the pastor and the introduction to the congregation of thirteen new members.

The reports showed that the subscriptions amounted to the benevolent assessment or more; that the membership had been brought into a better acquaintance; that the workers had received a blessing in doing the work, and that more than forty prospective members had been discovered. Thirty-six members have been received during the past two months, mostly by certificate.

The pastor finds in the Alexander church a large company of "true-hearted, whole-hearted" members who love the Lord and his Church, and respond loyally to every call for service. We feel that there is a great field of opportunity for our Church in this growing city, and with confidence in God and his people we expect great things to be accomplished for our Lord.

W. H. COLEMAN, Pastor.

FROM DR. JOHN T. SAWYER.

Dear Dr. Meek: About the union of Northern and Southern Methodism, I have attentively read all you have written on that very important matter. I endorse your views and conclusions fully. The fraternity we now have is working nicely; and, as separate bodies, each preserving its own individuality, God has prospered each of us in our one legitimate work—the saving of the world for God.

You rightly stress and question the declaration of the M. E. Church that the new General Conference of united Methodism "be made the supreme legislative, executive, and judicial body of the Church, etc." The plan proposed by our Church is the better one. Anyhow, Doctor, let the whole matter be thoroughly sifted; and we must be slow to rush pellmell into each other's arms—the very close hug might crush out the weaker body.

We don't need to make a new Church of about seven millions—such a mighty body could do no more for the Master than the Methodist bodies continuing to work as now, side by side, and lovingly, in the battle against the world, the flesh and the devil. JOHN T. SAWYER.

New Orleans, La., May 30, 1916.

"The one who loves you most, the one who is the most loving, is the one who is the easiest to please. And that is the reason children can please their mothers when they can not please anybody else; the mother sees something that nobody else can see. It is never difficult to please your mother, she loves you so. * * * And so the most loving one is God; he is love, then he must be the easiest to please."

Surgeons in the German army are testing the value of powdered sugar as a dressing for suppurating and contaminated wounds. Speaking of the results obtained from the use of sugar, one of the surgeons (Dr. Hercher) says that powdered sugar makes it unnecessary to rinse out or irritate a wound as it causes such a profuse oozing of fluid that the wound is coplously washed within, and that its efficiency is due mainly to the stimulation of the secretion which dilutes and washes away the pus.

An English scientific periodical declares that one can shave very well without soap. The only way to find out whether there is any truth in this assertion is for some one who wishes to be a benefactor of humanity to make a trial of scraping the hair off of his face by wetting his whiskers with water and using a sharp razor as is recommended by the aforementioned journal. Americans, however, should remember that this is a sample of England's petty economy, and that if they are going to do anything toward saving money it ought to be on a wiser and larger scale.

A German woman was recently beheaded with a broadax by a headsman for the murder of her husband, daughter, and stepson. From this instance it appears that the Germans are not always modern in the method they pursue in executing criminals. Could such a legal proceeding be imagined as being sanctioned by law in America? Yet this method of administering the death penalty is about as good, if not superior, to some used in our own country. There is no nice way to deprive one of life. It is a horrible thing, but it has to be done for the safety of society.

The prediction has recently been made by a Harvard University publication that the four-year undergraduate period will be reduced to three years. We think that this is a prophecy that one can make with every degree of safety if he does not go too far and attempt to state abont when the change will take place. Even now the fourth year does not count for much, so far as the pursuit of literary and non-professional studies are concerned in many of our institutions of learning, owing to the fact that the students are allowed to begin the study of some profession in it.

MEXICO AND READJUSTMENT.

The matter of readjustment of our missionary work in Mexico to which our Board of Missions is committed, has brought forth a vigorous protest on the part of nearly all of our missionaries on the field, as well as many others. This readjustment would turn over a large part of the field already organized and occupied by our Church to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

This is, in our judgment, only another instance of the folly of attempting to force ecclesiastical supervision in order to bring about an impracticable ideal. The development of a mission field should be along the line of normal growth with as little outside restraint as possible, and there is, therefore, danger in this movement.

It is due our Board of Missions, however, especially our General Secretary and his assistants, to state that certain rumors have been set afloat that are not in accordance with the facts. Therefore, at the late meeting, in order to allay any anxiety that might possibly exist with regard to the attitude of the administration to this matter, the General Secretary read the following statement signed by himself and the Foreign Secretaries—Dr. Ed F. Cook and Miss Mabel Head:

"Inasmuch as rumors have reached our ears and certain published statements have appeared in the press to the effect that the affairs of the Board in Mexico were being administered in the interest and furtherance of the proposed readjustment of boundary lines, we wish expressly to declare that there is not the shadow of a basis in fact for such statements, and it is our purpose to administer our affairs in Mexico both directly and indirectly in the letter and spirit of the Board's action, without reference to one view or the other concerning this boundary matter, until the General Conference has acted on the same."

It will be a matter for action at our next General Conference as to whether this readjustment shall really take place, and we take it that more will depend upon the attitude of the native church and their leaders on the field than on any theory of the Board or Secretaries. We do not believe in forcing the membership of any body of the church, either small or large, to go here or there in order to meet the plans of idealists who have so far misconceived the spirit of the Kingdom of God as to dream of unity other than a unity of spirit. In the Kingdom of God there are "many members, hut one body." Some of the modern leaders for church unity are perilously near in their ideas to the zealots of the fourth century. If Methodists will go to work at the right end of their job of unification there will be no need of disturbances in our mission fields.—North Carolina Christian Advocate.

Raleigh Advocate Also Speaks.

After printing the statement by our Missionary Secretaries shown above, the Raleigh Christian Advocate says:

This statement seems clear cut and satisfactory so far as the secretaries are concerned; yet the report of the Board carries with it a fact in that connection that does not seem quite in harmony with that statement. Bishop Candler introduced a resolution which provided that "all the other questions of co-operation involved should be deferred and held inoperative pending action by the General Conference." This resolution was defeated by the Board, thirty-one voting against it and twelve for it. In defense of this action the report states that the Board has acted twice before on that question. As to what the previous actions were, we are not informed; but it is not our opinion that Bishop Candler is the man to introduce unnecessary resolutions; and, as the statement of the secretaries only proposes to administer affairs in the letter and the spirit of the Board's action, it may not after all touch the question that is stirring the hearts of those men and women who are laboring on the field and whose work is about to be torn to pieces. We confess we should have felt better about it if the Board had adopted the Bishop's resolution.

BILLY SUNDAY ON A MOTHER'S KISS.

"There is a mighty power in a mother's kiss—inspiration, courage, hope, ambition, in a mother's kiss. One kiss made Benjamin West a painter and the memory of it clung to him through life. One kiss will drive away the fear in the dark and make the little one brave. It will give strength where there is weakness. I was in a town one day and saw a mother out with her boy and he had great steel braces on both legs, to his hips, and when I got near enough to them I learned by their conversation that that wasn't the first time the mother had had him out for a walk. She had him out exercising him so he would get the use of his limbs. He was struggling and she smiled and said: "You are doing fine to-day; better than you did yesterday," and she stooped and kissed him, and the kiss of encouragement made him work all the harder, and he said: "Mamma, I'm going to run; look at me." And he started, and one of his toes caught on the steel brace on the other leg and he stumbled, but she caught him and kissed him, and said: "That was fine, son; how well you did it!" Now, he did it because his mother had encouraged him with a kiss. There is nothing that will help and inspire like a mother's kiss."

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
We plant the houses for you and me,
We plant the rafters, the shingles, the floor,
We plant the studding, the laths, the door,
The beams and sidings, all parts that be,
We plant the house when we plant the tree.

What do we plant when we plant the tree?
A thousand things that we daily see,
We plant the spire that out-towers the crag,
We plant the staff for our country's flag,
We plant the shade from the hot sun free,
We plant all these when we plant the tree.

—Henry Abby.

GOUNOD AND THE ROMAN PRIZE.

Shortly before his death Gounod wrote a brief account of how he became a musician, and this has lately been published for the first time in the British Weekly.

It was before the boy was thirteen years old that the spirit of music stirred in his nature. He was a pupil at the Harcourt school, and had the hard discipline of seeing his mother trudge through winter snow and beneath summer sun to obtain the means to pay for the education of her children. The boy longed for the day when he could help her. But her views of how that day was to dawn differed from his own. She wanted him to go to a university, while he felt only through music could he live his real life.

His mother was determined. She would do anything rather than see her son a "vagabond musician." It seemed inevitable that he must become a soldier. At last he appealed to her again.

"I will stay at school if you wish it," he said, "but one thing I am determined on. I will never become a soldier."

"Do you mean that you will not obey the law which calls for military service?"

"No," he replied, "but I mean that the law shall be a dead letter, so far as I am concerned. I will win the Roman prize, which will free me from the necessity of becoming a soldier."

His mother saw that he was in earnest, and went to the school principal, Father Pierson, to lay the matter before him. This pleasant old gentleman sent for the lad.

"So, my little fellow," he said, "we are going to spend our life among musicians."

"Yes, Mr. Pierson," was the answer.

"But music—is that a profession?" asked the instructor.

"What about Mozart, Meyerbeer and Weber?" replied Gounod.

The good principal was somewhat taken aback.

"Oh, Mozart! That is a different matter altogether," he said. "He gave proof of genius when he was only your age, but you, what can you do? Let us see."

With these words he scribbled on a piece of paper Joseph's ballad beginning, "When my childhood was past." He handed Gounod the sheet.

"Come, let me have some music for these words," he said.

The boy ran off, and two hours later came back with his first musical composition.

"Good gracious!" said the old gentleman. "You are a terrible fellow. Go ahead and sing your little song now."

"Sing without a piano?" remonstrated the boy. "What do you want a piano for?"

"To play an accompaniment. It is impossible in any way to set forth the true harmony of the work without a piano," pleaded the lad.

"Nonsense, I don't care a fig for your harmony," said the old gentleman. "What I want to know is whether you have any musical ideas, any true musical temperament. Go ahead."

The boy began to sing, and when he had finished he glanced timorously at his critic. Tears stood in the old man's eyes, and more rolled down his cheeks. He was so strangely moved that the boy composer was not surprised to find himself the next moment in his arms.

"It is beautiful, beautiful, my boy," he said. "We will make something out of you. You shall become a musician, for the real fire is in you."

And so the first step was taken and the lad had secured a champion. His mother allowed him to study music, and three years later he took the "Prix de 'Rome," and accomplished his heart's desire.—The Presbyterian.

BILL.

Bill is only a dog, a great big, shaggy St. Bernard dog. He's but a dog, but he taught several of us a lesson in friendship on an Avondale (Cincinnati) car the other night. As the car rounded the corner into Reading Road from Mitchell Avenue, the motorman saw something dark lying on the track. Of course he stopped. Then Bill made his first impression on those on the car. He arose with a bound from the car track and rushed to the sidewalk, barking all the time. Every one watched and saw Bill take a man's hand in his mouth and lead him over to the car. When the man and the dog came into the halo of light that surrounded the car, it could be plainly seen that his master was blind. Bill led him carefully to the open car and barked out his happiness when he saw his master comfortably seated. When the car started, Bill never let the seat in which his master was sitting get a foot ahead of his faithful nose. He ran like a deer alongside the car, barking to let his master know that he was still on duty. When they reached Shillito Street, the car stopped and Bill stood on guard while his master climbed out. The last seen of the pair was when they disappeared into the darkness, the man's hand resting gently on Bill's shaggy back and Bill leading him home.—Don Allen, in the Times-Star.

PREPAREDNESS.

Dear Doctor Meek: This is the season for our schools to turn loose upon us a great number of "Graduates." Only last week our city graded school here turned out seven handsome young boys and four beautiful girls, each armed with a diploma. This week our Mississippi Synodical College is likewise sending forth a number of graduates. It is interesting to one who has pulled out as far from the shore in life as you and I have done to watch these young people as they "go forth to war" with the problems of life. Essays and speeches galore have been thundered forth recently from the school rostrum. "We have set sail—where shall we anchor?" "Night brings out the stars," "Give me liberty or give me death," and "Sink or swim, survive or perish," and the like have filled the air with a spirit and aroma of youth, ambition, patriotism, and zeal. But to older ones it presents a more serious side. To see our boys and our girls transformed from a pupil to a real citizen, to see them enter into the larger stream "where the brook and the river meet," brings us face to face with a solemn thought. Yes indeed, they "have set sail," but "where shall they anchor?" What joys, what hopes, what achievements await them just over the hill-top? And what sorrows, what disappointments, what failures lie in lurk for them?

In looking into the faces of the different ones who have graduated it is but an easy task to note that no two of them are alike. No two possess the same mental capacity nor the same individuality. Yet each one has some special gift or some special talent whereby success may be attained. I am always interested in a class to wonder which one or ones will achieve special distinction in life. But I always feel an inclination to say to all of them that "success is success," no matter whether in big things or little things. A cornstalk well developed is as much of a success as the mighty oak. God simply meant for one to be a cornstalk and the other an oak. In my humble opinion, parents make a mistake sometimes in expecting too much of a child. All people have not the same gifts. "Let him who can not make an ear of corn make the best grade of shucks," is still wholesome advice. I believe that many a boy (and girl too, as for that) make failures because they undertake to do the wrong thing in life. That is to say they undertake to "swim up-stream." A successful farmer is a success as much so as a successful lawyer or merchant. Pope has said to us, Know thyself." If a boy could just hang himself, so to speak, on the fence and get off and study himself—study his weak points and his strong ones, his natural bent and his unnatural bent—then it would be easier to succeed. An ambitious parent too often pushes his child out into a field which nature never intended for him, and hence he is either a failure or only a partial success.

David happily knew his own limitations and discarded Saul's armor for his own little sling and pebbles. But his work done to Goliath was a success—he killed him very dead.

Let us then pause, right now, for a moment and help our boys and girls who have thus far "prepared" themselves for life's duties—assisting them in that line of work for which they seem best "prepared" by nature to fill successfully.

Holly Springs, Miss. W. A. BELK.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MRS. CHAS. GALLOWAY.

How fair the moonlight shines above her couch to-night;
How sweet the mocking-bird's night song among the trees;
How sweet her rest, who rested her brave soul in God!
Almost methinks I hear her spirit's sigh of rapture, borne
Earthward on the springtime's perfumed breeze.

How glad the smile within her eyes when she was here among us,
Seeking from some sad soul the load to lift;
How kind her voice and counsel, bravely given.
Seeking to heal within the lute the widening rift!

How sweet the love-light in those eyes that sought to cheer us;
How kind the tender pressure of her hand,
Smoothing the way for halting feet that faltered,
Speaking the gospel of God's love we all could understand!

She walked among us in faith strong and simple,
With step courageous, and with hands outstretched to help the weak,
With heart of love and pity for the erring—
No sad heart missed the word of comfort she could speak.

Hers was the hand to lift to parched lips a cup of water,
Hers the soft touch to cool the feverish brow,
Hers each sweet service her brave soul saw wanting.
Hers the sweet word of sympathy—no regrets disturb her now.

How fair the moonlight gleams—her soul was fairer;
How peaceful—all her soul was rested in God's peace;
How soft the gentle night winds breathe above her pillows;
How sweet her rest is, after all pain's surcease!

After her life's glad service she is resting;
After the gleam of noonday, peals the evening bell;
After she'd lived and loved and suffered
"After life's fitful fever she sleeps well."

A Christian woman writes that on account of the war she has had to sacrifice some things, but does not want the Lord's work to suffer lack of any sacrifice she can make and sends her usual contribution to one of the Church's missionary agencies. This is the true Christian spirit. If all of God's people were imbued with the same spirit there would be no lack of means to do the Lord's work.—Presbyterian of the South.

INCREASE OF DIVORCES.

The number of divorces issued annually in the United States continues to increase at a rapid rate. In 1867 the number of divorces granted was 9937; in 1906 it was 72,062, more than seven times as many. It is stated of late the rate of increase of divorces has been three times as large as that of the population of our country.

This is a tendency of the times that may well excite grave concern. The home (the family) is the foundation of the social order, and in proportion as it is injured or broken up, are a nation and a civilization weakened.

Some reformers write as if all that is necessary to remedy this menace is to enact a Federal divorce law that will apply in all the States; but all such talk evinces quite a superficial view of this great problem. We are disposed to favor a uniform law regulating the granting of divorces for all the States; but, as the New York Independent recently pointed out, the real evil to be combated is not the divorcement of married couples, but is the state of things that lies back of such legal procedures, and of which they are but the outcroppings. So, as is the case with many of the other ills prevalent among our people, the only cure for this widespread and alarming development is more of the religion of Christ in the hearts of those entering into the marriage relation.

When the true, spiritual Christianity wanes in a land, all the virtues decrease with it, and vice in all its myriad forms is strengthened. In consequence of this, the Churches and preachers have the welfare and the conservation of society in their keeping to a far larger extent than have parliaments and legislators.

OUR LIBRARY TABLE.

The Three Religious Leaders of Oxford and Their Movements. By S. Parkes Cadman. The Macmillan Company, New York. Pages 596. Price, $2.50.

This volume is an evolvment of a course of lectures delivered under the auspices of The Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences during the Lenten Season of 1913. The three religious leaders referred to, as characterized by the author, are: "Wyckliffe, the real originator of European Protestantism; Wesley, the Anglican priest who became the founder of Methodism and one of the makers of Modern England and of English-speaking nations; and Newman, the spiritual genius of his century, who re-interpreted Catholicism, both Anglican and Roman." These are affirmed to be the most masterful and influential religious leaders that Oxford University has produced in the course of its long and remarkable history. Dr. Cadman is one of the most outstanding figures in the American pulpit, and whatever comes from his pen at once commands large attention. In the present instance he had a theme worthy of his unusual powers, and in consequence he has given the public a book of surpassing merit, which, we think, is destined to live beyond the years of the present generation. Being himself an Englishman, he was peculiarly fitted to give such a series of biographical and historical studies. The work is quite instructive, contains many striking passages, and is calculated to profit greatly the careful and intelligent reader.

The Traitor's Son. By Ruth Shartel McVoy. The Neale Publishing Company, New York. Price, $1.30, net; by mail, $1.40.

A fascinating love story, in which historical characters are to be made to figure in a way that almost causes one to forget that one is reading fiction. The traitor's son is Philip Arnold, an imaginary son of Benedict Arnold, who is represented as having been American bred, as being ardently in sympathy with the United States, and a captain in its army, and as having been charged by his disbonored father with the task of redeeming the name which he had so deeply disgraced. This hero of the book is an attractive and chivalric young man, who is the very soul of honor and who in the midst of the most enticing temptations remains faithful and true. The scene of the story is principally in Alabama and Washington City, and its setting is at the time that James Madison was President and the famous Dolly Madison was mistress of the White House—both of these distinguished personages participating in the thrilling events related, as also did General Andrew Jackson. The narrative is connected with Indian outbreaks and the War of 1812, embracing in its scope the attack of the British upon Washington and the bloody battle of New Orleans. The heroine of the book, a gifted, beautiful, and high-minded young woman, fits admirably into the general plot of the novel, never ceasing to interest and charm the reader. All in all, it may be said that the work is an unusually brilliant and entertaining piece of fiction, which exalts sound ideals, and which in every respect reflects much credit upon the talented Southern author, who is the wife of Rev. J. T. McVoy, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, South, of Huntsville, Ala. Those who purchase and read the volume will feel amply repaid for having done so. We heartily commend it, and wish for it a wide circulation. It may be had of the author, or of Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., or Dallas, Texas.

DEATH OF REV. G. H. GALLOWAY.

On Wednesday, May 31, after last week's issue of the Advocate was practically off the press, we received from McComb City, Miss., the following telegram from Dr. I. W. Cooper, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District:

"Rev. George H. Galloway died here this morning at 3 o'clock a.m. His death was sudden, being due to heart failure. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Great sorrow in McComb City."

The press dispatches state that Brother Galloway's death was quite unexpected, though his health had not been good for some time. He is reported to have been up on the preceding day and to have attended a missionary service at his church the night before he passed away.

The deceased was one of the best known members of the Mississippi Conference. He was born and reared in Madison County, Mississippi, being a cousin of the lamented Bishop Charles B. Galloway. He was educated in the public schools and at Centenary College (Louisiana), and entered the Methodist itinerancy in his early young manhood. He was attractive in physical appearance and was fluent and popular as a preacher. Among the later charges that he served were Court Street, Hattiesburg, the Port Gibson District, and Centenary Church, McComb City. He was serving his second year as pastor of the last named church and was universally esteemed and loved not only by the members of his own congregation, but by the entire citizenship of the community. He had recently held a great revival meeting in his church, and his work at McComb had in every respect been of a character to strengthen Methodism and build up the kingdom of Christ. This efficient worker will be greatly missed from the itinerant ranks of the Mississippi Conference, and his memory will be cherished and revered by a large circle of friends, both among the ministry and the laity.

Brother Galloway is survived by a widow and several children. To them and all others whose hearts have been touched by this sad bereavement, we extend profound sympathy, and pray that the Heavenly Father may graciously comfort and sustain them.

We trust that some one in a position to do so will furnish the Advocate with a fitting memoir of the deceased at an early date.

MANSFIELD FEMALE COLLEGE.

Under the presidency of Mr. R. E. Bobbitt, Mansfield College is making a record that may well be envied. The year just completed was most satisfactory to the Board of Trustees and Faculty. Twenty-seven young ladies were graduated from the institution on Tuesday evening, May 30. On Sunday, May 28, the writer was the guest of the College. One cannot realize the beauty and glory of the great college building, which presents an atmosphere of homelikeness and purity that is not attained in many homes themselves, until he has inspected it for himself. The girls seem to feel like children of the school, they are parts of it, and they manifest a spirit of graceful loyalty and devotion that makes the heart of the visitor swell with that emotion which we all experience in the presence of unusual scenes of beauty and charm. It all reminds us of what we hear about from the times of old: how the young people were reared in homes offering protection from temptations and the gross ugliness of life. If parents are looking for a real home for their girls they could find no better place than Mansfield College.

It is most evident to the observer that the young ladies who attend Mansfield have the privilege of being finished in an atmosphere of high ideals and culture. The religious life of the students receives the special attention of the faculty. The Methodist Church is only a block from the campus, where all attend regularly; the prayer hour is strictly observed daily. The displays during commencement days evidenced the nature of the work being done by the young ladies. The great reception hall in the main building was decorated with works by the students in Keramic art both in pottery and chinaware, which showed class and distinction, also mural decorations of studies in water color, in oil, in charcoal, and tapestry. The girls have a full course in Domestic Science with a view to the practical home life which naturally follows the years spent in school. Music is a special feature of Mansfield's training of its young ladies. And no art or science tends more toward culture than a superior musical education. The exercises at Commencement were brightened by the display of wonderful talent in this direction, both vocal and instrumental. Further, a Normal course is given at Mansfield which equips a girl for teaching in the State of Louisiana without having to stand the State examinations for that privilege, save in the book, "The Theory and Art of Teaching." An effort, which gives hope of being successful, is being made to relieve the graduates of Mansfield of this duty.

The conclusion is easily reached that Mansfield is a fit place to send a girl whose parents desire her modesty to be preserved, her talents fully developed, and her religious life conserved. This is a school that will fit a young lady for the home life first of all, for teaching school in an efficient manner, and even to enter into the business world to earn her own living.

During the presidency of Mr. Bobbitt, whose success he shares with his devoted and consecrated wife, the institution has grown in popularity with the citizens of Mansfield and with the Methodists of the State at large. The boarding attendance has increased from 21 to 65, the income from $8000 to $16,000, the faculty from 7 to 12, the departments from 3 to 5, the normal students of the Senior class from 9 to 18, and the salary bill from $5000 to $8000.

We solicit the patronage for this worthy institution of every Methodist home in Louisiana where there is a girl old enough to be sent away to school; we recommend the institution to the Methodists of every State in which our Church operates if proper facilities along school lines are not had locally for the development of their girls.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. Briscoe Carter, the efficient presiding elder of the Ruston District, Louisiana Conference, attended the Commencement exercises of Millsaps College at Jackson, Miss.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, the wide-awaks presiding elder of the New Orleans District, Louisiana Conference, went to Shreveport last week to attend a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College.

Mr. J. A. Clardy, a merchant of Maben, Miss., sends the Advocate ten renewals and one new subscription. From such good work for our publication we cannot but judge that Brother Clardy is a successful business man. We appreciate his efforts in behalf of the Advocate.

Prof. R. S. Peets, a graduate of Millsaps College, and Superintendent of the Moss Point schools, will have charge of the President's office of Whitworth College during the next three months. He requests that all communications be addressed to Whitworth College, Brookhaven, Miss.

"Rev. J. R. Robertson, a superannuate member of the North Mississippi Conference, died at Pontotoc, Miss., at 1 p.m., June 5; obsequies there tomorrow," says a telegram from the Editor, who is at Jackson, Miss. The Advocate extends sympathy to the bereaved ones in their great loss.

We acknowledge with thanks new and renewal subscriptions from the following friends: Rev. H. T. Young, Amite City, La., 2; Rev. J. G. Johnson, Black Hawk, Miss., 8; Rev. W. C. Beasley, Hickory Flat, Miss., 3; Rev. T. J. Hopper, Toccopola, Miss., 2; Rev. E. H. Cooley, Walnut Grove, Miss., 5.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, the gifter pastor of our Carrollton Avenue Church, New Orleans, last week attended the meeting of the Board of Trustees of Mansfield Female College, at Mansfield, La., and, on his way home, made a visit to the Lafayette District Conference, then in session at Lake Charles.

"Just a few words," says Brother E. H. Cooley, Walnut Grove, Miss., "to let you know that we prosper and that the Lord is blessing us with good health, abundant provision for our material needs, and, best of all, with the presence of his Holy Spirit. Is it not grand to be under the immediate care and guidance of a gracious Lord?"

Dr. J. W. Beeson, the President of Meridian College, Meridian, Miss., is very gracious in his praise of the sermon delivered by Bishop McCoy at the Commencement exercises of Meridian College. The whole program of the Commencement occasion was quite a success, judging from the tone of the President's communication.

A note from the Editor of the Advocate, who attended the Millsaps Commencement at Jackson, Miss., states that Bishop Hoss preached a great sermon Sunday morning, June 4; and that Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the First Methodist Church of New Orleans, La., delivered an interesting discourse to the Y. M. C. A. at the evening hour.

Rev. A. G. Shankle, the popular pastor of our Church at Mansfield, La., is now in New Orleans to attend the Commencement exercises of Tulane University, from which institution his son, Warren, a brilliant young man, is about to be graduated. Brother Shankle, in company with Rev. W. W. Holmes, paid the Advocate an appreciated call last Tuesday.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Strongs, Miss., informs us that the Efficiency Conference of the North Mississippi Conference was in session last week at Grenada. Some of the speakers were Dr. E. B. Chappell, Bishop James Atkins, Dr. W. W. Pinson, Dr. J. R. Stewart, and Dr. Young of Emory University. Brother Williams reports that great good has been done in this move.

Dr. Bulla, the Corresponding Secretary of the General Sunday School Board, has sent us a program of the Institute to be held at Lake Junaluska, N. C., July 11-22. Such names as J. W. Shackford, Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, J. R. Pepper, E. B. Chappell, and many others of note, appear on the folder as speakers for the institute. We are sorry not to be able to give the whole program.

Rev. W. L. Graves, our pastor at Montpelier, Miss., in a note to the Advocate with a remittance for subscriptions, includes the following cheering message: "I have just spent nearly two weeks at Webb, Miss., assisting Rev. O. L. Savage in a revival meetnig. Thirty members were added to our Church and several pledged for membership in other churches. Brother Savage is having splendid success in his new field."

The Advocate acknowledges with thanks the invitation of the Faculty and Students of Blackstone Female Institute, Blackstone, Va., to attend the twenty-second annual Commencement of the institution given June 2-4, 1916. The annual address was made by W. T. Ellis, LL.D., Swarthmore, Pa., and the sermon was preached by Dr. Homer S. Sherman, Staunton, Va. Fifty-four young ladies were graduated at this Commencement.

Deserving approbation is in order for Rev. Hugh K. McKee, of Wesson, Miss., in having sent us a total of thirteen subscriptions for the Advocate. This puts his charge upon the honor roll. He further says: "I have one Sunday school where all the officers and teachers take the Advocate." We believe this charge will prosper under the leadership of this brother, who is thus diligent in placing his church paper in the homes of his officials.

Rev. F. B. Ormond, of McComb City, Miss., informs us of the sudden death on May 31, at 3 o'clock in the morning, of Rev. G. H. Galloway, pastor of Centenary Methodist Church, of that city, after an illness of only an hour and a half. His death has brought gloom over the whole city. The funeral services were held in Centenary Church Thursday afternoon. To the bereaved loved ones the Advocate extends its heart-felt sympathy.

Rev. C. A. Northington, pastor of the New Albany Circuit, North Mississippi Conference, writes: "We have just had our second quarterly conference. Our presiding elder was at his best. The conference convened at Mt. Olivet Church, where Brother Dorsey was licensed to preach at a quarterly conference twenty-two years ago. I have observed Children's Day at each of my churches, with a collection amounting to $27.20. The finances of the charge are well in hand."

Rev. W. N. Dodds, of Verona, Miss., has sent us a list of eight renewals to the Advocate, together with a remittance of $5 on the Helping Fund. The Helping Fund is for the purpose of sending the Advocate to worthy people who are unable to pay for it. Brother Dodds states that Mr. J. N. McCord, an elderly member of one of his churches, is responsible for this remittance, since he had read the statement of an old gentleman of eighty-three who had taken the paper for a number of years but was not able to subscribe longer. Such charity is highly commendable.

Rev. B. F. Jones, of Moss Point, Miss., speaks quite enthusiastically about the work of Rev. Rob't Selby in regard to his campaign for the endowment of the Lamar School of Law, as follows: "Our mutual friend, 'Bob' Selby, was with us on the third Sabbath in May in the interest of Emory University. He made a fine address, and our people responded with a liberal contribution. 'Bob' is the right man in the right place. As Dr. Ward, of North Mississippi, would say, 'The man and the hour have met.' He will have the $5,000 long before the two years have passed." Everybody knows that such news is highly receptive to the Advocate.

TRULY GREAT PREACHING.

One of the finest encomiums ever passed upon a sermon was the tribute which Louis XIV one day paid to Massillon, after hearing him preach at Versailles: "Father, I have heard many great orators in this chapel, I have been highly pleased with them, but whenever I hear you I go away displeased with myself, for I see more of my own character!" It is the business of a preacher not to seek for gilded compliments or high salary, but to reveal God to man, and so man to himself. A mighty and gracious doctrine of God will tend to shame men out of their moral littleness and meanness. It will render the most proud displeased with themselves, and so will prepare the way for a truly redemptive work of grace in the heart. The greatest pulpit orator is the man who gains converts to the Christ, and so helps to people heaven with sanctified spirits.—Unidentified.

OAK GROVE CHURCH DESTROYED.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our church was blown down here last night at 12 o'clock. There came an awful cloud directly out of the northwest and coursed to the southeast. Not one dollar of insurance did we have, as usual. The Masonic Hall was also blown down. Every store and dwelling was damaged, more or less. The courthouse, in process of construction, was damaged to the extent of about $2500. Several persons were hurt, but no one was seriously injured. Many animals were killed.

The pastor of the Baptist Church came to me this morning and said: "Brother Woodward, you and your people are perfectly welcome to our church until you rebuild." For this we are very grateful. Our good people are talking of building at once. We ask your prayers. Any donation that can be made to us will certainly be appreciated. Our parsonage was damaged to the extent of about $100. Yours in Christ,

W. T. WOODWARD, Pastor.

Oak Grove, La., June 4, 1916.

TO OUR SUBSCRIBERS.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if the date is not moved forward after three or four weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. We revise the dates once a month.

Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise. If you desire that your subscription be canceled when it expires, it is necessary that you notify us to stop the subscription.

When ordering the address of a subscriber changed, please give the old address as well as the new.

The subscription price of the New Orleans Christian Advocate is $1.50. We allow 8 months for $1, provided remittance is made by money order or cash. In making remittances by check add 10 cents for exchange. Banks charge 10 cents for collecting checks out of town.

OUR SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

The following are the rates of subscription to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for the year 1916:

To preachers	$1.00
Widows of preachers	1.00
Single subscriptions	1.50
Eight months	1.00
In clubs of five or more	1.25

It costs us 10 cents to cash each out-of-town check that we receive. Please avoid sending us checks when possible. Mrs. MARY JANE TERRELL (nee Jones) was born on Feb. 2, 1842, and died on May 7, 1916. She was married to G. F. Terrell on June 5, 1860. She joined the Methodist Church in July, previous to the camp meeting held at Adams Campground. Of this union were born ten children—two died in infancy. All the others survive her, except Mrs. Ella Nunary. She was a true wife, a patient, devoted motber, a true friend to everybody. She was a devoted Christian. She doubtless heard the words "well done, thou good and faithful servant," and has entered into "that rest which remains for the people of God." To her grief-stricken family I would offer the comfort of these lines:

Farewell mother, precious darling.
Now thy form lies 'neath the sod,
Tho' thy spirit went at parting,
Back again to be with God.

O, 'twas hard to see thee leaving.
O, so hard to say good-bye
With our hearts all torn and bleeding,
Shedding tears we could not dry.

And when at last our life is ended
We'll greet thee in that realm on high,
When broken hearts are wounded,
And none ever say good-bye.

Every Cold Should Be Considered Serious

So say the best medical authorities. Unless promptly checked, often they lead to chronic bronchial and pulmonary troubles which may prove fatal.

If your cough or cold has not responded to treatment—and remember, medicine should not be solely relied on—timely use of Eckman's Alterative may give you relief.

For more than twenty years it has been benefiting sufferers from these disorders. It is especially indicated where the system demands lime, for it contains calcium chlorid so combined as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Safe to try—because it contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs of any sort whatsoever. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

LET US REJOICE EVERMORE.

There is no real joy outside of a real experience. In order to rejoice evermore, the soul must be filled with the Spirit. Jesus said, My Father and I will come and make our abode with you." How? In the person of the Holy Ghost.

With this fountain-head of joy within one, there is no obstruction that can stop its flow. In the midst of trials and tribulations there is joy evermore; even in the dark valley and the shadow of death, there may be peace and joy.

The joy of the world is too often turned into sadness, and heartache. In the midst of such joy we find ourselves in sorrow, cast down and discouraged; but, with the Spirit-filled saint of God, it is altogether different. God speaks, saying: "All things work together for good to them that love the Lord." Not some things; but all things. This is a sweet message on which the soul that is filled with love divine can ever rest secure. It enables us to see in all our disappointments only God's opportunities. God is ruling in the universe of his saints and says, "I will never leave thee nor forsake thee." Again, He says: "Be careful for nothing, but in everything by prayer and supplication make your request known to God." The great Apostle Paul, after years of the most heartless persecution against him, said: "I count it all joy." It is a true saying, if we obtain a great experience, we will have great joy that nothing can destroy.

"That comfort was mine,
When the favor divine
I first found in the blood of the Lamb;
When my heart it believed,
What a joy I received,
What a heaven in Jesus' name!"

COMMENCEMENT AT BOONEVILLE, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Since the Advocate is a household treasure in many Methodist homes, all the readers will be interested to know how we "Booneevillians" enjoyed a recent visit from Rev. L. M. Lipscomb and wife. We had had them with us last year as a pastor and helper, and not a member was ready to "ship" them, but when a Bishop is seeking eldership timber he doesn't consider the clinging vines and tendrils, but the timber itself. Thus the Winona District is happily blessed and Booneville feels proud in yielding presiding elder timber.

Our high school recently closed, and as this was Methodist year the "powers that be" unanimously chose Brother Lipscomb to preach the Commencement sermon and deliver the annual address. Now all who are acquainted with him know that he doesn't believe in a half-way doing of anything; so he brought along his "better half" on this occasion, to the delight of her many friends who had invited her to come and share the pleasures of the exercises.

On Sunday morning the church was crowded, despite the copious showers. The choir, directed by Mr. Dunmore, assisted by Mrs. J. J. Taylor, and led by Miss Nona Wayne Patrick at the piano, produced some of the "never-to-be-excelled music. One anthem was so thrilling, so soul-stirring that the congregation sat spell-bound. The preacher remarked: "Some things are sublime beyond description. They can only be felt. That is my attitude toward such soul-stirring music." In the sermon Brother Lipscomb was at his very best. His text was taken from John 10:10, the memorable words of Christ, "I came that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." In his plain, clear-cut expressions he strongly emphasized the point that a life without Christ is no life at all; that education without educating the heart, mind, and soul is worse than no education at all. He said the Christian life is the rational life, the normal life, the attractive life, the abundant life. But I will desist. No words of mine can describe that great sermon.

"'Twas something so divine,
Description would but make it less;
'Twas what I heard, but can't define,
'Tis what I felt, but can't express."

On Monday morning the graduating exercises were held at the school building. On the platform, which was beautifully decorated with ferns and pot plants, were seated the graduates, the school faculty, the pastors, and the speaker of the day. Eleven graduates read essays and received loads of flowers and other gifts. After this, Brother Lipscomb rose in all the grandeur of his magnificent stature, and after a few preliminary remarks announced as his subject, "Life, Liberty, and Happiness," and in his own inimitable way he gave a grand discourse to the young people just emerging into life on their own responsibilities. He said: "Be firm, be true, be joyous, and make your life something worth while. Life is just what you make it. Some old fossils crawl away into secluded corners and draw the curtain of self about them and become soured on the whole world." He said: "The Christian life is not a life of asceticism, proscription, and oppressions, and direful forebodings; but it is the fulness and harmony of all light and virtue, truth, music, laughter, and song." He turned to the young lady graduates and said, "Some of you may become washerwomen, and in so doing you may be a joy to your husbands and a blessing to humanity." He then related from real life a narrative of a washerwoman getting married to a poor but honest man, and now they are immensely rich, living in high life and are loved and respected by all who know them. He said: "You had better become washerwomen than to become society ladies and be a curse to your husbands and a degradation to the world. Whatever you do, be true: live this ideal Christ life, and you may become whatever you will."

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

MISS KENNEDY SUCCEEDS MRS. HAMILL.

The new Director of Elementary Work of our Sunday School Board is Miss Minnie E. Kennedy. The Christian Advocate says of her: "When, several months ago, Mrs. H. M. Hamill (now Mrs. Arthur W. Rider) resigned the position of Director of Elementary Work with our Sunday School Board, this place was offered to Miss Minnie E. Kennedy, of Birmingham, Ala. Miss Kennedy has accepted the position and last week came to Nashville to enter actively upon her work with the Sunday School Board. Miss Kennedy is a native of Opelika, Ala., where our Church has had for many years one of its great Sunday schools. She was for some time superintendent of the Elementary Division of the Alabama Sunday School Association. For the last few years she has been the General Secretary of the Birmingham Sunday School Association and has done splendid work there, as in other fields of service. Birmingham is admitted to be one of the foremost cities of the country in Sunday school organization. Miss Kennedy has taken a prominent part in the International Sunday School Association work and on a number of occasions has been on the program of its conventions. Well equipped for the important position to which she has been called, she will give to the Church efficient service. We congratulate the members of our Sunday School Board that for this work they have been able to secure one whose recognized ability and successful experience will commend her to the entire Church."

"HOW TO RUN A LITTLE SUNDAY SCHOOL."

One of the problems of the Sunday School Field Secretary or other workers in Sunday school institutes and conventions is how to answer questions that involve the title of this paragraph. We so often hear folks say, "Well, what you have told us is all right for the larger city or village school; but what about the little country school?" And, notwithstanding the successful management of the small school consists largely in the adaptation of principles and plans that work in the larger school, it has been difficult to so present the subject as to make it really "take hold."

It is true there has been a lack of literature dealing sympathetically and constructively with the problems of the little school; but there has just come from the Revell press a small volume by Rev. E. Morris Ferguson, of New Jersey, Educational Superintendent of Sabbath School Missions for the Presbyterian Church, bearing the title I have used for this article. It is an exceedingly readable little book, and is as full of good things as the New Orleans Christian Advocate is (and that's saying considerable, as you well know), and I would like to see a copy of it in the hands of every country superintendent. There are seven chapters in the book, the table of contents being as follows:

I. What It Needs: General Needs, Members, Organization, Teachers, Housing, Equipment, Relations, Support.

II. Making a Start: The Simple Start, The Educational Start, Remaking an Old School, Insuring Permanence, What to Teach, Educational Lessons, The New Plan at Work.

III. Increased Attendance: A Laudable Ambition, Retention and Graduation, Dangers in Numbers, Rewards—Wise and Otherwise, New Classes, A Table of Growth, Winning New Pupils, Gospel Salesmanship, The Extension Departments.

IV. Running by the Week: The Superintendent a Teacher, The Weekly Routine, Notes on a Rural Program, Class Instruction, Desk Instruction, Official Routine, The Worshiping Sunday School.

V. Running by the Quarter: The Sunday School Calendar, Planning the Desk Work, Replanning the Class Work, Appraising the Term's Work, Records and Recognitions, An Educational Festival.

VI. Running by the Year: An Educational Prospective, Reorganizing for the New Year, Two Plans of Class Formation, The Course of Study, Observing Promotion Day, Present and Future Teachers, The Official Staff, The School's Finances, The Workers' Conference.

VII. Getting Results: Reasonable Expectations, A Table of Results, Overcoming Difficulties, The Securing of Life-Decisions.

This little book can be secured from our own Publishing House (Smith & Lamar, Nashville, Tenn., Dallas, Tex., or Richmond, Va.), and as the price is but sixty cents any superintendent can have a copy. I hope there will be a large sale of this book among our Southern Methodist Sunday school superintendents—they need not be afraid of the book because it is not written by a Methodist; there's nothing in it that will disturb their Methodist principles. Write for "How to Run a Little Sunday School," by Ferguson.

Neglected Wounds Troublesome.

Did you ever notice how a small wound often festers and produces pus? That is a sign that the wound is becoming infected—it is the danger signal of blood poison. Don't neglect small wounds. Slight bruises, skin abrasions, sores, cuts, burns, pin pricks, etc., often cause blood poison which may prove fatal. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately to the affected part. It allays pain, heals the wound and prevents the serious and common after-effects. It has been used almost daily for ninety-six years by a multitude of families. Isn't that enough proof of its merit? KLEIN CAMPAIGN AT EL RENO, OKLAHOMA.

On April 16, the work began after two months of planning and organization and ran six weeks; so that really fourteen weeks of work has been largely given to the revival effort, with all the Protestant Churches heartily united. The movement was and is of the Lord. There have been upward of 500 professions of conversion and reclamation. The churches are in better condition spiritually than ever, probably, and all really sincere Christians seem more determined to magnify the work of His Kingdom. Follow up meetings are being held in several churches this week and the good work is expected to go on and on.

The team was composed of Rev. G. A. Klein, evangelist, of Nashville, Tenn., and his superb supporters, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd of Atlanta, Ga., who direct the vocal and instrumental music—both are experts in this field—together with the famous Wisdom sisters of Macon, Mo., and Rev. Mr. Blew of Chicago. All these added greatly by their efficiency to the success of the meeting. A stronger evangelistic team could scarcely be gotten together. Only the Boyds will remain with Brother Klein. That's a great team, however.

The meeting was a rising tide and closed on a climax. On the last day, at the men's afternoon service, after a spirited presentation of the needs of El Reno, the men were given an opportunity to express themselves on this subject. Many spoke with enthusiasm, denouncing the Sunday movies, poolrooms, gambling dens, and "bootlegging." Judge Phelps observed that if any ten men would back up their convictions they could close the joints and run the "bootleggers" out of town. When he was judge some one tried to run a Sunday theater and an injunction was served and it was closed, but that people had allowed this condition to creep in upon them until now the custom has fastened itself upon the town. Then an opportunity was extended the men to sign a petition in the form of the following resolution:

"We, the undersigned citizens, believing that Sunday afternoon and evening picture shows are detrimental to the spiritual and moral well-being of our citizenship, respectfully petition the City Council of El Reno to pass an ordinance forbidding theaters and picture shows on the Sabbath day.

This was signed by about 400 men and a committee was selected by a unanimous vote to carry it to the Council.

The evening service was sad and heart-searching. Many embraced the last opportunity to decide for Christ and a life of divine service.

The subjoined statement was adopted by the Ministerial Alliance on Saturday evening and was unanimously endorsed by the whole congregation:

"Rev. G. A. Klein has just finished a six weeks' campaign with the Protestant Churches of El Reno, Oklahoma, and we take this method of expressing our appreciation of Brother Klein and his excellent co-workers. As a ministerial alliance with our congregations, we esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. We have found them tireless, true to the Bible and uncompromising with every form of vice and sin. Brother Klein is a sweet-spirited and congenial brother, with a faith in God and man that caused the most consecrated among us to attend in awe. His work is of a very high and constructive order in that he succeeds admirably in strengthening the bonds of love and co-operation between pastors and their churches—exalting the Kingdom of God above every other consideration. We heartily commend Brother Klein and his associates to any community or people who want a revival conducted on this high plane."

It is stating the fact mildly to say we are all sad that the end has come. Godspeed the noble people who have been among us preaching, singing and praying for our uplift!

REVIVAL AT RIPLEY, MISS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Our people and church have been greatly helped by a spiritual feast. Plans had been well arranged for our revival campaign, and the services of Rev. J. H. Bell, of Columbus, Conference evangelist, were secured. He came to us on the second Sunday in May and remained with us twelve days, which to all who attended the services were "mountain top experiences."

Brother Bell preaches the plain gospel, which goes direct to the hearts of his hearers. His fervor and strong personality give force to his messages. His ability to incite men, women and children to personal work, prayer, and testimony is remarkable.

In addition to the two preaching services daily, there were two prayer meetings each afternoon; one for women at the church, at 4 o'clock; the other for men, at the court-house at 5 o'clock. These were seasons of deep heart-searching. Strong men shook with emotion under the powerful presence of the Spirit.

The body of the membership was truly revived. Scores of people pledged themselves to higher living. Sixteen have been added to the Church on profession of faith. While this is glorious, there is no means of measuring the great and lasting good accomplished.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. D. J. Weems.

Rev. T. J. Holiaday is pastor at Cotton Valley, an old, substantial town; at Spring Hill, a live mill town; at Couchwood, a new mill town, and at Hartman, a farming community. We had a good service with each of these churches. Every one spoke in highest terms of the pastor. He has an excellent people to serve with work enough for two men. They have had good schools at each place. Professor W. B. Smith, at Spring Hill, Professor J. R. Humphries, at Cotton Valley, Miss Scaife at Couchwood and Miss Vashti Kearin at Hartman.

Minden is one of the best towns in North Louisiana with a population of about 4000, and has five churches and one of the best public school buildings in the State. The teaching force consists of Prof. J. B. Snell, principal, and ten excellent assistants. Rev. W. W. Drake is the popular pastor of the Methodist Church. He preached the commencement sermon for the public school. His theme was putting spiritual and religious matters first, temporal and worldly matters second. The sermon was helpful and well received. He is a four-year preacher until the time limit is removed. Brother J. M. Miller is chairman of the Board of Stewards. Hon. C. M. Roberts is the Sunday school Superintendent. Brother Drake has his church well organized, and he has an elegant modern brick building.

Rev. J. M. Brown is the senior preacher of the Conference, and has charge of Haughton and Doyline, two nice railroad stations in an excellent farming country. He is accepted as an excellent, up-to-date preacher, though he has passed three score years and ten. He is sweet-spirited and lovable. His home is cheered by two intelligent daughters. Rev. W. W. Nicholson, a worthy local preacher, has charge of the Sunday school at Doyline. He is a fine man and he has a nice family. Prof. L. M. Phillips and four nice young ladies have had charge of the public school there.

Rev. A. L. Harper, preacher in charge of the Sibley work, is a stirring, wide-awake man. He began his revival campaign at Sibley, May 26, with Rev. J. F. Dring, of Ringgold, assisting. They will, no doubt, succeed as they are capable of fine service, and Sibley is a nice railroad town. Brother Harper has a smart wife and three lovely girls in his home.

ABERDEEN DISTRICT MEETING.

The Aberdeen District Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society was held in the Methodist Church in Nettleton, May 12. All were exceedingly sorry that our capable and much loved district secretary, Mrs. J. H. Haughton, could not attend the meeting on account of the death of her father. Mrs. Haughton had worked faithfully and untiringly to make the meeting a success in every way.

Mrs. Vic Thompson Hoyle, who for three years was Conference president, presided over the meeting in the absence of Mrs. Haughton. It is needless to say she conducted the sessions with much ability, and that her beautiful, inspiring talks will long be remembered by all who had the privilege of attending this district conference.

For this occasion the church was most beautifully decorated with pot plants and cut flowers. A lovely program of music and addresses had been arranged by the ladies of the Nettleton auxiliary for Thursday evening, the opening session. Mrs. Francis, president of the local society, conducted this meeting in a most pleasing manner. Mr. J. A. Lowe delivered a most eloquent address of welcome in behalf of the town. Many sweet words of welcome were extended the visitors and delegates from the various churches and societies of Nettleton. Mrs. C. B. Baker responded to these addresses on behalf of the missionary societies of the district.

Friday morning was devoted to different departments of the work. One of the most interesting features of the morning was the reading of Mrs. Haughton's report by Mrs. Hoyle. The report was very gratifying to all in the Aberdeen District, more auxiliaries having been organized in the Aberdeen District the past year than in any other. The reports of delegates were read and listened to with much interest. Some auxiliaries were not represented and failed to send in their reports.

Mrs. T. W. Woodward of Starkville, Conference second vice president, conducted the Institute on Children's Department in a most interesting and instructive way. Good reports from some of the Junior societies were given, showing that children are becoming more and more interested in missions.

Mrs. Hoyle thrilled the hearts of all present with a most eloquent address on the subject, "Why We Are Here." She told of the beautiful work done in the North Mississippi Conference, and pleaded with the young people and children to assist in this great work. After announcements were made, the morning session closed with the benediction by Rev. J. E. Thomas, of Amory.

The afternoon session was devoted to many interesting reports and talks on various subjects. The Young People's Department was ably handled by Mrs. T. W. Baker of Aberdeen, Conference first vice president. She made the different phases of the work plain to all, emphasizing the importance of the co-operation of the adults in this great work. Mrs. T. M. Clark, of Tupelo, conducted the Institute on Mission Study and Publicity in a way that was beneficial to all, proving that the inspiration for missions comes from a knowledge of conditions gained in mission study. An interesting paper on this subject was read by Mrs. Shearer of Shannon.

The department of supplies was ably handled by Mrs. Lee Wilson of Pontotoc. She gave a most touching and instructive talk on the subject.

Amory was chosen as the place to hold the next district meeting. The time and place for the next all-day rally was left to the decision of Mrs. Haughton.

There were many other interesting features of the day, but we cannot mention them all. However, we must not fail to mention the beautiful hospitality of the people of Nettleton. Surely a district conference was never more royally entertained. In fact, nothing seemed to be left undone in the way of making the occasion pleasant for all. Their doors were thrown wide open, and the most beautiful, generous plans had been made. At noon a beautiful dinner was spread in "picnic style" on the church lawn, where every one was well served. The memory of this occasion and of the good people of Nettleton will linger long in the hearts of all who had the great pleasure of attending this meeting.

Mrs. C. B. BAKER,
Secretary.

NEGRO WORK.

The report of Paine College shows that 136 girls have come under instruction in domestic arts and sciences. The older students have had some part in the social service of the Bethlehem House as a part of their training for future service.

The Bethlehem House at Augusta, Ga., has reached hundreds through the cooking and sewing schools, the kindergarten, Camp Fire Girls, and Boy Scouts. In addition to this, students from Paine College, Walker Baptist, and Haynes College have been given some training for social service under the direction of the supervisor of the Bethlehem House Work. The greatest work done through the Augusta Bethlehem House has been the quickening of the educated negroes to a sense of responsibility of service for the poorer, more helpless class.

The Bethlehem House at Nashville, Tenn., has been fortunate in securing a good house adapted to its work. Two missionary volunteer students from Peabody College have helped in the conduct of this work. The kindergarten, mothers' club, and other lines of work have been emphasized. Much good has resulted.

The cost of the maintenance of all this negro work was $8000.23.

COMMUNITY CLUB AT IUKA.

Our Community Club, which was organized in January with twenty members and which has since doubled its membership, is progressing nicely and bids fair to be a benefit and uplift among the negroes. We have one meeting a month, held either in one of their churches or the schoolhouse. A regular program is arranged and carried out. Such subjects as "The Child in the Home," "The Child in the School," are being studied and discussed. The director, who is Mrs. C. W. McKnight, presents the Bible lesson each time.

We have a membership committee, a sick committee, and a schoolhouse committee, all of which are interested and have made a good start. The White Civic League has offered a prize for the cleanest and most sanitary home among the negroes, and quite a number have entered the contest.

We also co-operate with the W. C. T. U. Sisters. When you once take up this work you will experience more fully the real missionary spirit and feel that you are truly ministering to God's little ones.

Mrs. W. T. ROSS,
Supt. Social Service.

OUR NEW VOLUNTEER.

The Conference Society received an invitation to the Commencement exercises of Scarritt. The enclosed card bore the name of Miss Myrtle James of Calhoun City, Miss., who is one of the graduates. A short time ago a letter was received from Miss James, telling of her decision to go to the foreign field. Next year she will spend in the homeland to gain further preparation. During that time she expects to keep in touch with the Conference Society. It gives us much pleasure to announce the name of this volunteer for service, and we pray that God's blessings may rest on her plans.—N. Mississippi Conference Bulletin.

HONOR DUE.

When I asked the brethren and sisters if they could sing Thomas Oliver's great hymn, "The God of Abraham Praise," they replied promptly: "O yes. We have been singing that regularly ever since Bishop Wilson came out here." And this leads me to say that wherever I have gone throughout the East—in Japan, Korea, and China—I have found the name of our venerable Bishop to be like ointment poured forth. Other Bishops may come and go, but no one will ever be able to give a service so distinguished as to dim the memory of that which Bishop Wilson has rendered in the Orient. Shall we ever have another such preacher?—Bishop Hoss, in Nashville Advocate.

From the Field

Sturgis, Miss.

Dear Brother Meek: On the 19th of May the stork visited the parsonage here and left us a little bright-eyed baby girl, Ida Etheline. We are very proud of her. Both the mother and child are doing well. On Saturday and Sunday, May 20 and 21, Brother Woollard, our presiding elder, held our second quarterly conference, which was a great occasion. Brother Woollard was at his best and gave us some very strong and effective sermons. We are planning, working, and praying for a great year.—J. C. McElroy.

Scooba, Miss.

Rev. Dan E. Kelly, our Conference evangelist, came to us on the morning of the third Sunday in April, and began a meeting. From the first service till the last it was felt and seen that the Spirit of God was present to lead the preacher and the people, and to own and bless what was being done. The Congregations grew from a house full at the beginning to an overflowed house before the meeting closed. Our Presbyterian and Baptist friends were with us from first to last, aiding in song and prayer and in every other way possible. Not even an expert could have told any difference between the Churches. All were earnestly working to one end—to honor God and build up his Kingdom at this place. The meeting had not run but a few days, when it was being said by many that it was the "best ever held in Scooba." Of course, in this, as in all great movements for to better conditions morally in a community, there were a few—very few, I am glad to say—who took to the woods; but I feel sure that even those few are heartily ashamed, and wish they had stood with us in the fight. Brother Kelly is truly an evangelist that needeth not to be ashamed. I thought that I knew Kelly before this meeting, but I freely confess that I did not. I know him now, and am in a position to defend him and his work should it ever become necessary to do so. Brother Kelly won the good will of the people, and those who know him best love him most. Fifty-six joined our Church, forty of them by profession of faith, and several joined the Baptist and Presbyterian Churches.—C. C. Evans, P. C.

Pioneer, La.

Dear Brother Meek: Times are "tight" financially and there is plenty of hard work up this way. But we find time to go to church and serve God, who is ever mindful of and who has been so good and has done so much for us poor mortals and has spared us in health and strength of body and mind and has given us the earnest of the Spirit and the "desire" to do good and to "build for better things." For, to be sure, all that we are, as well as all that we possess, are His, and we are but "instruments" in His hands, stewards in this world—this "moral vineyard"— to accomplish His will and bring about great and good results. In and through us He works to will and do of His "own good pleasure" if we will but allow and give him "right of way" and co-operate "along right lines. Surely, His goodness and mercy have followed us all the days of our lives. He is "doing mighty, wondrous works" in these parts. Our "prospects" for crops are fairly "good." Our worthy and beloved pastor, Brother W. T. Woodward of this (Oak Grove) Circuit, is a "veritable live wire," a "hustler," and is "doing things." He is inspiring his people by untiring "zeal" to achieve something for the glory of God and the Master and for "humanity's sake." That it is not "all of this life to live nor is it all to die," but that we shall "render an account" to God in that life beyond the stars "in the sweet by-and-by," is being preached and emphasized by Brother Woodward in all of his sermons. A very successful revival meeting was held in the town of Oak Grove during April, in which our pastor was assisted by Rev. Mr. Bell of Columbus, Miss. As a result of this meeting, some sixty were added to the church membership.

Brother Woodward closed a revival meeting at Pioneer a few days ago, having been assisted by Rev. Isaac L. Peebles of Wesson, Miss. There were 35 new names added to the church membership. Our good people esteem and appreciate Brother Woodward very much, and they are very generous in their co-operation and support. They showed their unfeigned appreciation also for the visiting brethren—Bell at Oak Grove and Peebles at Pioneer—by substantial tokens in the way of a "voluntary offering." Brother Woodward is not "unmindful" of our Advocate either, for he is continually singing its praises and increasing "its circulation" by securing new subscribers, for he recognizes the fact "that an enlightened, intelligent, interested membership is necessary and is a great lever and power" with which and through which to bring about "results," and money for Bibles, good books, the Church paper, does not mean less money for the ministry and the "causes." See? He has just completed the new church at Forest and is enterprising to build a new brick edifice at the new Parish Site—Oak Grove—at a cost of $10,000. The new courthouse is under construction at that place and when completed in November will have cost upward of $55,000. Long live the dear old Advocate and may God bless you!

S. TAYLOR JACKSON,
Circuit Lay Leader.

UGH! A Dose of Nasty Calomel

It salivates! It makes you sick and you may lose a day's work.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful to-night. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel to-day and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone to-night and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it to your children any time. It can't salivate, so let them eat anything afterwards.

"By this shall all men know that ye are My disciples, that ye love one another." As every lord giveth a certain livery to his servants, so Love is the livery of Christ.—Latimer.

RHEUMATISM EASILY RELIEVED

Yes, but how? A natural question. The answer is to cleanse your blood by stimulating it to healthy, vigorous action, so that it will throw off the germs and impurities that cause Rheumatism. The action of the wonderful blood purifier S. S. S. is to practically renew the life blood, give it vigor, stimulate the flow, making it throw out the germs and the poison impurities. Take the blood bath—Nature's blood tonic, S. S. S. Get it at any druggist's but insist upon S. S. S. Send for booklet on blood diseases. Our Advocate Campaign

The exhibit below shows the status of our Advocate campaign to secure 3500 new subscribers, as it stood at the close of May 31. This exhibit extends back to the time of the Annual Conferences, thus showing all that has been done. No renewals are given. The next exhibit will be made in our first issue in July. It is urged that our pastors secure the renewal of last year's subscriptions. If the renewals are neglected, the campaign to add 3500 new subscriptions to our list will not meet the desired end..

Total new subscriptions sent in from the Louisiana Conference, 239; Mississippi Conference, 291; North Mississippi Conference, 532, distributed as follows:

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

Vol. 63—No. 24. Official Organ of the Louisiana, Mississippi, and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. Whole No. 3117.

PREPAREDNESS.

Recent events have made the word "preparedness" one of the most familiar in the language. The terrible war now raging in Europe, with all its misery, and the danger that our own nation may yet become involved, have led many of our people to advocate a more ample provision, on land and sea, for the national defense.

Led by New York, two score and more of large cities in our country have had great preparedness parades as a demonstration of popular opinion. New Orleans was among these cities, and, compared to population, the parade of the Crescent City was equal to any in the country. Miles and miles of people, drawn from every plane of society, and every business and profession, marched for hours past the reviewing stand at the City Hall. It was a great parade, and a spectacular demonstration of public opinion concerning the adequate defense of our country in this time, when wars, and rumors of wars, threaten our national life.

But citizens, orators and newspapers have had no more to say recently concerning preparedness than a certain Book has been saying for ages. However, it is a different kind of preparedness which the Bible advocates. While the word "prepare," in its different forms, is used in varied ways, and sometimes with no special significance, in the great number of instances it is used with the word "heart." Zophar, the Naamathite, advised the sorrowing Job to prepare his heart, and stretch out his hands toward God. In the Tenth Psalm, we read that the Lord hears the desire of the humble, and will prepare their heart. When Ezra, the Scribe, went on his important mission to Jerusalem, it is said that he had "prepared his heart to seek the law of the Lord, and to do it, and to teach in Israel statutes and judgments." Jehu, the Seer, reproved Jehoshaphat for some of his transgressions, but said, "Nevertheless there are good things found in thee, in that thou hast taken away the groves out of the land, and hast prepared thine heart to seek God." When the good King Hezekiah proclaimed a great passover, he prayed for the people thus: "The good Lord pardon every one that prepareth his heart to seek God."

And in the closing days of the aged King David, he prayed thus for his people: "Prepare their heart unto thee."

So Bible preparedness differs from the preparedness of which we hear so much to-day in this—that it is not a preparation of material things. It is a preparation of the heart. The heart of man, in all reality, is as physical a thing as any other organ of the body. But, from remote time, it has been used to denote the most refined and immaterial of ideas. It has been regarded as the "seat of the affections, or sensibilities, collectively or separately, as love, hate, joy, grief, courage, and the like. In that mystic region of the heart, the emotions are born, the emotions which surcharge the whole being, and work for weal or woe. It is often used to denote the better or lovelier part of the nature—the spring of all our actions and purposes; the seat of moral life and character. It is rarely used to denote the seat of the understanding and the will—their place is in the mind. But the heart is closely connected with the mind, and they often work in harmony. The mind indeed should be prepared unto the Lord; every righteous cause should be based upon sound reason. But it is possible for the mind to be convinced, while the emotions are not stirred. It is that mystic realm, where thought is linked to thought, desires are conceived, and motives are born—the whole spiritual nature of man—that must be prepared unto the Lord. And that is doubtless the Biblical meaning of the word "heart," the whole spiritual nature—mind and heart.

This preparation of the heart is for to-day. There are some who seem to think that preparing the heart, and preparing to meet God, belong to the last few moments on earth. When he halts with faltering footsteps on the margin of death, when he begins to grope in the darkness of uncertainty and fear, then he will prepare his heart to meet God; so thinks many a man. And if you speak to him of preparing the heart, he may think you expect him soon to pass away. But the preparation of the heart is for life, and not for death.

How is the preparation of the heart to be accomplished? Not by its own power. Jeremiah tells us that "the heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked." The heart, though it knows its own bitterness, is incapable of its own cleansing, as the words of the prophet and the sad experience of men prove. Man cannot be his own savior. But some one has said that > "In the wreck of human lives,

> Something noble still survives."

Though fallen in sin, man is able to respond to the overtures of mercy. He can pray. And the hour of true prayer may be the hour of redemption. The portals of prayer have double doors that swing both ways; through them petition and answer go and come, and sometimes pass each other on the way. The fugitive Jacob saw a ladder on which, ascending and descending, were the angels of God. Man can pray, and man can receive the blessings, but only God can cleanse the heart and prepare it unto himself. Therefore the aged David prayed the Lord to prepare the heart of his people.

The phrase, "unto thee," in David's prayer, is very significant. It reminds us of the preparation of the ancient sacrifice, to be laid upon the great brazen altar of the temple. The heart is to be prepared as a sacrifice unto God, a sacrifice better than "all the beasts on Jewish altars slain." But those beasts, though only a type of a better and greater sacrifice, were required to be without spot and without blemish. So God prepares the heart by casting out its sin, that it may be laid upon the altar a spotless offering.

But to change the figure for one that is better—the heart is a temple, to be dedicated unto God. As every part of the old temple was holy, fitted for the presence of God, so the heart must be cleansed for God's indwelling. Thus the disciples tarried in an upper room until the Holy Spirit filled them utterly.

But here we realize that every figure of speech is imperfect, and that it has its limitations. A temple which is stationary, and cannot move from its place, may serve to represent God's indwelling. A temple where God dwells between the cherubim, and shines forth, may serve to illustrate the saving influence that goes forth from a Spirit-filled life. But it is a poor and inadequate illustration of the wonderful, gracious activity of the apostles as they went forth from that upper room, filled and empowered by the Spirit, to cross and re-cross the Roman Empire, plant churches afar, and brave danger, persecution and death. May the impressive lesson of miles of marches, passing for hours along the streets of New Orleans and other cities, and even the terrible struggle of the nations, with its ruin of cities, its slaughter of millions, and its warning as to the insecurity of earthly institutions, and of human life, be this: the best of all preparedness is the preparation of the heart unto the Lord. For that will insure rich, full and abundant life here, regardless of the shocks of time and change, and then—beatitude in a world that is abiding.

R. H. H.

WE STAND AND SERVE.

The isolated body of mankind is gone, and we stand shoulder to shoulder to-day facing the same problems of life. The world is better than ever before in its history. This is made possible by the fact that we are given the instruments with which to serve one another. The progress of the world is not evidenced so much by the leviathon of the deep, the steel girders of the continents, but by the spirit which makes these things essential. This is a day of specialists. One man is a farmer, another a merchant, another a physician, another a lawyer, all needing the other. How helpless would the farmer be without the manufacturer and the merchant, and vice versa. Such a spirit has been spread over the whole world. England needs our cotton, and we need her financial aid; Germany needs our food supplies and we need her cheap manufactured articles; and this interrelationship is still more evident in Europe than in this country.

Hate and differences must disappear as there arises the spirit of mutual service. When this need is so felt that it becomes impossible to do without it the world will be closer together than even now. Men feel the pains of others to-day more than ever. We of this country are so in sympathy with our brethren at war across the seas that we can almost hear the explosion of the mighty guns, see the masses of men falling in the embrace of death, hear their cries for aid, their shouts of courage, and their moans of pain.

The path of Christianity has made the needs of civilized men common property; we may show our religion to-day better than ever before because there are so many ways of helping others.

C. A. B.

DRIVEN AND DRAWN.

Rev. J. Edgar Russell.

One of the most fascinating books is the "Letters of Mrs. E. B. Browning." Among the rich gems of thought and experience is this one: "I was driven and I was drawn." She is writing of her marriage to Robert Browning. If there was ever on earth a pure love between man and woman it was here. The union on earth was only for a few short years, but it made those years golden.

The friendship was at first a literary one. In her early letters we find her now and then mentioning him, with appreciation of his worth and mild criticism for his occasional vagueness in his poems. Browning received permission to call on her in a literary way—she was able to meet and converse with but few of her friends and admirers. She herself was long in fully interpreting the devotion. But at last in the most manly way Browning acknowledged his great love and offered the tribute of marriage. Duty at first was not clear to her, as she was no longer young and was regarded as a hopeless invalid. In the case of Browning love was not blind, for he recognized her physical weakness—in fact thought that she was really worse than she was. He welcomed the task of being her defender and supporter. Love was finally victorious and for fifteen years was nobly vindicated.

"I was driven and I was drawn." A statement of the exact truth. Mrs. Browning's father was rather prosperous and was a good provider. He had strength without the balance of gentleness. He was conceited and arrogant. He assumed rights no father ought to assume. He treated Browning's overtures with more than contempt. He never rightly appreciated his marvelous daughter. In fact, the only member of the family who rightly did was a brother who was drowned—a pitiless disaster in her life. She never quite recovered from it. She needed elements in her daily atmosphere her father's house did not and could not supply.

So she was driven. And is it not all typical of that highest love—our love for Christ in response to his love for us? Christ is the Master of providence. All things are his. He loves us in our frailty and despondency and doubt. While Mrs. Browning's was only physical weakness, ours is moral and spiritual weakness. More than ever maiden needs lover, we need our living Master. And we are driven. In the far country there is a famine. Friends fail, and the money is exhausted, and the servitude becomes grievous. The husks at our feet mock us. We know that after all we are made for better things. We are in real, unrelieved, undisputed want. Driven, but driven as reasoning beings and not as beasts. "Come, let us reason together."

She was drawn. There in the person of Browning was an unforced, persistent, unmeasured love, ready for a service that would go to any measure of sacrifice. She felt that she had so little to give, not youth or beauty or health or fortune, but all to receive. But she had a personality of infinite worth, and Browning was the rich discoverer. "Draw me, we will run after thee." "I drew them with the cords of a man, with the bands of love." Jesus is the eternal lover. All that drives, all the lower motives that are legitimate in their time and place, become subordinate to the one supreme, constraining power. The inspiration of Browning's devotion got into his wife's poems. There was a grasp, a mastery, an enthusiasm, an optimism. The supremely great hymns are all of one piece. It is unwearied gratitude to the "love that would not let us go."

As the years passed Mrs. Browning saw more and more in Browning her ideal. In her estimation he was all but faultless. And he reserved nothing that would make her life fruitful. His choice of residence, his work, his ambition, his leisure—all were subordinate to the duty he acknowledged to her. The man whose personality was so rich in the poems was no other in the quiet and seclusion of the home. He literally incarnated the great qualities he championed in his writings. Jesus was infinitely worthy when he won us, but how that excellency has been interpreted to us as we have gone through the varied experiences of our pilgrimage! We are on the same old terms as ever—the old standing, but an ever new insight.

Mrs. Browning was more jealous of the reputation of her husband than she was of her own. She was tolerant of criticism and misunderstanding of her own productions. But she had a passion that the great gifts of Robert should be widely recognized and liberally rewarded. What are our little honors and advancements and appreciations compared with his glory? "For to me to live is Christ." "Jesus, the name high over all." Paul eulogized even those who opposed him for their preaching of Christ.

Mrs. Browning literally died in the arms of her husband. What she had clearly foreseen came at last. Her last word was, in answer to how she felt, "Beautiful." There is one who will never leave or forsake us. In the last great extremity underneath us will be the everlasting arms.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

THAT LOUISVILLE MEETING.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D.D.

It was a big meeting, to celebrate a big achievement, engineered by a big man, in the interest of a big cause. And you know I like big things—always did. When I was a boy in the Mississippi canebrakes I preferred to hunt bears instead of 'coons, and deer instead of 'possums. I was always hunting for the biggest ear of corn, the biggest watermelon, the biggest pumpkin, the biggest of whatever was to be had. One of my boyhood castles in the air was an estate of 3000 acres, rather small I admit, but showing the Anglo-Saxon instinct for land, and a pretty good patch for a wee bit of a boy. I love big men, big ideas, big enterprises, big business, and have been pestered all my life with the plague of littleness.

Now, McMurry is a big man any way you take him, though it was rather an exaggeration when the toastmaster at the banquet told that when Mac could find but one of his shoes and got after the porter about it, he found he had blacked his suitcase for the other! He also told that if Mac would quit his big Church Extension job there was a big business job ready for him in Louisville. No wonder business wants him. He knows how to bring things to pass. I honestly believe I can beat Mac preaching along some lines; but I would not try to bend his bow! It looked like the Board had met simply to ratify what the Secretary had decided ought to be done. He had every detail at his finger's end, and all the plans outlined, and the complicated threads all in his hands. He is a genius on his job, and has built up the work committed to him to vast proportions, and built it up on sound and established business principles.

I confess I did not know anything about the new Church Extension office building until I was honored by the invitation to be one of the speakers on the dedication program, and I rather flatter myself with the idea that I keep up with the procession. I don't think many of the rank and file knew about it. Silently, it rose in polished stone and beautiful architectural design, and came to its completion without blare of trumpet or boom of gun. And it is a building that worthily represents while it adequately serves the great Society that erected it to house its work. Beautifully finished, and furnished with modern facilities for keeping records, and making the architectural plans for the churches and parsonages it helps to build, the important papers, trust deeds, contracts, etc., all the documents of the immense interests it handles are safely stored and protected. If Dr. McMurry had done nothing else but secure the erection of this important building, it would have signalized his administration; but this is a sort of by-product of his varied and indefatigable activities.

In his dedication exercises he pulled off a big event. Louisville knew the affair was on. Dr. McMurry had his guests entertained at the finest hotel in the city. The Chamber of Commerce gave the Board a banquet at which there were 800 guests, and speakers representing many of the denominations of the city. It was a good old time, and when the little sentimental airs provided by the program as a sort of musical delicacy had been served, and Sam Hay, forgetful of the ps and qs of such an occasion, broke loose with "'Tis the Old Time Religion—its good enough for me," the rafters trembled with the rapturous song. Good for Sam! They won't sing "The Butterfly in the Sunshine" at the marriage supper of the Lamb, the great banquet that is to celebrate the final triumph of our cause, but there will be enough Sams there to raise a shout for "The Old Time Religion."

The Church Extension Society is a great success. Organized in 1882, it has helped to build about 9000 churches, over fifty per cent of all the churches we have, and a large number of parsonages. The past year has been one of the most prosperous in its history. No money given to the Church is more safely invested nor produces larger results than the money given to this Society. Dr. McMurry believes in literature as a means of making his work go; and has called into existence a large and excellent assortment of tracts and booklets setting forth the merits of the work he has in hand, and a pastor can hardly do a better thing for his people than to supply them with these cases of moral dynamite.

I was able to make connection with my part of the program, though it was a limping, if not a lame performance. Retiring Sciatica still held me in its grip. I can't call my limp "Byronic," for he had a good deal of "cussing" mixed up with his, and I have gone this far on the journey without indulging in that "profane luxury;" and I can't call my limp "Jacobic," for Jacob got his praying. Whatever type mine is, it seriously interferes with cavorting propensities. I had the same old difficulty in finding "terminal facilities" after an hour and ten minutes of introductory program, and the President called time on me. It seems to be the order of the day to bring the aeroplanes down, but I landed on my feet, and everybody could see that I was not out of soap anyhow. How is that for a mixed metaphor! Dr. McMurry says he is going to print the speech, so whoever reads it will get it all.

It was a great occasion and marks a forward epoch in this department of our work.

WHAT IS NEEDED IN THE PULPIT.

Some preachers make the mistake of addressing to Pharisees sermons suitable for Publicans, and vice versa. They would do well to take a lesson from John Wesley, who once preached to a congregation that was "at ease in Zion" a scathing discourse on the text, "Ye serpents, ye generation of vipers, how can ye escape the damnation of hell?" At the close of the service an irate hearer met Wesley with the criticism: "Sir, such a sermon would have been suitable in Billingsgate—but it is highly improper here!" "If I had been in Billingsgate," replied Wesley, "my text would have been, 'Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.'" Thus were revealed two characteristic qualities of Wesley's nature, and indeed of all true Christian preachers—fearlessness and pity. It is very easy to storm impressively before the weak and the broken-hearted, but what is needed in the pulpit is a stalwart courage which will rebuke sin in high places, joined, on occasion, with a yearning tenderness which will bind up the broken reed, and apply to conscience-stricken hearts the precious balm of Gilead. To Pharisees preach the terrors of the law, and to Publicans the tenderness of Christ.—Zion's Herald.

SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

June 27 to July 6, 1916.

All is now ready for the Eighth Session of the Seashore Divinity School, to be held at Seashore Campground, Biloxi, Miss., June 27 to July 6, 1916, and the prospect is for a most successful session.

Lectures.

Rev. H. M. DuBose, D.D., our Book Editor and Editor of our Review; Rev. W. W. Pinson, D.D., our Missionary Secretary, and Rev. Frank Seay, B.D., professor of New Testament Greek and Interpretation in our Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Texas, who has been requested by the College of Bishops to write a text book on Old Testament study for the course of study for our preachers, are the capable leaders who will occupy the platform during the session. Those who know these men will know what a treat is in store for all.

Under Graduates' Chance.

Plans for instruction and examination of Under Gradnates are the best. Each Annual Conference will be officially represented on the faculty for each class, and can satisfy the committee and Conference from which he comes. The young men all report that the method of the Divinity School gives them more from the course than they can get in any other way.

Post Graduate Course.

Among the new features for this session is the Post Graduate Course of Study or Reading. This has been arranged with special reference to those who lacked early opportunities and is easy and inviting. The course for this session is:

"Bury's Students' History of Greece," Dr. Everett Kimball.

"An Introduction to Philosophy," Geo. Stuart Fullerton.

"The Story of Our Bible," Harold B. Hunting.

"Ivanhoe," Sir Walter Scott.

"Macbeth," Shakespeare.

An hour will be given to a review of each study some time during the session.

Bishops Invited.

Bishops E. E. Hoss, Collins Denny, and W. B. Murrah, who preside over the patronizing Conferences, have been urgently invited to attend, and we hope to have the pleasure and profit of their presence.

Presiding Elders' Meeting.

One of the interesting and potential features will be the meeting of the Presiding Elders of the four participating Conferences. These leaders will get together for mutual counsel and help, and such a meeting should hold large promise of added efficiency for the work of the Church.

Meeting of Methodist School Presidents.

Another meeting of interest will be that of the Presidents of our Methodist Colleges and Training Schools throughout these Conferences for conference over the problems and prospects which they confront, and we trust every one of our colleges and schools will be represented.

The Social Feature.

There is no calculating the blessing and inspiration to be received from the association with the many consecrated men of God gathered here, the exchange of experiences both sad and joyous, and the sweet fellowship of these days by the sea; and the privilege of knowing and associating with the great men who come to instruct us from the platform and who have always proved most companionable and brotherly. The whole is planned to rest the weary worker, cheer the dispirited, refill the empting vessel, inspire anew faith and courage, and send the servant of God back to his task with a new vision and a new assurance and power.

"Come thou with us and we will do thee good."

H. M. ELLIS.

Words of Appreciation from Those Who Know.

"The Divinity School has given me a fuller vision, a stronger faith, a deeper spiritual life, and a greater determination to do more in our Master's kingdom."—T. D. Lipscomb, Louisiana Conference.

"I have gone from the session of the Divinity School each year ashamed of myself for not being a better preacher and a better man, and yet always inspired to greater efforts. Besides the benefits the lectures have afforded, the fellowship of the brethren has been most pleasant and helpful."—J. E. Cunningham, North Mississippi Conference.

"The Seashore Divinity School has been to me a much needed intellectual and spiritual stimulus. I feel grateful for it. Its recreation has been welcome, its fellowship delightful, its work congenial, its opportunities uplifting. The image of the enchanting Gulf in the moonlight or in the glitter of sunshine sooner shall fade than shall be forgotten the inspiring appeal for a better life."—H. B. Watkins, Mississippi Conference.

"The Divinity School has meant to me, among other pleasures and blessings, these distinctly:

"1. A refreshing and quickening of my own consecration to Jesus and His Kingdom.

"2. A clearer, more definite and larger conception of the high calling and work of a preacher.

"3. A heartening and reassuring of my faith that ultimately all science and critical study will further the Kingdom of God.

"4. A delightful feeling of brotherliness and oneness with my fellows in the ministry.

"5. A kind of eager determination to be more efficient in my labors."—Henry M. Andrews, Alabama Conference.

TWO BOOKS.

Dr. H. J. Henderson and Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B.D., are safe and sane men of the North Mississippi Conference. They speak as present day ministers to the present day American people. They are college men and "theologues," but eminently Christian men, and recognize the apostolic fact that "our sufficiency is of Him." These finished men have each written a book. Dr. Henderson gives as a title: "When Sainthood was in Flower." Of course sainthood is still in flower, and is to bloom forever, but the Doctor presents in captivating form the saints of Bible times—a sample from the great people of the Book of God set forth in twentieth century words, but presented also with the attractions of antiquity, and the lessons by regal personages at that period of human history and applied to the people of later generations and of the present time. Some one said, "Dr. Henderson's book should be found in the Epworth League library," but also the instructive chapters of the book are worthy of a place in any American library.

The other book, written by Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B.D., is a masterpiece in very many particulars. The third page has the simple words, "To My Mother;" and the introduction by the author very far exceeds in value the small price of the entire modest volume, which is entitled "Conscience and its Culture," a subject which naturally awakens thought, and is most studiously handled from the first chapter of the book unto the finish. Great thinkers can afford to read this independent and carefully prepared production by this educated North Mississippi pastor. The book contains thirteen chapters and two hundred and sixteen pages. Chapter ten is exceptionally fine, and the climax is probably reached in chapter eleven, entitled "The Mountain Top."

MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Meridian District Conference met on Wednesday, May 10, 1916, at 8:30 a. m., in East End Church, and closed on Friday at noon, after a very profitable session. The opening sermon was preached on Tuesday evening by Rev. O. S. Lewis in a most impressive and helpful manner.

Rev. J. T. Leggett, who is in his fourth year on this district, presided. Brother Leggett has made a splendid record and has had the joy of seeing the pleasure of the Lord prosper in his hands. The attendance of both preachers and laymen was excellent. Every pastor was present and, I think, stayed the entire time. There were, in all, 91 members present. I do not remember a better record than this.

Pastor's reports were very encouraging for this time of the year. Several charges had already had good revivals, and the pastors were encouraged over the outlook. Every interest of the Church was looked after. The Sunday school interests were in the hands of Rev. J. L. Neill, Field Secretary; Millsaps College was represented by Dr. A. F. Watkins; Church Extension by Rev. L. E. Alford; the Hospital work by Rev. H. M. Ellis; the Orphans' Home by Rev. J. B. Randolph; the Laymen's Movement by Professor G. L. Harrell. Rev. Robert Selby presented the matter of Emory University in a manner that guarantees the success of the enterprise he has in hand. Mrs. McQueen, District Secretary, presented the woman's work. Mr. A. L. Dietrich, Divisional Secretary, was present; as was also Rev. J. L. Purcell, of the Mississippi Conference Training School. With all of these no time hung heavily on our hands.

As is usual, we had preaching twice every day. Sermons were preached by Robert Selby, A. F. Watkins, J. L. Decell, O. S. Lewis, B. L. Sutherland, and this writer. The devotional hours were times of refreshing from above and were led by J. B. Randolph, J. L. Decell, and J. T. Abney. On one afternoon the devotions, lasting thirty minutes, were conducted by Brother F. B. Gray, a consecrated engineer, converted last year, and a member of the South Side Church. It was a happy time. The session of Wednesday afternoon was devoted to the Laymen's Missionary Movement. The program was arranged and presented by Dr. J. W. Beeson, District Lay Leader, and participated in by a number of laymen and preachers. An excellent paper on "The Social Service Committee," by Mr. D. W. Heidelberg, was ordered printed in the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Delegates to the Annual Conference were elected as follows: C. W. Cochran, H. N. Harrington, W. E. Lathram, and W. D. Hawkins. L. P. Brown and W. T. Barnes are alternate delegates. During the Conference J. L. Decell, for the district, presented to Brother Leggett an Underwood typewriter as an expression of the district's affection for him and of their gratitude for his fidelity to duty. Brother Leggett's response was eloquent and impressive, declaring he considered it the highest privilege of his life to touch the lives of the younger ministers for good. The presence of most of the local preachers was appreciated and most of them made encouraging reports. Brother E. T. Breland gave up his credentials as a local preacher, asking to take a layman's place in the church. Frank Barton Allen and Marvin F. Walker were granted license to preach, and the former was recommended to the Annual Conference for admission on trial.

The Conference will meet next year in the city of Shubuta, where many good things await us. Dr. J. W. Beeson was re-elected District Lay Leader.

The following District Sunday school organization was effected: Executive Committee—J. T. Leggett, H. N. Harington, D. W. Heidelberg, W. T. Barnes, J. D. Fatheree; District Secretary, J. B. Holland; Superintendent Teacher Training, J. W. Beeson: Superintendent Wesley Bible Classes, W. E. Lathram; Elementary Superintendent, Miss Mamie Fishel: Home Department Superintendent, Mrs. Joseph Libby. H. B. Watkins, J. A. Moore, B. L. Sutherland, and H. A. Gatlin were elected to act with the presiding elder as an Ad Interim Committee on License and Recommendation.

Rev. R. F. Witt, superannuate, was present at several sessions of the Conference. The East End folks, led by their pastor, Rev. J. A. Moore, and his excellent wife, showed the Conference every possible kindness, and the resolutions of thanks at the close were much more than a formal expression of appreciation.

H. B. WATKINS, Secretary.

JOHN WESLEY.

By Rev. J. F. Foster.

God lives and all is well, for the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob—the nation-creating and nation-guiding God—still lives.

This was so in the dark days of the early part of the eighteenth century when England, forgetting God and humanity, was rapidly running on the rocks of destruction. There were no standards in those days and the people were ready for any extremities. France had its revolution in the latter part of this century, its guillotine and baptism of blood. Had France had a Wesley, history might have been different and the man from Corsica never heard from.

England was corrupt to a marked degree, and between the Scylla of royalty and the Charybdis of poverty and squalor among the poor and mining classes, the British Isles were ready for a similar baptism of blood.

And as the temperament of the two nations was different—that of the Anglo-Saxon not being so mercurial as that of the French, the chances are that had such a baptism of blood overshadowed Britannia the result would have been far deeper and much more lasting.

England's position gives it an influence such as no other nation has, and therefore its impress is broader and more far-reaching than any other European power, and its colonies make it world-wide in its reach. Had England and its pure type of religion and the character which it had begotten gone down, the loss to the world could not be estimated, and an imagination greater than that of a Jules Verne would be neeessary were the results measured.

The one man under God that saved England and the world from such a loss and kept the world from stepping back two hundred years or more, lifting it and putting it forward two hundred years, was John Wesley. The thoughtless measure his work as that of a street preacher and discount the man and the work. Since Paul and Luther, there has not been his like in the history of the world.

When God would make a man, he begins a century or two before, for no small man ean do a great work.

The Annesley family were in training during days which tried men's souls. Their history reads like a romance. Dr. Annesley was one of the most cultured and intellectual men of all England. His blood had been tempered of God and the times. The Wellesley, or Wesley, blood likewise had come up through trials and tribulations and there was trained into the same those elements of leadership which made both Arthur and John—the one a leader of men and a moulder of thought; the other a leader of armies.

The first saved England from itself; the other from imperialism and Napoleon.

The world knows the Duke of Wellesley as Arthur, Duke of Wellington, and the light and fickle opinions of men omit and forget that other great son of the same blood, John Wellesley, or Wesley—not Duke of Wellington and savior of England from imperialism, but the spiritual illuminant of an age, a race, a world, advancing the thought of all enlightened, thinking and living men—molder of a civilization the like of which the world has never seen and whose end is not yet.

These two streams meet in John Wesley—the pure, intellectual, religious life of the Annesleys and the religious, sturdy, courageous blood of the Wellesleys—and a man was the result—a man planned of God—may I say, begotten of God, or raised up by God, for a great purpose?

This man little knew his real field of labor and never saw behind the veil, but quietly did his duty as he saw it, and in simplicity stooped to the level of the under man. He lifted humanity, saving a nation, and for that nation a creed and a belief in God, and thus advanced the world, saving it from that which would have put an estoppel to all progress and carried the world back several centuries.

Some one has said that had Napoleon and his views triumphed, the world would have been put back one hundred years: but had Wesley not have been, Napoleon would not have been, and the history of all Europe, America and the world would not have been as it is.

Think of America and what it means to the world in moral force and its mission to the races as symbolized in the statue of Columbia enlightening the world, and realize that without Wesley and the pioneer preacher this might not have been. He was possibly the most intellectual man of his age, aud had a genius for organization the like of which has seldom been seen in the history of the world. Richelieu was indeed a great man, and as an organizer, where shall we find his equal? In Wesley we find his superior. His grasp of a situation, his iusight into the elemental, his far-reaching understanding of results, of cause and effect, has seldom, if ever, been equaled. The height, the depth, the breadth, and the simplicity of the man are remarkable and unique. He builded wiser than he knew—not anticipating but following the leadings of God, though not seeing the divine purpose or plan in his life. Little did Wesley know that the progress of the nineteeth and twentieth centuries was in his hand, together with the greatness of the republic across the seas. America's debt to Wesley and his pioneers can never be measured until the last billow of the sea of time has broken on the shores of eternity.

The history of his movement you have had told to you frequently and you are quite conversant with it, but may I refer to his work just for a moment? He did not intend other than to do his duty as an enlightened servant of God, and he loved his Church to the last, not planning to start a schism therein, or to organize another ecclesiasticism.

His work was to preach Christ and the truth, but the Church which had lost the truth and caused largely the conditions which he faced forced him and his work out of the synagogue, and a new Church was the result.

The Church—known as Methodist is indeed a great body, but were we to face the true work of the man's life, it would be seen not to be its only or greatest effect. The refinding, if I may so call it, of vital religion; the bringing back to man's thought and faith, the fact of the existence of a God and that this God would reveal himself to man; the privilege of a soul in fellowship with God and the awakening religious conscience of a race, may be spoken of as a few of the results of his life.

The greatest fact of history is God, and the greatest factor in one's life is God. I once thought it was blood, and I believe in blood. The temperament of each nation plays a large part in its life, but not the greatest, for a people are as their characters.

Character is no deeper, no higher than self, unless one has seen more than self. Thus abiding, stable character can not be built upon self, for character is deeper than expediency and its anchor-sheet does not hold fast in the realms of self-exploiting or gain. The only anchor sheet for character is God, and only they who have seen him have that within their living which can hold them amid the storms and vicissitudes of life. The greatness of a people is its character, and its character is as is the nation's view-point and knowledge of God and their response thereto. He, then, who does his age and nation the most service is he who shows them God and leads them to accept the divine issues of life. This Wesley did as has no man since Luther, and his name should be coupled with the truly great of earth. The greatness of a man may be measured by the length of the shadow his life casts over future time.

Church News

Dr. Josiah Strong, who was born Jan. 19, 1847, and died April 28, 1916, was one of the outstanding Church leaders of this country. He was a congregational minister. From 1898 to 1902 he was President of the League for Social Service. Since 1908 he has been editor of the "Gospel of the Kingdom." Some of his noted books are: "Our Country," "The Twentieth Century," "The Times and Young Men," "The Next Great Awakening."

The London Times speaks of the line of Y. M. C. A. buildings behind the stretch of soldiers from Dixmude to Frise, in France, as the "bulwark of England." The forty-three places of shelter, where the tired soldier may rest, may read religious periodicals, may think quietly about his spiritual life, must be a great comfort to the people at home who have made them possible. Besides this line, there are a hundred other Y. M. C. A. buildings at the British base and training-camps in France.

Rev. L. D. Patterson, a missionary of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Sunkiang, China, writes the following interesting paragraph: "Once, during a big festival, I stood with three or four helpers for an hour on the steps of the greatest temple in Sunkiang and preached Christ and sold Gospels—fifty-five copies in an hour. The old priest in charge of the temple came out and listened a while. He took a Gospel of John and glancing through it said: 'What book is this?' 'Honorable priest,' said I, 'it is God's Book.' He stood and read for a few minutes, then pulled out the price, and, handing it to me, said, 'It is a good book,' and turned back into the gloom and shadow of his hoary old temple. But not as he came out; for now he carried a torch which would throw wondrous light on his long, blind groping after the secret of true blessedness of God to the saving of that 'dear old man and the 'multitude of the priests.'"

IN APPRECIATION.

The Board of Bishops of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church at a recent meeting adopted the following resolutions expressive of their appreciation of the aid given their Church by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

"Whereas ever since the beginning of our Church the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has shown by words and deeds that it did not in the act of our organization 'set us off,' but rather did set us up a full-fledged, independent Methodist Church, giving us that freedom without which no people can do its best; and whereas in our effort to help ourselves along our several lines of educational and religious development our parent Church has not only always encouraged us, but also has very often aided us financially and otherwise co-operated with us in our struggles; therefore be it

"Resolved, 1. That the General Board of Bishops of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church do hereby express their sincere gratitude for what our parent, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has done for our educational and missionary work in the past.

"2. That we thank the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, for its establishment of a regular theological department for our young preachers, forty-nine of whom are at present in our Divinity School at Paine College, Augusta, Ga.

"3. That we indorse the action of the College of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in recommending one of our number to the pastors and laity of their Church, asking them to make for him every opening possible in their Conferences and congregations, as well as to individual persons, for making appeals on behalf of our educational work in general and our preacher-training department in particular.

"4. That we pledge our hearty co-operation, with an indorsement of our parent Church, in any effort it may make to overthrow lawlessness in this country and to establish even-handed justice on the basic Christian principle of God's fatherhood and man's brotherhood, regardless of race or color.

"5. That we hail with delight the success that has come to the foreign work since its beginning in Africa, and we rejoice that we had a share in pioneering and establishing this work. This share we put down as a proud part of our history and as an earnest of the co-operation we propose to maintain with the great Methodist Episcopal Church, South, just as rapidly as means and men can be acquired for that enterprise in our fatherland.

"6. That on behalf of the General Board of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church and its entire membership, our Bishops severally subscribe their names to these resolutions.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE FOR THE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The Seashore Divinity School will be held at Biloxi, Miss., June 27 to July 6, and the Louisiana Conference is for it. The District Conferences have emphasized it by urging the preachers to attend and by taking a collection for its support. The presiding elders of the Conference will have their third quarterly meeting there. Bishop Hoss will be there. It will be worth while to any preacher to spend ten days at the Seashore Campground, by the sea, in the study of the Word of God and better methods of church work. The sea bath, the helpful fellowship, the splendid lectures, any one of which, will be worth the price of the trip.

What a happy, helpful thing it would be for all parties concerned for every church in Louisiana to surprise the pastor with a purse and a vacation trip to the Divinity School. It would be a fine investment for any church. The expense at the Campground will be about $15. The railroad expense can be easily figured. I will be glad to furnish further information to any individual or church desiring to send the pastor.

To the Subscribers to the Fund for Ministerial Education at the Session of the Mississippi Conference, December, 1915, at Laurel, Miss.

My Dear Brethren: It is gratifying for me to state that quite a number of the above have paid their subscriptions, but there are those who have not.

This notice is to call your attention to the need there will be, before the opening of the schools, of those who are the beneficiaries of this fund.

Will you kindly, at your very earliest convenience, remit the amount of your subscription to me at Brookhaven?

What has been appropriated so far has been of inestimable value to the young men who have had the use of it. We need to do more for the education of our young preachers. The leading laymen of the Church, and others as well, are demanding a better educated ministry. It behooves us to do the best we can for these young men who are wanting to prepare themselves in proportion to the demands. Very sincerely,

CENTENARY COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT.

The closing exercises of the session of 1915-16 at Centenary College began with the Commencement Sermon on Sunday, June 4, which was preached at the First Methodist Church in Shreveport by Dr. W. J. Young, of Emory University. Both this sermon and the one preached by Dr. Young at night under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. are said to have been able and impressive sermons, enjoyed by large and appreciative audiences.

The graduating exercises were also held in First Church, for the convenience of the public, on Monday evening, June 5. At that hour, the customary Alumni Association program was combined with the graduating exercises proper. Dr. John L. Scales, of the class of 1892, a resident of Shreveport, presided at the first part of the program, introducing Mr. R. O. Randle, of Monroe, of the class of 1909, as the Alumni orator. Mr. Randle's address, after a brief review of the history and value of the college in the past, voiced a strong appeal for the maintenance of the church college, emphasizing the need for Centenary in the life of Louisiana. The address was followed by a poem of sentiment and reminiscence by Mrs. Ruth Kessinger Wilbanks, of the class of 1912.

The baccalaureate address was delivered by President Bobbitt, of Mansfield Female College. Mr. Bobbitt took as his theme "Measuring Men," and delivered a thoughtful and appropriate address, pleading for high ideals and exacting standards of character.

Diplomas were delivered to two young men, Messrs. Q. R. Henry and T. F. Wilbanks, after a brief and suitable address by Dr. R. H. Wynn.

The Board of Trustees of Centenary College, at its meeting in Shreveport on Tuesday, May 30, authorized the following statement of the work and future policies of the College:

After a very comprehensive report from Dr. Wynn, the President of the college, and a thorough review of the work being done, as well as of all the difficulties and discouragements attending it, the Board is unanimous in its hearty and appreciative commendation of the thorough and conscientious work being done and the careful discipline being administered by Dr. Wynn and his faculty; and Dr. Wynn has been re-elected to the presidency, with instructions to plan the work of the coming session along lines suggested in his report.

The Board squarely and earnestly faced the difficulties of the situation. The inadequacy of financial resources to make all the improvements that ought to be made was discussed, but the Board has no doubt of its ability to meet the situation, and plans were made for taking care of the financial demands of the immediate future. One thousand dollars, a recent contribution of Mr. C. W. Blair, is available for necessary improvements in building and equipment which will be added during the vacation.

In the discussions of the Board, very hearty expressions were given by different members, among them leading business men of Shreveport, as to the value of the work being done and the future of the college.

The difficulty of maintaining a large patronage in competition with the State and other institutions of learning was frankly considered, but the Board recognizes the growing feeling that such a school as Centenary, with its emphasis upon moral and religious development, along with the maintenance of exacting standards of literary scholarship, has an important place and mission.

In the solution of this problem of securing patronage, the general and thoughtful co-operation of the pastors throughout the State is earnestly desired. If pastors will send to the President the names of high school graduates and others who may be induced to enter the college, as some pastors are already doing, the patronage may be largely increased and the influence of the school correspondingly widened.

Some plans for making the school more attractive in its offers to students were discussed, which may be announced later.

COMMENCEMENT AT MILLSAPS.

Tuesday, June 6, marked the closing of the twenty-fourth session of Millsaps College, which, though scarcely beyond its majority, is ranked among the strongest educational institutions of the South, and counts her Alumni by the hundreds, many of whom occupy places of honor in the various professions and callings.

The programme of the season began with the contests of the Freshman and Sophomore classes, Friday, June 2. On Saturday, June 3, was held the Inter-Society Debate on the question: Resolved, "That President Wilson's contention that armed merchant vessels should be exempt from submarine attack is correct." It will doubtless be gratifying as well as encouraging to our much perplexed Chief Executive to learn that those who espoused his cause were declared the victors. So, Teddie to the contrary, President Wilson may continue to exchange notes with our neutral neighbors, for there is no appeal from the boys at Millsaps.

For the fourth time in the history of the College, Bishop Hoss appeared upon the rostrum, this time to preach the sermon at eleven o'clock on Sunday. The announcement of his coming was all that was necessary to secure a crowded house. Taking as the basis of his discourse the 8th and 9th verses of the 14th Chapter of St. John's Gospel, like a wise scribe, he brought forth things new and old out of this table talk between Philip and his Lord.

At 8 p. m., a large audience gathered in the handsome Galloway Memorial Church to hear Dr. S. H. Werlein, who had been selected to deliver the Annual Sermon before the Y. M. C. A. of the College. Taking St. Paul's declaration in Phil. 3:13, "This one thing I do," he brought forth many helpful suggestions in his exhortations to the members of that association.

On Monday, at 10:30 a. m., the representatives of the Senior Class contested for the Von Sinter Medal.

Diligent inquiry into the affairs of the College by the Board of Trustees developed these facts: that the property of the institution was never in such excellent condition, that the attendance upon the higher classes had been the largest in its history, and that the prospects for enlarged patronage has never been more encouraging.

In view of the 1917 Commencement being the twenty-fifth anniversary of the College, the Trustees launched a movement for a worthy celebration of the occasion, and various committees were appointed to this end. The curriculum was so arranged as to give larger study to the Bible and kindred subjects, and the establishing of the chair of "Teacher-training," in conformity with the law passed by the recent State Legislature.

On Tuesday morning Dr. Werlein delivered the baccalaureate address, which measured up to the fullest demands of the hour and takes its place among the grandest deliverances at Millsaps College.

At the conclusion of this address President Watkins conferred the Degrees of the institution upon sixteen graduates in the literary courses.

The absence of Major Millsaps, who was confined at his home by illness, was felt by all, and fervent prayers were offered on all occasions for the speedy recovery of the generous founder of the institution.

SARATOGA SCHEME WOULD BE RUINOUS.

By Rev. S. A. Steel, D.D.,

Mr. Editor: Such misleading impressions have been made on the public mind about the prospective union of the Methodist Churches, North and South, that I ask the privilege of setting the matter in its proper light. The last General Conference of the Southern Church adopted a plan for the "unification" of American Methodism. In that plan, the Methodist Church, South, retained its autonomy and complete control of its own affairs, while becoming an integral part of a reorganized Methodist Church. The General Conference of the Methodist Church, North, which has just met at Saratoga, has adopted a plan for the union of the two Churches totally different from the one we offered, and which it is almost certain will never be accepted by our side.

I have just returned from a college commencement in Kentucky. I found the Methodist preachers in Kentucky stirred to the bottom on the question. A number of representative men met in an informal way. Letters were read to the meeting from a number of our Southern Bishops and from other prominent men. The meeting was unanimously agreed on these points: (1) That we are in favor of the "unification of American Methodism" along the lines indicated in the plan adopted by our last General Conference; (2) that we are unalterably opposed to any plan that surrenders our Church to the control of the Northern Church; (3) that the Saratoga plan completely blots out the Methodist Church, South, and by putting the whole Church under "one supreme General Conference" places the Southern Methodists at the mercy of an overwhelming Northern majority; (4) that we indignantly repudiate the sentiments of Bishop Hendrix that "we have been wandering in the wilderness for 40 years," and affirm that he spoke for himself in his imprudent utterances at Saratoga, and (5) that we urge the Bishops of our Church to call a meeting of the Southern Bishops as soon as possible to take steps to arouse our Southern Methodists to the serious situation that confronts us.

From this time forth the fight is on. And if our Southern Methodists do not want to see all their property, their churches and schools and hospitals and orphanages and everything else pass out of their hands and into the control of Northern Methodists, it is high time they were speaking out; for Bishop Hendrix, who, though a Southern Bishop, is a Northern man in all his sympathies, has led us to the brink of complete surrender. An issue as grave as that of 1844, when the Church was divided, confronts us now.—From the Columbia (S. C.) State.

RESOLUTIONS

Passed by the Lafayette District Conference.

Resolved by the District Conference of the Lafayette District, in regular session convened, at Lake Charles:

That we endorse the idea of unification between the different branches of American Methodism.

That we realize there are many details to be worked out, and many points of difference to be adjusted. That, however, we believe there is sufficient spirit of brotherhood, loyalty to Methodist doctrine and teachings, and consecration to the cause of Christ in the respective branches of Methodism, to enable us through brotherly love and sacrifice to overcome all difficulties and unite ourselves into a greater Methodist Church militant for the advancement of the Kingdom of God.

BETTY'S ONIONS.

Arlene Putnam.

On Betty's sixth birthday Uncle Ned sent her a square white package. When the postman handed it to her, she ran over to Jack's house so that he could help her unwrap it. There were two boxes; one contained six big onions and the other was a box of candy. Betty divided the candy with Jack and gave him the onions to plant in his vegetable garden. She herself never raised vegetables; hers were always flowers.

A few weeks slipped by. Jack had planted the onions, and his garden was growing fine. One day he came running over to Betty's house. "I'm going to Grandma's to stay two weeks." He screamed the news at her.

"When are you going to start?" asked Betty.

"This afternoon," was the reply.

Jack stayed more than twice as long as he had expected to at Grandma's.

When he came home about the first thing he did was to go out and see how his garden was growing. "Betty, oh-h Betty, come here, quick," he called, "and see what's happened to my onion bed!"

"Yes," called Betty, "I'm coming." And she threw her arms around her playmate's neck and kissed him soundly before she even glanced at the onion bed. "Oh, Jack, I am so glad you have come home!" she cried.

"Yes," said Jack impatiently, "but look at the onion bed!"

Betty did look and there in the middle of Jack's onion bed grew six beautiful hyacinth plants, and four of them were in bloom. Betty clapped her hands. "Oh, Jack! those are the six onions I got on my birthday. They were bulbs and I supposed they were onions."

A few days later Betty got a letter from Uncle Ned. "How are your hyacinths growing, Betty?" he asked among other things.

"They are growing fine," said Betty in her reply. To Jack she said: "It's a wonder I didn't slice them up for onion soup instead of giving them to you."—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

PLAYING WITH FIRE.

"What's happening over there?" Gladys almost let go of Uncle Bob's hand in her excitement, and that would never have done in the crowded city streets.

"It's a parade!" cried her Brother Bert. "Can't we watch it Uncle Bob?"

"Sure enough, it is a parade," said Uncle Bob. "Let's hurry, or we will miss it. I wonder who is parading to-day? This isn't an anniversary of any kind."

"It's Fire Prevention Day, I heard some one say this morning, but they wouldn't have a parade for it, would they?" Bert looked at his uncle questioningly.

"That's just what it is—the morning paper said the Fire Commissioner had planned a parade. I'm glad you'll have a chance to see it."

"So am I," agreed Gladys happily. "It isn't every day we get a chance to come into New York, though we do live so near."

Gladys and Bert had come in from their home in New Jersey to spend the day with Uncle Bob, and they were having the best kind of time. Uncle Bob was so full of fun, and always planned such delightful things. To-day they were going out to Bronx Park to see the animals, but this parade was an unexpected addition to their holiday. They hurried to the corner in time to see the first float pass, and watched the entire parade with interest.

"Look at the two children," cried Bert suddenly. On the float approaching was a representation of a little boy and a larger girl playing with a toy stove near a window, with the curtain of thin material flying out in the breeze into the flames.

"Playing with fire cost $101,582 last year," read Gladys slowly. "I had no idea so many bad fires could start that way."

"That means just in New York City," replied Uncle Bob. "It would be much more if we counted the cost of fires like that all over the country."

There were other floats in the parade, showing the danger of carelessness with matches, bonfires and other things from which a bad fire might start, and the fire department had its engines and other apparatus on exhibit, too. But somehow that float showing the danger of playing with fire made more impression upon Bert and Gladys than anything else, and later in the day, when they were at the Bronx Park, Gladys said:

"I'm going to be careful about playing with fire, and I'm going to tell every one I know how dangerous it is. Mother has always warned us, but I didn't realize how much harm it could do."

"There is another way to play with fire that is even more dangerous," answered Uncle Bob.

"What way?" asked Bert.

"To do things that are harmful to your body and mind and keep them from being strong and well," was the reply. "Using cigarettes, for instance. Tobacco stunts your growth, makes your mind less active, takes away your power of endurance, and dulls your tools—your brain and nerves and muscles, that you must depend on to succeed in the world. If you start to smoke, it is like starting a fire where there are shavings and other things that will burn easily, for you start a habit that is one of the hardest in the world to break off, and that will do you all kinds of damage. It is the same way with taking liquor—it does you no good, but an immense amount of harm. Most of the crimes are the result of liquor drinking, as policemen and judges will tell you. As you grow older you may be tempted to try these things 'just once,' but remember what it costs to play with fire, and say 'No,' if liquor and tobacco are offered you."

"We've learned in school how harmful alcohol and tobacco are." Bert spoke thoughfully. "But I never thought before how hard it would be to stop if you once started to use them."

"The best thing to do is never to start," said Gladys wisely.—Journal and Messenger.

JOHN H. COCHRAN.

The subject of this sketch, John H. Cochran, was born in Green County, Ala., September 26, 1825; and died at his home in Daleville, Miss., March 25, 1915. Early in life, he moved with his parents to the State of Mississippi, and located in Lauderdale County, where he lived until the day of his translation, and where the imperishable influence of his noble life still lives. His father, Samuel H. Cochran, was the first sheriff of Lauderdale County. His official bond, in the sum of $15,000, payable to A. S. McNutt, Governor, and dated June 18, 1838, is on record in the first Book of Records of Lauderdale County, with Vincent Delk, Peter Doty, Stephen Lacy, and Benjamin Harry given as sureties. J. H. Cochran was a nephew of Rev. Robt. Smith Finly, D.D., who for eighteen years was a prominent member of the Alabama Conference, filling some of the most important stations in that Conference; and who, in 1854, was transferred to the East Texas Conference, where he was a conspicuous figure until the day of his death.

Brother Cochran was twice married. His first marriage was to Miss Hellen G. Hightower, of Lauderdale County, with whom he lived happily for 46 years. Her pure, self-sacrificing love was an inspiration to him in meeting the responsibilities of a growing family. God called her home on March 8, 1884. To this union twelve children were born—ten sons, and two daughters. One son, Pinkney L. Cochran, died in infancy. James S. and Edward N. Cochran died in the bloom of young manhood. The eldest son, William H. Cochran, who died later in life, entered the field of journalism, and was for a time the successful editor of the East Mississippi Times, at Starkville, Miss. Another son, Dr. T. J. Cochran, a prominent physician of Daleville, Miss., died on March 12, 1915. Two daughters and five sons still live to cherish the memory of the consecrated life of their sainted father. One of the daughters married H. P. Harrington, a prominent citizen of the county, whose death several years ago left her a widow with several children. She lives at the old home near Daleville, Miss. The second daughter, Mrs. Annie Temple, was left a widow by the death of her husband, and now lives in Meridian. C. W. Cochran, whose success in the lumber business has placed him among the foremost business men of the State, lives in Meridian. Judge Robt. F. Cochran, a leading lawyer of Meridian, was at one time Circuit Judge of the Tenth Judicial District. Samuel L. Cochran is a successful physician in Louisville, Ky. John B. Cochran is a prominent lawyer in Nacatee, Fla., and George C. Cochran, of McAlister, Okla., is a man of affairs in the business line of that growing State. Brother Cochran was married the second time on September 17, 1885, to Mrs. Jane Elizabeth Glenn, widow of Dr. Glenn of Lauderdale County. Her rare virtues of Christian womanhood made her a blessing to him in his declining years. She still lives to mourn his death.

The old South gave to the new South a man of splendid character in the person of John H. Cochran. Born and reared under the influence of the old South, he inherited the instincts and high ideals peculiar to that period, and in every relation in life he exemplified the honor and courage of that type of manhood produced by the old South. He was a patriotic citizen, and ever stood for that form of government which guarantees to every citizen his rights. When that dark period of sectional strife hung like a pall over the country, he responded to the call of the South with a daring courage which only the brave and true can maintain. In matters of civic obligation, he had a fine sense of personal responsibility, and unswervingly followed his convictions of right. In his home he maintained the dignity of authority, but always with due consideration for the happiness and welfare of his family. He was a good husband, a kind father, and gave himself industriously to providing for the comforts of a large family. His modest home was open to his many friends, and they always found a cordial welcome under his roof. His home was the preachers' home, and many a prophet of God shared his liberal hospitality, and went away to call him "blessed."

At the age of twenty, Brother Cochran gave his heart to God and united with the Methodist Church. For more than fifty years he served faithfully as steward in the Church of his choice. He believed in the old-time order of Methodism, and held firmly for the "faith once delivered to the saints." The conscientious devotion of his life to the cause of Christianity, and the intelligent consecration of his time, money and energy to the Church, evidenced his appreciation of the high commission of a Christian gentleman.

At a ripe old age Brother Cochran heard the call to share the rewards of the faithful in the Church Triumphant, and he answered that call in full assurance that "It is not death to die,

To leave this weary road,
And join the brotherhood on high,
And be at home with God."

May the God whom he served comfort the aged wife and guide the children and grandchildren in the "paths of righteousness for his Name's sake."

A GREAT DIFFERENCE.

The opinion seems to prevail among many that the General Conference of the Methodist Church, North, endorsed the plan for unification adopted by our own General Conference in 1914. The fact of the matter is that the Church, South, declared for federation along safe and comprehensive lines. The Quadrennial Conferences that it proposed were to have power to protect sectional interests and to solve sectional problems, with authority to establish Conference boundary lines and elect their own Bishops. Further, the Negro was to be eliminated absolutely in the scheme of reorganization. The Church, North, proposes nothing short of complete union with a single General Conference as the supreme legislative, executive and judicial power. It positively refuses to eliminate the Negro. We do not doubt the sincerity of the Northern wing of Methodism in its efforts to effect a working relationship between itself and the Church, South. It is reported that a mighty spirit of religious enthusiasm, burdened with humility, moved the Northern General Conference in its recent step. That this Conference could be so religiously fervent and still adopt such abortive resolutions in regard to unification, is convincing indeed of the great gulf fixed between us that only time can eradicate. Had feelings of superiority, of condescension, and of undue egotism been the prevalent tone of the movement, we might hope for an abridgement of our difficulties, for these faults can be overcome by the grace of God. The spirit of unconscious proprietorship ever and anon arises among our brethren of the North in regard to what they seem to think are their Southern provinces, and they open their jaws to swallow us up—churches, schools, hospitals, and all—at one mighty gulp. But the Southern Church has never favored such a procedure.

Seventy-two years of history are behind the two Churches as they have trod their separate paths in serving God. Their differences do not lie so much in the religious realm, nor even in the moral, but in that broad field of industrial and social conditions which so distinctly differentiate between the North and the South. The line of cleavage is clearly marked, for those along the firing-line of each Church, as they face one another, get their inspiration from the one or the other territory which is so divergent from its opposite. That we of the South could be so misunderstood that our Northern brethren still persist in shoving upon us the Negro question, with its attendant dangers, is hardly believable! Bishop Wilbur Patterson Thirkield, the resident Bishop in this section of the Northern Methodist Church, stated to us only to-day that never, never would the Northern Church relinquish the Negro. Bishop Thirkield certainly is in a position to know. The matter of the Church, North, diligently pursuing the course of conquest in the South by spending its missionary money and placing its Bishops here for the purpose of overseeing white members, raises a question that must be answered. Atlanta is proportionately the most thickly populated Methodist city on the globe; still Northern Methodism persists in building with missionary money a Church in that city and establishing a Bishop there to see after the white constituents. We feel, in the face of such facts, that Northern Methodism does not understand us; its opinion of us must be of an estimate that we hesitate to express. This state of affairs is somewhat of a reflection upon the Northern Church, for it manifests a lack of information and fraternity that is appalling. If we know anything of equity and justice, it is not for the South to alter its essential positions, but for the North to modify its mood, its estimate, in regard to the South.

Again, the Northern Church has grown far away from that old stock from which both organizations sprung in the early part of the nineteenth century. The evidences of the most radical changes are seen in their Church polity. They have a different view of the episcopacy from us, they have removed the time limit, they have fostered woman's suffrage both in Church and State, they have radically changed the organization of their various general boards, and they differ from us in the manner of handling our Church papers. In fact, the Churches are so separated by a hundred major and minor differences that reorganization seems altogether impracticable. All of these matters are but the evidences of a really different people from what we know in the South. If the points of variance were merely upon the surface the problem would be an easy one; but the warp and woof of the people of the North and South are different; they think differently, they act differently, they reach different conclusions by the same given facts; and they are different. No Church government could ever incorporate both sections under one autonomy unless it were characterized by an elasticity resembling that of the government of the United States with its great respect for States' rights. Some day this condition may obtain, but for the present it seems far away.

C. A. B.

THE WAR AND THIS COUNTRY.

Financially, the European War now in progress since the fall of 1914 has been a source of great gain to the people of the United States in all sections. Cotton, the chief product of the South, has soared in price; Louisiana's sugar industry has been saved, which means millions to this section of the country; the iron and steel industries of the North have been overworked with orders for their products at top prices; the grain crops of the West have been marketed with large gain to the producer; the banks of this country at this time are filled with gold to be loaned to anybody who can furnish security, which is quite different from normal world conditions we often have to face.

Our Church has profited by these conditions. In 1915 the value of our houses of worship increased $2,019,129, the indebtedness on same decreased $1,248,790; for Home and Conference Missions the Church paid in excess of the year preceding $16,179, and for Foreign Missions alone an excess of $60,495. The Publishing Houses, for the year ending February 29, showed sales of $1,033,427.48; and their net profits were $109,817.83. The revenues of the Church Extension Board increased $11,081. It is interesting to note that the discrepancies between 1913 and 1914 were on the opposite side of the balance sheet, for Home and Conference Missions decreased $10,000, Foreign Missions $35,000 and Church Extension $17,000.

God has wonderfully blessed us in our recovery from the financial depression of the fall of 1914. We are again on our feet financially. But as we reap the golden harvest the great end of the horn of plenty should be turned to those in need across the seas.

C. A. B.

OUR CHURCH SCHOOLS.

This is the time of year for our people to remember their denominational schools. The young people of the Advocate constituency are urged to consider seriously the Church school in the vicinity before thinking of going off to a secular institution. They may not see the great necessity of choosing the school of religious convictions now, but later in life the realization will probably strike home when it may be too late. The Church maintains its institutions, at great cost, because of the need for its schools. Those of a religious and strictly moral frame of mind see more clearly as time passes the harm and danger, so menacing to the higher ideals, that go along with State school education. Doubtless the State has its educational mission to fulfill, and no one should lift a hand against the institutions it maintains; for it reaches a class of people in all social stratas who would not educate its youth at all unless it could be done through a State institution, which indicates the lack of moral and spiritual conceptions. We can only hope that the day will come when Christian enlightenment will so overtake the modernism of the present that all our institutions, both denominational and secular, will be lighted by a great religious awakening. Whatever institution, at home or abroad, appeals merely to the mental man and leaves the moral and religious to be jeopardized from the lack of provision of proper moral and religious aid becomes a menace to the home and to the Church.

C. A. B.

THE TRAGEDY OF THE UNPREPARED.

The thousands of people who marched in parades in New Orleans and other cities fear the tragedy of the unprepared for national defense. But the greatest of all tragedies is that of an unprepared heart. The bloody figure of the war god, trampling upon defenseless America, is the spector of the patriotic imagination which our people identify with the ruthless tragedian of the unprepared. But the greatest of all tragedies is not that of a proud people ground under the heel of the conqueror; it is a wrecked human life.

In many instances in Holy Writ, we learn of the folly of being unprepared. There is the sad case of the man who had not put on the wedding garment. The foolish builder seemed to think that the skies overhead would be as changeless as those of Egypt. And when he built his house upon the sand, he did not foresee that the rains would descend, and the floods would come, and the winds would blow and beat upon that house, and it would fall, and great would be the fall of it. The five foolish virgins also illustrate the tragedy of being unprepared.

The Parable of the Ten Virgins is one of the most beautiful of all the parables. Some one has said: "The arts have been made to minister to its illustration: poetry, painting, and the drama have combined to give it an exceptional hold on the Christian imagination. * * * A parable like this one would rather silently read than expound; for exposition is almost sure to mean turning poetry into prose." But sometimes poetry is better than prose. Sometimes the distant view is more satisfying. When the Great Stone Face was viewed from afar, it wore an aspect at once grand and sweet. It seemed like the glow of a vast, warm heart that embraced all mankind in its affections, and yet had room for more. But when one approached quite near to the majestic image in the mountains, the very features of the face, the likeness of a human countenance disappeared, and one saw only a mass of rocks, piled in chaotic ruin, one upon another.

Sometimes it may be true that we set too much store by all the details of a parable, and lose the main truth. Sometimes we may try to write a spiritual truth into that which may be only a mere accessory of the story, from which the parable is formed. Though we may not enter into all the details of this parable, we feel a sense of the tragic in reading it. The foolish virgins failed to do what they were expected to do, because they were not prepared. The parable is a tragedy of the unprepared.

Some men are unprepared to meet the duties and responsibilities which God imposes upon them, because their manner of living has not led them to feel a brother's need and a brother's woe, and because they have not been empowered by the Spirit for work in the kingdom. Some are unprepared for the great trials of life, because their shallow Christian experience has not strengthened them against the evil hour.

And alas! the day of probation ends, the time comes when the unprepared stand before a closed door, which they are not permitted to enter. Nothing can be more tragic than a doorway of life closed against those who flee from death. The foolish virgins came to a closed door and knocked upon it in vain. So those who, through selfishness, close the door of heaven upon others, also close it upon themselves. The last tragedy of the unprepared is a closed door, and they knock at its portals, and cry aloud; without avail. "Watch therefore," said the Master. R. H. H.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. T. J. Norsworthy, one of our preachers who has served important charges in this section, and now doing evangelist work, called at the Advocate office Friday while in the city on a visit.

On page 6 of this issue of the Advocate is a short article by Dr. S. A. Steel entitled "Saratoga Scheme Would Be Ruinous." We commend it to the careful consideration of our readers. It is illuminating.

Rev. H. N. McKibben, our pastor at Harperville, Miss., in a business letter, states: "Our new circuit is manifesting considerable interest, and we hope to begin work on our new parsonage within a few weeks."

Rev. J. E. Craig, a local preacher within the bounds of the Louisiana Conference, says: "Should any of the brethren desire my services in protracted meetings, they may address me at Baton Rouge, La., P. O. Box 52."

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Field Secretary of the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference, recently made a trip to Birmingham, Ala., to attend a meeting of the North Alabama Federation of Bible Classes.

Some one addressed an envelope to the Christian Advocate from Lake Charles, La., but failed to enclose the letter or to put the return address in the left-hand corner. This notice may serve to inform the sender of the error.

Dr. F. N. Parker, our beloved Louisianian whom we have loaned to Emory University for a while, is at Baton Rouge for a few days. He preached with great acceptability at the First Methodist Church of that city last Sunday.

Rev. J. R. Jones, presiding elder of the Seashore District, Mississippi Conference, informs us that Rev. E. C. Gunn, our pastor at Long Beach, Miss., was operated upon on the 12th inst. at the King's Daughters' Hospital, Gulfport, for appendicitis. We hope for Brother Gunn's speedy recovery.

"An Old-Fashioned Methodist," as a good friend to the preachers terms himself, expresses, on page 15 of this issue of the Advocate, his views on certain interesting matters. That we, as preachers, cling close to the Lord and preach the Gospel, is the great end to which we have been called.

Rev. D. R. Wesson, of Jonestown, Miss., had a very narrow escape in the recent storm sweeping over parts of Mississippi and other States. He says: "I am thankful that I escaped the cyclone with as few injuries. I was in the Linfield House, which was literally torn to pieces. I was left lying on a clean floor with no roof over me. My brother was thrown into the yard."

Rev. H. T. Carley, of the Louisiana Conference, who teaches at Centenary College, Shreveport, La., is now at Ellisville, Miss., and his mail should be addressed to him there. Brother Carley will be glad to assist in protracted meetings this summer; and we assure our preachers that they will find in him the highest type of Christian minister and a strong and forceful speaker.

Rev. A. C. McCorkle, of Tunica, Miss., in a letter enclosing a list of subscriptions, says: "Things are going well with us. We have bought new pews for our Church at Tunica and have raised $1500 for all purposes. I have had conversions at each evening service for the last two Sundays. Rev. S. L. Pope assisted me in a meeting at Robinsonville and it was successful. Brother Pope is fine help."

Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, presiding elder of the Port Gibson District, Mississippi Conference, agrees with the Editor—we say this in the Editor's absence—in matters pertaining to Church interests at the present. Brother Sharbrough says: "I am still enjoying the Advocate and am doing my best for it. I think we never had a better paper. This may be because I agree with you in most things."

"I expect to go back to Centenary," says Rev. H. T. Carley, of Centenary College. "I think the session just closed, in some respects, the best since I have been connected with the school. The attendance was not any larger than usual, but the work generally was better, I think. I believe Centenary is doing a fine work for Louisiana Methodism. The indications now point to a good attendance next fall."

The funeral services of Rev. J. R. Robertson were held at Pontotoc, Miss., in the Methodist Church on June 6, at 3 p. m., conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. M. Young, assisted by Rev. R. P. Goar, Rev. S. L. Pope, and Rev. R. P. Nehlett. The floral offerings were beautiful. A great company of people atended the services. Brother Robertson was once pastor at Pontotoc and his memory lives in the hearts of the people.

Rev. A. S. Lutz, the popular presiding elder of the Monroe District, Louisiana Conference, sends the Advocate a duplicate of the quarterly report of his district. It shows that 227 were received into the Church during the quarter, which ended May 22; 7 revival meetings were held; $9164 was raised for all purposes. Gains are registered in all the important lines of work. The Monroe District will prosper under the guiding hand of Brother Lutz.

We thank the following friends for new and renewal subscriptions, as follows: Rev. G. W. Gordon, Noxapater, Miss., 4; Rev. H. M. Young, Vaiden, Miss., 3; Rev. C. E. Downer, Shubuta, Miss., 6; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., Madison Station, Miss., 3; Rev. R. G. Lord, Taylor, Miss., 4; Rev. A. C. McCorkle, Tunica, Miss., 2; Rev. E. H. Simpson, High Point, Miss., 5; Rev. J. A. Goad, Myrtle, Miss., 2; Rev. J. H. Smith, Carrollton, Miss., 3; Rev. J. H. Grice, Glancy, Miss., 6; Rev. J. T. Weems, Carriere, Miss., 7; Rev. R. H. Bamburg, Eros, La., 2; R. T. Ware, Noble, La., 4.

Mrs. Sidney Hodges, a worthy worker of the W. C. T. U. at Booneville, Miss., says of Rev. L. M. Lipscomb, the presiding elder of the Winona District, North Mississippi Conference, and his wife, that they "both hold a very warm place in the hearts of all our people. Brother Lipscomb is a great preacher. He appeals to the young people as well as to the old; he is a rare specialist in the direction of young life. We do not think the district will hold him long, for his greatness is keeping pace with his stature. He should be the president of some big university."

The Advocate is in receipt of folders containing programs of the District Conferences of the Aberdeen and Durant Districts of the North Mississippi Conference. Rev. Jno. W. Bell is the presiding elder of the former district, and Rev. E. H. Rook is the preacher in charge at Vardaman, where the Conference will be held. Rev. W. W. Mitchell is the presiding elder of the latter district, and Rev. T. M. Bradley is the pastor at Durant, the seat of the District Conference. We wish both of the Conferences unlimited success in the work that is undertaken. The programs show that careful plans have been laid.

Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of First Methodist Church; Rev. A. J. Gearheard, pastor of Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church; Dr. George Summey, Editor of the Presbyterian Journal, and Rev. U. D. Mooney, pastor of the Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian Church, composed a committee, from the New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association, which recently made a trip to Kansas City, Mo., to interview the Rev. Wm. Sunday relative to holding a meeting in New Orleans. Dr. Werlein states that Mr. Sunday would not consider the matter at present, and further said it would be two years before he could give it his serious attention.

Rev. W. W. Perry, our pastor at Boyce, La., encloses us a list of 15 subscriptions. He has our thanks for his fine work for the Advocate. Brother Perry states: "We have just closed a good meeting at Glenmora, where Rev. J. W. Faulk is pastor. While with him I secured these subscriptions, making 60 renewal, and 6 new, subscriptions for this year. The meeting at Glenmora began May 28 and continued through June 6. Nearly 30 members applied for membership, with more to follow. Brother Faulk has received about 65 members this Conference year to date. He has a large field and many responsibilities, and he is doing well for it. All goes well with us at Boyce."

Rev. R. S. Walton, of Bunkie, La., who acted as secretary at the recent session of the Alexandria District Conference, writes: "The Conference closed to-day (June 9); 36 answered to the roll-call—20 preachers and 16 laymen. Thursday was given almost entirely to the laymen. W. S. Holmes, of Baton Rouge; R. O. Randle, of Monroe; T. W. Holloman, of Alexandria; Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, Sunday School Field Secretary, Dr. R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College, Mrs. Percy Holt, of Crowley, and Mrs. Winstead, of Natchitoches, were the principal speakers at the Conference. There were no applicants for license to preach. The Layman's Day proved the most profitable of the session, while the entire Conference was pleasant and helpful."

Bishop Wilbur Patterson Thirkield, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, residing at New Orleans, and having charge of the Conferences among the white and colored people of that Church in this section, called Monday at the Advocate office. He was enthusiastic over the question of union between the two great branches of Methodism. Bishop Thirkield was on the Commission of Sixty, and on the special Committee of Fifteen, at the General Conference at Saratoga, and took great part in formulating the plans for union that were passed. He states that the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, only contemplated embodying in the plans for union the Negroes that now are a part of its organization, and, if the Church, South, desired, those of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church; which limitation he thinks would alleviate any difficulties regarding white supremacy in that portion of the proposed organization in the South. Bishop Thirkield is very definite in his convictions that the Northern Methodist Church will never agree to relinquish the Negro, and stated firmly that the sentiment of the whole Northern Church was in this direction. Since he was an important factor in the shaping of the sentiment of the General Conference at Saratoga, and since he is a minister from the very heart of Northern Methodism, he should know whereof he speaks, and his words may be quoted with somewhat of authority. The Bishop further states that Northern Methodism is distinctly for union, and not for federation. It is hard for one of the Church, South, to see the difference between having at the beginning, in the proposed united Church, a half million Negroes only, instead of the two million that would be in the fold if other Negro Churches were admitted that have been mentioned in this connection—first, for the gap would be laid down, and it would only be a question of a short time before all the others would be included; and, second, the social side of the matter would remain at the same status, so far as the South is concerned, whether there were included 500,000 or 2,000,000.

Mrs. EUGENIA C. CARMICHAEL was born on July 8, 1836, and departed this life on February 22, 1914, at her home at Utica, Miss. She was a sister of the late Attorney General Thomas Ford and of Dr. T. B. Ford, of Columbia, Miss. She was married to Mr. Martin Ford on February 8, 1855, and to this union three children were born. The husband and father was taken from them on December 16, 1858, and she was left with the care of her little ones. On December 12, 1861, she was married to Mr. W. D. Carmichael, and to them were born eight children. She was survived by her husband and all of her children, except Dora Ford, who died in infancy, and her second son, Dr. W. P. Carmichael, who died on September 3, 1894. Mrs. Carmichael was a saintly Christian woman. She was truly one of God's ministering angels on earth. She was ever ready to comfort those in sorrow or distress; and in her quiet life, devoted to her home and family. She was an inspiration, not only to her own children, but to the entire community in which she lived. While she had her part in rearing a large family, still there were others to whom she was indeed a mother. For more than fifty years she was a faithful wife and companion to him whom she left behind when she crossed over the river, where she is now awaiting the last home coming.

G. L. HARRELL.

IN MEMORIAM.

Whereas, God in his wisdom, on the 8th day of May, 1916, summoned our brother, WADE C. McCRARY, to receive the reward prepared for the faithful; therefore be it resolved:

1. That in the death of Mr. McCrary the Methodist Church of Byhalia, Miss., loses a zealous and consecrated member, the Board of Stewards a valued co-worker, the community a citizen of upright character and constant influence for good, and his children a tender and affectionate father.

2. That, while recalling his many virtues and remembering his consistent Christian life, we are comforted by the consciouness that he died in the Lord, and that he is at peace in that happy home prepared for those who are faithful until death.

3. That we deeply sympathize with his bereaved family and our prayer is that "the Lord, who doeth all things well," will abide with and comfort them in their affliction.

4. That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate; also to his pastor, and his family.

Signed: W. H. French, Thos. D. Burrow, Committee.

THE GOING AWAY OF A NOBLE CHRISTIAN WOMAN.

On Tuesday, May 15, 1916, Mrs. L. A. Forsyth, wife of the late Rev. J. L. Forsyth, who for many years was an honored member of the Mississippi Conference, died at her home in Sharon, Wisconsin.

Sister Forsyth was Miss Laura Steele before her marriage to Brother Forsyth, and was a niece of the Rev. Elijah Steele, one of the noted preachers of the early days of Methodism in Mississippi. It may not be inappropriate to state that Brother Forsyth was instrumental in the conversion of Bishop Marvin; and that Sister Forsyth was a cousin to the first wife of Bishop Waterhouse.

After the death of her husband, she moved to Washington, D. C., where she resided with her stepdaughter, Mrs. Mildred Lovejoy, and educated her only son, Steele Forsyth, for the medical profession. On the death of her daughter she moved with her son, Steele, to Sharon, Wis., where he is enjoying a lucrative practice of his profession.

Sister Forsyth was a woman possessed of many admirable graces—those rich and beautiful graces which combine to form a strong character and a charming personality, and which fitted her for the place she filled so eminently as the helpmeet of the preacher. Her death was not a surprise, and yet it was not expected just at the time it came. We are to believe by every token of a consecrated Christian life that she was prepared for the summons, and died in the triumphs of a living faith in Christ.

Three children—a stepdaughter, Mrs. Melson of Baton Rouge, La., a stepson, the Rev. W. G. Forsyth, a prominent member of the Mississippi Conference, and her only son, Dr. Steele Forsyth, together with an innumerable company of friends, are left to lament her going. Her remains were brought back to her Mississippi home at Crystal Springs, accompanied by her devoted son, Dr. Forsyth; and after lingering for a little while in the old church she loved so much, that sorrowing friends might bow together around the sacred altar in solemn prayer to God, she was tenderly laid to rest by the loving hands of the friends of other days in the City Cemetery, close by the side of her honored and exalted husband, there to await the resurrection of the just.

OAK RIDGE CHARGE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Dr. Meek: On Sunday, May 28, at Bovina Church, Oak Ridge charge, we organized a Ladies' Aid Society with 14 members. While this society will not be recognized by our Church, yet I feel sure it is a step in the right direction and will mean much in the way of religious and social progress among the women of the little town; and, also, I am sure it will mean much in the way of needed improvement to the church and premises. The outcome of the society, if they continue an organization, I feel sure; will be a Woman's Missionary Society.

I am glad to say in this connection that I am more and more encouraged over the prospects of Oak Ridge charge; there is a "going" in the mulberry trees, and I feel sure the needed revival is coming. Amen.

Yours in Christ,
J. A. WELLS.

DON'T USE SOAP
on your hair. It is too strongly alkaline and will do a great deal of damage. The hair should be of a soft and silken texture. Each individual hair is of delicate construction and requires scientific, careful treatment. If your hair is harsh, dry, course and scanty, then you are not giving it proper treatment. The hair needs food just as the rest of your body, and in order to keep your scalp nourished and your hair plentiful and beautiful, you should supply it with the proper food and treatment. The Creoles of Louisiana possessed a formula for keeping the hair beautiful and for many years kept the secret to themselves, but now you may enjoy their discovery by using "La Creole" Hair Color Restorer, the same recipe which the Creoles used. It darkens hair in the natural way and keeps the scalp in healthy condition. For sale by all reliable dealers. Price $1.00. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn.—Adv.

A REMARKABLE STATEMENT

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill. — "While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. SHELDON, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If any complication exists it pays to write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special free advice.

Sunday School

NORTH MISSISSIPPI NOTES.

By Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Sardis, Miss.

The Efficiency Conference recently held at Grenada, Miss., had a great program, was great in attendance, and will be great in its results. The one to be held next year will be greater in all the points mentioned.

Have you sent your Children's Day offering to Rev. V. C. Curtis, Lexington? Have you held Children's Day services? If not; maybe your presiding elder can help you, or may be your Field Secretary can start things to going. Ask for help if you need it.

Have you studied Billy Sunday's method of winning men by the thousand? He uses the organized Bible class to prepare the way, to carry on, and conserve the results of his wonderful evangelistic campaigns.

Ten years ago the horse and buggy conveyed people through the country at about six miles an hour; to-day the car conveys the same people at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour.

Ten years ago our revival methods did fairly well in meeting the needs of the day. We are now forced to use different methods. We must discover and train a large number of people to be used of God before the revival, during the revival, and after the revival, in winning men for Christ. Study and work the plans of the Wesley Bible Class and you will find a method that meets the demands of this restless age. We have got to catch men by moving faster than a "machine." It will take thought, work, prayer. God moves this way.

Look out for a challenge from the Sardis and Holly Springs Districts to the Aberdeen and Durant Districts for a contest in organizing Wesley Bible Classes. Such a contest ought to result in the organization and enrollment of one hundred new classes within sixty days. Through these classes we ought to bring in a thousand or more adults to study God's Word and win hundreds to our Savior. This kind of a contest will bring permanent results to the glory of God and the upbuilding of His kingdom through organized, spirit-filled Methodism. The Wesley Bible Class is the latest, best method of discovering and training men for every department of church work.

TO SUPERINTENDENTS.

I clip the following terse paragraphs from the June number of the "Workers' Council" and pass it on to others through the New Orleans Christian Advocate. If you happen not to be a Sunday school superintendent, just call your superintendent's attention to it the next time you see him. These lines describe what Mr. J. M. Way, the Field Secretary for the Atlantic Division, calls "The Kind of Superintendent I Would Like to Have." It sets a pretty high standard, but Methodism has always been a Church with high standards.

1. One who is called of God.
2. One who is a fine executive.
3. One who consults the pastor.
4. One who smiles while at work.
5. One who reads good literature.
6. One who is a model Christian.
7. One who has a written program.
8. One who praises his colaborers.
9. One who prays for the teachers.
10. One who is trained for the work.
11. One who is careful to be on time.
12. One who brings and uses his Bible.
13. One who reads his Bible every day.
14. One who uses tact and good judgment.
15. One who attends the Church services.
16. One who studies the Sunday school lessons.
17. One who shakes hands as though he means it.
18. One whose interest in the work is contagious.
19. One who makes the Sunday school "go" during the summer.

MONROE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Monroe District Conference will be held at Rayville, La., from June 21 to 23. The opening sermon will be preached by Rev. C. C. Miller, of Lake Providence, on June 20, at 8 p. m.

Those delegates who expect to attend will please inform the pastor, Rev. H. N. Harrison. A full attendance on the part of the laymen is expected.

ALBERT S. LUTZ, P. E.

SEASHORE DISTRICT NOTES.

Our presiding elder is just beginning his third round of quarterly conferences. He reports a steady progress on practically every charge in the district during the first six months of the year. Our district conference at Biloxi was one of the very best it has ever been the privilege of the writer to attend. The business was dispatched without a jar and without undue haste. Wrangling and "fuss-and feather" speech-making were conspicuously absent from all the sessions. The laymen of the district were there for work and inspiration, and were given both. Dr. Robert Selby made a great speech at the 11 o'clock hour, Thursday. Brother Neill, with his posters and his personality, kept the Sunday school work before us during the entire session. The jolly correspondent to the Advocate from the Hattiesburg District was there to represent Whitworth College. Brother Adams will never suffer for lack of a word.

Brother Grice has been doing a great work on the Mentorum charge. His thirty or forty days in the hospital at New Orleans will not seriously interfere with his work, as his plans are being ably carried out by Brother Broome. It is reported that on the Vancleave charge, Brother Blackwell is doing his best year's service. "Uncle Lonie" Fayard is serving his ninth year as pastor of the Wolf River Mission. He has only baptized about thirty babies to date, but is not at all discouraged, believing that he will reach well up toward the hundred mark before Conference. "Uncle Lonie" is an institution.

We are expecting great things of our district this year in the way of revival work. From the ring of the reports at the district conference it would seem that the brethren are preparing for a strenuous campaign of evangelistic effort during the summer months. The district parsonage will soon be so far completed as to allow Dr. Jones and his family to move into it. Funds are still badly needed, both for the work of rebuilding and for the indebtedness. ELMER C. GUNN.

Long Beach, Miss.

Calomel Makes You Sick, Ugh!

"Dodson's Liver Tone" better than calomel and can not salivate.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quicksilver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomel just remember that your druggist sells for 50 cents a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring you up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calomel! It makes you sick the next day; it loses you a day's work. Dodson's Liver Tone straightens you right up and you feel great. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't gripe.

WHERE DRUGS FAIL.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer from chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gall stones, kidney or liver disease, uric acid poisoning or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported "no beneficial results." This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

THE BIBLE IN CHINA.

The American Bible Society last year circulated twice as many Bibles in China as in the United States. There were circulated 1,184,991 in our country and 2,244,746 in China. This Society has printed the Book in seventeen dialects for that country. This means we long for the revolution of China for this Word "giveth light." No people can read it without becoming an enlightened and progressive nation.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

THE GREAT PROBLEM OF FATIGUE.

Has it ever occurred to you that practically every adult person, who works, is an habitual drinker of some beverage other than water? Physicians have explained the reason. They tell us that mental and physical work inevitably produce "Fatigue," which is nothing more nor less than Nature's call for refreshment or for stimulation. Under modern conditions of life (which we call civilization) it is impractical for most of us to drop our work simply because we are tired, and yet the scientists tell us to continue our work during fatigue is absolutely injurious to our nerves and muscles.

They explain that under such circumstances the judicious use of refreshing beverages relieves the fatigue by removing the resistance to the nervous and muscular impulses, making our work easier and lighter, in very much the same way that oiling a machine reduces the friction and prevents its becoming overheated.

Nature has provided us with the ideal lubricants to overcome the injurious effects of fatigue. They are the xanthin (pronounced zan-thin) beverages, including beef tea, cocoa, coca-cola, chocolate, tea and coffee. The scientists tell us that the xanthin beverages refresh the nerves and muscles by a process similar to actual lubrication and without affecting the will in the least, therefore without exciting one to overexertion as is the case with artificial stimulants.

In the case of beef tea and other meat extracts the refreshing principle is an animal product called xanthin; in cocoa and chocolate, a vegetable xanthin known as di-methyl-xanthin, or caffeln. When these beverages are digested they are all converted into the animal form of xanthin, which is a normal and constant ingredient of the flesh and blood of all animals and is essentially abundant in the tissues of young animals and children. Many scientists regard this xanthin as the natural stimulant and as the explanation of the remarkable freshness, alertness and activity of children and young animals. As we grow older the quantity of xanthin in our bodies gradually diminishes, we become less alert and active, and feel a great need for the xanthin beverages.

Coca-Cola is therefore the same as tea and coffee except that it is carbonated, is flavored with ripe fruit extracts and contains no tonic acid or caffeol. The carbonation of the fruit flavors combine with the caffein to give a delicious and refreshing beverage that quenches the thirst and relieves fatigue more perfectly than tea or coffee, in spite of the fact that coca-cola contains only about one half as much of the active principle, trimethyl xanthin.

In their desire to give the public a thorough understanding of their product, The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet containing the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities, explaining the composition and the refreshing qualities of the drink. Write for a copy, read it carefully and you will understand why Coca-Cola is the nearest approach to a perfect solution of the world's greatest problem of fatigue. A copy of this booklet may be had by addressing The Coca-Cola Co., Department "C," Atlanta, Ga.—Adv.

THE COST OF HIGH LIVING.

Eighty-eight million gallons of whisky were made in the United States last year. Who drank it all?

Fifteen billion cigarettes were manufactured in the United States last year. Who smoked them all?

Thirty-two million pounds of snuff were manufactured in the United States last year. Who did all the sneezing?

Two hundred and twenty million pounds of smoking tobacco were made last year. Who had all the pipe dreams?

Eight and a half billion cigars were made in the United States last year. Who made all the smoke?

Half a billion packages of chewing gum were manufactured last year in the United States. Who worked their jaws?

Twenty thousand moving picture theaters paid $25,000,000 for films last year and 11,000,000 persons saw the moving pictures. Where did they get all the dimes and nickels?

Ten billion copies of newspapers were printed in this country last year. Who took time to read them?

One hundred and seventy thousand clergymen preached in two hundred and twenty thousand churches last year, and the congregations, of all denominations, numbered forty milllon. Who went to church?

It is interesting to know what is going on in this country—the things that people are doing and who are doing them—and why.—Leslie's Weekly.

COLLEGE AND RELIGION.

The amazing literary, historic, and scientific accumulation of recent years has led to a state of perplexity in the face of certain religious problems for which traditional conceptions are no longer adequate. A new spirit of toleration has come with the influx of vast foreign populations. The Church needs what the college stands for because, if religion is to be preserved, the convictions of its worth must come from a reasoned confidence that it is coherent, consistent with human experience, and adaptable to each new addition to the stock of human knowledge. The clergy must be progressive with its determinations reached by scientific methods. The college and higher education generally need religion. The religious impulse and the Christian ideal are among the most potent influences known to man for saving a college life from the purely mercenary, uselessly social, icily selfish, sodden, sensual elements.—Dr. Thomas Nicholson.

Calcium's Value in Tuberculosis

As a tonic and remedial agent in the treatment of tuberculosis, this element is being studied by scientists and physicians everywhere.

For more than two decades users of Eckman's Alterative have tested its efficacy in such cases, for calcium chlorid is one of the chief constituents of this preparation, which has produced beneficial results in thousands of instances. And in this form it is so combined as to be easily assimilated.

If you are thus afflicted, a trial may prove this to be just what is needed to assist Nature in bringing about a return to normal health.

It is safe to take, because it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM

"IN THE LAND OF THE SKY"

Asheville, North Carolina

The Biggs Sanitarium is situated in one of the most desirable residential sections of Asheville, a city famous for its beauty and healthfulness.

It is by no means a hospital where one is compelled to see and associate with those suffering from unsightly or contagious diseases, but a private sanitarium, where the victims of certain chronic ailments may regain health and strength under scientific direction and among pleasant surroundings.

At the Biggs Sanitarium all the various successful forms of physiological drugless treatment are employed: massage, remedial gymnastics, mechano-therapeutics, spondylo-therapy, electricity, hydro-therapy, high frequency, electric light baths, arc light, X-ray, vibration, with special treatment in certain ailments such as asthma, catarrh, paralysis. • Psychological treatment and mental training in indicated cases. Scientific regulation of diet is an important factor in our plan of cure.

We make a specialty of and very successfully treat chronic sufferers which ordinary methods of treatment fail to cure. We have been especially successful in the treatment of asthma, bronchitis, catarrh, dyspepsia, rheumatism, neuritis, neurasthenia, nervous debility, insomnia, melancholia, paralysis (including paralysis in children), and special diseases of men and women.

We do not accept cases of tuberculosis, cancer, insanity nor any case that we consider incurable or undesirable.

At the Biggs Sanitarium you will find all the comforts of home; the rooms are large and airy; the grounds surrounding the buildings are ample and well shaded, affording pleasant resting places for the patients. Our first effort is to render each patient comfortable and thoroughly at home, so he or she may obtain the full benefit of the treatment.

Our Guarantee: Every patient accepted for treatment is allowed one week in which to become acquainted with us and to become familiar with our methods, with the distinct understanding that if in any way dissatisfied, treatment may be discontinued at the end of the trial week, and there will be no charge.

If you are suffering from some chronic ailment which ordinary methods of treatment have failed to cure, if you are over-worked and run down and want to have a delightful outing amidst beautiful mountain scenery, and at the same time receive scientific treatment for your troubles, write for illustrated booklet of Asheville, "The Land of the Sky", pamphlet describing our methods, diagnosis blank, testimonials and the names of physicians, clergymen, lawyers and others who endorse our methods. Sent free to any address.

CORINTH DISTRICT MEETING.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Corinth District held its annual meeting in Booneville, April 24 and 25, with forty delegates and visitors present. The very efficient secretary, Miss Corinne Rogers, of New Albany, was in the chair, and the program was filled with good things for our women. We were most fortunate in having with us Mrs. Conger and Miss Dunstan, fresh from the Council Meeting. It was indeed an inspiration to listen to the messages brought back by these two officers. Most instructive institutes and discussions, bearing upon every department of our work, were held. Splendid reports were given by a number of societies, and when pledges were called for, over $800 was pledged from the district. At the Clarksdale conference Miss Rogers had set as our goal $900, and we are still hoping to attain to our goal.

Booneville makes an ideal hostess—in fact, her hospitality cannot be surpassed, and the attending delegates felt as if they should like to make Booneville, with her beautiful little church, a permanent place of meeting.

NEED OF A WOMAN'S MEDICAL COLLEGE, TAUGHT IN ENGLISH, FOR EAST CENTRAL CHINA.

Dr. Hattie F. Love, of our Woman's Medical College, Soochow, makes a very strong plea for a union medical college in East Central China, to be taught in English. Dr. Love is in a position to see and know the great need for such an institution, for the women of China still cling to their old customs, and would rather suffer untold agony in silence than call upon a male physician. True, there are some who have thrown off the old shackles, but the vast majority have not. The question is, "What are we going to do for these thousands?"

There are three medical schools for women in China; those for men far outnumber those for women. The money invested is out of proportion, too. The Rockefeller Commission is putting medical education for men on a more scientific and permanent basis, but it does not think the time ripe for the medical education of women. The Commission has carefully considered the subject and reports the greatest difficulty is the inability to get a sufficient number of girls with the necessary preliminary education. The China Medical Journal, May, 1915, in commenting upon the report of the Commission says: "If it were definitely announced that at some time in the future a medical college for women would be established, the announcement would give a great stimulus to this higher education of girls, and this preliminary difficulty might be solved very speedily."

East Central China has come to realize its responsibility in eliminating this "preliminary difficulty," for in the fall of 1915 the first literary college for women was opened. Dr. Love says she has been greatly surprised at the number of women who have applied for entrance into our medical college. "The indications, I think, are that as the coming years give more high school graduates, the number of those desiring to study medicine will be greater than it is now among the women in America."

It is an undisputed fact that through the home must come the regeneration of China. To have homes such as we have in America there must be congeniality, equality, mutual respect, love, and helpfulness between man and wife. How can this be, if the man is developed and the woman neglected and left to dwindle into insignificance? The Chinese woman must be given an equal opportunity with the man not only in medical education, but in all education. Chinese women possess the qualities which fit them to take up the medical profession, for they are ambitious, faithful and diligent students. There is nothing abnormal in the Chinese woman studying medicine, for has not all midwifery in China been done by its women?

As we have said before, there are three colleges for women in China, one in the extreme north, another in the extreme south, and ours. Dr. Love pleads not for a fourth college, but for a union one in this central part of China, and emphasizes the fact that it be taught in English. There naturally arises the question, "Why in English?" and Dr. Love gives the following reasons: "The graduates of the high schools of East Central China are capable of studying medicine in English; the medical missionary can teach at once without a long period of mastering the Chinese language well enough to teach medicine in it; medical books and magazines translated into Chinese are yet limited in number; the student educated in English can keep up to date. Medicine to her will be a rich, unlimited, ever-accumulating storehouse which English will unlock for her. Such a student, furthermore, will be fully prepared for any possible opportunities of postgraduate work in the United States or England."

How can a woman's medical college taught in English be provided for East Central China? Neither the government, the Rockefeller Commission nor one Church Board can or will do it at present. The government does not yet realize the need, the Commission feels that the time is not ripe, and one Church Board does not have sufficient funds at its command to provide adequately for the equipment and staff of a woman's medical college. Consequently such a school can only be established through the united efforts of the various Church Boards, thus ensuring "faculty, funds, friends, permanence, and results."

The place with greatest advantages to offer should be selected as the home for this college. Soochow, Nanking, and Shanghai present themselves, each for some excellent reason; but Shanghai seems to offer the greatest inducements on account of its population, wealth and convenience. It is a city which will afford the greatest amount of clinical material, and probably the most substantial support among the Chinese." It already has two medical schools for men, taught in English; and the Rockefeller Commission proposes "to establish at Shanghai a new medical college, and to provide for co-operation with existing medical schools in and near Shanghai on such basis as would be advantageous to the co-operating schools, and would unite the medical educational forces and the principal hospitals of the entire lower Yangtse Valley contributing to Shanghai.

Dr. Love says, "If the Union Medical School for women could be established in Shanghai, and affiliated with this great foundation, the advantages of such co-operation and union of the medical educational forces for women of East Central China with those hospitals of the lower Yangtse and with these co-operating institutions of Shanghai, would be such that the Chinese women would not need to go out of their own country for proficiency in the medical profession."

TO THE PREACHERS IN THE ABERDEEN DISTRICT, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

The fourth (25th) Sunday in June has been set apart by the missionary society of this Conference as "Woman's Day." We request you to remember the date, and urge every minister in this district to observe same in his church. Where you have more than one church, observe it in succession at your other appointments.

We are anxious to have a general observance of this day in our district, and feel sure we can rely upon each minister to co-operate with us.

Yours in the work.

Sec'y. Aberdeen District.

Not Equipment But the Man Makes the Difference in Schools.

A man to whom you may trust your boy with absolute confidence is Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tennessee.

During the past twenty-five years, Mr. Morgan has built up this training school for boys around his own long experience, and his study of boy nature and of the problems of giving the boy the mental preparation, physical well-being and spiritual strength for an honorable, manly, successful life. He has chosen his faculty, equipped his school, and ordered its conduct, with one purpose in view.

Mr. Morgan is a graduate of the Webb School, Bellbuckle, Tenn., and the Vanderbilt University. He is a man of strong, wholesome personality and deep Christian character—an inspiration to every boy who comes under his care. His close, personal relations with his students, his attention to their work, their talents, their special needs, have given his school a position of high distinction. The citizens of Fayetteville have recently presented him with a $15,000 building as an addition to his school.

A postal card to Mrs. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring you a catalog and full information about this school.—Adv.
